UPTOWN

Our review was somewhat misplaced at the Press on Monday night, and hence did not make its appearance in the columns of Tuesday's "Varsity." We spent all day Tuesday hunting for the precious document, but all in vain. The only remaining possibility is the waste-paper basket, and there we refuse to look. So we have gone to the trouble of preparing a condensed version of our prodigious parchment which so faithfully strayed away from us.

The feature of the programme is Maria Corda in "The Private Life of Helen Troy." The play, as will be recalled, is adopted from Professor John Erskine's recent book of a similar title. The story revolves about the intricacies of the private life of an ancient-Grecian flapper-queen. It is by far the very best parody we ever have seen or heard of. Brimful of satire, the play presents the ancient story, which we learned at public school, in a semi-modern setting. The result is most striking and constitutes the value of the play.

Maria Corda, the beautiful European screen "find," plays the title role amazingly well. Lewis Stone as King Menelaos, and Ricardo Cortez as Prince Paris complete the trilogy of "stars" playing their parts to perfection.

Several supplementary attractions, including selections by Jack Arthur and his orchestra, combine to make this week's bill at the Uptown Theatre most successful in every detail.

CHINESE OR CHINAMEN?
Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

With reference to the correction suggested by your correspondent on the 19th January: When I used the term "Chinamen" in reply to your questionnaire of the 16th January, I did not do it without thought. Unfortunately through a notion of our western superiority, a sense of inferiority has become attached to the very name that we give the Chinese people. However, I contend the name "Chinamen" may well be "the literary and logical word," and that it is a name that no one need be ashamed of.

Yours sincerely,

ANOTHER BITE

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Your editorial on the question of summer employment was a timely one, despite the remarks made by the Secretary of the Alumni Federation. The Federation is doing a very splendid bit of work for the undergraduates in this matter of summer work, and I do not think that any student would condemn the Bureau of Appointments on account of the odd unsatisfactory firm that creeps in unnoticed amongst its files. No, the trouble originates with those notices that appear overnight on the college notice boards, an excellent specimen of which is to be seen at this moment on the notice boards of a certain college, both first and third floors. It is a question whether permission has to be obtained before such notices can be put up, and if so, whether permission is always obtained. It seems to me that it is not the Alumni Federation but the college authorities that are to blame if they allow any sort of firm, through their paid agents, to use the college notice boards as free advertising space. If the gentleman of Arts II Victoria who signs the notice now appearing on the college notice boards, has a worthwhile proposition, we invite him to come out in the open with it and he will get his men in no time. On the other hand, if his proposition has been tried by others and found wanting, why, he will be told so, and will thus be saved from putting his brother students on to a bad thing.

Yours, etc.,

"Yet Another Bitten."

our hide-bound conventional beliefs.

Apparently, sir, you consider the undergraduates of this University weak and vacillating creatures utterly incapable of thinking for themselves and forbidden to meander beyond the pale of conventional thought upon pain of social ostracism. These meanders are classified as representative of "a certain strata of society" (a very dyslogistic phrase). True, one of our number was "thunderstruck" upon perusal of sundry "little books." But, whether thunderstruck or not, a subject which is engrossing half the world and is holding the other half in fear and trembling certainly calls for intelligent understanding. And might I presume to remind you, Mr. Editor, that we are living in the 20th century, freed from the fetters of tradition and prejudice, willing and able to assimilate the wheat and cast aside the husks of present day thought with sagacity and understanding.

I am afraid, however, that roaring virility has been usurped by meek senility, and individualism has been placed in the stocks, a target for the rude jibes of the plebeian multitude. The bogey of public opinion expressed through the medium of the erstwhile pink and yellow dailies of our town ever shadows us, holding us in terror lest our actions receive outside publicity. And may I say, in closing, that any persons who venture new opinions warrant sympathetic hearing, rather than boisterous denunciation, or, what is worse, gauch jibes such as were directed at Postumus, a martyr who ventured an honest opinion in a world of deceit.

C. Walker, II U.C.

P.S.—I am not a communist.

been a revolt by artists to bring back art to the theatre. They had visualized an untrammelled opportunity of developing a natural technique, at the same time having a beauty of rhythm which would impress the audience and give it a sense of balance.

The artist had to develop a perfect form, in doing which he ought to have experienced all the emotions which the part required. Then he must always detach himself from his art and direct it from afar. The art of the theatre was not just a single art but united the art of pleasing the eye, scenery, costuming, voice and expression. If the director were able to unite these parts there would be the possibility of presenting a whole unit of production of a play.

In the discussion that followed Mrs. Aikens' address, the members were free to ask questions which the speech had aroused, and Mrs. Aikens very admirably solved the difficulties.

ACCUSATION OF DAILY

Training classes, much strenuous exercise is derived from the various sports in which University students engage. Not only do a large number of men turn out for intercollegiate athletics, but a great many students take part in interfaculty sports. The President's Report for the year ending June 1927 contains the following paragraph: "The keen interest taken by the faculties and affiliated colleges in intra-mural athletics is one of the most gratifying features of our system of athletics. It shows that all the interest in the University is not confined to the spectacular. Over one thousand men turned out with the various teams, and provided keen competition for the several cups." This year the number taking part in interfaculty athletics seems to be just as large, and the interest shown just as keen as during the past year.

Information regarding other forms of exercise is also found in this report; 307 students were enrolled in the Officers' Training Corps, and of these, 240 first and second year men qualified for Physical Training in this branch of University education. Corrective Classes were conducted for 170 men who were unable to take the regular work. In the swimming and life-saving classes 124 men were taught to swim, and out of a total of 204 men, 189 won the Royal Life Saving Award.

TRUTHS OF RELIGION RELIABLE AS EUCLID SAYS S.C.M. GUEST

Professor Micklem of Queen's Addresses Annual Dinner in Great Hall

THREE OUTSTANDING TYPES

Sir Robert Falconer Speaks of Advantages of Large and Diversified University

"A man has true religion when he has a real sense of union with God's will, is ready to give himself up to the call of duty, and is possessed with an unbreakable love for his neighbour," said Professor Micklem, of Queen's University, when he spoke last evening in a most original and brilliant way to those attending the annual dinner of the Student Christian Movement in Great Hall. To some people, he went on to say, religion is a matter of glands and secretions and the lack of it they try to cure by administering religious pills and medicines. There are types cropping out always in religion, and the most predominant of these types became the denominations of the world to-day.

The three outstanding types were the mystical religions, the ascetic and the erotic, but real religion is a sound and healthy outlook on life, which should be shared by all religions, no matter what their fundamental creeds. The truths of religion are as reliable as Euclid and as melodious as Wagner, but religion itself cannot be calculated to definite precision like a

FATHER BASIL DOYLE SHOWS CHURCH UNITY AT NEWMAN RETREAT

Although Divine Institution, Yet Made Up of Humans, with Human Weaknesses

SHIP MUST HAVE CAPTAIN

"One Religion as Good as Another" to be Discussed on Sunday Morning

Father Basil Doyle, in continuing the Newman Club Retreat, spoke last night on the subject, "The Secret of Church Union." The interest in the subject was evidenced by the rapt attention of the audience. He stressed the unity of the Catholic Church, and went on to show that the secret of it all was provided by Christ Himself. "If Christ founded a church and expected it to last until the end of time," he said, "and yet failed to provide a head, He would have exercised less than human wisdom. The family, the city, the state, the whole nation, each has its head, its basis of unity, one in whom rests the last word of authority. Even the ship going to sea must have its captain if it is not to meet with disaster. The Church, although it is a divine institution, is also a human institution in as much as it is made up of human beings, with all human weaknesses. Jesus Christ Himself is, of course, its real head. But being a visible church it needs a visible head. Christ must have His vicar on earth.

"That Christ did so provide we find plainly stated in Holy Scriptures. In St. Matthew 16: 18, 19, He promises that Peter is to be the rock of foundation and is to have the keys of the

No persons after entering the House will be permitted to leave and re-enter during the evening. Private cars may be parked around the front campus and on the road which runs along the west side of Hart House, north from the Tower. All taxis must enter the grounds by the Queens Park gate both before and after the dance. Guests are requested to have the exact change ready for the taxi-driver in order that there may be no congestion at the door.

The Billiard Room is to be used as the ladies' cloak room. The men will use the Sketch Room. The committee and the guests from sister universities will use Room A.

Dancing will be from 9 p.m. until 2 a.m. in the Gymnasium. Supper will be served in the Great Hall at two sittings, first after the sixth, second after the tenth dance. The first and second years are obliged to take first supper (red tickets). Others may take either supper (white tickets) but are requested to go to the Great Hall immediately after either the sixth or tenth dance. Supper tickets are attached to the gentlemen's programme. The white tickets are good for either supper, the red ones only for the first supper. The high table is to be reserved for the patronesses, the guests from other universities, and the committee.

BALDWIN HOUSE PROFS EXPECT TO RESUME SOON

Messrs. Bladen and Urwick of Political Economy Department to Return After Illness

From information received yesterday at the office of the Department of Political Economy, "The Varsity" learned that Professor V. W. Bladen, who was stricken with mumps a few weeks ago, is expected to be back at Baldwin House this week and will probably begin lectures again next week. He is at present at the Isola Hospital, to which he was removed when he was attacked with the illness.

Professor E. J. Urwick, who has recently been forced to postpone several lectures on account of illness, was expected to begin lecturing again yesterday afternoon. In the meantime, the second years in Political Science and Commerce and Finance, who see a great deal of these professors, have been taking things easy. Their brief holiday, however, is due to end very shortly.

French Society of U.C. Hears About Classical Colleges in Quebec

The regular meeting of the French Society of University College was held Thursday evening, Jan. 26, at the Women's Union. M. de Champ introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Smith, who addressed the society on the classical colleges of Quebec.

Each year from three to four hundred students enter these colleges, and there spend eight years. During this time the students are entirely cut off from the outside world. They do not even read the newspapers, and thus their life is bounded by the college walls. The subjects studied correspond to those included in the Arts course, but special emphasis is placed on the Classics.

Following his address, Mr. Smith spoke of the promising young French poet, M. Paul Guain, whose work is characterized by flawless style and meticulous choice of words. Mr. Smith read some of M. Guain's poems on Champlain, Montcalm, Francois Bigot and other historical characters.

A feature of the evening's programme was a group of recitations by members of the club. The prize was awarded to Miss Isabel Cleland, II Arts.

Special Sunday Service In Convocation Hall

Special services are being held in Convocation Hall on Sunday under the auspices of the Student Volunteer Union and the Student Christian Association.

At the 11 o'clock service, Mr. Max Yergan, of South Africa, the noted Negro Student Secretary, will speak on "The Significance of the Detroit Convention." Two students will also speak briefly on the Convention as they saw it.

In the evening, at 7 o'clock, Mr. Yergan will speak on "The Color Question."

All students cordially invited.

"Dubennik" Mitchell, IV year U.C.: I much prefer the four to five lectures as I generally feel much better by that time.

A. A. Wood, I year Polycon: I prefer a nine o'clock because one feels much fresher and therefore can absorb more easily.

James Little, II year S.P.S.: Neither. I might get to a four o'clock but never to a nine o'clock.

J. B. Matthews, III year Forestry: It is immaterial to me. I can sleep through any lecture.

Syd Howell, II year English and History: I don't know what I'd do without my nine o'clocks as I can get in two hours' study beforehand.

Brock MacMurray, I year U.C.: I prefer a lecture from four to five, as one cannot concentrate on a full stomach.

LIBERAL CLUB PRIZE GOES TO EVELYN CRAW

Oratorical Contest in Foresters
Hall Attracts Student Talent

"The Challenge of To-day to the Canadian Liberal Woman" was the subject chosen by Miss Evelyn Crawl of 310 Victoria College when she was awarded first place and a prize of twenty dollars, speaking before the Toronto Women's Liberal Association in Foresters' Hall yesterday.

The second prize of fifteen dollars was won by A. J. Jackson of Wycliffe, speaking on "The History of the Liberal Party," and the third of ten dollars by Mr. Carroll of Osgegoe on "The Ideals of Liberalism."

In the light of the progress women have made in gaining the franchise, the big task of such clubs is to interest women generally in politics, one method being the annual oratorical contest. Any student under twenty-five years of age who has not previously won a first prize may compete, with a ten minute speech on any subject related to Liberalism.

This year the speeches were of as high a calibre as any year previous, that of Miss Crawl being by no means of the usual "cut and dried" order. Another particularly outstanding speaker was Doug. Kendall of the Union Theological College. Last year Mr. Walter Crawl of the same college was the winner.

Owing to the large number of competitors a division was necessary, and a second contest will be held in the near future at a joint meeting with the Young Women's Liberal Club.

Weekly Faculty Tea Attracts More Students

As the term advances it is evident that a larger number of the students is attending the faculty teas given each Thursday afternoon in the graduates' reading room of the library.

Yesterday a cheery assembly from all faculties was received by Mrs. G. O. Smith and Mrs. McKenzie, assisted by Mrs. Carruthers.

in Opening Game

The opening game of the Senior Intercollegiate basketball schedule is being staged in the Big Gym at Hart House to-morrow evening at 8.30 with Varsity and Western University playing the leading roles; while as a curtain raiser at 7.30 the Intermediates engage the smartest cage artists that McMaster University has been able to muster. When it is considered that Western is at present in possession of the silverware, and that the Blue team is out to win the title this year, no more need be said regarding the kind of basketball that will be played.

Western is fortunate in having practically the same team this year as won the Intercollegiate championship last year, while Varsity has but one veteran, and that Captain Currie. At that, though, Coach McCutcheon has whipped into shape a real machine, a machine that can and will play basketball. Several trips to the States did a lot of good to the Blue and Station 9BZ of the Electrical Engineering Department of Applied Science, was in communication with Station VCB of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, Hudson Bay expedition. VCB is located at Nottingham Island, N.W.T. The operator at VCB in private life is R. L. Bunt of Kingston, Ont., where he owns an amateur station, 3MX. The expedition left Halifax on the C.G.S. Stanley last July 17, and so far has been rather fortunate with weather conditions, as the operator stated that the coldest so far had been only 35 below zero. The communication took place from 1.05 a.m. to 1.45 a.m. on a wave-length of 52.5 metres, both stations using about 250 volts of power. During the conversation in the international code, Mr. Hill (2T9 S.P.S.), who was operating 9BZ at the time, asked the operator what was up there. He was told there were lots of Eskimos, and upon an inquiry about the "squaws" was informed that one had to keep to the windward of them.

PRINTING PROCESSES HAVE A GREAT VALUE FOR CULTURAL LIFE

Methods, Materials and Equipment of Printing and Publishing Are Discussed

FIRST LECTURE OF SERIES

Industry Moving Towards Large Scale Production, Specialization and Automatic Processes

The first of the series of lectures in Business Administration was given yesterday afternoon in Baldwin House. Mr. W. H. Bridgen of Brigdens-Limited was the speaker, and his subject, "The Printing and Publishing Industries: Process, Materials and Equipment," proved exceedingly interesting to his eager listeners.

To the layman, perhaps, the importance of printing is scarcely ever recognized to its full extent. Three pertinent slogans were quoted by Mr. Bridgen to show the value of the printing art—"The Art Preservative of All Arts," "The Bond and Builder of Civilization," "The Mother of Progress."

The speaker, touching on the industry itself, pointed out that the printing and publishing industry ranked eighth in importance in Canada. The value of the product in this branch of the industry is about $85,000,000 per annum, and employs 28,000 persons with a total wage expenditure of $39,000,000. The modern trend of the industry is towards production on a large scale. Concentration, specialization and "automation" are the chief phases of this trend.

The International Students' Association held its regular monthly meeting for January last night in the East Common Room at Hart House.

Mr. Macdonald, the President of the Association, opened the meeting by extending a hearty welcome to all of the new members, who, he remarked, far outnumbered those who had joined in previous years. The general subject for discussion was "Student Life in Foreign Lands." Four speakers, of as many nationalities, gave their impressions of university education in their various countries.

Mr. Pratt of Norway, made some interesting comparisons between Norwegian and Canadian education. There were three universities in Norway, the largest of which had a registration of some 3,000 students. The residential college is not found in that country; practically all of those in college live in private families, or in Bohemian fashion. At least half of all men at university there support themselves, not so much by summer work as by combining academic with some kind of extra curricular activity. Prohibition and fraternities are unknown. Initiation takes a much milder form than

Since the days of the world war there has been a growing sentiment throughout the world against war as a means of settling international misunderstandings, and although we of the younger generation may not reasonably be expected to have the same bias as our seniors who passed through that grim struggle, we are not so far removed from the baneful effects of the last war as to be utterly unable to judge of its worthwhileness or otherwise. Apart altogether from this, however, it is to be hoped that the efforts in our colleges and schools toward a better understanding of other races and nationalities, coupled with the trend of modern education to induce a greater spirit of toleration,—which, by the way, we venture to suggest is already in evidence,—will help this and future generations in producing a better civilization than that which was responsible for the most horrible of all wars.

At the same time, we have little use for those individuals whose bitter opposition to war is evinced in an altogether unreasonable hatred of everything military. These persons are apparently overpowered by the idea that war is solely the result of training young men in the art of self-discipline, the shouldering of a rifle, and the correct method of wheeling to the right or left whilst marching in file or in column of fours, coupled always of course with a certain style of dress. As a matter of fact, history will bear us out in the contention that it is usually the civilian, and too often the church-going civilian, who is responsible for inciting and pursuing war.

But the mentality of the anti-military groups who see a war menace in cadet training and the C.O.T.C. would be of no concern to an undergraduate newspaper so long as they kept their opinions away from the campus. When, however, their literature is being introduced into our University and thrown about on our grounds it behoves us to take cognisance of them and their methods. A pamphlet decrying the C.O.T.C. and the use of war veterans as physical instructors have been sent through the post to many undergraduates, some of whom are members of the C.O.T.C. We have neither the time nor the space to analyse this sheet in detail, but we are satisfied that many figures are incorrect, and we are surprised that a presumably intelligent body of people should publish, as gospel truth, the ravings of some individual member of a University C.O.T.C.—not ours—who was disloyal enough after joining the corps of his own volition, to abuse it. We fail to understand the brand of intelligence which can believe that the few drills represented by two or three years service in a C.O.T.C. is likely to make an otherwise peace-loving student a "war-hound." On the other hand, we sincerely hope that the intelligence on our campus is sufficient to enable students to realize that there is a vast difference between playing at soldiers in a C.O.T.C. and the genuine article on a battlefield. In any case we think it would be better if our friends who sent us the pamphlet would utilise their time in efforts to ameliorate the distress of disabled veterans, resulting from that which their civilization created, instead of sowing seeds of discontent and revolt amongst the students of the University.

Osgoode Hall Cries Want Affiliation with U. of T.

The Liberal party at Osgoode Hall are in favour of affiliation of that institution with the University of Toronto, it was decided at a conference of representatives yesterday. This is one of the planks in the platform of this newly-formed party, which has been preparing a campaign for the elections on Friday to the mock parliament.

Bridge and Tea at S.J.C.

The students of St. Joseph's College held a very delightful bridge and tea Wednesday afternoon at the College Residence, 29 Queen's Park. There were about fifteen tables of bridge, after which a lovely tea was served. Miss Mary McNamara and Miss Alice Hayes poured. After tea the girls danced in the hall and reception rooms upstairs.

Art, Music and Drama

Hart House Theatre

"Rutherford and Son," a drama of Yorkshire life by Githa Sowerby, has been chosen by Director Carroll Aikins in place of Violet Pearn's "Wild Birds" as the next Hart House presentation. The premiere of "Rutherford and Son" will be given on Monday evening next, January 30th, and the play will continue for the rest of that week. The play is a comedy-drama of life in the north of England, and shows the tragic result when a successful man centred on his business neglects to give his family the care that he owes them. The happiness of the Rutherford family is sacrificed to the father's interest in his work, and tragedy is the outcome. The play, despite its moral lesson, is, however, rich in the comedy element, so typical of the Yorkshire drama.

The role of Rutherford will be taken by that fine actor Ivor Lewis, and Mrs. Frances Rostance, whose last Hart House triumph was in "At Mrs. Beam's," returns to the stage this week in a part similar to her role in "T.Marsden's" of last season. The other parts have been entrusted to Howard Bach, Agnes Muldrew, Heasell Mitchell and Dora McMillan. The house has been sold out on Monday evening to the Yorkshire Club, who had an uproarious and enjoyable visit to the theatre last season for the premiere of "T.Marsden's."

"SOUTH OF BLOOR"

Chapter VI

THE RETURN OF DICK DARE

Dear reader (as Thackeray says), it is a long time since your old favourite Dick Dare appeared in these columns, but even as Conan Doyle was forced to revive Sherlock Holmes, we have acceded to many requests that Dick Dare be resurrected. So here he is:

One morning early in January Richard Randolph Dare, once commonly called Dick, was leaning on the place where the campus-fence might have been if spring were here. As it was, he merely leaned on the ozone. Life had gone well for Dick. Since he had suppressed his individuality and become a cog in the great machine of society, he had succeeded famously. His snow-bearded father back in Beeton had gone out of the cattle-snatching business and was basking in the light of Dick's reflected glory. Dick was now President of the Mac-Tavish-Dermier Club, secretary of the Students' Administration Agitation and Exalted Cadaver of the Medical Society. He had defeated the best men that McGill, Queen's, Western and Shields could produce at the annual ping-pong, tiddly-winx and badminton championships. All was going well with him, and whenever the Rhodes was mentioned, the Great Men looked reassuringly in his direction. In fact Dick was about to be awarded the Brass Onion, that famous symbol of all-round achievement given by that ancient organization the Night Owls' Club of X—College.

As Dick mused on the general glory of life, a light footfall broke the ice beside him. It was Amaryllis, the lady of his dreams.

"Dick," she said, with all the simplicity for which she was renowned. "Amaryllis," he answered with equal solemnity, and they flung their arms around each other.

"Where is Monty McNasty, your big fraternity president?" asked Dick. "Kingston," he answered sadly.

"Queen's?" queried Dick. "No. Portsmouth," she concluded. "It is a great country! I always knew that they would get him. What did he do?"

"He filled his fountain pen in the library without paying his two cents. The University Police caught him in the desperate deed."

"They are great men," smiled Dick. "How many years did he get?"

"Life, and then he will be deported."

"Well," sighed Dick, "Destiny moves in a mysterious way. It was coming to that big egg, and now he has been well scrambled. And you, Amaryllis; have you repented?"

"I have," she sobbed. "I know now how wrong I was when I did not realize that you were the greatest man in the university."

"I am," he assented readily. And the twilight came down softly. The stars twinkled out one by one as Dick and Amaryllis walked arm-in-arm up the old path where the Taddle was wont to trickle. The moon peeped (Continued on page 4)

VARSITY ENGAGES U. OF M. IN ARENA TO-MORROW AT 2.30 P.M.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

University of Montreal teams always have speed to burn, but are generally short on condition and practice. This year the team is reported to have all of its speed and condition too, and the Frenchmen have been going great guns in their games in the east. However, the Varsity squad of this season has been setting a pretty mean pace on skates, and the Blue boys should make a fair attempt at showing their heels to their opponents. At that, the locals realize that they are up against no cinch, and they know that they cannot afford to waste a single opportunity or take things in the least easily, and it is a safe bet that the Blue will travel at top speed from the opening bell in an effort to sew up the game before the going becomes too heavy.

The Intermediates play their return game at Brampton to-night, and a win for the Seconds will just about sew up the group despite the fact that the Blue have yet to meet Milton. Followers of the team claim that the students have one of their strongest Intermediate teams in years, and the boys in blue are now being conceded a first rate chance of winning their group and facing the senior winner in the play-offs. But there is a long tough row to hoe, and from now on any attempt at a championship will call for some real serious effort.

There are all kinds of angles to be taken with regards supporting Varsity teams. Some say that the games should not be attended if only from a source of duty. Quite so, but we say that the student body is in a bad way if it has no INTEREST in the University's athletic activities.

And by the way, anybody who might have an INTEREST in hockey is assured of a good demonstration of the sport at the Arena to-morrow afternoon. It is a case of do or die as far as the local Intercollegiate hopes are concerned. It seems about six years since that cup has left Toronto.

Varsity Intermediates tackle Brampton on the latter's home ice to-night in an attempt to ring up the fifth straight win for the Blue and White. The locals experienced little difficulty in beating the Brampton outfit in the game here last Saturday, but the latter promise to put up a stubborn battle on their own ice.

There is a strong possibility that Coach Jim Robson will make a few changes in his line-up for Brampton. The boys have not been defeated as yet, but the coach is not satisfied with their play, and plans several changes. Bill Algie and Bob Graham look like

ASSAULT AT GUELPH ANNEXED BY VARSITY

Boxers and Wrestlers From Toronto Win Majority of Bouts

EXCITING AND STRENUOUS

Varsity won the assault-at-arms in Guelph last night by seven bouts to five. The assault proved to be one of the most closely contested of recent years, the results being as follows:

- BOXING
- 118 Smith, O.A.C., defeated Woodhouse by a slight margin. Smith is a comer.
 - 125 Fell defeated Gamet, O.A.C., easily.
 - 135 Walstaff won from Clelland, O.A.C., after a gruelling battle.
 - 147 Daly poked out a clean-cut victory over Webster, O.A.C.
 - 175 Jackson scored a technical K.O. over Reynolds, O.A.C., who was unable to continue the 3rd round after withstanding Jackson's wicked attack for two rounds. This was the tid-bit of the evening.

- WRESTLING
- 118 Marshal won from Robinson, O.A.C., after a fast clever bout.
 - 125 Bishop lost to Griffiths, O.A.C., by slight time advantage.
 - 135 Grant defeated by Lindsay, O.A.C.
 - 145 Diprose won from Berry, O.A.C., after an exciting contest.
 - 158 Mooney easily defeated Joe Pesek, O.A.C.
 - 175 Tyson lost to Webster, O.A.C., after a strenuous bout.
- Heavy. Chepesilk, O.A.C., defeated Becking by a fall. Becking tried desperately, but was unable to overcome this advantage.

Unionists Trim Knox 19-14 Bell Prevents Bigger Score

A basketball game took place Wednesday between Union Theological and Knox Colleges. The Unionists came out victorious, the score being 19-14. For Union Theological College, Taylor, Snell and Miller were the star players. For Knox, Bell played brilliantly and saved his side from a larger defeat.

the defence pair. Bob Crosby, who has been starring on the defence, will be moved up on the forward line in an attempt to secure more scoring punch. Smith and Beal of the Juniors have been out with the Intermediates, and one of them, probably Smith, is likely to play.

Victoria Defeats St. Mike's Leads Group A of Baseball

By virtue of their win on Wednesday night over St. Mike's, Victoria are now leading Group A of the Interfaculty baseball series. It was a closely contested game all the way through, the final score being 7-4. For the first three innings neither side scored, but Vic. in their half of the fourth got three runs and added four more the next inning. In the second inning St. Mike's were in a good position to score with three men on bases and none out, but a fast double play and a called out ended their half of the inning. In the last inning St. Mike's scored four runs before the game was called.

SCHOOLMEN CAPTURE INTERFACULTY MEET

Gym Competition Reveals Skill and Daring on Part of Contestants

TRINITY COMES SECOND

The annual Interfaculty gym competition took place last night in the big gym at Hart House, with twelve men from five faculties competing. S.P.S. entered four, while Trinity and O.C.E. entered three each. Meds and Dents were represented by but one entry apiece. The S.P.S. team, composed of Williamson (III), E. Heslop (II) and W. Heslop (II), won the meet and the Wilson Cup, which was held by Meds last year. Trinity was second and O.C.E. third. The Trinity team was made up entirely of first year men. A. V. Malone was captain of the Ridley College gym squad last year, and F. R. Stone and G. W. K. MacDonald are from T.C.S. at Port Hope. The individual honours were won by Ross Gunn of Meds, with Jack Williamson of School second.

Those who attended the meet were treated to an excellent exhibition of gymnastics, especially on the horizontal bar, where Don Barton's boys showed real skill and daring. The smoothness with which the men worked showed clearly the result of months of training. Practice for this competition starts early in October, before the gym is open for regular P.T. classes, and continues all through the fall and winter. Lately most of the Intercollegiate aspirants have been turning out five nights a week.

On the horizontal bar Gunn was several points in the lead. Gunn, Williamson and Campbell were all tied for first place on the parallel bars, while Williamson was high man on the horse and the mats.

The results of the Interfaculty match were as follows:

- First—S.P.S. 921 out of 1200
- Second—Trinity ... 807
- Third—O.C.E. 744

The individual results and members of the Intercollegiate team, which goes to McGill on February 24th:

- 1. Ross Gunn, Meds - 342 out of 400
- 2. Jack Williamson, S.P.S. 341
- 3. D. Adams, O.C.E. 298
- 4. D. Campbell, Dents 294
- 5. E. Heslop, S.P.S. 293
- 6. W. Heslop, S.P.S. 287
- 6. A. Malone, Trinity 287

Wilt Heslop and Malone will compete against each other next Thursday for the sixth position. Stone (Trinity), MacDonald (Trinity), Jones (S.P.S.), Galloway (O.C.E.) and Lockwood (O.C.E.) were the other competitors, in order of standing.

FLYING FRENCHMEN HERE ON SATURDAY

Varsity Seniors Take On U. of M. in Crucial Intercollegiate Tussle

VISITORS LOST TO MCGILL

On Saturday afternoon the Blue and White Senior hockey team engage in their second tilt of the Intercollegiate hockey series at the Varsity Arena, with the fast University of Montreal sextet. The game is called at 2.30, and since this is the crucial game of the season as far as Varsity's championship aspirations are concerned, a large turnout of the student body is expected.

The flying Frenchmen from the Quebec metropolis have rounded out a fast six this year, and are called upon to make a strong bid for the Intercollegiate honours. University of Montreal has hung up an enviable record so far this season in the Quebec senior association, being second only to the Montreal Victorias, which aggregation made such a decisive sweep of European hockey centres in their tour of last season. Although in front of McGill in the Q.A.H.A., the latter team are in the lead of their city rivals in the Intercollegiate race, as the McGill team has defeated Varsity in Montreal by the score of 4 to 1 and U. of M. by 3 to 0. To remain in the fight with McGill, the Blue team must come through with a win to-morrow, but they will find their hands full with the flashy French outfit. Page Gagne and Emard on the forward line have proven their worth, and consequently are to be found at the very top of high-scorers in the Q.A.H.A. Emard especially (Continued on page 4) ed out from behind a lonely cloud and gently Dick took his Amaryliss in his arms. Tenderly he bent and kissed her just below the nose.

"Come now!" said a gruff voice, "no more of that! Move on!" It was one of the University Police Force.

"Officer," said Dick, "I am Dick Dare, and have just asked this adorable creature to be my wife. I love her."

"Careful, my lad; anything you say will be used against you," said the officer.

"And I have decided to renounce the Rhodes—we will be married to-morrow."

The good old gendarme paused with a tear in his eye and an icicle on his moustache—he smiled and gave them his blessing:

has been showing up well of late, and will cause no end of worry to the Varsity defence line.

On the other hand, Coach Pearson will trot on the ice the strongest team of the season to represent the Blue.

"Red" Whitehead will in all probability be found back at his old position on the defence after an absence of several weeks due to having undergone an operation earlier in the season.

Captain Herb Kirkpatrick, veteran of the team, will also be in action, in spite of the accusations of the wise guys regarding his retirement from amateur hockey after receiving tempting offers from a local pro club.

With this defence pair and the ever-ready Don Carrick in reserve, it will take a real brand of hockey to give the Varsity aggregation a trimming.

Harley, Richards and King have developed into a well working trio and will be ready to tackle the speedy U. of M. forwards at their own game.

"Mac" King is called to start in the game, and is sufficiently recovered from a bad shoulder received during an exhibition game across the line while the Pearsons were on their annual Christmas invasion.

However, Jimmie McMullen has filled in the gap at centre during the past few weeks, and as a relief man will not weaken the team one particle. Along with Stewart, the Varsity line should break fast and give the opposing defence much to think of.

The probable line-up will be:

U. of T.: Goal, Snyder; defence, Whitehead, Kirkpatrick; centre, King; forwards, Richards, Harley; subs, Stewart, Carroil and McMullen.

U. of M.: Goal, Beaudry; defence, Godin, Lafrance; centre, Page; forwards, Emard, Gagne; subs, Raymond, Ratte, Gratton, Lefebvre, Roy and Magnan.

George Smith, S.P.S., was the chairman of the evening and ably and appropriately introduced the speakers.

it used to in Canada, and rooters' clubs are conspicuous by their absence. Co-eds, said the speaker, were quite as bad there as here; despite that fact Scandinavian longevity is the highest in the world—fifty-five years.

India was represented by Mr. Matthews, whose humorous account of student life in his native country held his audience in gasping attention. He stressed the affect of climate upon the energy of the Indian student. "There are two climates in Indian—hot and hotter," said Mr. Matthews whimsically. The summer temperature hovered between 115° and 120°. Notwithstanding this, the university student managed to do almost as little as here. He took two Sundays a week—Saturday and Sunday.

Coming to Canada for the first time, Mr. Matthews remarked mentally upon the rigid economy of Canadians in utilizing all available foodstuffs—hot-dogs, for example. Since that time, he confessed to a certain weakness thereof.

The third speaker was Mr. Heineberger, of Finland. In general, the Finnish university system resembled Norway's. Residences were quite unknown, and faculties were not so distinctly segregated as in Canada. Freshmen were permitted to remain fresh, being subjected only to minor indignities.

Mr. Elbito from West Africa gave a very informative address on the prevailing educational conditions there. Having only been opened up of late years, the country had naturally not progressed far as yet. On the other hand, on the Gold Coast, the degree of M.A. was annually conferred on a large number of candidates.

All of the speakers answered any queries put them following their speeches. The informal nature of the meeting was a feature. The League of Nations will be discussed at the February meeting.

kingdom of heaven. In St. Luke 22: 32 He promises that Peter is to strengthen his brethren, to be the bond of union to hold them together.

In St. John 21: 15-17 He fulfils these promises when He makes Peter shepherd of His whole flock, with the thrice repeated charge, "Feed my lambs . . . Feed my lambs . . . Feed my sheep."

"Thus Christ founded that office which would guarantee the stability and permanency of His church. There is only one Church that lays claim to that office, namely, the Catholic Church with its pope in Rome, the historical and lawful successor of St. Peter and Christ's Vicar on earth.

The success of the Catholic Church founded on the Rock of Peter, weathering the storms of persecution the centuries have brought—coming out of each combat stronger than before—spreading from the few faithful followers left by Christ, to a Universal Church—united always—proves the Secret of Union lies in authority."

The lecture to-night at 7.30 will be "One Religion as Good as Another."

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock Father Doyle will preach on "Faith and Reason," and Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock he will close the Retreat with the sermon, "Why I Am a Catholic."

All students welcome.

SOCIAL affairs from Winter to Winter may be much the same, but certainly their fashions are not. Witness Simpson's new collections of afternoon Frocks as charming proof of that. SHEA'S HIPPODROME

The feature presentation on the screen was Midge Belamy in "Silk Legs." It concerned the affairs of two rival hosiery wholesale travellers—one male and one female. The salesman inadvertently gives way the secret of his success to his rival saleswoman. He concerns himself with the feminine buyers—flatters them, flatters them, fondles them and forgets them. The saleslady tries his method and complications result. Of course Cupid has the last shot.

The comedy is not the Collegians. That says volumes.

Wulff and Jerome open the vaudeville in an excellent act. They are billed as eccentric tumblers and they are two of the best. Dunbar and Turner provide the usual gags in a novel way. Herma and Juan Reyes play the violin and piano respectively and are truly termed concert artists.

We might point out that Shea's presentations in this particular branch of vaudeville are not at all of the usual brand and are well worth hearing.

Gracie Deagon as a small girl is excellent and she is ably supported by Charlie Connex. It is an act that is not stilted and one which is really amusing. Eugene Costello and Co., in Footlight Frolics are only fair in most spots but the dancing of one of the "and Company" certainly saves the situation. We would like to see her given credit in the title.

PROCESSES OF PRINTING HAVE CULTURAL VALUE

Quite apart from the industrial side of the question, the printing and publishing industry has a place of importance in the cultural life of the country which cannot be measured or told in figures.

The various processes, both in the preparatory work and the actual printing, as well as the use and preparation of the materials, were vividly described and illustrated by examples of the product and materials used.

The equipment of a modern printing establishment was shown in a series of interesting lantern slides. The automatic nature of the machinery was the most striking aspect of the whole equipment.

Among the many exhibits with which the lecturer vivified his explanations of technical processes were two small pieces of type, on each of which the whole of the Lord's Prayer was to be seen in minute characters. The smaller piece was only 1/4 inch square.

The second of the series will be given next Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Room 1, Baldwin House. The speaker will be Dr. E. F. Eliert of the Eliert Printing Co., New York, on the subject, "Executive Problems of the Printing Industry."

We are sorry that our review is late, but someone had a pick on the "B's," for our review, like M. B's, also disappeared.

YOUTH OF THE WORLD FREE FROM RESTRAINT AT DETROIT COUNCIL

Max Yergan, Noted Y.M.C.A.
Secretary, Addresses Crowded Hall

RESULTS OF CONFERENCE

John Manual, Victoria, and Mary Winspear, St. Hilda's,
Also Speak

"In my effort to bring to you what was to me the significance of the Detroit Conference I am led first to speak of the meeting here this morning," said Max Yergan, speaking on the recent convention of the Student Volunteer Movement in Detroit, at Convocation Hall Sunday morning. Mr. Yergan is the general secretary of the Students' Christian Association of South Africa, and came over here specially for the conference and for follow up work in America. He is leaving next month for a missionary conference in Jerusalem.

Mr. John Manual of Victoria College stated that in his opinion the outstanding idea of the conference lay in the words spoken by Dr. Richard Roberts in the opening speech—"the final test of our Christianity is the character of our personal relationships."

Miss Mary Winspear of St. Hilda's College, giving her impressions of the convention, said that one clear pillar was raised and on this pillar played the searchlights of the thought of many nations.

"I have been wondering just what was my position here this morning," said Mr. Yergan when he arose to speak. In Detroit, the speaker continued, they were talking about, not the little white world, but a great world which included people of many colours, and he felt that he was a sort of Exhibit A—an optical demonstration of what they were discussing.

The speaker said that the leadership of the conference was significant in that it promoted absolute honesty of

WYCLIFFE TO BUILD LARGE NEW LIBRARY

To Remodel Other Buildings

ANNIVERSARY REMEMBERED

It was recently announced that Wycliffe would erect a new library in connection with its jubilee.

In an interview with Rev. Dr. W. E. Taylor, Secretary of the Faculty of Wycliffe College, "The Varsity" was informed that in addition to building a new library it is also proposed to reconstruct the central part of the main building, including the entrance on Hoskin Avenue and the Entrance Hall, with additions providing more adequate and modern lecture room accommodation, business offices, students' reading room and faculty room. "It is estimated," said Dr. Taylor, "that the proposed additions and improvements will amount to $150,000."

Wycliffe College is also looking forward to the maturing next year of the Whitney bequest of $400,000 which will go towards the further endowment of the college, and will make possible the extension of its work to include graduate courses in theology, in close relation to the graduate work of University College and the College of Education.

The new library will be erected in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of Wycliffe College, which is being celebrated this academic year, 1927-28. The new building will be of cut stone, of chaste collegiate Gothic design, in keeping with the dignity and beauty of its surrounding University buildings. It will be situated on the

Carillon Bells Ring Out The Hours

OLD SCHOOL BELL

"Alas, O, Postumus, Postumus, the years glide swiftly by," wrote Horace many centuries ago. Old stuff, it seems. Even the most ignorant freshman could tell you that. However, it appears that it is not always remembered by undergraduates. For it has been found advisable to make the purpose of the carillon bells in the Memorial Tower twofold. Not only do they produce melodious musical selections, at the highly skilled hands of the carillonist, but they now strike the fleeting hours, as marked off by the handsome clock on the tower.

Each morning as the chimes peal out their warning that nine o'clock has arrived, the straggling student a block or two away quickens his pace somewhat. Thus in his childhood days he may have hurried, on hearing the "last" bell in front of the old public school ringing to him the fateful tidings that he was late.

Yet the carillon bells are not always unwelcome, not by any means. There are times when the heart of many a student is warmed with gratitude to

MARITIME DEBATERS ARE TOURING CANADA

Subject: "Is Sport Carried to Excess in Canadian University Life?"

IN HART HOUSE FEB. 8

A debating team from the Maritime Provinces is making a tour of Canada under the auspices of the National Federation of Canadian University Students. They will debate in Hart House Wednesday evening, February 8.

The motion will be, "Resolved that sport is carried to excess in Canadian university life." The maritime debating team is composed of Hazen Fulton, University of New Brunswick; Ernest M. Howse, Dalhousie University; and Elbert Paul, Acadia University. Melvin K. Kenny, of Victoria College, will move the motion, and will be the only speaker from Toronto "on the paper."

During the course of their tour the team is visiting Bishop's University, University of Montreal, McGill, Queen's, Toronto, Western, and the Universities of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

While here they will be the guests of the Students' Administrative Council of the University and the Hart House debates committee.

Next Thursday they will debate at McGill on the subject "Resolved that sport is carried to an excess in Canadian university life."

The debaters will also meet the University of Montreal. Their next place of visit will be Queen's, where it is expected that they will debate on the same subject.

In reference to the proposed visit to Queen's, the "Queen's Journal" makes the following statement:

"There has been a hitch in the plans for the prospective visit here of the Maritime debate team, scheduled for the evening of Feb. 3.

"The Maritimes, in their letter to the local debate committee, called for three men on each team, each to speak twenty minutes, with five minutes rebuttal for all six debaters. A little ready reckoning will see that this would call for two and a half hours debating. The prospect of being subjected to a hot air diet for so long a period would, the local committee feels, cause many who would otherwise attend, to remain at home.

"The local committee have made their plans with the 'two man team' (Continued on page 4)

The Literary and Athletic Society of University College Give Brilliant Dance

FOUNTAIN PLAYS IN HALL

Each Lady Given as Favour, a Sketch of Main Dourway of College

The University College Literary and Athletic Societies entertained in Hart House Friday evening at their annual Arts Ball. An innovation this year was that dancing took place in the gymnasium, whereas in former years the Great Hall was utilized.

A beautiful colour scheme added greatly to the decorations. Baby spotlights of all colours and hues were used to flood the dancing floor with a scintillating rainbow. In the swimming pool another novel innovation was in evidence. Flood lights reflected from the water in the pool covered the east wall with a brilliant array of dancing lights. The whole colour scheme was tremendously effective. In the corridor outside the Great Hall palms and a small fountain formed the decoration.

At 10.15 o'clock supper was served in the Great Hall. Each lady found a favour awaiting her. It was an etching of the main entrance of University College by Harry Wallace.

The patronesses were Lady Falconer, Mrs. Vincent Massey, Miss Ruth Hutton, Mrs. H. J. Cody, Mrs. C. N. Cochrane, and Mrs. H. J. McLaughlin.

The committee in charge were R. A. F. Anderson (chairman), A. T. Christie (ex officio) and Messrs. E. A. Macdonald, C. G. Mitchell, G. A. Gale, W. A. Gilbert, W. H. K. Ross.

S.C.A. Schedules Lectures for Thursdays in February

A very interesting series of addresses has been arranged by the Student Christian Association for Thursday evenings at 5.15 in February, following their usual plan of having four addresses each term.

The addressees and speakers are as follows:

- Feb. 2. The Necessity for Religion—Principal Hutton.
9. Grounds for Belief in a Personal God—Professor W. T. Brown.
16. The Meaning of the Divinity of Christ—Professor John Baillie.
22. Evolution and a Belief in Immortality—Professor W. R. Taylor.

The addresses will be given in the Lecture Room, Hart House.

REACTIONS OF BLOOD ONLY LATELY KNOWN

Professor Henderson Lectures to Royal Canadian Institute

EFFECT OF CARBONIC ACID

"That soon economists and physiologists will unite to enable us to see the connections and inter-connections in social as well as scientific things," was the conclusion which Professor Henderson reached at the Royal Canadian Institute lecture in Convocation Hall on Saturday evening. The lecture dealt with the relations of the various components of the blood. Blood may be regarded as a kind of protoplasm but lacking more of the characteristics of protoplasm are therefore easier to understand. There are six components of the blood; the two which are most interesting in their reactions are oxygen and carbonic acid. Our first difficulty in making progress is that we have not yet learned how to distinguish chemical properties and have no intuition regarding the nature of physical chemical properties. Twenty years ago a Danish physiologist discovered the influence which the carbonic acid ever present in the blood has on the blood combined with oxygen. When carbonic acid enters the blood it drives the oxygen out and there we have the idea of cause and effect—equally dangerous in politics and psychology. The effect is the cause of the cause and the cause is the cause of the effect. The two are so related that if one

Harley and Richards Star for Toronto and Page for U. of M.

On Saturday afternoon at the University Arena, the Varsity Senior Intercollegiate hockey team won their first game in the Intercollegiate series with the Flying Frenchmen of the University of Montreal. Only a fair crowd witnessed the exhibition, but were well rewarded by the sparkling performance turned in by the Blue team. The Blue and Gold French team hardly lived up to advance expectations and were unable at any time to threaten seriously Varsity's commanding lead, except for a few moments at the commencement of the game when Montreal did lead by one goal for seven minutes. However, the visiting team was noticeably weakened by the absence of their star wing man, Emard, and the regular goalie, Beaudry. The latter has accepted a professional offer and will be lost to U. of M. as a consequence. Carbonneau, who replaced Beaudry in the fort, did not prove as formidable as the latter was, with the result that Varsity was able to pile up a much larger score than otherwise might have been possible. Page on the U. of M. forward line bore the brunt of the attack and was the only one who caused Kirkpatrick and Carrick any worry.

ART FREED FROM CONTROL IN EIGHTEENTH CENTURY

Arthur Lismer Addresses Men of Third Year on Art of Bygone Days

"Eighteenth Century Art" was the subject of an address given by Mr. Arthur Lismer to the third year English students of University College last week.

"It was during the eighteenth century that artists were freed from the direct authority of the state or of the church," Mr. Lismer explained. People were taking pictures into their homes—the artist was painting for the public. He himself became an individual. In London the studio was to be a place where technique was studied. This brought with it the Age of Criticism.

Blake, as shown both by his poetry and by his art, was a mystic rather than an impressionist. Yet he interpreted not only what had gone before, but a realistic world.

The classical spirit is found in the work of Richard Wilson. There is that contemplation of nature, as throbbing in pre-ordained forms, perfect in idea and spirit, expressed in an ideal.

A further development from the classical painting is found in the work of the naturalistic, Craw, who was able to get a fine appreciation of light and shade.

UNUSUAL PRICE

"Working men of all countries unite! You have nothing to lose but your chains.

You have a world to win." Muttering this ominously beneath their breaths and arming themselves with ten-cent pieces, a large army of over forty students invaded the University Press at precisely 12 o'clock the other day.

Was this a volcanic outburst of our new Communist Klub? (It is quite the thing among the smart set now, you know.) In a moment the chamber was filled with eager, stamping people. It was lunch hour and they were ravenous. However, they pushed their way to the counter, and in dire and dreadful accents asked to purchase "The Communist Manifesto" by Karl Marx.

Covered by this fierce rush and showered with ten-cent pieces, the terrified women were handing out the manifesto. With grim satisfaction these embryo "Reds" tucked their precious purchases away and stalked away to devour the stirring eloquence of Marx.

Quaking with terror we crept out

THE SHOUTING DIES

The "rah-rah boy" is passing from the American campus. This startling announcement is one of the conclusions reached in a series of articles on American college life written by R. L. Duffus for the New York Times Magazine. "The general public, aware of the enormous growth of the intercollegiate football industry and gaining its impressions of college life from fiction and the motion picture, has probably not discovered that the rah-rah boy is becoming obsolete. Nevertheless he is," says Mr. Duffus.

The writer goes on to claim that the passing of this noble creature is part of the change in college spirit. According to him a greater emphasis is being placed on studies and extra-curricular activities are being regarded in their proper proportion. Even though the football season is still the time for a partial revivification of the rah-rah boy, the students no longer take the fanatical attitude of old towards the sport. To quote Mr. Duffus again, "He (the undergraduate) openly disclaims any relish for the idea of dying for dear old Siwash." And the writer goes on to point out that as evidence of the failure of the old time college spirit, students are neglecting tradition in the matter of continuing the hazings and "stunts" which constituted such a labour of love for their fathers. Worse still, Mr. Duffus claims that fewer people are competing for posts on student publications.

Many Canadians on reading the synopsis of Mr. Duffus would say that the new order of things in American colleges he describes has been the usual thing in Canada for several years. They would point out that the University of Toronto has kept ahead of most and abreast of the best American colleges in its programme of honour courses and that its standards are calculated to eliminate the rah-rah boy. Yet we doubt whether we can draw the sweeping conclusion that studies are the main business of undergraduates as opposed to "activities." We doubt particularly whether this can be said of the arts students to whom our discussion is largely confined. It must be admitted that hockey has received a relatively small amount of support in late years and that the rugby games are coming to be regarded more as social events than as opportunities for rooting. Yet it is foolish to conclude that all those who are not present in the rooters' sections at rugby games or who do not attend in some other capacity are all at home wrapt up in their studies.

The failure of the students to support their teams en masse cannot be traced to a greater interest in studies alone but to the multiplication and specialization of student activities. This applies not only to the many minor sports, each with its few devotees, that are sustained financially by the rugby receipts, but to the many divisions of music, literature and the arts that are handled or handled by the horde of little societies. And to-day people neglect their studies for their particular little hobby just as much as did any rugby enthusiast in the good old days. There is none of the shouting of the rah-rah boy over a few major activities but a thousand whispers, each murmuring, "For God, for country and for the parliamentary club," or, "we will die for the dear old Players' Guild."

We agree with Mr. Duffus that the rah-rah boy is fast disappearing, but we submit that his shoutings have been divided and subdivided into whispers, less noticeable, but just as detrimental to the strict and concentrated pursuit of knowledge, literal "whispers of death" to academic ambition. Mr. Duffus has been deceived, we fear, in his belief that the friendly attitude of student newspapers towards scholarship is any indication of student thought. In the first place, his remarks apply only to a minority group. The other papers still glorify "the all-round preparation for life" received by athletes and agitation, rather than the preparation of the nasty bookworm. In the second place, some newspapers are expressing the views of a loud minority which upholds scholarship in reaction to football. The fallacy of their argument is that hard study is "fun." Nonsense! You cannot pick a course in a university or an occupa-

CHAMPUS CAT

The Enraptured Reporter takes a whirl at the Arts:

"Transported on the downy wings of song the enthralled auditors of the concert entered a very haven of artistic delight. Like the dervish lark whose fairy minstrelsy pours forth in a torrent of overpowering melody upon the translucent beams of rosy-fingered dawn, the artists created a world of aetherial harmonies whose very notes seemed to bespeak Arcady and roses in the happy lap of spring-tide. "As each successive peal of heavenly music beat like elfin hammers, delightfully and gently, upon the captivated ears of the breathless listeners, your critic could not help but feel that here, indeed, was the Temple of Art; yea, here was the Parnassian Hall.

"In sooth, nothing to even approach this exquisite outburst of euphony has been heard, or will be heard, withal, for many a moon in the Varsity Stadium."

It snowed. With great difficulty the Enraptured Reporter was restrained from writing 500 words about the fluttering downy army of the softly sinking snow. He referred to it as a white mantle. Pretty soon, if we allow him to talk about white mantles, he will be working in other pieces of furniture including walnut sideboards and mahogany bureaus. Just imagine.

Saturday the humour column of the w.k. "Daily Star" contained this limrick:

There was a young fellow named Corbett,
Who moved in a dignified orbit,
On hearing a pun,
He cried: "I'm undone,
Whenever this hap-puns I sore get."
But on Thursday the "Champus Cat" ran off the following:
There was a brave critic called Corbett,
Who said: "You may think that I'm sore but I loathe and detest
The Pun at its best,
For it wallows good taste from its orbit!"
"A Little of Everything" is right!

LYRIC

Beauty is a wanton wight
Dancing all the day and night,
And beside her, on the morrow
Wakes her only consort, Sorrow.

Over hill and dale and field
I pursued her, bade her yield
Till she granted me one kiss
On the brink of the abyss.

Deeper than the sea fell I,
Down where Grief's pale griffons lie,
But there sprang like instant wings
Dreams to draw me from these things,

Out of the abyss, above
Even to the throne of Love
Ruling happily and free,
Robed in sheen of ecstasy.

There I found, within his portal
Beauty smiling, sweet, immortal:
"In my garden all the fruit Comes of worship, not pursuit."

tion in the world which will be "fun." It may be interesting to you, but in some part or other you must plough through stuff that is dead and uninteresting, yet must be done as well as the brighter parts.

By way of postscript, we will leave our readers to decide whether the following remarks of Mr. Duffus have any local application: "In editorials, 'colymys,' criticisms and news reports the student editor is far better prepared to match himself against metropolitan standards than he used to be. Sometimes he is sophomoric in airing his newly acquired information; often he is world-weary and cynical under the weight of his one-and-twenty years, but it is evident that he is capable of thinking independently and vigorously."

SHOULD SETTLE IT

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

It was with deep regret when I read in your correspondence of the 26th that I found such stubbornness could exist in this fair land of Canada and such ignorance in the cultured University of Toronto.

Through sixteen years of humble existence on earth, including a year in the States, on this continent, I have never heard such a word as "Chinamen." The word shocked me as much as it would shock you to be called "Canadamen." It is nothing complimentary but just uniterary and illogical.

Since there is so much superiority here that it leaves absolutely no way for a little friendly and honest advice—at least on a word of which I myself am a representative—it is impossible for me to argue. Thanking you,

Yours very truly,

W. S. B. Wong, 3T1.

WOULD SWIM IN LILLIAN MASSEY POOL

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

We have found, to our great surprise and disappointment, that University girls are not admitted to the Lillian Massey pool at any time without paying the entire athletic fee of four dollars.

For those girls for whom athletics are not compulsory, but who occasionally long for a plunge in the pool, might not a nominal fee of twenty-five or thirty-five cents per swim be levied? Under the present régime few girls, excepting those on regular teams or those in first year (for whom the annual fee is compulsory) consider it practical to indulge in an enjoyable but very expensive swim.

Hoping that this may reach the attention of a sympathetic authority, we are,

Some Disappointed Co-eds.

Twenty Universities Now Established in Canada

How many universities are there in Canada? The average informed student could probably call to mind five or so on the spot: Toronto, Queen's, McGill, Western, Manitoba . . . ?

And after that? How about Saskatchewan? And British Columbia?

To be definite, there are twenty universities in Canada according to the almanac. Seventeen of these were represented here at the N.F.C.U.S. conference at Christmas. Here they all are:

Acadia, Alberta, Bishop's, British Columbia, Dalhousie, Emmanuel, King's, Laval, Montreal, Manitoba, McGill, McMaster, Mount Allison, New Brunswick, Ottawa, Queen's, St. Francis Xavier, Saskatchewan, Toronto, and Western.

VARSITY TRIUMPHANT IN HOCKEY AND BASKETBALL ON SATURDAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The week-end did not pass off very quietly as far as Varsity sports were concerned, for both Senior teams won their Intercollegiate fixtures. They not only won, but they trounced their opponents. University of Montreal hockey team was the first to taste defeat, and the 9-2 score might just as well have been 15. In the basketball game, Western was no match for Mr. McCutcheon's proteges, and the 38-8 score impresses that fact on the mind and does it with indelible ink.

The decisive defeat of U. of M. was indeed a surprise, because after McGill had defeated Varsity and also Montreal, Varsity turned around and played rings round the Frenchmen. The visitors were not at their full strength, but even if they had been, they could not have done much to the Pearsonites the way they were strutting their wares at the Arena Saturday afternoon.

There seems to be a new phrase floating around in sporting circles these days, and though we are not just sure what it means, we will make an attempt to use it. "Mac" King and "Red" Whitehead are again on the line-up, and the (watch it now) "re-vamped" Blue team is about ready to take on all-comers now.

That basketball game with Western was a real walk-away, and any team that can hold last year's champions to one solitary point for half the game and then allow only seven more after that, is one sweet little machine. Machine is the only word to use because except for a little lapse in the second part, combination was the only thing that was seen on the floor, that is as far as the Varsity team was concerned. Western was unable to get much combination at all, and perhaps that was partly due to more machine work on the part of the Blue guards.

We are back on the old line again. And honestly it is hard to see how anybody who wants something interesting, something exciting, and who claims relaxation—and as we were saying, we don't see why on earth the Varsity student passes up anything like the type of Intercollegiate sports which were on the cards for Saturday last. Both games, though one-sided, were fast and exciting and should have provided enough for any thrill hunter. And then to cap a good evening, the basketball authorities provided a couple of hours of good dance music. Some people certainly are blind.

Varsity Intermediates' string of wins was broken on Friday when they lost to Brampton. However, this does not materially affect the standing, and the Blue and White still look like the group winners. Their hardest game will be with Newmarket when the latter plays in Toronto.

The boys from Newmarket have a fast team that will go big on good ice, and they may make the locals step. Several of last year's Junior team are playing for Newmarket, and they understand the game, as was demonstrated by their showing last season. However, Varsity are confident that they will be returned group winners, and even have visions of much higher honours.

VARSITY TEAM FAILS BRAMPTON WINS 2-1

Intermediates' Loss is First of Season for Local O.H.A. Team

McKNIGHT TIES SCORE

Varsity Intermediates met their first defeat of the season on Friday night when they fell before the Brampton outfit on the latter's home ice and were forced to take the short end of a 2-1 score. The game was fast and clean throughout, though there were several disputes regarding the penalties that were handed out.

Varsity's team play was a trifle more finished than that of their opponents, but the homesters had the punch when it meant goals. Worthy rallied for Brampton in the opening period on a solo effort, and they held the lead of one goal till the second period. Doug, McKnight did the necessary for Varsity and tied the score when he dashed in to score on his own rebound.

Machel got the last goal of the game in the same period after a mix-up in front of the Varsity net. Varsity forced the play in the final period, but although they kept Brampton bottled up in their own end of the rink, they were unable to break through for the equalizer.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY TEAM PLAYS QUEEN'S ON FRIDAY

Game at Kingston is Arousing Interest—Varsity Lines Up Strong Team

"The Varsity women's Intercollegiate hockey team will play against Queen's at Kingston in a double-header next Friday night, Feb. 3," Miss Cessell Cassels, manager, stated Saturday.

The team, accompanied by Miss Parks, Miss Cassels and Mr. A. Armstrong, the coach, will leave for Kingston on the Friday morning train and return on the midnight.

It is greatly to be regretted that Eileen Ditchburn, one of Varsity's star forwards, will not be on the line-up. Very keen interest and enthusiasm has been shown in the women's hockey this year, and the very best wishes go to the players on the Varsity team.

Probable line-up:

KNOX BEATS WYCLIFFE IN FIRST LEAGUE GAME

Presbyterians Win 4-1 Due to Jack's Clever Shooting at End of Game

The Knox College hockey team, by defeating the Wycliffe College team on Saturday morning by the score of 4-1, won the first game to be played in Group C of the Jennings Cup series. In the first period of play Stewart opened the attack by registering a lone tally for Knox, Wycliffe remaining scoreless in that period. Withers tied the score in the second period with a goal for Wycliffe, and both teams entered the final period struggling desperately to break the tie. W. Jack of Knox, by persistent shooting, managed to slip three tallies past the Wycliffe goal during the final stage of the game.

the fans when he circled the Montreal net to surprise Carboneau with a beautiful side shot from a most difficult angle, which came to rest in the uppermost corner of the net. At this juncture Page scored his team's second and last goal, when he accepted a pass out from behind the Varsity net from Raymond, to outwit Snyder on a close shot. Twelve minutes later the nicest play of the afternoon came when Varsity counted on a three man rush. Stewart passed to Kirkpatrick, who closed right in on Carboneau before flipping a back-hand pass to Richards, who shoved the rubber over the line. Harley immediately produced the nicest solo flight when he passed the whole Montreal team to end the scoring for the second period. Varsity 2, Montreal 2.

In the last period, with a commanding lead, Varsity eased up a bit and the Frenchmen stepped in and gave more opposition than hereto provided. The only score was another individual effort by Harley, five minutes after the period began.

Varsity: Goal, Snyder; defence, Carriek, Kirkpatrick; centre, King; wings, Richards, Harley; subs, McMullen, Stewart, Devins.

VARSITY BASKETEERS BEAT WESTERN TEAM BY SCORE OF 38 TO 8

Last Year's Champions Fall Before Fast Travelling Varsity Squad

AUGURS WELL FOR U. OF T.

Intermediates Nose Out Fast Travelling McMaster Men in Opener

In the opening game of the Senior Intercollegiate basketball series, the Varsity team severely trounced Western University, last year's champions, by a 38 to 8 score, and demonstrated to all and sundry that they would be very much in the running for the title this year. This was the most decisive victory ever rung up by Varsity in an Intercollegiate fixture and augurs well for the remainder of the season, as Western secured only two field goals during the game and shot from inside the Varsity defence but five times. The packed defence had the Purple and White completely baffled and their long shots proved erratic.

For the curtain raiser, while the crowd was filing into the big gym on Saturday night, the Varsity Intermediates, after trailing by 17-8 at half time, came to the front in the second half, out-scoring McMaster 31 to 17 and winning the game by 39-34. This game was by far the most closely contested, as after a bad start in the first half, the Intermediates gradually came to the fore, tied the score, slipped back two points, and in the dying minutes of play ran up a substantial lead which the Maroon and Gray valiantly tried to overcome.

In the Senior game, Varsity missed several shots before finding their range, and then playing superb combination they ran in fifteen points before the Westernites registered a lone tally on a foul shot. It appeared that the visitors were suffering slightly from nerves, as in practice Ladouceur and Bice were dropping the ball in the basket with deadly regularity, while in the game the forwards failed to tally a single point. At half time the score stood 19-1, and in the second half Varsity took things easy and contented themselves with more individual work which netted them few baskets.

The whole Varsity team was working at the best of their form, and to pick one individual star is a real task. The whole forward line worked with perfection, with fast accurate passing and good work around the basket, while they dropped back on the defence at every Western threat. This defence in Sakler and Currie proved unbeatable, and passes were intercepted with deadly regularity and the ball worked up the floor in short order. Mitchell and Faber were the high scorers of the evening, getting 13 and 10 points respectively. These two, along with Newman, showed some keen combination, and the way the ball sailed up the side of the court was a treat. Perhaps that was a difference in the two games, for Western attacks invariably went up the centre of the floor and they didn't get far. Currie played a stellar game, both defensively and offensively, scoring 8 points. Putnam, Sharpe and Hurwitz did good work in relief and were able to hold the Hauch brothers and their co-workers.

It was not until near the end of the game that the visitors' baskets were scored, and these two were well scattered. Despite the overwhelming defeat, Western never gave up trying. (Continued on page 4)

SAINTS LOSE TO VIC. BY THREE GOALS TO ONE

Snow Slows Up First Game of Women's Interfaculty Hockey

The first hockey game in the girls' inter-college series resulted in a victory of 3-1 for Vic. over St. Hilda's. Owing to the quantity of snow which insisted upon falling, the game was somewhat slowed up; nevertheless some very good playing on both sides gave promise of keen competition in the remaining games.

Line up:

Vic.: Goal, Ev. Craw; defence, Helen Richardson, Mollie Jarrett; centre, Norma Bateman; right wing, Helen Hilliard; left wing, Jean Bateman; subs, Anne Wingfield, Marnie Rieder, Emma Wright.
Referee: Si Birge.

INTERMEDIATES NEED WIN AGAINST MILTON

Changes in Line-up Are Made—Juniors Advancing to Vacant Places

PLAY TO-NIGHT AT ARENA

Varsity Intermediates have defeated every team in their O.H.A. group but Milton, and the boys in the blue jerseys will attempt this at the Varsity Arena to-night, when they entertain the Milton entry.

The Milton team is expected to put up a stiff battle, but Varsity are all set to get back the game lost in Brampton last Friday, and Milton look like the victims.

Several changes will be made in the Varsity line-up for the game. Crosby will be moved back to the defence, where he will team up with Graham in the famous "two-bob" combination. Doug, McKnight will be found at centre as usual, and Evans and Park will start at right and left wing respectively. Gordie Beal, centre player and captain of the Juniors, will be subbing, and Smith, also of the Juniors, will fill the other relief position. Smith was in the line-up in the Brampton game, and gave a good account of himself, but it will be Beal's first start in Intermediate company this season.

MANIFOLD PROBLEMS HARASS ALL AFRICA

Foreign Peoples and Intrinsic Wealth of Country Source of Difficulty

MAX YERGAN'S SPEECH

"I like to believe that we are each called upon to work out the destination of the universe," stated Max Yergan last night at the Sunday service in Convocation Hall.

Every country, he added, has its problems, but Africa has a monopoly of problems. Just recently it has emerged from darkness, and with new light has come manifold difficulties. Every part of Africa, with two exceptions, is under the control of European powers. Millions a year are invested in penetration, and accordingly new phases are introduced into the lives of the natives. The African chief is replaced by the European magistrate, and personality stands out in place of the former state whereby individuality in tribal life.

The outlook on the Raison d'être has also changed, and parents look into the future for the well-being of their children.

But the Europeans are in the minority, and everywhere lies the predominant feeling of fear. Political bills have been passed excluding the negro in industry and restricting his franchise. Fear dictates this undesirable situation, and the substitution of love alone can create a spirit of love and brotherhood.

There is also danger in Africa's great wealth. She has innumerable riches in her diamonds, cotton, cocoa and rubber. Although no large body of natives object to European investment in these resources, there is the fear that in their commercial approach they will entirely overlook the human side of Africa.

Therefore, since the Africans have no body of public opinion or legislature they should require our most sympathetic attention.

The future of the Africans is in the hands of the youth to whom Christ had become a reality. They refuse to be discouraged, and show their belief by ministry in their native villages.

Another solution is with the European universities in Africa, whose viewpoint is gradually becoming changed from one which excluded the African on every occasion, to that of more lenient humanity.

It is hope which must give all, believing in a future brotherhood, strength to bear the cross.

CIVILIZATION ESCAPES FATE OF BEING FAILURE

Wycliffe Literary Society Debates Question of Civilization

Civilization was saved from the deplorable fate of being a failure, at the Wycliffe Literary Society last week, when a motion, "Resolved that modern civilization is a failure," was defeated on the judges' decision. J. J. Hurley, leader of the affirmative, asserted that civilization to be a success must involve a vital culture with moral benefits. Mr. Hurley considered that our civilization does not tend towards this ideal. P. A. Rickard, for the negative, contended that our modern age develops a spirit of self-reliance. W. A. Gilbert, second speaker for the affirmative, stressed the fact that our modern factory and commercial system is a greater physical strain on its employees than more antiquated methods of industry.

L. V. Pocock, speaking second for the negative, asserted that our civilization is a progressive one, using the League of Nations as one of his examples. The judges awarded the decision to Messrs. Rickard and Pocock, who are thus holders of the Taylor Trophy.

Skates Over Boots is Rule When Right Size Not Available

There is much interest taken in hockey and skating at the University Settlement, and the demand for skates greatly exceeds the supply on hand. If any of the University students have skates they have outgrown and would care to give to the Settlement they would be very much appreciated. One little chap was so anxious to skate, in spite of the fact that there were no skates his size left, that he took a pair which were so large that he had to wear his own shoes inside. The skates are not given to the children but are rented at twenty-five cents a season.

The Settlement has five hockey teams, four of which play in the Inter-Settlement League with the three other settlements in Toronto. The other team plays in the Toronto Hockey League. Last year the Settlement teams won the bantam series and the hundred pound series.

goes down the other goes up. The fact that this was for so long overlooked, said the lecturer, provides the most interesting example of stupidity among eminent people. It was a case of everyone looking facts in the face plainly, but the facts are too simple to be recognized. Simply it amounts to this: if there is a relation between oxygen and carbonic acid it follows logically that there is a relation between carbonic acid and oxygen and each affects the other.

idea in view. In addition, they feel that there should be but one, or at the most two rebuttal speeches.

"The local committee, acting through the president of the A.M.S., has written the Maritimes, stating the condition under which the Queen's team is willing to debate.

"It is expected that the Maritimers will be found ready to accede to these: it will be easier for them to go more than half way towards a compromise. It would be practically impossible for Queens to accede to the conditions suggested by the Easterners, since they have been doing all their preparation with the 'two man team' idea in view. In all probability an agreement will be reached whereby the debating is limited to two speakers on each side. The question of the rebuttal should occasion little difficulty.

"The subject of debate is, it will be remembered, 'Resolved that sport is carried to excess in Canadian universities,' with Queen's attempting to establish the affirmative."

speech. The young enthusiasts were not controlled and told when to "put on the soft pedal or pull out the stops" by those older and wiser than they. And the programme itself was unusual. They knew they were not going to Detroit to recruit new strength on the old terms, but to discuss, as far as possible, policies and programmes and hopes.

"From the very beginning of that conference to the closing line of the closing song and the closing prayer . . . we were flung, time and time again, on that one conviction . . . that there is only one sufficiency, one great source of adequate strength—and that is Jesus Christ." The missionaries of to-day did not desire the protection given by their governments, but were beginning to wish to go under only the protection of their source—Jesus Christ. There was a challenge issued from Detroit, said Mr. Yergan in conclusion, and this was that we could not escape our responsibilities.

In the intermediate game, Johnston was the outstanding man on the floor, as the lanky centre man accounted for no less than 18 points, though Myer for McMaster ran him a close second with 16. At the beginning of the season Johnston looked good for the Senior squad, but injuries to the knee and ankle did not respond to treatment as was hoped, and Putnam beat him out for the honours. Burns at left forward worked well and accounted for 10 points.

Music and dancing were provided at 10 p.m., and the players and fans enjoyed two hours of gaiety before concluding the evening.

from behind the pile of refills where we had taken refuge. Already, in wild and terrified imagination we could see the red banners gleefully licking the wind over Convocation Hall. We approached the pale and weary woman at the desk who was leaning against the stacks.

"Is this the Red army?" we asked her. "Why this sudden demand for the Marxian 'Communist Manifesto'! Are these fiery disciples of Tim Buck?"

Wearily putting the stack of dimes in the cash register, she shook her head.

"Oh, no!" she signed. "It's only the third year pass Economics class. They began to study Karl Marx this morning and Professor — happened to remark that in true communist spirit the 'Communist Manifesto' by Karl Marx could be procured for the surprising sum of ten cents."

SIR BERTRAM WINDLE SPEAKS ON HISTORY OF ASIATIC TRIBES

Northern Persia Yet Theatre of Frequent Minor Wars, Says Noted Lecturer

TIMUR THE TARTAR

Pumir Plateau, 13,000 Feet High, Was Original Home of Human Race?

"The north-western frontier of Persia is the scene of frequent fierce minor wars," said Sir Bertram Windle speaking in the Physics Building on Friday afternoon. In this lecture, the fourth of a series on the Ethnological Background of Asiatic History, Sir Bertram dealt with the tribes of Turkestan, Bokhara, Pamir Plateau and Afghanistan.

In the fourteenth century, under Timur the Tartar, Turkestan held sway from the Dardanelles to the Ganges, but after the death of this remarkable cripple the empire dwindled to its present proportions. His people, however, have retained their rapacious, fearless, nomad disposition. It was fitting that the capital city of these excellent horsemen should be the world's greatest horse market.

In the Middle Ages Bokhara was noted for its seats of learning, some of which have managed to survive in spite of Mongol invasions. Lacking college yells and stadiums, the undergraduates devoted themselves almost exclusively to the study of the Koran.

The Pumir Plateau with its average altitude of thirteen thousand feet was a cold barren land—the "roof of the world" and the original home of the human race, so the Mongol inhabitants claimed.

The Afghans were a strange tribe in that they considered themselves the most wonderful people in the world. Thus their ruler, who is at present travelling in Europe, should enjoy his visit with Mussolini, and, if he crosses the Atlantic, at Washington. There was a legend that the Afghans were descendants of King Saul's grandson, Ahnana, who were driven into their remote mountain home by Nebuchadnezzar. There seemed to be little foundation for the story, although the people, especially the women, had a decided Jewish cast of countenance. They were a tall, handsome race that had long played an important part as a buffer between British India and Russia. As the guardians of the famous Khyber Pass they figured in some of Kipling's stories.

NO BREAK IN LECTURES ON ACCOUNT OF FIRE

Repair Work is Already Well
Under Way and Will Not Interrupt Work

"Lectures are being carried on as usual," stated Dr. Ryerson, Secretary of the Faculty of Medicine, when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday regarding the effect of the fire on the Meds time-table. "For the present they are being held in the Anatomy Building, but a report is being prepared this afternoon concerning the safety of the various parts of the building, and we hope to resume our work in the Medical Building in a very short time," continued Dr. Ryerson.

Thus the Meds' hopes of a vacation from lectures are dashed to pieces on the rocks of efficiency. Even as "The Varsity" passed by the Medical Building one disappointed Med with his eye on the workmen who were busily stopping up the broken windows remarked, "Gosh, they're not wasting any time, are they?"

CONVOCATION HALL ASSET TO ENTIRE UNIVERSITY

Common Ground For All to Discuss Problems of World Import

Although the Sunday services at Convocation Hall have been discontinued, the large number of students who attend the special services there from time to time during the term shows the cosmopolitan attitude of the student body. In fact, a speaker knows the kind of reception he will get from an audience at Convocation Hall. He knows the students who gather there represents many different creeds and races. This was true of the splendid reception given Mr. Max Yergan last Sunday at Convocation Hall. Students went there to hear a problem discussed which concerned people of another race and continent. They felt confident before attending that the speaker's attitude to the question would be comprehensive, and that the problem presented would be of vital interest to everyone. It is a splendid asset to the University to have a Convocation Hall where people and students of varying creeds and race can meet together to hear an unprejudiced discussion of world problems.

CANADIAN POETRY IS LECTURE THEME

History of Native Bards

Mr. N. A. Benson

CARMAN AND ROBERTS

"Canadian Poetry, History and Readings" was the subject of the lecture delivered by Mr. Nathaniel A. Benson last night in Baldwin House before a keenly appreciative audience. Introducing the subject by a brief treatment of Charles Songster, Mr. Benson criticized his poetry as being rather ordinary and orthodox. Diction was his; imagery too, yet only on a few occasions does Songster achieve real spontaneity: the "Northern Rune" was an example.

"The late Charles Mair is justly regarded as the father of Canadian poetry," said the well-known lecturer. "He none the less committed the common of all poets' sins—his first volume, 'Dreamland,' was a reaction rather to Literature than to Life. Some hectic experiences in the Louis Riel rebellions evidently had an accelerating effect on Mair's intellectual development; moreover, the mental poise of the man was finally reached. 'Tecumseh,' his greatest work, appeared not long after. In it was revealed the blending of a serenity of genius with the fire of patriotism. 'Tecumseh' is a great poem, but dramatically it is impossible," was the opinion of the speaker.

Had Isabella Crawford lived, the critic Mr. Garvin believed that she would have surpassed any living Canadian poet. "The Heloi," in quatrain was a perfect example of the rugged strength of her poetic efforts. Passing on to the so-called "Nature Group," Mr. Benson treated Roberts,

CLOSING LECTURE AT NEWMAN CHAPEL

"Why I am a Catholic" Told by Father Doyle to Large Crowd

THE SEVEN SACRAMENTS

The Retreat at Newman Club was brought to a close Sunday afternoon with the largest crowd of the week in attendance. The subject of the lecture was "Why I am a Catholic," in which Father Doyle stressed the inner life of the Catholic Church, how it not only teaches us what we must believe and do in order to be saved, but also furnishes the means, making use of which the Catholic is enabled to keep God's law and arrive at his eternal destiny. "These aids," he said, "are to be found chiefly in the seven sacraments, which are seven channels of grace to the soul."

After dwelling on each of the sacraments and pointing out the particular grace that each carries with it, Father Doyle pointed out that although the Church has been accused of making extravagant claims in its work of saving souls, yet it is no more than one would expect. "When you consider the crucified Christ," he said, "can you question His goodness and generosity in any matter that concerns our salvation? Is it really so very much that He has given us certain knowledge in divine truth and afforded the necessary helps for the battle of life that we may reach a happy eternity?"

I should say that once Christ had come upon earth to show us the way to heaven His work would have been left far from complete had He not left us a church such as the Catholic Church. Instead of being

DISASTROUS CONFLAGATION IN MEDICAL BUILDING DOES DAMAGE ESTIMATED APPROXIMATELY $50,000

Blaze Broke Out on Third Floor in Biochemistry Research Laboratory, Spreading Rapidly to Attic and Second Story

RESEARCH WORK WILL BE HELD UP FOR SIX MONTHS

By Hugh Branion

Fire, of unknown origin, causing damage estimated at $50,000, broke out in the Medical Building of the University shortly before eight o'clock yesterday morning. The first began on the third floor in the research laboratories of the department of biochemistry. The blaze spread to the second floor and to the attic. The damage caused by the fire itself is not as heavy as previously estimated, but the water and ice will cause great harm. The firemen were greatly handicapped by the fact that they were forced to use ice-covered apparatus with which they had been fighting the holocaust at the Metropolitan Church. At 9.30 a.m. the fire was out, although dense clouds of smoke continued to emerge from the building. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

"Varsity" Office Threatened by Fire

Fire was discovered in "The Varsity" office in Hart House late yesterday afternoon. No damage resulted. A senior member of the staff entered the room to find a pile of papers blazing in one corner. He extinguished the fire without assistance. Beyond a slight scorching of one table and the resultant smoke no trace of fire remains.

Budding Medico Solicitous for "His" Building's Welfare

Yesterday morning at nine, while the Medical Building was still ablaze, a young man with a pile of books was strolling up the avenue when suddenly, as he passed the straight of School, i.e., between the School and Mechanical Buildings, and had a first glimpse of the blaze, he let out a tremendous shriek.

He then rushed forward towards the centre of excitement, but was called back by a member of the Toronto Police Force.

Patiently he waited three minutes and endeavoured again to reach the scene, but was strongly reprimanded until finally he exclaimed:

"But I must see what is going on. That's my building."

He was a Med frosh.

The blaze spread from the one room where it broke out to the ceiling and then along the spaceway between the ceiling and roof to the adjoining rooms and then back along the south hallway and the attic, where it was finally extinguished. Three rooms were almost completely gutted and the hallways were slightly damaged.

The firemen were able to keep the flames from the northern section of the building, where some 200 gallons of ether and alcohol were stored. The library on the main floor was undamaged, as the firemen immediately covered the books with tarpaulins. Tons of water were poured into the building from nine lines of hoses, and most of the damage on the second floor was caused by the water.

"Business as usual," said Dr. Wasteneys when interviewed late yesterday afternoon. "The roof will be on by morning and labs and lectures will go on uninterrupted." It is of interest that only nine o'clock lectures were cancelled yesterday.

Rows of broken windows, a great black patch along the edge of the roof remain as mute evidence of the havoc within. The ceiling was destroyed, but the brick partitions remained intact. Lectures yesterday were continued in the Anatomy Building while the debris was removed.

There was a small fire in the building some seven years ago, but the loss was small. The building was erected thirty-five years ago and renovations amounting to $52,000 had only just been completed on Saturday. It is

Quick Repairs to Med Building Blasts Vain Hopes of Mid-Year Vacation

Fire! Fire! Magic words. They ousted Diogenes from his comfortable box seat in yesterday's "Varsity." Perhaps the students of our staid Medical Faculty felt that primeval small boy feeling as they heard the fiery message; perchance their hearts leaped at the thoughts of an unexpected mid-year rest.

But who cares about what may have happened. The dreams of a holiday if ever they existed were rudely shattered, for the students of the first and second years found their work unhampered, and for the men of 371 the way was made clear, and lectures continued without a break.

What's the use of a fire like that anyway? Oh well, maybe some of the people who back home will scan with anxious eye and quaking heart the report of a fire in the Medical Building at Varsity. And then when they note that the fire chose the untimely hour of 7.30 a.m., their minds will be at rest without reading further. Their beloved son was never known to be out of the hay at that time.

Wonder what started the fire? No harm in wondering, is there? Surely the ancient rivals from the little red school-house have not unearthed the hatchet again, and are brandishing it in a manner heretofore unheard of. We recollect that a lot of glass was needed around the campus after one of the "pitched" battles last year. But then that's only a suggestion. Who cares about that?

The brethren in Arts probably felt very sympathetic towards their smitten fellows. Perhaps! A certain pair well known in and around U.C. expressed themselves as sorry that the little performance was halted so soon. In their opinion the whole front of the campus is an architectural monstrosity, and sadly needs remodelling. And what easier way of taking the preliminary steps than by means of a tidy little blaze. No! We won't tell you their names. They're hotter than yours truly.

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Women to be Allowed in Pulpit?

The question asked for to-day is—"Do you believe that women should occupy the pulpit?"

J. R. Mooney, III C. and F.: Yes. Why shouldn't they? They are often more forceful, explicit, appealing, and have a greater drawing power than men, although they sometimes have a tendency towards verbosity.

D. B. Dingle, IV Comm.: Yes, as long as their ability is sufficient to justify their position. Women are thought by some to have a greater capacity for religion than men. They are supposed to be able to rise to greater heights of spiritual attainment or . . . ?

Miss M. H. Lake, IV Comm.: No. I don't like the idea.

A. D. Diamond, III U.C.: I am rather indifferent to the idea.

J. F. Clark, II Pol. Sci.: Yes. Why not?

L. M. Gelber, II Mod. Hist.: I believe in full equality for women. They should even have the vote and go to the polls: the north and south poles.

Miss N. M. Doran, II Mod. Hist.: No. Woman's individual influence is greater than a gregarious influence.

R. A. F. Anderson, III Mod. Hist.: It is in accord with modern tendencies.

C. R. Wright, III Pass: Yes, for Holy Rollers.

C. G. Harris, G.S.: I can't say until I have heard some. But if they are as good at talking there as they are elsewhere, they should be all right.

Correction

A lecture on "Roman Arles, Pagan and Christian," will be given by Professor G. O. Smith in Trinity College Library at 8.15, not at 4.30 as erroneously announced in yesterday's "Varsity."

A GREAT MISFORTUNE

That the University of Toronto suffered no small misfortune when sections of the Medical Building were gutted by fire early yesterday morning will be readily admitted, while the fact that students, lecturers and those working on experiments will be put to no inconsiderable inconvenience may easily be recognized. In what was considered to be practically a fireproof building, guarded by watchmen, the outbreak came as a distinct surprise, but the news, at first accepted in doubt, became an established fact as crowds of hurrying students quickly assembled.

To the fire departments of this city great credit must be given for their ready response to the first alarm, especially so in view of the fact that many of the men had already spent an arduous night with a large blaze in another section of the city. Frozen hose and machines proved but small obstacles to the determination of these men and the fire was quickly put under control. It is stated that the damage, estimated roughly at one hundred thousand dollars, is amply covered by insurance and that the financial loss to the University will be small.

It is welcome news indeed that lectures may be continued with practically no interruption, and the fact that much of the damage done has already been cleared up and that the roof has been temporarily repaired is worthy of commendation. We do sincerely regret the loss of various experimental subjects, and we feel for those research workers whose efforts of many months past were set-back so severely. Their misfortunes will be the most difficult to bear and their losses the most difficult to replace. The tedious repetition of painstaking work will now be in order, but, while the results may be delayed, one feels safe in assuming that the work will be recommenced in a cheerful manner, and perhaps who knows but out of this misfortune may spring the success and gratification that have greeted earlier unfortunate pioneers.

COURTESY AND CONVERSATION

Frequently, during lectures, professors are forced to pause and ask for silence in the class so that they can proceed with their lectures. That such action should be necessary in an institution of higher education and culture is a serious reflection not only on the manners of the offenders but also on the sincerity of their thirst for knowledge.

Doubtless those people who persist in carrying on private conversations while someone is trying to share his knowledge with them are present only because attendance is compulsory or because by attending even without paying attention they are satisfying their none too active conscience. It is obvious such utter disregard for the well-being of their fellows and the feelings of the professor should not have to be tolerated by lecturers and those students who really wish to profit by instruction.

One can be even less patient with those who carry this objectionable behaviour into our concert halls. It would be natural to assume that, since attendance is not compulsory, people go to concerts to enjoy the programme. But apparently the assumption is without grounds, as there are creatures who seem to find the concert the ideal place for continuing a discussion upon which evidently all fate depended,—if length and loudness could be taken as any criterion. We would advise that these ardent conversationalists retire to a secluded corner where the element of music would not be present to disturb their so important business.

Whether it is discourtesy or thoughtlessness which allows such conduct, it is much to be regretted that it can be found among University students.

HART HOUSE STRING QUARTET

The Hart House String Quartet were visitors in Toronto for thirty-six hours this week after completing a tour of Montreal, New York City—where they played for the Ravel debut—Albany and Port Washington, N.Y., Middlebury, Vt., Andover, Mass., Brooklyn, N.Y., and Sewickley, Pa. They have been re-engaged for next season in all of the above cities. They left for a three and a half weeks' tour, when they will appear in Albany for Governor Smith, and in Boston for Mrs. Coolidge.

They have been honoured by being requested to appear at the Canadian Legation in Washington on February 1st, and in the Library of Congress, Washington, on February 2nd. From there the Quartet will wind its way westward, and will play in Chicago on February 5th. From the 6th to the 18th they will play in the states of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, returning to Toronto in time for their last appearance of the season on February 23rd.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE PLAYERS' GUILD

The Players' Guild of University College will present at 4.30 this afternoon A. P. Herbert's rollicking comedy, "Two Gentlemen of Soho." This comedy is a burlesque of the good old Elizabethan tragedy, and is couched in the sublime and poignant blank verse of the fifteenth century brightened by modern application to the pitfalls, yawning before unsophisticated drowagers of the present day. The comedy appeared in one of the recent numbers of the London Mercury, and will be soon presented by the Arts and Letters Club of this city. This production will be under the direction of Mr. Paul Gardiner, and the cast includes Eleanor Barton, Eleanor Norton and James Cowan. N.A.B.

The big question is: "Have you had your Asbestos to-day?" Every time that anyone lights a match, we get ready to stand by with the ladders. The cause of the big conflagration is not known, but it is a safe bet that the burning ardour of the Medical students in their quest of knowledge had a great deal to do with it. What with the Mumps and the Flames, things are beginning to look pretty interesting in this vicinity. However, the burning of the Medemporium will not stop Daffydil Night, we fondly hope!

Seeing that the Star's "Little Bit of Everything" columnist attempted to show that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery by re-hacking our limerick on Mr. Corbett and puns, we offer another for his approval:

THE PARTING

Amid the quiet of the trees Skirting yon limpid lake, I hear a gentle rustling breeze Their silvery foliage wake.

And in my mind again I see That night to memory dear, 'Twas there my love looked up at me, 'Twas there she shed a tear.

Upon that path the moon shone bright While on that mossy stone We sat and talked, our hearts were light, For we two were alone.

Upon the glistening lake there gleamed A glorious golden way, To us the radiant future beamed Adown that wondrous ray.

Unknown before us was the road By human foot untrod, Untried before us was the load Designed for us by God.

BLUE AND WHITE INTERMEDIATE TEAM DEFEAT MILTON 5-1

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The decision of Peterboro to drop out of the O.H.A. race was not a big surprise to hockey fans, as this year the lift-locks have been hit hard by a series of the professional teams. Three of last year's team have made the jump, and what was left of that once formidable aggregation were unable to give much opposition to the other four teams in the group. Added to that, lack of support at home and abroad made heavy sledding for Mr. Wright and company.

Varsity have always been a jinx to Western in senior basketball, and last Saturday night was no exception. The Purple squad lost both games to Varsity last year, but surprised everyone, even their most ardent supporters, by winning the title. They may repeat this performance again, but after the week-end's crushing defeat it seems hardly likely. However, basketball is a mighty uncertain sport, and is full of upsets. It will be a real upset should Western again clinch the title. At present Queen's and Varsity appear the chief rivals, Queen's having most of last year's team back and Varsity boasting one of the best teams in years.

Indoor track work was never in a healthier state and is daily revealing much latent material for next year's track team. Several records have been broken, not by the fraction of a second, but usually by several. Captain Mabey is to be congratulated on the form shown by the team as well as his own individual performances. And watch this chap Jeremy, one of the brainiest judges of pace and distance Varsity have had in a long while.

The Varsity Intermediates will be well advised if they take along the B. W. and F. Club when they play their return game in Milton. Judging by the actions of the players and the threats of the crowd, there will be a warm reception awaiting them in the brick town. Just why the Miltonites should be so peeved is hard to see. Varsity played clean hockey and took plenty of punishment without retaliating. Evidence of their clean play is the fact that out of fourteen penalties awarded, twelve of them were awarded to Milton.

Pharmacy Basketeers Win by Score of 14-9

The basketball game between Pharmacy and Jr. Dents was played in the upper gym at Hart House, Monday. The game was fast and evenly contested, but the team from O.C.P. were more accurate in their shots. The Jr. Dents proved very effective in their checking. The final score 14-9.

Line-up:
Pharmacy: Emerson, Bridge, Aiken, Cuthbert, Current, Loke.
Jr. Dents: Conn, Beesley, Mitchell, Hopkins, Stafford, Brohman, Mickle, Rudell, Luzine.

Spills and Tumbles Dot Hectic Match at St. Michael's

In a jeu de glace closely resembling what is known as hockey, "Bud" Ford and his Bunk Flat Bombardiers sent down to ignominious defeat the Irish Fusiliers, led by "Dad" Sheehan, in week-end Inter-Flat game at St. Michael's College. The sparkling saves of "Crease" Garvey in the nets for the losers was a feature second only to that of the golf-like drives of Harry Brett, the pivot man of the Fusiliers.

North House Cops Indoor Track Title

North House gained a lap on their rivals for the Inter-House Athletic Shield last night when they cleaned up the Indoor Track Meet. The Northerners copped six out of seven events, East taking the shot put. In points it ran: North 35, East 20, South 9. The North House winners were Thompson, Irwin, McKay and Woodside. There was a great turnout and competition was keen and lively until the last event, the 440, where North gained a 1, 2, 3 verdict in fast time. The basketball and baseball leagues start Wednesday, and with hockey and swimming to come, the season is a strenuous one. North House are the present holders and lead at present.

Text books should be made so that they can be read in bed, is the opinion

VARSITY TROUNCES MILTON IN FAST INTER. FIXTURE

Miltonians Get Opposition in Roughing Tactics Against Varsity Squad

FINAL SCORE IS 5-1

Smith and Beal, Two Junior Recruits, Get a Goal Each

The Varsity-Milton game at the Arena last night, billed as an intermediate O.H.A. hockey game, ended with Varsity leading 5-1 in goals scored, and also leading in bruises received by a far larger margin. Milton brought along a large crowd of supporters, and spurred on by their shouts, the team proceeded to step into the students. No one was permanently injured, but several of the Blue players received painful bruises from the sticks, skates and shoulders of the invaders.

The game started out at a fast clip and Varsity tallied three goals in the first period. Milton and Varsity each got a counter in the second frame, and the Blue added one in the final round.

The going was heavy enough in the first two periods, but in the final session the ice looked like the front campus on a U.C. election day.

Potlmy led the Milton outfit into the fray and was rewarded with nine penalties out of a total of twelve to the visitors. Varsity got two penalties, making the total fourteen. An derson at centre for Milton played a smart, clean game, and scored his team's only goal on a shot from the blue line when his team was playing two men short.

Crosby and Graham, the Varsity defence pair, got a goal each in the first period on passes from Beal and McKnight. Smith and Beal, the two additions from the juniors, made their presence felt by a goal each, and Bill Park accounted for the other tally.

Line ups:
Varsity: Goal, Little; defence, Crosby and Graham; centre, McKnight; wings, Evans and Park; subs, Beal and Smith.

Milton: Goal, Chisholm; defence, Potlmy and Bruce; centre, Anderson; wings, Farlow and Vaughan; subs, Burdy and Galbraith.

WYCLIFFE MAKE INITIAL BOW IN WINNING COLUMN

Hunt Stars as Old Rivals Are Downed to the Tune of 7-3

Wycliffe scored their first win in the Interfaculty Baseball League yesterday when they defeated their old rivals, Trinity, by the score of seven to three. Hunt pitched a sparkling game for Wycliffe, and the Trinity willow-wielders could do little with his offerings. Meanwhile the Wycliffe huskies leaned against the ball to such good advantage that they collected three tallies in the third inning and four in the fourth. Incidentally Wycliffe ran wild in the first half of the fifth and increased their total to sixteen, but with the calling of the game at five o'clock the score reverted to seven-three, as Trinity did not go to bat in the fifth.

NO FORWARD PASSING FOR INTER-COLLEGE RUGBY

Rules Committee Cuts Down Convert-kicking Distance to 30 Yards

Any idea that certain optimistic individuals may have regarding the introduction of the forward pass in Canadian intercollegiate football was definitely squashed by the action of the inter-university committee in refusing to allow this play. There is little doubt that the play will eventually be included in the Canadian code, but at present the rule makers feel that things are going very smoothly and should not be tampered with.

Last fall, it will be remembered, the forward pass was tried out in Toronto between McGill and Balmy Beach, and before a critical audience was pronounced fairly successful, and this in spite of the fact that neither team took the game very seriously, leaving the oval around at random. With minor adaptations this play might well become one of the features of Canadian football.

Another point settled at this meeting was the question of reducing the distance of the convert from 35 to 30 yards; 35 yards is really too far for the average kicker to score with any degree of consistency. And as for the smaller fry in the prep, and high schools they found it almost impossible to get the ball over the bar, especially from the more difficult angles. Thirty yards should prove a great boon to many a player who has accuracy but lacks the footing power.

CO-ED'S DISAPPEARANCE CAUSES GRAVE CONCERN

Governors Smith and Fuller Order All State Aid Needed

The disappearance of Miss Frances St. John Smith, a young student from Smith College, Northampton, Mass., has aroused nation-wide interest. Undoubtedly, a fortnight ago, having slipped away, or having been abducted, she has sprung into the limelight, a figure for whose welfare millions of people are now vitally concerned.

With the entrance of Alfred E. Smith and Alvan T. Fuller, Governors of New York and Massachusetts, the search has taken on a new aspect, and the sympathy of the people at large has been expressed for the distracted parents of the missing girl.

State officials have now taken over the enquiry. Every clue is being prosecuted carefully, and even airplanes have been utilized in the unremitting search. It is reported that inquiry agents have also invaded Canada on information supplied by a member of the girl's family.

Her absence has been a source of agony and grief to her relatives, coming as it did when abductions and brutal murders seemed rampant. The public of both Canada and the United States seem united in the sincere hope that she may be restored to her family.

BOARD OF COACHES FOR MCGILL IN FALL

Rugby Mentors to be Aided by Junior Pro Coach

SHAUGHNESSY GOES

Football seems to be occupying a fairly prominent place in the discussions at McGill these days, and a new system is being tried as far as the running of the 1928 squad is concerned. The McGill Daily gives a fairly good idea of how the junior professional coach and the Board of Honorary Coaches will be expected to function:

"The commencement of the 1928 football season at McGill may see radical changes in the coaching system according to Major Forbes, in commenting on recent decisions of the McGill Athletic Board of Control. With the withdrawal of Frank Shaughnessy from active participation as football mentor of the Red and White, after over a decade of faithful service in coaching McGill teams, lengthy discussion has taken place as to the coaching system to be put in operation for the future. The outcome has been a coaching system for at least one year's decision to revert to the honorary experiment with a junior professional coach as assistant. The parent plan includes the formation of a Board of Honorary Coaches composed of three or four prominent graduates of McGill who know the game in all its phases and are willing to undertake the instruction of their former team. This board will meet constantly to decide all questions of policy and determine the coaching program for the season. Such prominent former players as Dr. "Monty" Montgomery, Dr. Cecil Flanagan, Tommy Hall, Dr. Dud Ross have been mentioned as possibilities for the personnel of the board. It is proposed that two members of such a board would find it possible to be present for alternate afternoons. These coaches would be supplemented by a junior coach who would be a paid member of the Department of Physical Education of McGill and who would assist in the coaching of the Senior teams and look after the coaching of the Intermediate and Junior squads. He would also be employed in the capacity of Instructor in Physical Education at other seasons of the year.

"With graduates of McGill possessing exceptional football ability and knowledge resident in the city it is felt by the local university board that some capital should be made of this particularly fortunate situation and that a happy compromise be effected in the vexed question of amateur vs. professional coaching. Indications point to the adoption of the new system at McGill for the 1928 football season for at least a year's trial."

"The student who enters college merely for the purpose of having a good time, or for the prestige of a university degree, seldom finishes his sophomore year."—Dean Skiles of the Georgia Institute of Technology.

PRESENT-DAY SPELLING BETTER THAN OF YORE

Educational Research Head Claims English Difficult to Master

"There are 40,000 phonetically correct way of spelling the word 'circus,' according to Ernest J. Ashbaugh, a director of the Bureau of Educational Research, speaking at the University of Ohio.

"Outside of the college education, spelling at the University of Ohio remains practically at a 'standstill,' he said. This fact he attributed to the lack of application to this line of study.

Oral work in classes is the common error, said Mr. Ashbaugh. "Emphasis is put on the wrong thing; what we need to know is how to spell when we write. When we sit down to write a story we concentrate on the story and expect the writing to take care of itself."

"The English language is a hard one for the youngster to master," asserted Mr. Ashbaugh. "Numerous words have similar spellings, but different pronunciations. As an example the syllable 'ough' is cited in such words as thought, rough, through, and bough. Again 'ea' with ear, heart, and earn are good examples.

"Contrary to the common notion our present day spelling ranks above that of yesterday," said the speaker in conclusion. "One reason is that emphasis has been taken off the unusual intricate words of grandmothers' days and placed on the common every day words of grandmothers' day and fact that old tests given to present day students show the latter superior."

DISASTROUS BLAZE

possible that the attic section, which has never been completely satisfactory, may be rebuilt. The building is valued at $165,000.

Repairs were immediately started by the staff of the Superintendent's office under the direction of Mr. Bonus and Mr. Maxwell. Last evening the broken windows had been covered by beaver board, and scaffolding was in the process of erection as a safety measure.

The most serious aspect of the conflagration is the temporary set-back to the research work. Dr. Burke and Mr. Balfour, B.A.Sc., were the chief sufferers in this respect, losing the work of several years. Their loss fortunately is not irreparable.

"Research work will probably be held up for six months while we are getting things straightened away and back to normal. It is a serious setback, but I do not think we lost anything really valuable," Dr. Macleod is reported to have said.

Animals used by Dr. Macleod for a series of special research work were fortunately in the Anatomy Building and were unharmed. Some of the apparatus in the biochemistry department was extremely valuable and had taken years to construct.

Many of the professors were on the scene immediately and collected many of their personal papers, analyses and figures from research work. Hundreds of students looked on as the blaze was subdued, kept back by a special squad of policemen.

The night watchman made his rounds at seven-thirty that morning and found everything alright, and members of the staff who arrived at eight o'clock discovered the fire. An alarm was turned in at once, and the firemen under Chief Russell came immediately from the Metropolitan Church. Meanwhile the fire apparatus in the building was used by members of the staff and later by the firemen. Several lines of hose burst due to damage from the previous conflagration. No sooner was the fire extinguished than the firemen were called to another general alarm in North Toronto, where a row of houses were in flames. One ice-coated fireman was heard to remark, "Hurry up with that hose, Bill, business is looking up!"

The officials and men of the Superintendent's office are to be congratulated on their prompt action in covering all valuable apparatus with tarpaulins, thus saving considerable loss from the water.

Schoolmen congregated on the steps of the little Red School House hurling their customary war cry, "Poor Meds!" as the fire progressed. As one of the big ice-coated extension ladders crashed through the window of the building an answering shout of "Dirty School" was hurled back.

This was the biggest fire on the University grounds since the University main building burned on February 14th, 1890.

Many of the men engaged in research work lost valuable personal articles in the fire. Dr. E. Henderson, who has an extremely valuable personal library on the second floor, reported that it was unharmed. The private office of Dr. A. Hunter on the third floor and in the immediate section destroyed by the fire, was also undamaged. As Dr. Hunter has many personal possessions in the way of apparatus, documents and slides in these rooms it is particularly fortunate that they escaped destruction.

Stupid prejudices are passing at last, and we are beginning to realize that our sister province offers us unique opportunities. I could wish that radio reception from the Province of Quebec were better than it is. What an excellent thing it would be if the thousands of students of French in Ontario could listen at least once a week to a talk in French by one of the many excellent speakers among our fellow-Canadians in Quebec on subjects of vital, national interest."

Professor S. E. de Champ, of University College, when interviewed, remarked: "I quite agree that the first qualities a modern language teacher should have are personality and vivacity. Of course, the statement of Mr. Vaughan was applied to British teachers, but it holds good for all. It may be harder for an English teacher to exteriorize the French language, but it can be done."

When asked what he thought of the possibilities of learning French in Quebec, Mr. de Champ replied: "It has easily been proved that French can be learned in Quebec. We have examples of people who have learned fairly good French by staying in Quebec. For a quarter of a century I have advised going to Quebec for further study whenever possible, that is, of course, when a period in France cannot be afforded. There are a number of graduates who go abroad, but they are usually students who have been successful in winning scholarships. We have five or six studying in Paris at the present time, but they are taking courses in Literature, not studying the language, which they know very well already."

"To derive the most benefit from studying in Quebec, the student should live some place where little English is spoken. These places can be found. Montreal is not suitable; there is too much English spoken there. Quebec City is very good, and there are many towns of four or five thousand and where French is spoken almost exclusively."

Giving his opinion on summer school at Quebec, Mr. de Champ said: "Undoubtedly it was very successful. We have several students who have accomplished all that is to be desired by attending the summer school, where the masters were French-Canadians. There may be some difference in accent, but it is slight, and any English-speaking person who learns to speak French as an educated French-Canadian speaks it, he has achieved a great deal."

STUDENT VERSE

The Future flames with many beams
 To Youth whose heart is light,
 But castles high, built in those dreams,
 Oft vanish in the night.

And so our tryst drew to a close,
 And we must say goodbye,
 She clung the closer as we rose,
 A tear stood in her eye.

Then tenderly, and with a sigh,
 I kissed her tear-dewed face,
 I kissed her hand, then said goodbye,
 And slowly left the place.

And now the way looks dark and drear,
 As I stand here alone,
 And I'm the one that sheds the tear,
 Because my love has gone.

too good to be true it simply harmonizes with the rest of the picture, the Incarnation, death and Resurrection of our Saviour and completes it. Anything less would have been an anticlimax."

In conclusion Father Doyle thanked all who had contributed to make the Retreat a success, giving special thanks to "The Varsity" for the splendid publicity it had given.

Stephen Leacock Addresses
 Anti-cancer Parley at McGill

In connection with International Week at McGill University, a special dinner was held last week at which no European customs were permitted. Chop-sticks were the only instruments permitted for the processes of feeding, and those who were unable to handle these instruments, somewhat unwieldy to the uninitiate, were forced to eat the dinner with their hands or go to bed without their supper.

So They Say--

Thirty-six out of 50 women in a child care course at the University of Kansas emphatically disapprove of companionate marriage. Five believe it to be all right "under certain conditions." This and other information was secured by the class instructor, Dr. Florence B. Sherbon, by means of a confidential questionnaire which the women answered.

One woman thinks that companionate marriage is "cowardly." She says, "If there is any doubt as to whether the two parties concerned can or cannot get along, I think it preposterous for them to consider marriage."

Twenty-one women said home-making was the only career they want. Several want "miniature careers"—before they get married just to show that they "can be self-supporting if necessary."

Out of the 50 who answered the questions, only one woman said she didn't care to be married. And before her story was ended she broke down and openly confessed that "if the right man came along" she might be willing to substitute marriage for a career. Most of the answers ran something like this: "I want and expect to marry. I believe a woman's place is in the home. . . I believe that a woman should marry only for love and companionship."

CANADIAN POETRY

Carman, Longman, Scott and Campbell. The first two poets of the group, Roberts and Carman, both were remarkable for their Greek background. "Perhaps the most striking feature of Roberts' poetry is his inveterate optimism," declared the speaker. Bliss Carman by contrast has not this tremendous dynamic forcefulness. He is rather distinguished by his peculiar wistfulness and his metrical facility. "Make me over Mother April" was read as illustrative of these qualities. Concluding his remarks on the Nature Group, he pointed out that "the characteristic common to the whole school is the blending of God with nature."

Numerous readings from the Canadian Poets were interspersed throughout the lecture.

THE PLANET MARS MAY BE INHABITED SAYS F. T. STANFORD

Astronomers Discuss Life
Upon the Red Planet

CONDITIONS ARE SUITABLE

Humidity and Temperature for Vegetable Life Are To Be Found

"When I think of the same sun, shining on Mars as on the earth, there seems to be a halo of fascination about the subject of life on Mars," said Mr. F. T. Stanford at a meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society at the Physics Building yesterday. He went on to give the society the benefit of scientific facts collected on the subject. It has been observed that the snow caps on the poles of Mars diminish as warmer weather arrives. The habitability of Mars depends a great deal on the presence of water, and the melting snow provides this. However, it has been proven that there are no seas or oceans on Mars.

Two hundred years ago Jonathan Swift in "Gulliver's Travels" imagined two moons revolving around Mars. Fifty years ago they were discovered. This was a remarkable discovery since the moons are very small, only ten miles in diameter, and seen through telescopes with great difficulty.

The markings on Mars, the lights and shades change with the seasons, and the theory of vegetation has been established. The surface looks different at different times of the year. The straight lines on the planet, called "canals," have been shown to be optical illusions, and yet there are still proofs offered for man-made canals.

The best evidence of life on Mars, however, is their temperature, which is quite amenable to life. The planet also has an atmosphere whose density exceeds even that of the earth. This was graphically illustrated by excellent slides which Mr. Chant kindly loaned to the society. Practically all the observatories in the world could see no details on Mars which disapproved the theory of habitation. Today astronomers have triumphed in evidence that Mars is quite habitable by vegetation and animal life. However, life would flourish perhaps under entirely different conditions to those on earth.

SCHOOL NIGHT RULES ARE NOW COMPLETED

The Usual Regulations For Traffic Will Be Enforced

The committee has completed definite arrangements for School Night, to be held at Hart House to-morrow night. All Schoolmen are requested to co-operate in order to relieve any traffic congestion. They are reminded that admission will be by the main south-west door only. Those arriving in private cars will find ample parking space at either of the following places: Queen's Park, north of tower, around campus, Hoskin Avenue, Devonshire Place. All taxis must use the Queen's Park entrance. All cars must approach main door from the east.

GEORGE WOOD, F.S.S. TO MEET STUDENTS IN BALDWIN HOUSE

Statistician of Woollen and Worsted Federation
Speaking Here

ALL STUDENTS INVITED

Unusual Method of Procedure
Tends to Provoke
Discussion

Baldwin House this week is fortunate in being host to Mr. George H. Wood, F.S.S., secretary of the "Woollen and Worsted Trades Federation of Great Britain." Mr. Wood, who arrived in Canada just a few days ago, was some time before the war a lecturer in statistics at the Huddersfield Technical College at Leeds.

The position which he now occupies and which he was invited to accept some twenty years ago, calls for much practical application of his statistical studies. The organization which he represents is a federation of employers in the wool textile industry, a group complimentary to the trade unions. Mr. Wood illustrated to "The Varsity" the importance of these seemingly hostile groups by a paraphrase of Voltaire in the words: "If there were no trade union it would be necessary to create one," and "If no employers' organization existed, it would be necessary to create one."

Mr. Wood pointed out that in Great Britain at the present time there is a tendency on the part of large industries to attach statisticians to their staffs in administrative capacities. Mr. Wood is concerned with the statistical and legal end of the organization in promoting a better relationship between the worker and employer and at the same time taking advantage of the collective bargaining which such an organization offers.

Mr. Wood delivered a preliminary lecture yesterday on the statistical work involved in a study of tariff problems. He will give five more lectures which are to be quite informal, as he intends to convert his audience into a committee of enquiry, appointed by the University of Toronto, to investigate and report.

U.C. WOMEN'S UNION ACQUIRES FOUNTAIN

Dining Room Now Adorned by
New and Beautiful Fixture

CAST BY MERLE FOSTER

A significant and beautiful addition to the University College Women's Union is the new fountain for the dining room. Cast in cement, the bowl of the fountain is in the shape of a shell supported on a fluted pedestal which stands on a base formed of circling fish in low relief. About the pedestal where it meets the bowl is a design consisting of a pine cone, a maple leaf and a marguerite. The upper part or back of the fountain extends above the bowl some three feet. In the centre is the relief of a lion's head, from the mouth of which trickles the water. Over the figure is the crest of the college, while below it the outline of the building itself is clearly defined.

The fountain was cast by Merle Foster, the sculptress, and when the installation has been completed should prove an attractive and convenient feature of the Union dining room.

The Medical Building on Fire

as it appeared early in the progress of Monday's blaze, which did damage amounting to approximately sixty thousand dollars.

In spite of the confusion caused by the fire, work to-day is going on as usual with lectures in the Anatomy Building and in the undamaged rooms of the Medical Building. The full lecture schedule will be in order almost immediately, but research work will be set back some months. Workmen started in yesterday to clean the building and repair the damage.

The origin of the fire is still veiled in mystery, but the most plausible theory advanced is that it was started by a gas burner in a biochemical laboratory. It has been suggested that such a burner may have been knocked over by a stray rat.

The laboratory where the fire started was used by A. D. Barbour, fellow in physiology, who was carrying on research work in connection with carbo-hydrates.

It was stated that as a result of this fire, in future extra precautions would be taken in connection with the burners used for heating the water bottles. In place of the rubber tubing, it is likely metal tubing will be employed, as this would provide a more rigid support for the burners and act as a further protection against their being displaced.

"The Varsity" learned yesterday that the fire might have been far more serious had it reached the north wing, where there is stored "enough ether to have destroyed half the University," as one Meds man said. A bottle of ether was in one of the burned out laboratories, but fortunately the fire did not reach it.

The Jardine Memorial Prize Poem

The lines below are a quotation from Mr. F. W. Burton's poem which won the Jardine Prize. The setting is the walls of Troy at night. The poem is in the form of a play, the characters being Hector, Andromache, Paris and Helen. The length of the poem, 366 lines, precludes our publishing it at length, but the following lines, a speech by Hector, have been selected as representative by Mr. Burton.

"The moon has set; the gloomy clouds fly fast,
Tossing wild arms upon the windy night,
And from the darkness the unfathomed stars,
Who lonely walk their own unfaltering way,
About the earth forever onward turning,
Behold us, little men, who fade and die,
Melting as hoar-frost, when the autumn sun
Rises at morn above the barren fields.
O Father Zeus, and all you golden gods,
You sit aloft in the ambrosial air,
And in the palaces above the clouds
Low harmonies breathe from celestial lyres,
And clear and soft the liquid numbers flow
Over the bright abysses of the sky;
Cease from your honeyed singing for a while,
And hear the pleading of a little voice
Out of these depths of war and misery!"

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Are Advertisements Appreciated?

Do you read the advertisements in newspapers and magazines?

Lou Golden, II year Political Science, University College: If they are attractive—yes.

Miss M. E. Victoria College: Yes, I do. One can learn a great deal from reading the advertisements.

Don Cormack, III year Pass Course, Victoria College: After reading any interesting articles I usually do glance over the advertisements for fear there might be something interesting there too.

I. Edell, II year Arts, University College: Yes, if they happen to appear on the comic page.

A. W., I year Pass Course, University College: I read the advertisements for the value I can get out of them, and I find that there is much benefit to be obtained in doing so.

R. Rogers, I year Medicine: Yes, they are a great aid to the poor student in bargain-hunting.

M. Zweigman, II year Arts, University College: Yes. Some naturally attract the eye with their colours and pictures. Also, one likes to learn of the new articles which are constantly appearing.

THE ROMAN ARLES IS DESCRIBED BY PROFESSOR SMITH

Lectures on Intriguing

Sculpture and Architecture of Archaeological Interest

"Though some enthusiasts say Arles is Greek rather than Roman, it is Arles, a city of the Roman Empire, I am discussing," said Professor Oswald Smith in his lecture on "Roman Arles: Pagan and Christian," given in Trinity College Library, Monday evening. Professor Smith opened his address with a brief historical and biographical survey before he showed his slides.

After the resumé, Professor Smith showed his slides made from photographs he himself had taken while in Southern France last year on leave of absence. These dealt with the many and varied ruins to be found in Arles. Among these are the amphitheatre and the theatre, both splendid structures displaying exceptional structural skill and decorative details. The amphitheatre owes its preservation to the fact that during the Medieval Ages it housed a thousand people and was in itself a fortified village. At Arles there was discovered the statue of the Venus of Arles which suffered somewhat at the hands of Louis XIV's restorers. Many slides were shown of relief work found on tombs, both Christian and pagan, and minutely described. These scenes pictured chiefly famous stories from the Old and New Testaments. The last pictures showed the church of Trophimus, a building of the early ages, clearly showing the Roman influence and still in good repair.

At the end of Professor Smith's lecture Professor Norwood rose and expressed the thanks of the audience. This is only the first of a series of historical and archaeological lectures to be given in the same place at a future date.

Subscription Dance Sponsored By Residents of Queen's Hall

The next effort to raise money for the new women's building is being made by the girls of Queen's Hall, who are sponsoring a subscription dance at the Crystal Ball Room on Saturday, February 4th.

The proposed new buildings are to cost $200,000. The graduates have raised $30,000, and the undergraduates, by the bridge at Casa Loma on January 21st, have added $500.

Perhaps more than any other attendants of the University, the girls in Queen's Hall realize the seriousness of this campaign to raise money, and have visions of themselves wandering homeless if the required amount is not secured. The committee in charge of the dance has expressed the hope that the men of the University will help them by buying tickets.

Mrs. Kirkwood's Tea Cheers Shivering Undergraduates

As usual Mrs. Kirkwood's tea proved a pleasant offset to lectures and the cold weather. Many undergraduates took advantage of the opportunity to imbibe the cup that cheers, and the glowing fire was conducive to the general geniality of the atmosphere.

TWO-MILE RECORD LOWERED GREATLY BY "HAP" GILBERT

U.C. Runner Cuts Indoor
Time by Twenty-five Seconds

NEW RECORD IS 9.45 3-5

University College Leads in Interfaculty Track Meet

"Hap" Gilbert of U.C. featured the indoor track meet at Hart House last night by a sensational victory in the two mile run. He maintained a remarkable fast pace throughout the run and smashed the former record of 10.19 by nearly 25 seconds. Gilbert's new record is 9.45 3-5. The sudden development of this new star seriously threatens Graham's interfaculty record in the three mile run for next season.

C. P. Wilson, U.C., finished second in the race. He stayed well with Gilbert in the early stages, but weakened in the second mile. Merritt of U.C. was third in the event.

D. J. McKenzie added another victory to his long career in Varsity track circles by annexing the standing high jump title with a leap of 4 ft. 8 in. Finlayson of U.C. was second and Marshall of Dents third.

University College won the half-mile relay with a fast team comprising Mabey, Langs, Smith, Christie, Jermyn, and Finlayson. Harley Russell's S.P.S. team finished three seconds behind.

The standing by faculties is: U.C. 42; S.P.S. 29; Dents 16; Meds 9; St. Mike's 8; Vic. 3.

The events for next Tuesday's concluding meet are: the mile relay, the 100 yards dash, and the pole vault.

S.M.C. ARTS BANQUET HELD FOR THE YEAR

Toasts Were the Feature of the Evening's Programme

PROF. WALLACE—GUEST

The annual Arts banquet of St. Michael's College was held last night in the college dining hall and was featured by good music and popular toasts.

E. J. Hartmann, president of St. Michael's S.A.C., officiated as toastmaster.

C. J. Daly, proposing "The University of Toronto," encountered a "Vars-it-ee." He mentioned the development of federation system and the prominent part undertaken by St. Michael's College.

W. A. Donohue, B.A., president S.A.C., remarked that the University was typically Canadian.

The guest speaker, Professor Wallace, struck a high note. "I have never seen a case where college was pitted against college."

C. Crusoe proposed "To the Intermediate football team." They were worthy wearers of the "double blue." Captain "Con" Sheehan, responding, told how the team measured up by making the best of a situation.

George Power, in imitatively witty style, proposed "The Mulock Cup team." Captain J. F. (Duke) McGarry, in response, dwelt on the unusual spirit of the team.

P. Scollard proposed "The graduates of 278." He drew a vivid picture of the class in future. Responding, Vernon Bourke mentioned the

THE UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA WORRIES TOO

That the Student Council of this University was not alone in seeking reform in the type of biographies to be used in the year book is shown by a recent editorial in the "Ubysses," the official organ of the University of British Columbia. Though claiming to have begged, pleaded with, bullied and satirized the class of '27 for the express purpose of killing the absurdity of the traditional personal paragraph, the efforts of the "Ubysses" appear to have been in vain, for, to quote our contemporary, "The 1927 'Totem' was full of simpering inanities unworthy of a backwoods high school, let alone a prominent university. Silly effusions of the victim's 'blue eyes, curly hair and winning smile,' references in questionable taste to 'necking' and 'petting,' sickly sentiment, and collections of words 'full of sound and fury, signifying nothing,' were the rule rather than the exception. It appeared that the average student thought that it was his—or her—duty to be clever and epigrammatic—and the result was either silly artificiality or a vague copying of some predecessor's style."

It would seem most peculiar that an agitation evidently so similar to that recently experienced here should similarly arise at a sister college. Though in the U. of B.C. no legislation to standardize write-ups was attempted, the "Ubysses" strenuously maintained that a student's paragraph should consist of a brief and accurate summing-up of the student's achievements and activities throughout his (or her) college career, and a list of the teams, clubs and societies of which he (or she) is a member. "Above all," it was claimed, "there should be none of the 'bilge' that usually serves to cover the deficiencies of some students in these subjects."

While the publication of the coming Torontonensis alone will show whether the reform here is progressing in a satisfactory manner it is gratifying to know that regulations have made necessary many of those features in a write-up that the "Ubysses" considers ideal. And we are strongly of the opinion that, several years hence, the graduate of this year will find more satisfaction in his Torontonensis than in those others of a less informative—though perhaps more picturesque—type that have previously been produced. In any case, the solution of the "Ubysses" for the "Totem's" ills,—that the individual write-up be abolished,—will not be called for here.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Trinity having attempted the experiment of the mixed debate, and Victoria being on the verge of such an attempt, it is interesting to note how the art of being able to speak well and fluently always incites admiration. However, it might be worth pointing out that, to assure popularity with the general mass of students to whom a flavouring of humor gives a spicy taste, light subjects with some opportunity for humor are most apt to get a large number of students interested in debating. A liking for keener and more thought-provoking subjects, together with a more widespread interest in debating, should come later.

HIPPOTRONE

Only one act prevents us labelling this week's vaudeville show at the Hippotrone as mediocre—amusing enough possibly but still mediocre. But the evening was more than redeemed by Jed Dooley and his company whose remarkably original puns and occasional risqué suggestions aroused in the house genuine interest.

Les Folies Rouges, because of the beauty of the settings, ranks next among the various acts. Of the rest, Sandy and Douglas did the best work, especially in their Fiji Island dance act, though the Great Schubert and Partner gave the house a real thrill with their acrobatic tricks. Ruby Norton was a disappointment in spite of her novel description of the big Chicago fight. The whole programme (Continued on page 4)

Art, Music and Drama

"RUTHERFORD AND SON"

The present production of Githa Sowerby's "Rutherford and Son" at Hart House Theatre is unquestionably one of the finest pieces of work ever done at the theatre. Carroll Aikins in his direction of the play was fortunate enough to be able to cast it with a telling accuracy not always visible in little theatre productions, and when one adds good direction, perfect casting and fine acting to what is primarily a splendid play, the result is satisfying in the extreme.

"Rutherford and Son" is a Yorkshire play by a little-known dramatist, and yet, if one might say so, it is a triumph over its own particular genre and milieu. To be more lucid, it is not couched in the spontaneous and difficult Yorkshire dialect of Gregson's "T'Marsdens" presented last season; consequently this play, a drama of especial intensity, is given all the more force on account of the simple striking power of the lines themselves. John Rutherford is a hard, unfeeling industrial power who has spent his life in developing the factory which bears his name. He is a man of the people, not given to dreams or emotions, but one who has unconsciously resigned himself to the relentless force of destiny. By constant effort and unceasing toil he has built up a power that demands his life-work for its maintenance. In doing this he has left stifled all tenderer solicitude for his family, and, having given his sons and daughter education, comfort and leisure, gives them nothing more, not even sympathy or kindness. One son, John, an idealistic dreamer whose only accomplishment is the marrying of a wife whom he is unable to support, has invented a process upon which he pins his hopes for the future. He attempts to sell his invention to his father, and entrusts it to the keeping of Martin, his father's overseer. Martin, completely under the domination of old Rutherford, is made to realize that the future of the industry depends on the invention, and consequently gives the formula to the father, thereby ruining the son's hopes of independence. In the end John leaves home, and his young wife practically sells their son to the old industrialist for his promise to support them. The other tragedy is that of Janet, Rutherford's daughter, who, being starved for affection and love in her own household, gives herself to Martin and attempts thereby to snatch a life's happiness from the storm of circumstance. Martin in the end turns from her. He is a practical, unimaginative workman who regards old Rutherford as his master, and sees in the old man's devotion to the factory a greater strength than that to be derived from a moment's happiness. The other son, Richard, a clergyman, in the words of old Rutherford, "dodges the demands of life in turning to religion." At the end Rutherford is left alone in his house when his chil-

THE BALLAD OF THE ROASTED CADAVER

There was a man called Ike McShane,
 A man whose very memory fades,
 He beat his wife with might and main
 And fed his children razor blades.

Each Saturday at twelve o'clock
 He drew his pay of thirty dollars,
 And gave his boss a lousy sock
 And often had the cops as callers.

He was a constant member found
 In queues at every "Hannery,"
 He filled his permit to his bound
 With Rye and liquid granary.

All things must end, however bad,
 And Ike McShane felt sundry lumps
 About his chin, and it was sad
 That he fell ill, and died of Mumps.

No coin had Ike, and so he lay
 Within the morgue upon a table,
 Until the Meds came by one day
 And bought a specimen most stable.

No hearse had he, no funeral plumes
 To bear him to Laboratree;

They heaved him down in frozen rooms
 Where Meds learn of Anatomee.

One Sunday night the relic chill
 That men once knew as Ike McShane

Lay silent, calm, and very still,
 Forgetful of its earthly name.

But Monday morning someone lit
 A match, and dropped it carelessly

Beside some waste to heaten it
 And very soon it singed friend Ike.

The firemen came and used ten hoses,
 And in the flames a voice said

"What!
 I swear by all the toes of Moses

The very atmosphere is hot!"

'Twas Ike—he stirred at half-past seven,
 Looked at the flames and spake

"Well, well,
 I never thought I'd get to Heaven,

And sure enough I came to—the Medical Building, didn't I?"

"HAP" GILBERT BREAKS INDOOR TRACK RECORD FOR TWO MILES

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The boxers and wrestlers are having a hard time of it these days, as the Senior assault is called for Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. There is plenty of competition in all weights, and those who went on the early training trips have been worrying all season about winning their events next week. One weak place in this year's prospects is the upper classes of the boxing. There are mighty few contenders for the light-heavy and heavy classes. Irwin, a big freshman, is being groomed for one of these places and is showing marked improvement.

The Queen's assault squad is certainly out to make a good showing this year, as they have been running all over the country in engagements and have been giving a good account of themselves in all their matches. Not much has been heard of McGill this year, but they are bound to send down a smart team, as they always have in the past; therefore this year promises to be the most evenly contested mat and ring fest that has been staged in Intercollegiate circles for some time.

Even though the Varsity basketballers did swamp the Western crew last Saturday, Coach McCutcheon did not allow any of his boys to feel too cocky over it. They went right back to practice and were given no let-up. Queen's is the team to beat this year, and Varsity has taken upon themselves the job of administering that beating, though we will have to wait until Saturday to see how close they can come to it. The locals have a fairly heavy schedule ahead of them and play three games in eight days.

The Intermediate hockey team now has the distinction of beating every team in the group, and thereby look as though they will enter at least one round of the play-offs. The Seconds are a smart outfit and should go a long way toward the title if their past record means anything, and added to that they always give the Seniors stiff opposition in practice.

On Saturday afternoon the Pearsons entertain the McGill Intercollegiate hockey team in their return game of the schedule. Up in Montreal earlier in the season the locals had to take the short end of a 4-1 score, but now the Blue machine is running more smoothly, and with "Mac" King and Devins back on the line-up, a different result is hoped for in the coming tussle.

It is definitely announced that "Red" Whitehead is out of all hockey for this season. The medical authorities would not sanction his playing, as he is not yet completely recovered from his operation earlier in the season. This announcement hits the Intercollegiate squad hard, though up to date they have been able to give a good account of themselves and are well up in both leagues, having dropped only two games so far.

At last the Jennings Cup series is well under way, and though delayed beyond all record, an attempt is being made to run off the complete schedule instead of the single one as was threatened. Basketball is almost half through, while baseball has still some nineteen games to run off.

Wycliffe and Victoria Tied in Jennings Cup Fixture

From start to finish the game was hotly contested. The first period was goalless, both goalies playing a sterling game and making no mistakes. Union opened the second period with a goal, but Draper quickly equalized for Wycliffe. The last period saw both teams on their toes and going all out to win. Withers, after a sparkling dash down, notched the second for the Anglicans, and just before the bell Union made the score 2-2.

This necessitated an extra five minutes each way, and Withers, ably backed by Perkins, tallied again for Wycliffe. The final five minutes saw a veritable melee of men and sticks, and Union, with all the gods of luck fighting for them, sent in the equalizer. The game ended 3-3.

Union: Goal, Cox; Turnbull, Kendall, Pointer, Wood; centre, Shields; subs, Berry, Little, Stevenson.

Misprint in the Schedule Causes Mix-up Among Teams

VARSITY BASKETEERS HAVE FINE CHANCES

Toronto Boys Up Against Gruelling Schedule in College League

CONTEST WITH QUEEN'S

After the Blue and White win on Saturday last over the Western quintet it looks like a real chance of the Varsity team for the Intercollegiate cage title. Last year the Western team copped the big title after just as inauspicious a start as this year. But the results last year showed a Western team that could not get going, while the present Varsity squad not only defeated the London University team but showed by their form that it was no flash in the pan.

This afternoon the Senior squad travels to St. Catharines to play in exhibition game with the St. Kitts Collegiate Grads. Apparently the Grads have a strong team, for they beat Niagara, which had previously defeated the Riverside Grads, and we know what the ex-Riversiders are, because they have a couple who wore the Blue and White last season. The complete team won't be able to make to-day's trip, so a couple of the Intermediates are being given a chance to show their wares.

The Blues meet Queen's on the coming Saturday at the Hart House gym, and if the showing of the Tricolour in their Christmas tour and against McGill means anything, there should be one royal battle when they meet. Queen's, with "Ike" Sutton on the forward line, are one of the most dangerous aggregations playing the popular winter pastime. They took a fall out of Central Seniors and the best that Hamilton could produce in Senior company. That is no small feat, as any follower of basketball will be ready to admit. The Queen's team is almost intact from last year and they gave the Blue and White McCutcheon squad a real battle last year to win out by a single point after two periods of overtime play. It was one of the finest games seen on the Hart House floor, and that is spurring a mouthful.

Both teams report as being in the finest fettle for their fray, and at full strength there should be plenty of fur flying when they hook up.

Women's Hockey

The team chosen to meet Queen's in Kingston on Friday will be: Goal: Pat Tilston.
Defence: Jessie Mooney, Eve Powell.

Forwards: Norma Bateman, Dot Langley, Violet Murphy, Helen Hilliard, Dot McNaughton, Chris Kellock.

Durnan Trophy Contest in Hart House Tank

Fourteen swimmers faced the starter in connection with the annual competition for the Durnan Trophy, emblematic of the individual swimming championship of the University. There were two events, the 50 yards and 220 yards, and the scores were as follows:—

	Points
1. J. Goss, S.P.S.	1874
2. L. Boddy, U.C.	1535
3. E. Sinclair, Dents	1330
4. T. Marsh, Dents	1315
5. H. Scott, U.C.	1264
6. R. Thompson, U.C.	1190
7. J. Pierdon, S.P.S.	1140
8. H. Graham, U.C.	1115
9. W. Bertram, U.C.	1094
10. H. Lowndes, U.C.	1054
11. E. Ruddell, Dents	896
12. G. Barber, U.C.	688
13. G. Ferris, Vic.	640
14. A. Hazledan, S.P.S.	574

The events to-day (Wednesday) at 5.15 are: 100 yards back stroke, 100 yards breast stroke.

TORONTO RUNNERS LEAVE FOR STATES

Graham and Fitzpatrick Compete Against Finest Men on Continent

GUESTS OF MILLROSE CLUB

Wally Graham and Johnny Fitzpatrick leave to-day for New York along with a party of Canadian track men organized by Mr. Elwood Hughes of the C.N.E. to compete at the Millrose Club's annual meet to be held in Madison Square Garden on Thursday. Mr. Halbus when interviewed by "The Varsity" stated that the Millwood Club held their meets annually, to which all specialized athletes of prominence were invited. Among those present this year at the Garden will be Charlie Paddock, the erstwhile speed demon and motion picture star, and Dr. Peltzer, the German runner, who has been making a name for himself on this continent. It was originally intended to have "Mo" Mitchell and Al Christie go along too, so that the four men should represent the University in the relay, but they were unable to train due to pressure of academic work. It now remains for Wally Graham and Johnny Fitzpatrick to carry the blue standard. Besides competing in the relay, Fitzpatrick is billed for the 220 and Graham for the 50 yards. Mr. Halbus stated further that it was quite an honour to be invited due to the high standard set by the Millrose Club.

MR. MOORE LECTURES ON TRADES CONGRESS

President of Organization Addresses Students of Political Science

HISTORY OF MOVEMENT

Mr. Tom Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, who was in Toronto yesterday on business, gave a lecture in Baldwin House to the students of Political Economy, on "The Work of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada." A large number of students filled the lecture room to an uncomfortable degree.

Mr. Moore traced the history of the formation of the Congress in Canada, outlining its objects and its functions. The work of the Congress is carried on under four bodies: the local union, the district trades and labor councils, the provincial executives and the national federation. The work of each is separate and distinct, and is concerned with its own special sphere.

on the present distress in British industries and its relation to the distress of other industries on the European continent and elsewhere.

As he is merely here as a transient visitor, it occurred to Mr. Wood that, rather than give a set course of lectures, the students would derive more benefit from his visit if he were to turn himself into a principal witness, giving evidence to a committee of enquiry. This committee must be satisfied not only as to the accuracy and reliability of any of his statements, but also of the reliability of the technique applied in arriving at these statements.

Professor Jackson wishes it to be understood that these lectures are to be open to undergraduates of all years, nor is it confined to the courses in Political Economy. The complete time-table is not yet available, but any who are interested and free to-day at 9 o'clock and Thursday at 12 o'clock are advised to be present at the first two of the series to be held in Baldwin House.

ART, MUSIC AND DRAMA

John Rutherford, alone with his daughter-in-law who has sold him his grandson who will later carry on the traditions of "Rutherford and Son."

The play is gripping, tense and powerful, and what little comedy exists in it is afforded only as relief by old Aunt Ann, a character part splendidly given by Frances Rostance. As John Rutherford, Ivor Lewis adds one more laurel to his long series of fine portrayals at Hart House Theatre. He makes the old industrialist a hard, strong unsympathetic man whose common sense and practical resignation to life as work and work only make him in the end the dominant and noblest figure of the play. Howard Bach as John, the inventor and frustrated dreamer, does an excellent piece of acting, and as Janet, the tragic sister whose emotions and nature have been suppressed, and who attempts the desperate remedy of an alliance beneath her, Agnes Muldrew does a most difficult piece of acting with conviction and intensity. Smaller parts, those of John's young wife, Richard, Martin and Mrs. Henderson, are perfectly filled by Heasel Mitchell, Desmond Preston, Tommy Taylor and Dora McMillan.

was well rounded out, but not particularly high class.

The feature picture starred Vera Reynolds in "The Main Event." It was a boxing story with a hero and a heroine and a pair of villains, and with the hero winning out in the end—commonplace but not uninteresting. But why do so many movie actors and actresses find it necessary to twitch their faces so much to convey an obvious impression? The comic reel used a multitude of old gags in a new way.

O.H.A. SENIORS PLAY PRESTON TO-NIGHT

Championship Series Drawing to a Hard-fought Finish With Teams Equal

BLUE MUST WIN TO-NIGHT

To-night in Preston, Coach Mike Pearson's O.H.A. Seniors engage the Preston Riversiders on the latter's home ice in a game in which the leadership of the O.H.A. race is at stake. Both teams have lost one game so far this season, as Preston defeated Varsity here by the score of 4 to 3 last week, and since then Marlboros sprung a surprise by knocking off the scrappy Preston outfit by 3 to 1. Two games yet remain to be played with Preston, as the schedule calls for a three game series. The one in Preston to-night and the return game in Toronto will probably decide the championship, and therefore it is essential that the Blue should chalk up a win to-night.

The rival puck-chasers, however, have been the dark horse of the season and will take a lot of beating before going down to defeat to any team. Schmalts in goal has proved a sensation all year, turning aside sure goals with deadly regularity. Talbot on the defence and Arnott on the forward line are two speed artists that are sure to bother the Varsity defence a good deal. However, the return of Mac King and the possibility of "Red" Whitehead getting into the game have greatly strengthened the Blue outlook. Capt. Herb Kirkpatrick has been playing great hockey since his return, and is due for one or two goals in Preston to-night.

The probable line-ups will be: Varsity: Goal, Snyder; defence, Kirkpatrick, Carriek; centre, King; wings, Richards, Harley; subs, McMullen, Stewart.

Preston: Goal, Schmalts; defence, Talbot, Skelley; centre, Arnott; wings, Clarke, Wade; subs, Cucura, Julke.

REV. STUART PARKER AT CHAPEL SERVICE

Progress Depends on Struggle Towards a Definite Ideal

ACTIVITY NOT PROGRESS

"There can be no progress in world conditions until men conceive a definite ideal towards which they may aim," declared the Rev. Stuart Parker in the noon-hour S.C.A. address in Hart House Chapel yesterday.

Basing his address on Matthew V. 48, "Be ye perfect even as your Father in heaven is perfect," the speaker showed that the church had a definite goal to which its leaders were trying to guide it. "So long as we know what we are doing, there is life and hope in the church."

"In the later nineteenth century progress was considered almost inevitable. To a world under the influence of Darwinism a contrary idea was heresy." But the speaker pointed out that much activity does not of necessity mean progress. "To-day some thinking men feel there is no progress. What is wrong?"

Dr. Parker answered the question by showing the diverse goals to which would-be world reformers were driving. Unless there was agreement as to that goal there was nothing by which progress could be gauged. Only in the expressed purpose of the church could such a definite standard be found.

UNIVERSITY POLICE PROHIBIT PARKING

Area Between Baldwin House and Press No Longer Available

HINDERED TRADESMEN

Students who have motor cars are no longer allowed to use the space between Baldwin House and the University Press for a convenient parking place.

The edict to this effect was issued some time ago, and since then has been strictly enforced. A policeman has been on duty there, taking the license numbers of the offending cars and warning the owners that on the next offence some dire and unknown punishment will be inflicted upon them.

Owing to the number of cars parked there, the tradesmen were entirely unable to reach their workshops or to unload their wares at the University Press. Further, it is understood that the disturbance caused by some of the cars and their occupants finally forced the professors to take action, with the result that now the inhabitants of Baldwin House and the University Press park their automobiles on University crescent and walk to work.

Any book may be borrowed for two weeks or less by simply signing one's name in the book supplied. The Library receives at least twenty periodicals, none of which are to be found in the Hart House Library. These periodicals deal with varied subjects, religious topics being the outstanding ones.

FLYING CLUB HEAR PROF. J. H. PARKIN

Toronto Club Learn of Wing Characteristics and Aero-plane Types

ADVANTAGES EXPLAINED

"Wing Characteristics and Aero-plane Types" was the subject of Prof. J. H. Parkin's lecture to the Toronto Flying Club last night.

Prof. Parkin continued his remarks of last week on types of wing sections, dealing with three very different types in particular. The R.A.F.-15 is a high speed thin section, used for biplanes and high speed monoplanes. The U.S.A.-27 is a medium lift section thicker than R.A.F.-15 and is used extensively across the line. The Göttingen is a typical modern, high-lift, thick section, used on monoplanes for the most part.

The connection between landing speed, top speed and type of wing section was discussed, examples of modern machines, such as the D-H Moth, a light plan, the Gloster Gamecock, a fighter, and the 16-passenger Handley-Page W-8 being used as illustrations.

The question of low landing speed combined with high top speed was considered in connection with variable camber wings, with front and rear flaps. The newest mechanism enabling low landing speeds and large gliding angle, the Handley-Page slot, was illustrated with diagrams and slides. This arrangement enables a plane to land in a restricted area at a low speed with no danger of stalling, a stall near the ground being invariably disastrous.

The Flettner Rotor was discussed regarding the use of the principle of a rotating cylinder in an air current to aeroflits. Although the lift is (Continued on page 4)

Sparkling Crystal Lights, Sprightly Music, and Novel Favours Add to Pleasure

OTHER COLLEGES THERE

Western, Queens, McGill and U. of Montreal Represented by Guests

The annual Senior Medical At-Home, held Tuesday evening in the Crystal Ball Room, King Edward Hotel, again proved itself to be one of the gayest and most popular of University dances. Two hundred couples swayed in joyous rhythm to the fascinating music by Gilbert Watson and his orchestra. Spangled lighting effect gained by spotlights on a mirror studded globe played over the walls and ceiling, while the atmosphere was literally charged with that intangible something vulgarly known as pep. The singing and antics of the coloured fun maker, Hiram Berry, kept the crowd in good spirits throughout the evening.

As favours, each lady received a souvenir programme bound in leather and beautifully engraved with the Medical crest. At 11.15 the party descended en masse to the main dining room, where an excellent supper was served. Each table was piled with novelties, serpentine streamers and the familiar pith balls, which soon filled the air, thrown fortunately with more speed than accuracy.

Fortified within, dancing was resumed with even more enthusiasm and abandon. From the first strains of "Mississippi Mud" to the last note of "The King," a lusty "Toronto" and a no less vociferous "Epistaxis," the evening was an unqualified success.

The Medical Society were "host" to representatives from sister organizations in Western, Queens and McGill Universities and the University of Montreal. The various faculties of the University of Toronto were also represented.

The patronesses were Mrs. A. Primrose, Mrs. C. S. Ryerson, Mrs. C. L. Starr, Mrs. J. A. Oille, Mrs. W. B. Hendry and Mrs. A. Brown.

The committee consisted of Messrs. McEachern, Ziegler, McInnis, W. S. Kergin, Large, and J. C. Scott.

OPEN MEETING HELD BY S.A.C.

The third of the open meetings of the S.A.C. was held in the Lecture Room, Hart House, yesterday afternoon. There were no students present other than the members of the Council and "The Varsity" reporter.

The resignation of the member from Knox College, J. D. Smart, was received and forwarded to Knox College. A letter from the Athletic Director was read, in which he recommended that two men be nominated by the S.A.C. to membership on a committee to investigate the lack of student support in athletics. Mr. Hartmann of St. Michael's, and president of the Rooters' Club, and Mr. Marshall, senior cheer leader, were appointed.

W. A. Higgins, secretary-treasurer, submitted the financial report up to the end of January. The S.A.C. was left with a surplus of $191.41 when (Continued on page 4)

PROMINENT MEN TO LECTURE ON MENTAL HYGIENE

Lecturers Will Come From Canada and Many Parts of United States

IN MEDICAL BUILDING

To Outline Mental Hygiene Background for Life of Individual

Seven prominent men from neighbouring universities will speak at the lectures, which are to be held in the Medical Building at 5 p.m. every Monday, commencing on February 6th.

"The aim of these lectures," said Dr. C. M. Hincks, medical director of the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, "is to outline for the individual a complete mental hygiene background from the highly important character and habit-forming years of early childhood, through the trying period of adolescence, on into later life."

The first lecture will be delivered by Dr. C. Macfie Campbell, Professor of Psychiatry, Harvard Medical School and director of the Boston Psychopathic Hospital, on February 6th. He will speak on "The Prevention of Mental and Nervous Disorders."

On February 13 Dr. Bird T. Baldwin, Director of the Iowa Child Welfare Station, State University of Iowa, will speak on "The Growth of the Child."

Dr. Charles F. Martin, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, McGill University, and president of the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, will speak on "The Mental Hygiene Movement in Canada," on February 16.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE GUTTED BY FLAMES WAY BACK IN 1890

Fire in the East Wing Destroyed the Library

PRINCIPAL HUTTON THERE

Then, as Now, Lectures Were Continued Despite Disaster

The disastrous fire which broke out in the Medical Building on Monday morning of this week is not the first conflagration in the history of the University.

About 7.30 on the evening of the fourteenth of February, 1890, a terrible fire broke out, which burned down the greater part of University College to the ground. On that memorable evening, the members of the Literary and Scientific Society were to hold their annual meeting at which an exhibition of microscopic slides was to be shown. For this, lamps were required. As two of the attendants were carrying these up the stairs in the south-east corner of the building, a tray of lighted lamps, one of them stumbled and fell, upsetting the ignited kerosene. When the guests arrived they found the building in flames.

"I remember seeing the flames flashing from the roof of the building," said Principal Hutton, an eye-witness of the catastrophe, who was then one of the guests, when interviewed. "The campus was crowded with spectators. The firemen could not put out the fire until about midnight. I was then a young man, and did not take the matter too seriously, but some of the older members of the staff felt rather badly about it. The students of course hoped for a vacation," he continued laughingly, "but they did not get a very long one."

The whole eastern wing and main front, as far as the central tower was, with the exception of some masonry, utterly destroyed. The solidity of the tower, however, checked the flames, and to this fact we owe the preservation of the fine carving of the main entrance. But the fire penetrated the upper portions of the tower, and the deep-toned bell, familiar to students for generations, was shattered. The treasured museum was also reached by the blaze, and all that was inflammable was devoured. Here at last the fire was checked.

Keen Observer Notes Newest Style In the Ideal College Beau's Garb

Tip-Top Tailors and National Clothiers please note: The knell of the blue overcoat has been sounded. Clear the hangers for the fray and stock up with rich golden browns. Observation on the campus also yields the information that the ubiquitous white scarf has also seen its day. It is being replaced by coloured creations such as Mexicans and habitant river-drivers affect. These go hand in hand with the long brown form fitting overcoats. Of course there is still the occasional nondescript garment, but "que voulez-vous?"

Michael Arlen has remarked that London is the city of plain women and bowler hats, but the same cannot be said of Toronto, at least the University part of it. There, ladies, am I not gallant? The bowler or Christie or derby or what you will seems to have gained a foothold among the hoi polloi outside the pale, meaning Meds, Dents and Science, but your true Arts man adheres to his felt. Long may he wear it!

For trousers we visited the big fraternity men and found them still full, the trousers I mean, not the men. Their suit-coats were cut high and featured three buttons and short lapels. But their crowning glory was their feet. That is a subtle wisecrack. Gay socks matched their gaudy scarves and plaid ties, while their shoes were heavy calf with plain toe-caps and leather heels. A word in passing: white shirts with attached collars and buttoned cuffs still retained their popularity. What, no spats! Well, yes; but when it snows, overshoes. Never if you value your neck, don spats and rubbers. Horrors! The foregoing sketches the college man beau ideal. I might add that a few opulent citizens wore coats by racoon, but a pitiful few.

"Now I aren't no 'and with the ljdies

But tyed them all along."

The fair co-ed favours fur. Fur coats about twinkling silk legs helped the frails withstand the rigours of February. As for the rest of their garb—Sir-r-r!

WITH DUE REGARD

The University of Toronto has created for itself a very enviable reputation for excellence in all things, not the least of these being the courtesy shown to strangers within its gates. We are all proud of the achievements of our Alma Mater, and are jealous of her reputation and her good name. It was therefore with a sense of disgust, if not indignation, that we witnessed a display of utter discourtesy to a stranger amongst us, on Sunday evening, which we sincerely hope will not be repeated. We refer to the service in the evening at Convocation Hall, where the motor of the organ was started whilst Mr. Max Yergan was still giving his address. It is true that the speaker had his back turned to the instrument and would not, therefore, see the display of rudeness, but we have no doubt that his sense of hearing is quite acute. In any case there were many in the audience who witnessed this unnecessary display of haste, together with the restlessness of the organist as he slid about his seat, fixed his music, handled his stops, and then started the organ motor, before the speaker had even given a suggestion that he was approaching his conclusion. And the majority of those who witnessed it resented the discourtesy. We would like to believe that the behavior was nothing more than the outcome of thoughtlessness, but even in that case, for the good name of the University if for no other reason, it must not occur again.

ELOQUENCE IN DISCUSSION GROUPS

One of the features of University life, stressed as being particularly beneficial, is the discussion group. On the analogy that two minds are better than one, a group of fifteen to twenty students under the leadership of a professor or an expert in some subject should be able to accomplish great things. Unfortunately, whenever a given number gather together with the definite object of discussing, at once the springs of thought seem to dry up, and only the most tentative efforts are made for consecutive argument. The thread is lost and discussion trails off into trivialities. Or, as frequently happens in the regular academic groups arranged for by the curriculum, the professor makes a remark, the bright talkative student seizes the opportunity to air his views, while the remainder sit back and let their thoughts idly wander over less fatiguing matters. Too often the person who has something of real moment to say, is overwhelmed by the flood of superficially clever remarks which come from those who speak more easily than they think. It is in the informal atmosphere over the friendly cup of tea that one waxes eloquent, or in the group carelessly gathered about the flowing fire that one's thoughts are stimulated. Such circumstances are impracticable for the lecture room, but it is just the thought of being assembled for the purpose of producing bright ideas that makes these ideas so elusive.

And yet this chance to exchange freely one's thoughts is one of the great opportunities afforded by the University. It is a unique phase of college life which aims to stimulate thinking on the part of the student and encourage him in the free expression of his views.

EMPIRE—"IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE"

This week the Empire Players are doing that old time-honoured farce written for the greater glorification of the all-important god Blather, or to be more exact Advertising. Since we last saw the play, the authors have been subsidized by the Ivory

Soap Floaters, for the name of that unsinkable product is mentioned at least 967 times in the course of the action.

However, "It Pays to Advertise" is good stuff, amusing, light, pleasing in the extreme, with a veil of sensationalism thrown over the grim thing called Business. This play is very different from "Rutherford and Son," for the latter treats business from a starkly realistic standpoint, while this play puts a nice golden cloak of

CHAMPUS CAT SENATOR BAXLAPPER PEERS INTO FACES

"We Must Not Monkey or Ape in Any Way the Constitution"

FREEDOM OF CAMPI

By the Enraptured Reporter

Toronto, February 1.—Senator J. Bunkley Baxlapper, in the course of his tour across Canada, addressed the student of the college here.

"When I peer down upon your smiling, upturned faces," declared the Senator in ringing tones, "I realize what a weight of responsibility our ancestors have imposed upon us; what a wealth of undeveloped resources is ours to-day."

"I look into the future," announced the Senator in a ringing voice, "and what do I see?"

No one in the audience knew. The Senator explained: "I see the Ship of Canadian State steaming past the shoals. Who is at the helm?"

No one seemed to know the answer to this either. The Senator then rang out: "Who is at the helm? Why, one with a face like a member of the vast audience now before me."

The students then arose and presented the Senator with the freedom of the front campus.

The Senator remarked that he was overwhelmed. Then, with a sudden rally, he said that he appreciated the trust which the students had imposed upon him, and that to the best of his ability he would see that the heel of foreign oppression should never be placed upon the front campus.

Senator Baxlapper then spoke on constitutional matters. He declared that if the audience wished to see that there was no missing link in the chain of Canadian Unity, they must not monkey with the Constitution. "We must not ape any foreign power!" rang the Senator.

The audience then arose and presented the Senator with the freedom of the back campus.

Senator Baxlapper also addressed a meeting of the Co-operative Suspenders Manufacturers in the Purple Room of the Scandaloma Hotel.

"A thrill runs through me when I peer into your faces, and I realize indeed that if there are any missing links in the chain of Canadian Unity, the Suspenders Manufacturers will supply them," declared the Senator in a ringing voice. "The Suspenders Manufacturers uphold the dignity of the Nation! We must have an elastic tariff for the Suspenders Manufacturers!"

Col. S. Pender-Button, President of the C.S.M., then presented the Senator with a gift pair of suspenders.

A meeting to consider the problem of cancer was held last week at McGill University. Dr. John Gerster, chairman of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, addressed the gathering.

Student Verse

Make me out of stardust
 Shadows and the rain,
 Let me all the sunshine
 And the night retain.

Fashion me of flower-buds,
 Petals and of song;
 Give me hope and beauty
 All the road along.

Why should I be saddened,
 Made of earth, and slow?
 I was singing daffodils
 Long and long ago.

A.F.R.

TRISTESSE

Tell me, Sorrow
 What is life?
 Brings to-morrow
 Only strife.
 And the loss of all things lovely
 Out of life?

Tell me, Beauty,
 Dare you last?
 Is your duty
 To be passed,
 Yet to leave your first fair wonder
 With your last?

Tell me, Lover
 Why you dream
 On forever
 Of a gleam
 That has made a noon of midnight
 By your dream?

Tell me, Loved One,
 What is faith?
 Whom 'tis proved on
 If a wraith
 Is found the last fulfillment
 Of your faith?

None will tell me
 Until Death
 Comes to kneel me
 Steal my breath,
 And the sunrise shall bring wisdom
 Out of death.

Three Addresses Given at Newman Club Contest

The oratorical contest held on Sunday afternoon at Newman Club provided three interesting addresses.

Al. Kennedy, in concise and graphic fashion, gave an outline of jury procedure. This Osgoode Hall man's talk was very enlightening and interesting.

Sammon, of St. Michael's College, gave an address on the important part ideals of co-operation and tolerance played in bringing about national unity in Canada.

O'Brien, also of Osgoode, gave an interesting address on the electoral system of the United States. He reviewed several of their Democratic nominations.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Maurice Daly, who later announced that Sammon had received the judges' decision.

VARSITY SENIORS PLAY O.H.A. FIXTURE IN PRESTON TO-NIGHT

SPEAKING OF SPORT

And still they break records. Varsity's indoor track team has been doing this all season, and Tuesday's meet was no exception to the rule. But to the casual observer it cannot help but seem that the old-timers must have been terribly slow when one of their records was recently bettered by 25 secs. We do not wish to detract in any way from the performances of several of Varsity's track experts, but would just like to ask is it customary to break records by 25 secs, or in such profusion. Mightn't there be some slight error in the official measurements?

Next Saturday afternoon should provide the feature of the local intercollegiate hockey series when Varsity takes the fast travelling McGill out into camp. Down in Montreal they cannot see anything but the Red squad and confidently expect them to bring back the title which has been continually held by Toronto for some ten years or so. This confidence is based mainly on McGill's 4-1 defeat of Varsity earlier in the season. Varsity are, however, a vastly improved team, as they expect to show their supporters on Saturday. McGill boast one of the strongest forward lines in years, consisting of Doherty and Lovering, the Little Big Four recruits, along with St. Germaine, the best player in the league. Varsity, even without the services of Whitehead on the defence, with Harley and McMullen playing wonderful hockey, and Devins and King never better, the Blue should not have much to fear on the forward line. The defence are the old reliable trio and should bottle up McGill's scoring aces. Those who pass up this game have no real interest in hockey, as it will be the tid-bit of the season.

The Blue mitt men and bone-crushers have been training faithfully the last few months in preparation for the senior assault next Tuesday. The representatives for the intercollegiate assault will be chosen. There is keen competition this year, particularly in the lightweight. In the heavyweight division a successor has not been found for Carrick, although there are several likely looking big boys working out. Coach Martin is satisfied with his wrestlers and considers them as likely to recapture the title.

Do You Know--

That the University of Toronto originally possessed 225,000 acres of land?

That the Right Reverend John Strachan was the first president of King's College—now the University of Toronto?

That Upper Canada College, now a prep school, was once mooted as the Provincial University but that this proposal was thrown out by the Legislature?

That the much discussed charter granted to King's College in 1827, whose Centenary was celebrated this year, was never put into force?

That extreme financial difficulties attended the formation of the new University in 1830, and drastic financial reorganization had to take place? That Knox College opened on November 8, 1844?

That not until 1849 did King's College become non-denominational?

That the first suggestions of a University along "college union" lines were made in 1843?

That the first lectures in medicine were delivered in 1844?

VICTORIA 2T9 ENJOY JOLLY SKATING PARTY

Novel Features Introduced Including Races and a Basketball Game

The Juniors of Victoria College cast cares aside on Monday evening and sported themselves upon the ice of Little Vic rink, thus making one of the jolliest parties that jolly year has ever had. In fact, an eminent freshman was heard to remark that it was the best 2T9 party he had ever been at.

Many novel skating features were introduced, among them an exciting game of basketball played by the boys on skates. The boys' skating race was won by Tom Sparling, and the girls' race was won by Grace Burnill.

Afterwards coffee, sandwiches and eskimo pie at Annesley Hall whiled away the minutes till bed time. The party ended with a whispered "Victoria"—whispered for fear of disturbing the slumbering Annesley Hallers.

Victoria Frosh Hold Party on Rink and in Burwash

The weather man did his best for the 3T1 frosh last Tuesday night at Victoria College rink. But whether the ice had been crystalline or otherwise the freshmen were resolved to enjoy themselves. When the last strains of the band had died away, the party crossed the road to Burwash Hall, where it was resumed with renewed gusto.

VARSITY SECONDS PLAY NEWMARKET

Are Leading Their Group With Only Two More Games to Play

LAST HOME GAME

Varsity Intermediates play their last home game in the group to-morrow night when they take on their closest rivals Newmarket at the Varsity Arena. Newmarket are reckoned as the team to beat, and though Varsity are out in front in the group they need a win to make things sure.

In the game in Newmarket both teams were handicapped by the soft ice, and though Varsity won, the home team showed every sign of putting up a stiff battle when they got on hard ice. They have a fast tricky forward line with a couple of last year's junior stars. Townsley at centre is a smart player, and though he is not much bigger than a minute, he is tricky and a beautiful checker.

Varsity will probably use the same line-up that defeated Milton on Monday night. The boys took a lot of punishment in the game with the brick makers, but they will all be in uniform for the Newmarket game.

There are only two games left on the intermediate schedule, the one with Newmarket to-morrow and a game in Milton sometime next week.

Basketball Schedule

Jan. 28—McMaster at Varsity.
28—Osgoode at O.A.C.
Feb. 4—Osgoode at Varsity.
11—Varsity at McMaster (Central Y.M.C.A.).
11—O.A.C. at Osgoode (Hart House).
15—Varsity at O.A.C.
24—O.A.C. at Varsity.
25—McMaster at Osgoode (Hart House).
Mar. 3—O.A.C. at McMaster (Central Y.M.C.A.).
9—Varsity at Osgoode (Hart House).
10—McMaster at O.A.C.
14—Osgoode at McMaster (Central Y.M.C.A.).

BOXERS BATTLE BRAVELY PATIENCE PRODUCES PUGS

Every night nowadays finds the knights of the leather mitt hard at work in anticipation of the first festival on the 7th and 8th of this month. The boys are working hard, and though some of them lack experience, there is promise of a scrappy menu. Spott appears to top the lists in the 135's, although general opinion is that he will encounter formidable opposition from Walstaff, S.P.S., who did some good work up at Guelph. Jackson in the middle and McGee in the 125's are shaping up well, and every evening finds the latter going after Chris. Newton, the Canadian champion. Newton, by the way, is a snappy little pug who effects a bright green costume when at work. Somebody remarked that he must be Irish—he must. Lascomb in the 147's, who did himself proud, as the Scotchman would say, at West Point, has a broken hand which may give him trouble. In the 147's the boys are shaping up well though lacking experience. As for the heavies and light-heavies, Mr. Black stated that the contest was pretty open and most of the scrappers in this division needed experience. Though most of the mitters have not had many scraps under their respective belts, they will be on hand in the lighted square with everything they have, and some high-class entertainment is anticipated.

VARSITY WOMEN PLAY QUEEN'S HOCKEY TEAM

First Intercollegiate Game Promises to Show Some Good Hockey

VARSITY IN FINE SHAPE

The women's Blue and White Intercollegiate hockey team set out for Kingston Friday morning to start the ball rolling in the Intercollegiate series.

Pat Tilston, who has played for the Saints the past two years, is said to be the best goalie Varsity has had since Adelaide Macdonald. Jessie Mooney, star defence, has played Intercollegiate hockey for two years and great things are expected of her. She has a wicked low rush and is the steady, reliable veteran of the team. The Queen's girls will find difficulty in getting past the steady checking of Eve Powell. Eve subbed last year for the Blue team and has been doing splendid work this season. In Norma Bateman, fresh soph of Victoria, the team finds an outstanding centre. Up to the time when she was chosen for the Intercollegiate she has been showing up well in the Interfaculty series. She is a good shot and leads the forward line in snappy combination. Dot Langley, left wing, another veteran, is the fastest skater in the outfit. She has a pretty shot and plays an all-round game. Vi. Murphy is another dependable player who is always there on the passes. Helen Hilliard, sister of the famous Marion, was good on the Vic. forward line, scoring two goals in the last game. Dot McNaughton subbed last year on the Intercollegiate. She is a clever stick-handler and ably fills her left wing position. All hockey fans are glad to see Chris. Kellock back in the game. Owing to illness she has not played hockey for two years. She is a splendid all-round player. Eileen Ditchburn, who would have been a star, is prevented from playing this season, and the team feel a great loss in her absence.

The manager, Cecil Cassels, Coach Armstrong and Dr. Gordon will accompany the team on the trip. Harry Batstone, who is expected to referee, will add further interest. The team is a snappy outfit and should go a long way.

adventure around Mammon. "It Pays to Advertise" is the pleasant story of a rich man's son, heir of the soap trust, who is tricked into wage-earning by his father, and with the aid of his father's secretary and a glib-tongued advertising man finally succeeds in bilking the pater familias out of half-a-million for the purchase of his trade-mark "13 Soap, Unlucky for Dirt." Pure nonsense from a basis of fact, but very good amusement indeed.

As Ambrose Peale, the advocate of printed shrieks, Frank Camp does a splendid piece of acting, and as old John Martin, soap king and irate parent, Edmund Abbey snatches the remaining laurels. In their respective roles of son and secretary, Robert Leslie and Edith Taliaferro are pleasantly satisfactory. A word must be added also for Janet Mallett, once of Hart House Theatre, but now Jane Aldworth of the Empire Players. As the Comtesse de Beaurien, her French is as perfect as that of a Modern Language graduate, and her pronunciation impeccable even to a trained ear.

INTERFACULTY SPORTS

Senior School and Dentals Engage in Close Contest

In a close game of baseball Sr. School defeated Sr. Dentals by the score of 4-3. Both teams showed good form for their first game of the season. For the winners Geo. Smith pitched good ball, while Somerville's fast ball had School guessing in the first few innings.

School: Caldwell c, Smith p, Granton 1st, Magman 2nd, Galimberti 3rd, Max Smith ss, Jones lf, Flintoff rf.

Forestry Defeats Knox in Basketball Fixture

Forestry won the second game of their group Tuesday in a 24 to 16 victory over Knox College in a well played basketball game. The score at half time was 14-4 favour of Forestry. In the second half Knox made six baskets.

Line-up of winning team was as follows: Grainger, Start, MacLaren, MacBean, Wiley; subs, Robinson, Gray, Simpson, Leslie.

Trinity Defeats Aggies with Brilliant Hockey

This, the second game of the season for Trinity, was marked by an added improvement in the forwards. Both teams fought hard and made an exceptionally fast and exciting game. The checking on the part of both was very close. Trinity tallied in the first, with O.A.C. vainly endeavoring to even it up. The last five minutes of play were the fastest and most exciting seen for some time in interfaculty hockey. Gamble for O.A.C. and Phippy for Trinity proved their mettle with their cool, steady play.

Line-up:
O.A.C.: Goal, Renouy; defence, Dies, Robinson; forwards, Sykes, Gamble, Chapman; subs, Hall, Henry.
Trinity: Goal, Phipps; defence, Honey, Armstrong; forwards, MacPherson, Edwards, Martin; subs, Ellis, Berwick.

Medettes Hold U.C. Women Scoreless in Hockey Game

Medettes clashed with U.C. women in the second group of the interfaculty hockey series on the Varsity cushion Wednesday afternoon. Every member of both teams played a good game, although the work of the goals and of Dot James for the Medettes was outstanding. How close the game was may be judged from the fact that there was no score. A return game will be played, but the date for this has not yet been decided.

U.C.: Goal, Helen McKinley; defence, Betty Donaldson and Adele Statton; wings, Dorothy Starr and Grace Martin; centre, Wilma Stears; subs, Beatrice Crocken, Fritz Anderson, E. Anderson.

Medettes: Goal, K. Baldwin; defence, Marian Laird and Evelyn Gee; wings, Dot James and Helen Craw; centre, Vi. Henry; subs, Gwen Mahon, Jean Mustard, Marg. Smith.

Senior Vic. Wins Over Senior School in Fast Game

Good shooting and clever combination work gave the Senior Vic. basketballers a 30-8 win over the Senior School team Tuesday last. Fast and open play featured the game, with King and Daly starring for Vic. and Collins for S.P.S.

Sr. Vic.: King, Daly, Johnston, Ashton, Kenny, De Roche, Bryden, Stouffer.

Sr. School: Collins, Parkins, Swartman, Trimble, Shields, McKinney, Woodside, Emerson, Ing.

MOCK TRAGEDY GIVEN AT PLAYERS' GUILD

Mr. Paul Gardner Stars in Death Scene in Role of Plume

"Two Gentlemen of Soho," by A. P. Herbert, was the production under the direction of Mr. John Cowan which the Guild enjoyed yesterday afternoon.

A mock tragedy with a modern setting, it proved to be highly amusing to the students of Elizabethan drama. The plot, though a trifle obscure, represented the heavy hand of fate destroying the lives of all concerned. Mr. Paul Gardner was especially effective in his role of Plume and is greatly to be congratulated upon his death scene in which he professes in at least a hundred lines of blank verse "to die without a word."

Miss Margaret Gordon, elected secretary at the last meeting in place of Miss Eleanor Barton, read the constitution of the Guild and informed the meeting that amendments would be voted on at the meeting in two weeks.

Hart House Has Efficient Fireproof Protection

On its exterior the massive walls and solid masonry of Hart House are a preventive of fire.

Inside, from labyrinthine halls below to upper guest rooms, the condition is similar. Pipes radiating from the engine room are covered by asbestos. Halls and stairways are provided with fire extinguishers and hose.

Floors and trimmings only are to any degree inflammable, but stone and concrete beneath the floors prevent possible outbreaks. Furniture is wooden, but of such construction that it is not easily inflammable. Waste paper is disposed of in metal containers. Fire has been known to start in these containers, but apart from this, the only fires in Hart House that are of importance are those in fireplaces. This is due to excellent and efficient fireproof construction and to the fact that students regard the rule "No Smoking" in certain departments.

Solemn Seniors in School 278 Victoria Holds Party

278 Victoria, transformed into a crowd of mad, rollicking ten-year-olds, held its spring party in Wymilwood last night. After games and dancing, the teacher, Professor Robins, conducted a regular Friday afternoon school programme of singing, recitation and bad behaviour.

Miss Alma Wales, as a Dutch girl with a Dutch doll similarly attired, was awarded the prize for costume. The party was given, according to tradition, by the senior men for the senior women of the college, and was excellently planned and arranged by James Keffer, Russell Hopkins and the president, Frederick Wansbrough.

LOVELY LITTER OF LOST LASTS AT HART HOUSE

It is not necessary for the stranger visiting Hart House to read extensive information in regard to the complexity of the University of Toronto. Simple observation of the "Lost" and "Found" bulletin board, and half the deductive powers of a Sherlock Holmes, will give him the desired information. There is as much variety of articles there as in a schoolboy's pockets.

Skates, umbrellas, squash rackets, scarves, meal tickets, even shoe buckles and co-ed's powder puffs, are listed there.

Students losing articles are not so punctual in reclaiming them. The "Found" list contains forty-eight cards, as compared with twenty-two in the "Lost" column. Certain articles that have been listed as "Lost" appear again in the "Found" column. A pair of kid gloves lost in January were later found and claimed. A lady's finger is still lacking a silver ring; a science student is missing a slide rule—but they do not apply at the Porter's desk.

Articles found are returned to the Hall Porter's desk, and the amount so done is a favourable reflection on the student's honesty. Many articles found and left over, even from last year, are still to be called for at the Porter's desk.

St. Joseph's College Holds At-Home at Casa Loma

The students of St. Joseph's College held their annual at-home at Casa Loma Tuesday night. Many favours and novelty dances gave an added interest to the event. The patronesses were Lady Windle, Dr. Gertrude Lawlor, Mrs. E. J. Hayes and Mrs. Gordon Grant. The committee in charge of the at-home was Edith Quinlan '28, Alice Hayes '28, Katherine Kernahan '29, Helen Grant '30 and Marybel Quinn '31.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE GUTTED BY FLAMES

There were no lives lost and no one even hurt, for the alarm was quickly given. However, the loss included the entire contents of the library, of over 33,000 volumes, some of which were irreplaceable, also the mineralogy and geology collections. The loss of the library (now the East Hall of U.C.), which was beautifully modelled after the older university libraries of Europe, was keenly regretted. The fire was not allowed to interrupt the work of instruction for more than a day or so, and classes were continued in the rooms of the School of Science and other buildings.

Neither the building nor its contents was adequately covered by insurance. The disaster threatened to cripple the University at a critical stage in its history. However, the legislature of Ontario at once granted $160,000 to aid in the rebuilding. Private benefactors also gave $60,000. Thus the burnt portions were gradually restored, and by the beginning of 1892 occupancy of the building was fully resumed, and it was externally restored to its original beauty. Convocation Hall was turned into classrooms, and the former library and museum were used for examination purposes, etc.

From a utilitarian point of view, the fire was a cause of improvement on the building, for there was better lighting and ventilation and more space for classrooms. A separate library, more serviceable and larger, was built. Gift books poured in from all over the world. From the point of view of the library the fire was a blessing in disguise.

The lecturer then dealt with wing plans with regard to aspect ratio, wing tip formation, and tapering of wings longitudinally. The conflict between ease of production and good aerodynamics in design was touched upon. This is reflected in some square ended planes used in the United States, which are simple to build but inefficient aerodynamically.

Prof. Parkin concluded the lecture with remarks on interference of the wings in biplanes, and its variation with stagger.

The sum of $60 was voted by the Council to be paid to the visiting Maritime debaters as a guarantee. The visitors will debate in Hart House on February 8th. The remaining $30 of the total $90 guaranteed will be paid by Hart House. The recommendation of the sub-committee of the Board of Governors of the University that from now on the President of the University be empowered to nominate two members of the staff to act as financial advisors to the joint executive, was also discussed.

BLUE AND WHITE CLASH WITH RED IN CRUCIAL GAME

Varsity Have Held Hockey Title for Thirteen Consecutive Years

TEAM OUT TO WIN

Win Will Put Varsity in Running with Possible
Tie for Title

To-morrow afternoon at the Varsity Arena, the crucial game in the Senior Intercollegiate hockey series is to be played when McGill meets the U. of T. stalwarts in a return match. The Blue team has been the most consistent champion squad in the history of Intercollegiate hockey, having held the title for thirteen years consecutively, and this time the Pearsonites are out to continue the continuity despite the most determined efforts of McGill to prove the old "13" superstition.

So far McGill has had much success in such attempts. January 12 bears this out well when they took the measure of the Blue hopes in administering a 4-1 defeat. Right after that the Red and White took a firm hold on first position in the league by defeating U. of M. But within a week the Varsity hopes were revived (Continued on page 3)

WORK IS UNINTERRUPTED IN MEDICAL BUILDING

Workmen Clearing Debris and Damage is Being Quickly Repaired

When interviewed by "The Varsity," Professor Hunter stated that research work or classes had not been held up by the fire. All lectures are being given as usual. The research work is being carried on only in different rooms. The fire was a great set-back to this work, as many valuable notes, books, apparatus and materials were lost. This means that many experiments involving both time and money will have to be repeated. The biochemical department was affected most in this respect. While the actual money value of books lost was only about a hundred dollars, one professor lost a set of reviews on physiology which cannot be replaced. This department also lost much valuable material and data which will mean much repetition of former work.

As regards the building itself, work has already begun there. Workmen are clearing up the debris and preparing to put in a new ceiling on the third floor and to re-roof the burnt section. The damage done to the building itself is not very great, and in a very short time everything will be back to normal again.

Varsity Downs Preston In Close Game by 4-3

In a closely contested O.H.A. game played in Preston last night Varsity reversed the decision of two weeks ago and the Blue squad was at the top end of a 4-3 decision.

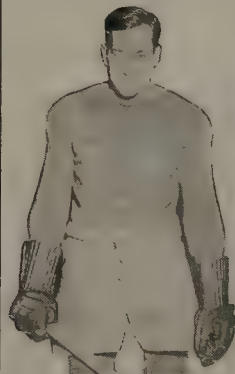

It looks like a toss-up between these two for the Ontario title, but on last night's play the Toronto team has a slight edge, and were leading 3-2 at the end of the second period.

Small Number of Students Troubled With Mumps

Although, according to a member of the City Health Department, there were yesterday 1,222 cases of mumps in Toronto, the University residences at least are comparatively fortunate, and few students have succumbed to a disease which some seem to regard as a joke. As far as "The Varsity" could find out, the total number of victims in residence is not more than ten. Five were at Annesley Hall, of whom one is now completely recovered, and the remainder much improved. Two cases at Knox College have been in quarantine for three weeks.

Dr. George D. Porter of the University Health Service stated that there was undoubtedly a number of cases among students, but these are not regarded as serious enough to be reported to University authorities.

DEBATING METHODS TO UNDERGO CHANGE

Only Mover of Motion and Honorary Visitors to Appear on Hart House "Paper"

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 8th

Interesting changes in the methods of debating will be initiated at the next Hart House debate to take place Wednesday, February 8. There will be a change in the form of the "paper," which is now merely a notice of a motion with the name of the mover, Mr. A. K. Kenny. The object is to avoid the misconception which pictures the speakers on the "paper" as two teams contesting, and the speakers from the floor of the House as non-essential frills. The press continually refers to the "debate," meaning the first four speeches, and the "informal discussion which followed."

Members of the House who wish to speak are asked to leave a note addressed to the Speaker at the Warden's office. This does not mean that members who feel inspired in the course of the debate have no chance of catching the Speaker's eye. It is likely, however, to facilitate the task of the Speaker, and particularly to make the distribution of the chances to speak much fairer.

A number of visitors will be present at the debate and will participate in it, among them three undergraduates from the Maritime Provinces: Mr. E. Paul, Acadia University, Mr. E. M. Howse, Dalhousie University, and Mr. H. Fulton, University of New Brunswick. These constitute a debating (Continued on page 4)

RELIGION HAS LOST MUCH OF ITS HOLD

Is Opinion of Principal Hutton in First of Series of S.C.A.
Lectures in Hart House

RELIGIOUS FERVOUR GOING

"The Necessity of Religion" was the subject of the lecture delivered last night in the Lecture Room at Hart House by Principal Maurice Hutton, under the auspices of the Students' Christian Association.

"Has religion lost its meaning for the present generation? Is it no longer opposite to the mood of the day?" asked Principal Hutton pointedly. A modern French author had replied in the negative because "Le question de Dieu manque d'actualité." Indeed, it was the opinion of the learned lecturer that religion had lost much of its grip on the minds of the present generation. Such, too, was the considered decision of a colleague of Principal Hutton's, to whom he had put the same query. The response of another young stockbroker friend to a similar question would seem to bear out this conclusion. When asked if, by sharp practice, he could engineer a coup to net him a fortune, would he do it, he had replied that he would not attempt such a thing. Pressed for his reason, he said simply, "It isn't done—my wife and children would feel the shame in after life." He denied that he had any consciousness of a lingering trace of Christian training. This attitude towards morality in general was typical of the vast majority of people of our day.

Strongest Red Squads
in Years

Special from McGill Daily
Montreal, Feb. 2.—A determined McGill squad will take the ice on Saturday afternoon against University of Toronto at the Varsity Arena in an effort to lift the Intercollegiate hockey title. The championship has not been held by McGill for fourteen years, but with two victories to their credit the Red team need but win Saturday's encounter to definitely bring the coveted trophy to Montreal. With the end of fourteen years' trail almost in sight, one of the most brilliant squads ever to don a red uniform will likely make a superhuman effort to beat the Blue puck-chasers.

Having surmounted their first hurdle in the race for the Intercollegiate championship by disposing of the Western aggregation, last year's champions, in a most decisive manner, the Varsity basketballers are now ready and waiting to take on the Queen's squad. The Kingston team are reputed to be the team to beat for this year's title, and the Queen's Parkers are not underestimating their ability. They are taking their win over Western in a light way and are not expecting to repeat in such a manner with Queen's. Ike Sutton and his stalwarts are always a thorn in the flesh for Varsity teams and manage to play their best game on the Hart House court.

VARSITY STUDENT BODY NOT GOING TO THE DOGS

Is Opinion of Rev. F. J. Moore,
Director of Student Christian Association

The student body at Toronto is not going to the dogs for lack of interest in the religious activities on the campus. Such is the opinion of Rev. F. J. Moore, Director of the Student Christian Association. We need not fear for the majority who are peaceful church-going people. Only a small per cent take an active interest in the affairs of the S.C.A., but large numbers of students attend various churches, and some of the churches have special Bible classes for students.

Mr. Moore stated that the services at Convocation Hall were discontinued for lack of support. Expenses could not be met. He regretted that these services had to be stopped, because they brought such famous men from all over the continent to speak. "As soon as there is any indication of desire among the students to resume these services we shall do so," he stated. "There are so many splendid preachers in Toronto at present that there is quite an attraction for (Continued on page 4)

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Is it Better to Cram for Exams?

Do you think it better to study hard all year or to cram in April for the exams?

L. J. Cote, I Dents: If all are as bright as I, they would start cramming October the 1st. In my experience cramming for examinations is futile.

Paul Kingston, I U.C.: I much prefer to spread out my studying as thinly as possible throughout the year.

T. C. B. de Lorn, 274 Trinity: Neither.

F. J. MacDiarmid, IV U.C.: To work from the beginning of the term and to keep up with the classes has always been in my experience much more beneficial than cramming in April. It also is much easier on the conscience.

Morson Potheringham, I S.P.S.: To work steadily from the beginning is much more beneficial and enables one to meet the exams with a slight brushing up.

A LOSS MEANS ELIMINATION

All paths should lead to the University of Toronto hockey arena to-morrow afternoon. With McGill possessing a strangle-hold on first place in the Intercollegiate hockey race by virtue of a brilliant victory over the Varsity team in Montreal two weeks ago, and with, hence, visions of college championships and Allan Cup elimination series now dancing before the eyes of the Red and White, and with defeat meaning elimination from the college series for Varsity, supporters of the local team should be on hand in large numbers to encourage their favourites along and to aid Captain Kirkpatrick and his men as they endeavour to regain their stride in the race in which the Blue set so successful a pace for some thirteen years. Though with the leaders in the O.H.A., the local team is now fighting for its very existence in the Intercollegiate series, and a victory for McGill to-morrow would not only break Varsity's record for consecutive titles won but also assure the visitors' place in the play-offs for the Dominion championship and the right to represent the Canadian College Union against the United States winner in New York.

Often repeated successes have led students at this university to consider the Intercollegiate hockey championship as something belonging exclusively to them. It has generally been the accepted opinion that the only thing necessary for a team wearing the colours of this university to do, so far as the Intercollegiate was concerned, was to appear on the ice and go through the motions. With the final result of the schedule taken for granted, and, consequently, the competitive spirit lacking, interest waned in the winter series and Blue teams and Red teams and Tricolour teams fought a battle for supremacy almost exclusively their own. Poor support forced Queen's out of the race this year, but the loss of one contestant added to rather than detracted from the enthusiasm of the remaining Intercollegiate players. After carrying Varsity to a tie at the close of the schedule one year ago McGill's ice men were keen for a new Intercollegiate scalp to dangle, and concentrated on the college race so well that they are in undisputed possession of first place to-day. On the other hand, the University of Montreal threw all its energies into the O.A.H.A., where the Frenchmen disposed of McGill and are now in a very good position to win the title. Varsity, honouring the Intercollegiate first, also entered the O.H.A., and now to-morrow will tell how far the local team can hope to go in one of the races.

It has been maintained for some years past that the Intercollegiate was gradually becoming stronger than the O.H.A. and that better hockey was provided in the university loop than in the Ontario Association. If McGill should win on Saturday the fact that both the U. of M. and Varsity are doing so well in their other associations would serve to prove this contention, and the college brand of hockey would no doubt gain tremendously in prestige. But the Blue and White team is far from relinquishing any claims to the college title. The Intercollegiate series appears to the players as peculiarly their own too, and one may be assured that no other victory this season will be so strenuously fought nor so earnestly desired as that of which we have promise to-morrow.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

In connection with the letter from "T. J. M." in the correspondence column of this issue we would wish to point out that our reference to pamphlets in the issue of January 27 was not so much specific as general. It applied equally well to all propaganda of a class, distributed in a certain manner. With reference to our correspondent's letter we would wish to point out that the recommendations listed appear to be due either to some misunderstanding or to partially incorrect information, and also that the recommendations that are listed therein are, unfortunately, not all that Mr. "T. J. M.'s" pamphlet contains. As for these recommendations, we were not aware nor has it been apparent that the general physical education of the high school student was under military control, other than for those electing to take the cadet training; while we have it on the highest authority that school teachers here have not now, or at any time, been obliged to obtain their certificates to teach school children by way of the Department of Militia and Defence. Nor is it strictly correct to suggest that federal funds for education are not administered by the Department of Education.

Art, Music and Drama

The second songster of the term is being held in the Music Room, Hart House, this coming Sunday evening. Professor P. G. Briquet of McMaster has kindly consented to play the 'cello, making it possible to offer the two instrumental numbers in group four. The accompaniments of other selections have been rearranged to take advantage of this welcome addition.

The programme is as follows:

1. O God of earth and altar.
(A modern hymn sung by G. K. Chesterton, set to an old German tune of 1539.)

2. Londonderry Air.
3. Three Scottish Songs with Trio accompaniment Beethoven
(a) Bonny laddie, Highland laddie.
(b) Mary Morison.
(c) Sally in our Alley.
4. (a) Andante from Trio by Mendelssohn.
(b) Allegro appassionnata, Saint Saens
5. The Miller of the Dee.
6. The Golden Vanity.
7. Ye Mariners of England.
8. Twankydllo.
9. Jerusalem.

Correspondence

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

A DEBATABLE QUESTION

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

I wonder if the pamphlet to which you refer in your editorial of the 27th inst. is the same as the one that I received, viz., that of the Educational Committee of the Toronto Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. If so, I scarcely see what ground you have for protest. The pamphlet struck me as a very sane and sober presentation of the case, and I scarcely see how anyone can object to the recommendations, viz.:
1. The effort to have teacher training courses for physical education divorced from all military control in all our large university centres.
2. That federal funds for education, both technical and physical, be given to Departments of Education, and be administered and taught under civilian control. No man or woman should be obliged to obtain a certificate to teach school children by way of the Department of Militia and Defence.
3. That the administration of civilian services be placed under civilian control.

The question of military training in schools and colleges, you must grant, is a debatable one, and might well be the subject of a Hart House debate. If you are "satisfied that many of the figures in the pamphlet are incorrect," I am sure that the Committee would be the first to thank you for any corrections. I happen to know that they made every effort to have their figures and statements absolutely correct.

Sincerely yours,

T.J.M.

O.A.C. Seconds Trim Sr. U.C. in Fast Game on Home Floor

O.A.C. Second team defeated the Senior U.C. basketballers Wednesday on the former's home floor 30-20. The game was fast all the way through, with the Arts men fading badly in the last half. Opening up with a rush, the Aggies assumed an eight point lead, but the Toronto team cut this down and at half time the score was tied 12 all. In the second half the Aggies broke loose and ran up a lead which the U.C. team were unable to overcome in a belated rally.

The feature of the game was the long shooting of Griffiths of the O.A.C. team, as well as the fine combination of the latter's forward line. The Arts team were unable to accustom themselves to the large floor, and showed lack of condition. Bert Dell and Bill Corbett garnered all of the latter's points, the former playing a good game.

Line-up:

Sr. U.C.: Dell (12), Corbett (8), MacConachie, Schofield, Haight, Wishart, Henderson.

Jr. School Come From Behind to Defeat O.C.E. Basketballers

Junior School managed to scrape a win over O.C.E. 25-13 last night. The half-time score of 8-7 gives an indication of the first period play. Up on the injection of Kirk and Mercer in the last five minutes School came from behind a score of 10-13 to win by dropping in six baskets with clock-like precision.

Galloway for O.C.E. made several nice baskets, and the whole team showed great improvement over their last start. Wilson was School's most effective worker, while White was steady throughout. The group now stands:

	Won	Lost
Jr. S.P.S.	2	0
St. Mike's	1	1
O.C.E.	0	2

Wycliffe Hockeyists Defeat Knox College by 2-1 Score

A vastly improved Wycliffe hockey team yesterday confronted Knox in the Interfaculty Hockey League and succeeded in gaining a two to one verdict. Wycliffe had the better of the play in the first and last periods, while Knox kept the Anglicans in their own end of the rink during the middle stanza. There was no score until the third period, when Perkins tallied Wycliffe's first counter from a melee in front of the Knox goal. Withers, the Wycliffe centre, rounded the defence and shot from close in for Wycliffe's second tally. The Presbyterians found the net for their only goal with a shot from the blue line just before the final whistle. However, Knox were unable to equalize, and the game ended 2-1 for Wycliffe.

Knox: Goal, Lindsay; defence, Boyd, Maclean; forwards, Laing, Stewart, Jack; subs, Lowrey, Kowatch.

SWIMMING COMPETITION HAS SEVERAL SURPRISES

Events Have Been Changed to Correspond with Inter-collegiate Distances

A considerable change has taken place in the standing of the swimmers as a result of the second day's events in the Durnan Trophy competition. The two surprises were the showing of L. Boddy against W. R. Thompson in the 100 yards back stroke and W. Bertram against E. Sinclair in the 100 yards breast stroke. In the back stroke Boddy earned full points as a result of his effort, while both Bertram and Sinclair were equally good in the breast stroke. It was a good move on the part of the swimming club to change these events from the 50 yards to the 100, in order to make them the same as the Inter-collegiate distances. Other contestants worthy of honourable mention in the competition are T. Ferris (Vic.), G. Barber (U.C.), C. Russell (Dents) and H. Graham (U.C.), all of whom are comparatively new to University swimming circles. At the present time it is anybody's race. This afternoon at 5.15 o'clock the last two events will be taken—the diving and the 440 yards race.

In the diving event there will be three dives:

1. Plain dive from the low board.
2. Plain dive from the high board.
3. One fancy dive selected from the Intercollegiate table of fancy dives.

when the Frenchmen were given a thorough trouncing in the local Arena. Now the Seniors are right in their stride and willing to take on all-comers. Since playing McGill last, the team has had much strengthening. "Mac" King is again on the line-up, as is Devins. These two, with the rest of the boys, make a well-rounded team and should be able to hold Messrs. St. Germaine, Lovering and company.

"Red" Whitehead is a bit of a puzzle these days, there being no telling whether or not he will play. One day the rumour is spread that Whitehead is out of hockey for the season and the next day the rumour is denied with great emphasis. In the meantime the big defence never misses a practice, and whether he plays or not, he provides the team with a lot of good opposition in practice. The most recent indications point that he will be on the line-up to-morrow afternoon, and if he is, you can count on lots of action.

Captain Herb Kirkpatrick on the defence is the real strength of the team, and the way that big boy breaks up opposing rushes is a treat to watch. It takes a mighty smart wing man to fool him, and those that do manage it have to contend with Murray Snyder in goal. Dr. Joe Sullivan of the Grads set a high standard in goal tending while at the University, but when Snyder stepped into the nets, that same high standard has been retained. Anybody who sees him in action will not hesitate to confirm that statement.

Varsity Coach

Whether it be Carrick or Whitehead who will help out "Kirk" on the defence, great co-operation is assured, and when any of them take the notion to carry the puck up the ice some real action is guaranteed with the opposing goalie and defence being given much to worry about.

We don't envy Coach Pearson's job in choosing the rest of the team. Harley, Richards, King, McMullen, Stewart, Devins ! ! ! Just pick out any three and use the others for subs. That would be about the best way, but each man has his own individual points, such as Devins' wicked shot, King's back checking, and McMullen's all-round hard work. With this array subbing will not weaken the team to any extent, and thus keep the players fresh for the whole sixty minutes of play.

"H. H." Queen's will present practically the same line-up as they had last season, and will be led in their attack by Ike Sutton, one of the most brilliant forward players that ever donned a Queen's uniform. Sutton is perhaps the brainiest man in Intercollegiate basketball, and his generalship of the Tricolour will be a treat to watch. Besides his adaptability for generalship Sutton is a wonderful offensive player, with an almost uncanny knack of dropping baskets from almost any position on the floor. It was Sutton's three long baskets from past centre floor in the dying moments of the game that pulled the Queen's team up to a five-point advantage which they held to win over McGill last Saturday at Kingston when those two teams opened the Intercollegiate season.

Unk Durham on the defence for Queen's is, perhaps, just as well known to basketball fans as his team mate. Durham has a steady influence on the defence that will hold the team together on many tight places. And he in this way has been largely responsible for many of the sensational wins that the Tricolour has gained in the past few years.

Varsity has had a hard week of preparation for the struggle, and the boys in blue are leaving no stone unturned in the efforts to take the game from Queen's. On Monday night, despite the Saturday night game, they were out as usual and were hammering away against the Intermediates. The boys were out for a full hour and a half, and every man on the squad went to the locker room about three pounds lighter than when he went up. On Tuesday back they were in uniform for an hour and a half's shooting practice. On Wednesday night they journeyed to St. Catharines for a mid-week game with the much touted St. Catharines Collegiate Grads, who are reputed to be the strongest Intermediate team in the province and already have taken the scalp of three or four senior teams of no mean repute. Varsity, however, were not ready to break their winning streak of three games and took the Grads into camp by the score of 14-3, holding the old boys to one foul and one field goal on their own court. The small floor hampered to a considerable extent Toronto's offensive work, but their defence was perfect, the one goal scored by the Grads being off a fluke rebound.

Captain Currie and his men are all in fine shape for the fray and are looking forward to what will be the crucial game of the year with keen interest and all kinds of confidence. They are not the least bit over-confident, and realize that they will be up against a different story when they meet the Easterners. Western always get rid of their worst basketball at Toronto, while the Hart House court seems to have the opposite effect on Queen's. Johnston has practically recovered from his injured knee, and it is expected that he will be back on the Senior line-up for Saturday. Coach McCutcheon has not as yet given out the official line-up and will not do so until the

This game means either a tie for the title or it means being put out of the running completely. Therefore if you want to see the University win the Intercollegiate title for fourteen years in a row, get out and cheer them on to victory. McGill is talking of sending down a special train of rooters to support their team, and if they can send down a bunch of rooters, surely Varsity can get together a good bunch of rooters at home. They turned out to see the final game that the Grads played, and why not this one, since it means so much in the race.

Ralph St. Germain, captain and leading spirit of the McGill squad, was suffering from a slight attack of tonsillitis this week, but it is announced the star centre player will take his regular place on Saturday.

The identical squad that reversed Toronto by a four to one score here will line up in the Queen City. Maurice Powers will guard the nets; Paul Smith and George McTeer form the defence, and St. Germain at centre will be flanked by Bill Lovering and Darcy Doherty. Krizwiser, Robertson and Farquharson are set for substitute duty.

The squad will arrive at the Queen City on Friday night in order to obtain a good rest before the crucial match. The squad showed poor form on Monday night in a Q.A.H.A. fixture against Victorias, but consistent practice this week has brought the players up to their early season standard.

U. of Montreal is staging a great race with Victorias for senior group honours. The Frenchmen have declared for the Allan Cup playdown in the Q.A.H.A. so that their best efforts are centered in this league. On Monday evening the last and deciding match between U. of Montreal and Victorias takes place.

The Intermediates will perform in the opener when they stack up against Osgoode Hall in a scheduled Intercollegiate fixture. Little is known about the Lawyers, but they can be depended upon to floor a team that will make things interesting for the Varsity Seconds. The Intermediates are playing a good brand of basketball and are showing lots of fight. They pulled out a nice win over McMaster last week, noosing the Baptists out by five points after being nine points down at half-time.

The usual orchestra music will be furnished for two hours (ten to twelve) after the game. The Gym team have promised a little act for between the games, and all in all with the two games and the music after, it promises to be one of the best evening's entertainment given to undergrads this year.

VARSITY INTERMEDIATES WILL MEET NEWMARKET

Blues Will Present Group Leaders Will Be Opposed by Smart Outfit

To-night's fixture at the Varsity Arena will bring together two of the best teams playing Intermediate hockey in the O.H.A. Varsity, the present group leaders, are the best team that has represented the University in this series for some time, and Newmarket are themselves a smart outfit.

In fact, many are inclined to believe that the boys from North York will just about take Varsity into camp. And they base this on the showing made in Newmarket a couple of weeks ago when Varsity pulled out a victory on soft ice.

One feature of the game that is almost certain to arouse interest is the clash between the Evans brothers, Joe and Charlie. Joe holds down the right wing for Varsity, and Charlie performs at left wing for the Newmarket. In the last game there was keen rivalry between them, and it should be continued to-night.

Coach Jim Robson intends to start the same line-up against Newmarket as took the ice in the Milton game. Little will start in the nets, and Captain Crosby and Graham will form the "Two-Bob" defence that specializes in giving the opposing forwards a shaking up every time they threaten to become dangerous. Doug, McKnight, the star centre man, will be flanked by Evans and Park, and the junior stars, Beal and Smith, who distinguished themselves by scoring a goal each in the Milton game, will do the relief work.

HART HOUSE A MIDWAY

School "Nite" went off with a bang. At eight o'clock the main door opened to a merry crowd. Hart House was a regular Mid-way with its side doors and other attractions all over the place. The Electricals had most of their lab. equipment set up in the west common room: Crooks' tubes, X-ray apparatus, mercury, arc lamps were all in working order. The Mining and Metallurgical Club also staged a clever show in the form of a broadcasting station. The third year Gull Lake men staged "The Discovery of America by Christopher Columbus," in the reading room. The second year gave a good account of themselves in the music room. A large crowd watched a water polo game in the tank. Two suppers were served in the Great Hall to accommodate the large crowd of 1,500. The Chemicals had charge of the bar, where many quenched their thirst.

As an added attraction a gypsy troubadour with his hurdy-gurdy and monkey amused the crowd. His wife was very much in evidence to look after her Romeo and see that he brought home all the collection.

Dancing started at ten and took place in the gymnasium, east common room and great hall.

The patronesses were Mrs. J. H. Parkin, Mrs. R. T. Loudon and Mrs. C. R. Young. The committee in charge were T. B. Smith, M. Smith, H. N. Magnan, L. A. Howard, A. E. S. Bolton, A. B. Hunt, G. R. Connor, W. A. Duncan, C. H. Brooks, G. M. Gray, G. H. McVean and T. W. Wilson.

WITH THE THEATRES

ceedingly well by the play. One is a renewed attack on capital punishment, while the other, and central one, is a pronounced exhibition of filial fidelity on the part of a son for his mother.

In short, the story is this: Nickie Elkins, a young tool of a big bootlegger, kills his "boss" in order to save the reputation of his mother, whom he has never seen. At the trial the only defence he offers is that he killed his late employer "because he was no good." The murderer is just about to be hanged when word is received from the governor's house to stay the execution. The governor, yielding to the pleadings of his wife (who, by the way, happens to be the prisoner's mother) finally grants a pardon.

Richard Barthelmess plays the role of the murderer as no one else could, and Alice Joyce plays the part of the mother. Both display those finer qualities of acting which are required in portraying the most pathetic of roles imaginable.

Jack Arthur's presentations are rather good, though exceedingly short. M.B.

demonstrated the use of an electrical apparatus for the analysis of sound. Mr. Archibald then spoke on "Astronomy up to 1827." He mentioned the advance in the science by the ancients, creation of Julian and Gregorian calendars. He made note of the work of Hipparchus, Ptolemy, Copernicus, Kepler, Newton and others. The improvement of instruments and introduction of the spectroscopic marked the advance in the science in the last 100 years. Owing to illness Miss Woolcombe was unable to give her paper, but it was very well read by Mr. Hockins. Mr. Hockins outlined the work of the Ottawa Observatory. This observatory was founded originally for the determination of accurate latitudes and longitudes for the construction of the transcontinental railway belt. Mr. Millman told of the work of the Victoria Observatory in spectroscopy. He showed several slides of the building and instruments, also some of the spectra and star clusters.

A vote of thanks was moved to the speakers and the meeting adjourned.

Delightful Faculty Tea
Draws Jolly Assemblage

Mrs. A. B. LePan and Miss Laird entertained at a tea Thursday in the Graduate Students' Room of the University Library. Mrs. Moore poured tea, assisted by Mrs. E. D. MacPhee, Mrs. Clawson and Mrs. Howard.

Old acquaintances were renewed and new ones formed among the jolly crowd which assembled there. The majority of these hungry students applying the old saying, "Eat, drink and be merry," remained for the two solid hours, and heartily enjoyed the delicious cakes and steaming tea.

Among the guests were Prof. and Mrs. Duff.

thoughtful students to spend Sunday morning in this way.

He went on to say that it is difficult to estimate the number of men and women who are interested in the S.C.A. as many different people come to special meetings who are not active in the organization. There are about one hundred and fifty to two hundred men at each of the Hart House Thursday meetings, where series of addresses are given during November and February. About four hundred were present at the meetings when Dr. Bruce Curry led a discussion group last fall in Toronto for students.

There has been no attempt to push definite membership. The Association is open to all those interested in religion and religious subjects. These problems were discussed at the Detroit Convention, where students met from all over the continent for this purpose. Each student there had a chance to bring up the difficulties which confronted those who wanted to see active and well supported Christian organizations on their respective campuses.

As for a daily morning chapel service such as exists in the leading universities of the States, this would not be practical on a campus such as Toronto, where most of the students live in the city. Mr. Moore said he had been contemplating such a service, however, which would be held in the Hart House chapel. This is quite a different thing from the chapel services in the American colleges, which are, though not compulsory, widely attended. Recently at Yale there was considerable agitation on this subject with the result that now the attendance is not compulsory. This holds true in the main for most of the big colleges, and if a chapel service were inaugurated at Toronto, attendance would certainly not be obligatory. Inquiry at the different Theological Colleges by "The Varsity" elicited the fact that there are about two hundred and fifty students intending to enter the pulpit.

The time has come to make amends where amends are necessary. Too long have the editors of this column berated that noble self-sacrificing body the University Police Force. It has just been brought to our notice that they saved numerous lives during the recent Medical holocaust by the simple method of allowing no spectator a decent view of the conflagration. There is nothing like public safety, but it takes only one thing to ruin a really good fire, the presence of over-zealous gendarmes. It is rumoured that great disappointment existed in the Force because they were unable to arrest any School men for arson. This is a darn shame, especially in the absence of those comforts offered the public in the form of Clues.

RELIGION HAS LOST
MUCH OF ITS HOLD

at least," said Principal Hutton. "It is intellectually honest; it does not profess more than it believes. Indeed it often professes less." Honesty might be the best policy for the race, but frequently it was not so for the individual; accordingly the great Greek scholar dismissed this doctrine of moral expediency as of no practical value as a guide to conduct. "Neither does Utilitarianism—a higher form of Ledonism—measure up to any accepted standard," continued Principal Hutton, "for what guarantee have we of honour, honesty and decency?" Aristotle was satisfied personally with these things in the abstract, but he was an intellectual, and intellectuals have always been agnostics.

Subject the ordinary man to temptation, and the modern creed of "work-ate" out epicureanism, aestheticism and sentimentalism" would break down. The man in the street needed a "more full-bodied and full-blooded religion." To be sure the fear of Hell might perhaps play a part in the regulation of the behaviour of the conscientious man, but the "Love of God, Goodness and Christ" would have infinitely more weight. Things other than these leave the world cold.

"Religion is not a mathematically demonstrable truth," declared the professor. "Perhaps that is why the graduate of to-day has not the moral stamina, nor the same practical Christianity of forty years ago. He is dubious of a future life, or the authority of Christ over this one. Modern lackadaisical, lacklustre Georgians are not the serious moralists the Victorians were."

Principal Hutton pointed to the growth of Anglo-Catholicism, that is sacramentalism as proof of a certain revival of the religious instinct in mankind. The mystic and the supernatural are regaining their proper place in all modern Christian churches. "Do you think," queried the lecturer rhetorically, "that Christ merely intended the ceremony of the Last Supper to be repeated as a memorial service?" Strip the Redeemer of his divinity, and he presents himself as a hopeless failure, misunderstood, and misunderstanding the purpose and meaning of life.

"Meanwhile," concluded Principal Hutton, "honour, honesty and decency granted as worthy ends in themselves—life is quite unintelligible except as a half-way house, as a precursor of a new life. There is but one religion that can satisfy the best urges of our instincts of the mind—Christianity."

INTELLIGENCE TESTS ARE NATIONAL JOKES IN U.S. COLLEGES

Professor McPhee Explains
Tests in Lecture to R.C.
Institute

CAN GAUGE INTELLIGENCE

Tests Quite Fair to All People Can Be Devised
in Time

"The idea of intelligence is not a creation of the psychologist, but is as old as the race, or, at least, as philosophical speculation," said Professor McPhee in his lecture on "Intelligence Tests and Their Uses," in Convocation Hall on Saturday evening.

The lecturer stated that intelligence might be defined as the ability or capacity to learn, to profit by experience, to deal with new situations and to evaluate the success of efforts. Of the two types of ability, general and special, intelligence tests dealt almost exclusively with the former.

In the history of tests the twenty years succeeding 1890 were characterized by extensive investigations into such simple processes as that of touch. By 1910 American universities began to take such an interest that within the decade testing had become the national fad, almost the national joke. It was carried to such extremes that modern psychologists have laboured long to regain public confidence.

It has been argued that exact measurements cannot be made, that tests fail to tell all people cannot be devised; but by building up hypotheses that were accepted or modified it was possible to arrive at conclusions, that were gradually bringing mental processes under law. It was not a completed structure.

It had been quite conclusively proved that the bright child developed into a bright adult, and that the bright and the average child maintained the same relative positions throughout. The growth of intelligence was fairly regular, development ceasing at different ages for different types of individuals.

REGISTRAR TO KNOW HOW MUCH IS SPENT

Questionnaires Sent to Graduating Class Asking for Information

WHAT DOES VARSITY COST?

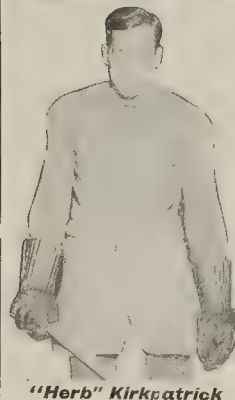

In order to determine to what extent students at the University of Toronto defray their own expenses in getting an education, the Registrar's office has recently sent questionnaires to members of this year's graduating class. The extent and profit of previous summer employment, time spent in work outside of college and other pertinent questions are asked.

The Registrar hopes from the statistics thus obtained to compile information for the benefit of students who plan to enter the University. This will give them knowledge of the expense involved in getting a college education and the ways in which it may be met.

It is probable that many parents would appreciate this check on the vague expense accounts of their children at college. It is hoped that the fear of a low average expense will induce all graduating students to fill in their questionnaires as soon as possible and send them in to the Registrar's office.

In past years the members of the House who bring their own lunch have been forced through circumstances to sit on narrow back-breaking benches and eat in great discomfort. But to the great joy of these members improvements have recently been made in the lunch room, and a few chairs after the cafeteria style have replaced some of the benches. The Hall Committee, under whose jurisdiction the lunch room comes, feels that the improvements that have already been made are justified, and

Almost Saves Game for McGill

A determined McGill hockey team playing a five man defensive game for fifty-five minutes, put up a stubborn opposition Saturday afternoon at the Varsity Arena and forced the Blue and White to the limit to win by a 2-1 score. A tie game would have given the McGill team the Intercollegiate title for the first time in fourteen years, and as Ralph St. Germain, their star centre man, was laid up with tonsillitis, the Red lined up solidly in front of their net and turned in such a defensive game as was never before seen in the Varsity Arena.

Powers in goal for the visitors was a tower of strength and turned away forty-one shots, while all that Murray Snyder was asked to do was handle twenty-one, and most of them from outside the blue line. For such a one-sided game the score was phenomenal, as Varsity only ceased a strenuous offensive game after Captain Kirkpatrick scored the winning goal with four and a half minutes to go.

Doherty put McGill in the lead early in the first period when he half circled Kirkpatrick and shot a hot one past Snyder, neatly cutting the corner of the net. That slim lead was good

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Democracy and the University

Do you consider the University an undemocratic institution?

D. C. MacGregor, IV U.C.: How could we be undemocratic? We are simply a state of intellectual and moral anarchy with an inclination to snobishness.

Miss K. P. Christie, IV Vic.: No. I consider the University democratic in the extreme.

W. G. Gemmer, I Maths. U.C.: No. One cannot think of University government without thinking of democracy. It is apparent in every phase of University life, social, educational and athletic.

J. H. Borland, II S.P.S.: Yes. The powers that be take good care that final decisions do not rest with the student body.

H. R. Coban, II Optometry: No. I consider democracy an outstanding feature of UnUniversity life. One has only to take part, or be interested, in athletics to realize this.

N. L. Smith, I S.P.S.: No. I don't think it is undemocratic. I would think that University government is a fair example of democracy, except in regard to extreme cases.

Miss D. I. Haines, IV U.C.: No. I consider it a very democratic institution. All students have equal opportunities. The only thing which affects a student's chance of gaining any office is his personal worth and ability. Social position has nothing to do with it.

Miss R. E. Howe, III U.C.: Yes, and wisely so, for University students are too interested in their intellectual pursuits to meddle in petty politics.

That a news item, appearing in one of the downtown papers Thursday morning concerning the possibility of inter-planetary navigation, was merely a fantastic dream, was the opinion of both Professors Chant and Burton when interviewed. The article stated in part that, at a luncheon in the Cafe de Paris, French scientists had expressed the belief that in the near future flights to the moon in three and a half hours would be as common as trips from London to Paris. This interplanetary navigation was only held up pending the development of the newly discovered force "interatomic energy." DIVINITY REGISTRATION IN U. OF T. COLLEGES

Many Students Attend City
Churches and Belong to Bible Classes

About one-sixth of the undergraduates of Trinity are registered in the Divinity course, and many of the students enter this course after taking a few years of Arts. Knox and Union Theological College combine to make about one hundred and fifty students, while in Wyckiffe there are some seventy-five men all being students for the ministry. Chapel is a custom observed by all these colleges and is compulsory or practically so.

It is difficult to estimate even in round numbers the proportion of students on the campus who attend the various Bible classes throughout the city, but it is fairly significant that two or three of the churches at least have thirty or more students at meetings.

University professors seem to be unanimous in their approval of vagabonding on the part of the students, that is, the attendance at lectures not prescribed on their courses. "The Varsity" interviewed several professors and found no one who was averse to the practice under ordinary circumstances.

Mr. E. A. Dale, Associate Professor of Latin in U.C., remarked: "It seems quite a reasonable thing for people in search of knowledge to go where they like. I would say there is no danger of its being carried to excess, for the average student has already an overload of lectures."

"If they are interested, why not?" observed Mr. M. W. Wallace, Professor of English in U.C. "Science students have been known to attend English lectures in University College, and I don't see why there should be any objection to it."

Dr. A. D. A. Mason, Professor of Clinical Dentistry, when interviewed, said: "Certainly, why not? I can't see any objection to it, unless they would crowd out the other students. I think it would show added interest. It would be a matter of courtesy to speak to the professor before the lecture."

"I have no objections to it whatever," said Mr. E. A. Allcut, Associate Professor of Mechanical Engineering. "I consider it a very good thing for students of one faculty or department to attend lectures in another. I do not think it unfair to professors or students."

SHAKESPEARE A POET WHO LOVED WORLD

Understanding of Life Makes Him Unique Among English
Poet Dramatists

LIKE CHAUCER AND BURNS

"Shakespeare is inspired to poetry by a passionate interest in life," said Professor Knox in his lecture on Shakespeare on Thursday. In this he differs from Milton, whose chief interest lay in himself. This sublime egotism is the antithesis of Shakespeare's surpassing gift of sympathy and tolerance. For Shakespeare "homo" was a name for every man—and for every woman. The fullest opportunity for such a character is offered not by poetry but by the drama. A temperamental likeness to Shakespeare is found in the Chaucer of "Troilus and Cressida," while his openness of heart is matched by Burns. No one has revealed such an understanding of life—Hamlet, Falstaff, Dame Quickly, Juliet, all different yet all faithfully interpreted.

In the early comedies Shakespeare uses the stock figures of the Elizabethan stage, but even with them he is satirical. In the later plays there is a higher cynicism. Character counts

TIME WILL TELL

Two conflicting views of the religious activities of the undergraduate of to-day were but lately given expression to by men who circulate much among, and who are widely acquainted with, the youth of this university. True, Principal Maurice Hutton was general in his remarks when he stated that one would believe that religion had lost its meaning for the present generation. And also did he speak in wide terms when he suggested that the fear of bringing shame upon one's family rather than any lingering trace of Christian training prevented the average man from embarking upon evil ways. Granting that a fear of Hell might perhaps play a part in the regulation of the behaviour of the conscientious man than the "Love of God, Goodness and Christ," the speaker said, with reference to the student: "Religion is not a mathematically demonstrable truth. Perhaps that is why the graduate of to-day has not the moral stamina, nor the same practical Christianity of forty years ago. He is dubious of a future life, or the authority of Christ over this one. Modern lackadaisical, lacklustre Georgians are not the serious moralists the Victorians were."

Rev. F. J. Moore, director of the Student Christian Association, confines his own opinions to the undergraduate body, and is, on the other hand, cheerful in considering their religious affiliations. While admitting that only a small proportion of the students took an active interest in the affairs of the S.C.A., Mr. Moore was of the opinion that large numbers did attend various churches throughout the city, and that, in fact, the majority of the undergraduates were "peaceful church-going people."

We are inclined to agree with both of the above opinions, which would mean that we rather believe that the average undergraduate tends to rank half-way between the two. Modesty compels us to disclaim the title of a "peaceful church-going people" just as our mind compels us to emphasize that our lives are not more influenced by thoughts of Hell than by the influence of love of God, Goodness and Christ. As a matter of fact, the average undergraduate appears to have taken a short vacation from the teachings of religion,—four, five or six years as his course at the university might be. Lectured throughout the week he claims one day of rest, feeling secure in the ethical training and example of his professors, dons and deans. In matters of Christianity his mind is, admittedly, in a haze, but one must feel that Christ is always in the background and that youth will turn to religion at the time that proper reflection and consideration are permitted or required. The necessity for religious show has passed and youth does not, to-day, find himself an ardent church supporter purely through the dictates of his parents. Religious enthusiasm does not now tend to manifest itself at an early date because of the fact that sect antagonism is not pronounced. We would not have it so. We are pleased to believe that our society of to-day differentiates so strongly between right and wrong that man is able to choose correct pursuits as an obligation to his associates and familiars, rather than by any fear of correction or penalty at any other hands of a greater Power.

The average undergraduate takes a healthy interest in life. He is inquisitive about religion and promises himself the satisfaction of securing of fuller information at a more mature age. One is hardly ready to credit the young people of the Victorian era with more religious scruples than those possessed by the younger generation of to-day. Then, as now, the foundation laid in childhood became fully developed only when the adult sought rest and peace. It is to be regretted that the services in Convocation Hall had to be discontinued through lack of support, but that they had to be is sufficient evidence that the undergraduate is not greatly interested in church services. The student favours those things which he may particularly claim as his own, and, when he fails to support them, it is unlikely that he supports any other of a similar nature with enthusiasm. Yes, the student, the theological or average undergraduate, seems to feel that now is the time for his vacation from all the real obligations of life and makes it so.

Art, Music and Drama

"CYRANO DE BERGERAC"

Edmond Rostand's famous play, "Cyrano de Bergerac," has been chosen by the Trinity College Dramatic Society for its seventh annual production, to be presented in Hart House Theatre on Friday and Saturday, the 10th and 11th of February. Although undoubtedly an ambitious undertaking for an amateur society, it is one which will naturally recommend itself to all those interested in the development of dramatics within the University. Moreover, it is one of the very few times that the play has been presented in Canada.

To most theatre-goers, Rostand's romantic work will need no introduction. It has been understood by some to have been written as a bold assertion of the romantic spirit against the growing tendency of the age to toward a drab and prosaic realism. Certainly there is no more colorful figure in literature than the swashbuckling poet Cyrano, with his ready wit, his love of a fight, and his strange and hopeless devotion for his fair cousin, Roxane. In spite of a strong touch of the fantastic, "Cyrano de Bergerac" always seems capable of arousing genuine interest wherever it is presented. Its first performance by the great Coquelin in Paris was one of the greatest triumphs in the history of the stage, and quite recently it has been successfully revived by the well-known actor, Walter Hampden.

The play is being directed by Mr. Tremaine-Garstang, of Hart House Theatre, and under his able management it is confidently expected that the Society will maintain the high standard of its former productions.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON CONCERT

A welcome departure from the usual series of solos was introduced in the programme of last Friday's recital by the appearance of the Vegara Trio: Miss Bettina Vegara, violinist, Mr. Hans Lincke, cellist, and Miss Lillian Rittenhouse, pianist. The trio contributed two numbers, the remaining four groups consisting of solos by the individual musicians, Mme. Vegara accompanying her daughter and Mr. Lincke.

The first number, Trio in G, by Haydn, was the finest effort of the evening, the violin and cello leading the first two movements, and the piano attaining a brilliant and satisfying climax in the concluding one, the widely known "Gypsy Rondo." The Allegro con brio from the Trio in B flat by Beethoven was well presented, but almost ruined by the audience, who, not content with prolonged and distasteful applause in interludes between movements of the first trio, outdid themselves in gaulcherie by again interrupting, to the artists' amused annoyance, this time in the midst of a movement.

As soloist, Mr. Lincke had the advantage of comparative novelty, his two numbers being very well received, especially the Mazurk Mignonne, Miss Vegara, the brilliant twelve-year old pupil of Luigi Von Kunitz, in her first group attempted two audaciously difficult numbers, replete with harmonics, and more than once paid the penalty for her precocity. Nor was the final number on the programme entirely free from this misfortune, but the young artist more than won back the admiration of her audience by rendering the much more simple Oriental from the Kaleidoscope by Cesar Cui. Miss Lillian Rittenhouse not only gave a fine exhibition of pianistic technique, but managed at the same time to keep so well within her own limitations that they were never once obtrusively apparent.

J.G.C.

"FERRARA"

On Wednesday evening next Mr. B. D. Beamish will present under the auspices of the Players' Guild of University College his original three-act tragedy "Ferrara." Very seldom is a full-length play written by an undergraduate presented by any of the dramatic societies, and the forthcoming one will be something in the way of an event. The scene of Mr. Beamish's play is laid in Italy of the Renaissance period, and he has attempted to present life as it was in those days of splendour, when art, love and war were the pastimes of the great lords of Italy.

The play is based upon Browning's poem "My Last Duchess," and from the character of the Duke of Ferrara as revealed in the poem, the dramatist has built up a plot of intrigue and interest. The play is written in the blank verse of tragic drama, and possesses a good deal of dramatic power as well as the poetry of the lines themselves. Mr. James Knys, who played the part of Will Shakespeare in Clemence Dane's play of the same name, has been given the leading role of the Duke of Ferrara in the play, and he will be supported by Margaret Gordon, Eleanor Norton, Arthur Gilbert, Earl Fauman and N. A. Benson.

This takes the medal for the most gruesome anecdote:

"Hello, in your father still alive?"
 "I hope not; we buried him last week."

C-C

"South of Bloor," N.A.B.—This charming opus has as its motif the futility of struggle against convention. Sometimes known as "North of College"—which amounts to the same thing—it has in its best moments a touch of pathos, and in its worse moments a whole lot of bathos. It has an air of je ne sais quoi, a whiff of Rococo; it has seldom been equalled for sheer poetry of language; its ecstatic romance carries one away irresistibly on the wings of love. And yet—and yet, there is, hidden beneath the surface, a poignant undercurrent that grips one like a steel trap. It is one of the grippingest novels we have ever read.

AN EXPLANATION

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

As I have been given the distinction of mention in your editorial columns, perhaps I may make a short explanation.

The organ in Convocation Hall is a formidable instrument, and cannot be handled without using the numerous electric pistons provided. These were set on Sunday to combinations more appropriate for recital work than for hymns, and to change them is not permissible. To avoid a long delay at the beginning of each hymn I had to set the stops in advance. But the pistons do not work till the power is on. The audibility of the motor's starting near the end of Mr. Yergan's address was, I fancy, even more disconcerting to me than to your very sensitive reporter, but once it has started it does not in any way interfere with hearing or speaking. These facts, together with the slight nervousness which they induced, must be my explanation.

BY SATURDAY'S WIN, VARSITY TIED MCGILL IN HOCKEY RACE

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Friday wasn't so good from a Varsity viewpoint, but oh what a Saturday!

Newmarket gave the Intermediates a bit of a jolt, but they are still very much in the running.

As for the Seniors, McGill was on the jolt on Saturday.

We figure that the best kind of a defensive game is an offensive one, but McGill nearly had us converted. They were nearly Captain St. Germain, and calculated that a solid defence might give a tie score. A tie score here and a win against U. of M. would mean the title. As it is now should both McGill and Toronto beat the Frenchmen, a play-off would be necessary. All we are hoping is for the Blue to come through with a win on Thursday next.

It sure was great to see the crowd out on Saturday for a change. The players can do better work then, and, besides, those who saw the game can have no kick coming. How about a little missionary work now?

Whitehead certainly announced his return to line-up in a very effective manner. When he gets a little more accuracy in his shots we will pity the opposing goalie. Powers stopped one that nearly took his hand off on Saturday and readily ducked any that looked the least bit high.

Carrick turned in a good game in relief work for Kirkpatrick and Whitehead. Not many got past the big boy, and he enabled both "Kirk" and "Red" to get some much needed rest.

The basketball game was just as glorious a victory. Western defeated Queen's on Friday by 27-24, and the Tricolour was out to come through with a win on Saturday. Captain Currie had a word or two to say about that, and though the scoring was very close for the first half of the game, the McCutcheonites gradually forged ahead. A bit of subbing would not have hurt the visitors' chances much.

and we really do think that "Ike" Sutton wasted a lot of valuable time in holding the ball so much. Of course he was playing, and not us.

"Mo" Mitchell is one sweet little player. He wasn't the least bit selfish, and combined with Faber and Newman in some mighty pretty scoring. Johnston was back in the game again for a while and gave a good account of himself. He will be missed on the Intermediate squad, though the Seconds had little difficulty in administering a sound defeat to the Osgoode Hall hopes.

To-morrow night in the big gym the preliminaries of the Senior Intercollegiate Assault-at-arms will be run off, with the finals scheduled for the following night. The annual assault is always productive of real good bouts, and the winners represent the University in the Intercollegiate meet, which is scheduled for February 17 and 18 in Toronto this year.

O.A.C. has been the most consistent winner of the Intercollegiate Assault in recent years, and it is up to the Toronto faculties to see that the Davidson Cup remains in Toronto for a change.

As is announced elsewhere in this issue, the entry lists close to-night at five o'clock, so those who intend to compete had better sign up right away and get medical examination.

FIRST AND SECOND TEAM EACH WINS BASKETBALL GAME

Seniors Beat Queen's 36-25 and Now Lead League

"MO" MITCHELL STARS

Intermediates Defeat Osgoode to the Tune of 50-17

Both the Varsity Senior and Intermediate Intercollegiate basketball teams emerged victorious from Saturday night's double-header in Hart House gym, winning from Queen's University and Osgoode respectively. The defeat of the Tricolour marks their second in as many days, as the University of Western Ontario nosed out the Presbyterian sextet in London by the score of 27 to 24. The victory for Varsity places them at the top of the heap, with a good chance of regaining the championship lost to Western last year. Since Queen's rallied to nose out McGill in Kingston last Saturday, it appears at present as though the final show down will be between Varsity and the champions. However, McGill may be looked upon to provide some stiff opposition before the curtain is rung off on the present season. Coach McCutcheon's Intermediates also earned for themselves the league leadership when they decisively swamped Osgoode 50 to 17. However, O.A.C. are boasting of the strongest intermediate team in years and have ample grounds to back up the statement by their defeat of both Queen's University and the University of Western Ontario senior teams on their own floor, and consequently are looked upon as serious contenders for the title.

The Blue and White senior team easily deserved their 36 to 25 verdict over Queen's by virtue of their splendid exhibition of team play and field generalship. It was not until the second half, thought, when the locals began to set their fastest pace and gradually forge ahead of the visiting Tricolour team. At the commencement of the game Varsity assumed the lead, two field goals coming after Mitchell had broken the ice by sinking a foul shot. Queen's came right back, however, and tied the score, and for one brief interval led the Blue sextet by a single point. Varsity soon tied the score again, however, and at half time were leading 13 to 11. In the second half Queen's held on for the first five minutes, but after that there was no holding of the Varsity team, and they outscored their rivals two to one, to finish on the big end of a 36-25 score.

"Mo" Mitchell proved to be the high scorer of the Varsity outfit, counting in all ten points, but to attempt to pick an individual star would be unfair, as the whole team worked together exceptionally well with excellent results. Currie and Sakler on the defence were almost unbeatable, forcing Queen's to do considerable shooting from outside the defence area. The latter, however, was relieved by Hurwitz for a considerable portion of the game, and he gave a splendid account of himself by working in well with the rest of the team. Johnston, who subbed for Newman at centre, also worked in well, and in spite of a very troublesome knee counted two baskets. "Jumbo" Burns, a recruit from the Intermediate ranks, was used as a substitute for Faber and Mitchell on the forward line. On the contrary, the Queen's team played the whole forty minutes without relief, and toward the end of the game quite visibly showed the effects of their hard efforts. Ike Sutton, on the forward line, was undoubtedly the most consistent man on the visiting line-up, although at frequent intervals the fans were a trifle riled by his persistency in holding the ball.

In the Intermediate game Varsity assumed a commanding lead in the first half when they ran in twenty-seven points to the Lawyers' five. Most of these, however, were the result of foul shots, and two Osgoode

NEWMARKET DEFEATS VARSITY SECONDS 4-1

In Slow Game, Little Alone Does Effective Work for Students

STILL LEAD GROUP

Newmarket Intermediates decisively defeated the Varsity II on Friday evening by a score of 4-1. The red shirts are a speedy aggregation, and they took ample vengeance for the defeat they recently suffered from Varsity up in Newmarket. The Blue team certainly had an off night. They could not get going at all, and except for a brief period in the last stanza their passes were being steadily intercepted at crucial moments. Little's exhibition in goal was the only consolation for the defeat. All through the game Varsity's custodian repeatedly stopped sure goals, and had it not been for his sterling performance the score would have been much larger.

Varsity scored first in the opening frame when Evans tallied through the blue line after a lone rush from the opposing forwards. A few moments later Townsley rushed through to even the count when Crosbie was off for spilling Thom. Newmarket took the lead early in the second period when Belfry scored on a pass from Townsley, and two minutes later Armstrong added another on a solo effort.

In the last period Varsity improved somewhat, though they were outscored. Five minutes after the bell Belfry netted the puck, and for the rest of the game Varsity played one man defence; but though they worked right in on the Newmarket goal several times, they could not smash the rubber past Corbett.

Newmarket: Goal, Corbett; defence, Armstrong and Thom; centre, Townsley; wings, Turan and Belfry; subs, Evans and Epworth.

Varsity: Goal, Little; defence, Crosbie and Graham; centre, McKnight; wings, Evans and Park; subs, Beal and Smith.

men were banished for four personals in this half. Putnam replaced Johnston at centre, and Dunn played in Burns' position at left forward, since these two men had been moved up to the senior team.

Queen's (25): Sutton (10), Mulligan (7), forwards; Dickey (3), centre; Mainguy, Durham (5), defence; Fenwick, Carter, Warren, McLaughlin, subs.

Varsity (36): Mitchell (10), Faber (7), forwards; Newman (3), centre; Sakler (2), Currie (6), defence; Hurwitz (4), Johnston (4), Burns, subs.

Osgoode (17): Duddman, Hall, forwards; Clement, centre; Paplax, Stevenson, defence; Millman, Marborn, Hungerford, subs.

Varsity Intermediates (50): Stevenson, Dunn, forwards; Putnam, centre; Belachey, Woods, defence; Martin, Fox, Beube, subs.

INTERFACULTY SPORTS

L. Boddy, II Year U.C., Wins Individual Swimming Trophy

The individual swimming championship for 1928 goes to L. Boddy, II year U.C. Goss was unable to compete in all the events, as he is taking part in the Canadian Olympic trials just now.

The leading swimmers for this year are all new men, with the exception of Ross Thomson and Eddie Sinclair, Intercollegiate swimmers. The first six in the Durnan Cup meet were as follows:

1. L. Boddy, U.C. 4769
2. E. Sinclair, Dents 4152
3. W. Bertram, U.C. 4090
4. R. Thompson, U.C. 4012
5. H. Scott, U.C. 3670
6. H. Graham, U.C. 3259

The times in the various events with one or two exceptions were very slow. Bertram showed up well in the 100 yards breast stroke, negotiating the distance in 1 min. 15 secs.

Boddy swam the 440 yards free style, a new Intercollegiate event, in a little over 5 min., and the 100 yards back stroke in 1 min. 13 secs.

None of these times are exceptionally fast, but we expect that these new swimmers will be considerably improved before the Intercollegiate meet. A few of last year's team, namely, Johnny Goss, Leo Latchford, and Jack Gundy, will be in evidence again this year.

Victoria Overcomes O.C.E. in Women's Hockey

In spite of the loss of Norma Bateman and Helen Hilliard, now playing Intercollegiate, Victoria succeeded in defeating O.C.E. in a 7-1 game on Friday at Victoria College rink. This makes them first in their series with two victories to their credit, and one default from St. Mike's.

Eleanor Stevens for O.C.E. made several good shots and succeeded in breaking through once for a goal. But the Vic. combination was too much for the O.C.E. ladies. Marmy Reider bulged the net with several good shots. Kay West broke through once for a goal too.

Victoria: Forwards, J. Bateman, K. West, M. Reider; defence, M. Jerrit, H. Richardson; goal, E. Craw; subs, E. McCubbin, A. Wingfield.

O.C.E.: Forwards, E. Stevens, A. Hudson, A. Parker; defence, K. Woods, N. Mason; goal, E. Graham; sub, A. Steward.

Jr. Meds Sextet Ties with Jr. S.P.S. Team

Jr. Meds and Jr. S.P.S. played a 2-2 tie on Friday. The game was fast throughout and rugged checking prevailed. Time and again Meds pierced the S.P.S. defence to be out-gamed by Mooser, S.P.S. goalie, who put up a stellar performance.

S.P.S.: Mooser, Ross, Higgins, Grovener, Haggart, Reed, Campbell, Davidson.

Meds: Bennett, Williams, Allan, Segate, Ruth, Baillie, Cock, Layton.

Geo. Smith Pitches Sr. School to 10-0 Victory Over Sr. U.C.

Playing errorless ball behind the sparkling pitching of Geo. Smith, Senior School won their third straight game of the season by defeating Senior U.C. to the tune of 10-0. School played a good defensive game, only one U.C. player reaching third. For the losers, Graham pitched a steady game, but his support was rather weak at times.

Senior School: Granton, Smith, Caldwell, Mangan, Max Smith, Galimberti, MacDonald, Flintoff and Duncan.

Senior U.C.: Corbett, Pointz, Walkinshaw, Mabey, Maconachu, Bird, Mueller and Graham.

Knox Conquers Union Theology By 4-1 in Fast Hockey Game

On soft ice Knox defeated Union Theological 4-1 in a game that was fast for the circumstances. A goal by Davidson put Knox in the lead in the first period. Just at the bell Union tied it up from a scramble in front of the nets. Davidson took another in the second period. Good work by Cox in goal prevented any more scoring. A Union threat failed when Barclay went to his knees to save. The third goal came on a combination, Laing to Lindsay. The third period slowed down as the heavy ice told on the players. Just before the finish Jack raced through the Union team for the last counter. Referee Grey handled the game in excellent fashion.

In view of this more improvements are being planned. It is the aim of the committee to make the room as attractive as possible for the use of the House members. In making improvements the committee is seriously handicapped by lack of space, and so to provide accommodation for any great number is practically impossible. However, plans are being made to improve the lighting conditions and the appearance of the floor and walls in the room. More comfortable lunch chairs are to be placed in the room, and by next year the committee hopes to have a lunch room that it will be proud of.

As for the actual number that eat their mid-day repast in the lunch room, it is certainly large enough to justify any improvements.

On an average 100 men or even more bring their lunch daily, buying milk or soft drinks and cakes in the Tuck Shop to supplement their homemade lunch. The majority of these men live in the city or in its suburbs, and go back and forth to their homes daily. At noon yesterday "The Varsity" found quite a comfortable number collected there, but at one o'clock the lunch room was crowded, and it was estimated that there were 60 men there.

A number of medical students from Queen's University are now visiting McGill University on a field trip.

these torn apart they could generate force. "But it's a double 'if' with a capital 'I,'" he said. "And even if they could utilize this force it has nothing whatever to do with flying to the moon," he concluded.

VARSITY FIRSTS TIE FOR LEAGUE LEAD

until Whitehead sizzled one past Powers in the second period on a lone rush up the ice. "Red" has a wicked shot, and all but drove goalie and puck into the net whenever he came up the ice.

Kirkpatrick played a wonderful game throughout, and had it not been for the wonder work of Powers, he would have tallied several times. As it was, "Herb" became the hero of the day when he took the puck from McMullen, circled the net and won the game.

This win ties up the Intercollegiate race, and should either team lose to University of Montreal, the other team will get the title, that is if the Frenchmen don't win both their games, and then a three-cornered tie would be the result.

Throughout the whole of the first period the visitors seldom sent anybody past their blue line, although the lone rushes of McTeer provided plenty of worry for Kirkpatrick and Whitehead. The whole Varsity forward line made repeated combined attacks, but the packed defence proved too great an obstacle, and what they didn't spoil, Powers did. Harley, Richards and McMullen worked like fiends, but to no avail, and when they tired, King and Stewart relieved them. "Mac" featured by his consistent back-checking, and Stewart, a freshman and a comer, made repeated sallies which met with the favour of the fans and he received a great hand at each appearance.

Early in the second period McMullen and Kirkpatrick made two good attacks which Powers handled. After Whitehead scored his goal, the Red and White opened up ever so slightly, and the play speeded up despite the fact that checking was close and heavy. Richards circled the net for a nice try, but was out of luck, as were McMullen and Stewart when they swooped down to test Powers again. Kirkpatrick stuck-handled his way through the whole visiting team but met with a determined goalie.

Harley started the third period by a brilliant effort which went to waste as Lovering tripped him. It saved a goal but drew a penalty. Kirkpatrick likewise saved a goal when Lovering broke through shortly after. Later still, "Kirk" was tripped as McTeer in saving a sure goal drew a rest.

The crowd cheered and then groaned as Harley scored a neat goal which the referee disallowed because a Varsity man was forced ahead of the play by the McGill defence. McMullen and Kirkpatrick revived the Blue rooters when they combined for the final goal of the game. The gong sounded as Kirkpatrick was making a final trip up the ice.

SHAKESPEARE A POET WHO LOVED THE WORLD

for little in these early plays, but there are signs of the vitalizing touch, with which Shakespeare brings to life the most conventional figures. A sudden illuminating remark or little scene rounds out his characters; for instance the little scene between Hotspur and his wife, and the scene where Falstaff's companions are discussing his death.

In the later comedies, Shakespeare uses the formula of a thread of seriousness and almost tragic interest running through the lightness of the action. An obvious shifting from romantic love tales to more ordinary but more human incidents is noticeable in the later plays, from "Two Gentlemen of Verona" to "Twelfth Night."

Shakespeare's peculiar gift is that he appreciates not only the subtleties but the forces of states of soul. No special device or feature stamps his style. He can reach the pinnacle of the sublime with the simplest words. While there is no direct judgment of life, no clear philosophy, there is infinite tolerance and understanding of humanity.

SPEED SKATERS AT WINTER CARNIVAL

Rowing Club Complete Plans for Carnival on Wednesday, February 8

FANCY SKATING

Plans for the Rowing Club's Carnival at the Stadium on Wednesday, Feb. 8, have reached completion, and with skating for all and with the interesting features on the programme the paths of all skaters lead to the Carnival for a jolly time.

Among the speed skating events is a students' open race, for which a cup will be presented. The course will be two laps around the rink. This is an opportunity for the University speed merchants to show their wares, and a large field of entrants is looked for in this race.

The speed skating number will be opened by this race at 7.30 and will be followed by the men's pursuit race and the ladies' race of one lap. In the latter event, Leila Brooks Potter and Margaret McBride are expected to be among the list of contestants, and these two flashes should make the race full of interest and excitement.

Following the races the band will play for the skaters, and fancy skating exhibitions will be given by members of the Toronto Skating Club in the roped off enclosure before the grand stand. The figure skating and waltzing of these skaters is a delight to watch, for they are masters of grace and precision in the execution of their movements.

Among other novelty numbers are included a "moon band," a "lantern band" and a "leap year band." These special numbers have been planned and worked on to lend a colorful gala note to the skating and provide fun and amusement for all present.

GRADS PLAY HOCKEY MID NEW CONDITIONS

was scored, while between bursts of applause they observed a polite silence. They arena was so hot that the players tired easily, and so blue with smoke that the goalkeepers could not see the puck.

Delahay of the Bleus was the leading goal-getter with five to his credit, while R. Plaxton and Trotter of the regulars each accounted for four. The game was not particularly fast, but was by far the speediest that most of the spectators had ever seen. There were a few Canadians present, as evidenced by one enthusiastic shout, "Atta boy, Varsity! It's five years since I saw Yonge Street!"

After the game the teams were presented with flowers, which they later placed on the grave of the Unknown Soldier. Yesterday the team played at St. Moritz, where they will also play the Olympic contests.

LADIES SHOW POWER TO BEAT QUEEN'S

The third period opened with a tie score, Helen Hilliard scoring one goal and Norma Bateman two for the winners made the game sure by a three goal lead.

The Tricolour centre, Erma Beach, was best for the losers. She made some splendid shots, and it was a miracle she did not score. Mary Rowland and Tok Whattam were also good on the Queen's defence line. All their players were very fast skaters, but their combination was not a feature of the game.

The Varsity forward line showed some neat passes. In the rushes up the ice Norma Bateman played many brilliant passes. Helen Hilliard on the forward line played a stellar game. Jessie Mooney, Captain of the Blue team, and Eve Powell worked in beautifully together, playing a fast and tricky defence game. Jessie made several nice shots but did not score. Pat Tilston, goalie, was a real star.

And what is worse than those?

I'll be with you forever blue,
And ne'er again be glad.
You've struck me sore, and evermore
From now on I'll be sad.

With heart that's dark, I've heard each mark
Read by each angered Prof.
And I'd be dead if what they said
Could help to "bump me off."

But do I need to really heed
What these professors say?
I'll say I do! And you do too,
If we're to pass in May.

As far as the "disgust if not indignation" of your reporter is concerned, I can only express my regrets that I should have inadvertently caused such emotions. As far as the "utter discourtesy" to Mr. Yergan is the complaint, I will just say that he is a personal friend of four years' standing, and that I hastened to apologize to him. I hope that this meets the case.

As the subject has now been raised, may I mention something which I imagine Mr. Yergan would resent even more than my turning on the motor? This was the loud talking and laughter indulged in by the representatives of the press during the hymns at the morning service. I do not, of course, know who they were, but it was hardly in the best of taste.

Yours, etc.,

gations. In about ninety per cent of the cases it was possible to predict the relative intelligence several years ahead.

Intelligence tests were of practical value in educational fields. In admitting children to school a young child with a high I.Q. stood a much better chance of being promoted than an older child with a lower I.Q. In large schools they were the means of classifying students as A or B, in admitting children to special classes and allowing them to skip others.

In industry tests were of little value for these special ability was what counted. In the delinquency counts they were being used extensively both to explain the trend of circumstances that lead to the delinquency and to reveal the likelihood of readjustment.

People did not mind admitting themselves that possibly they were not as clever as their neighbours, but feared to place a weapon in the hands of another, a weapon by which their intelligence could be accurately gauged.

his opinion on the subject, replied: "It depends on the subject, the professor and the student. The professor should be notified beforehand, and if everything is alright, there should be no objection."

"I don't see any objection to it," said Mr. V. J. Harding, Professor of Pathological Chemistry, "unless there was some special arrangement about fees. I have no objection to anyone attending lectures of mine, if he is not breaking any regulation of his own course. Of course, attendance would not be officially recognized, but if the student wishes to attend for his own gratification or instruction, why not?"

SIR BERTRAM WINDLE DELIVERS LECTURE ON INDIA'S MIXED RACES

Has Tribes Representative of Every Human Race
Group

ARYANS CAME FIRST

British East India Company
United Country for First Time

"India is the home of one-fifth of the human race and has tribes representative of every human race group—Australoid, Negroid, Mongoloid and Caucasoid," said Sir Bertram Windle in his lecture on Friday afternoon.

This admixture of sharply differentiated peoples was due in some measure to the geographical configuration of the country. Completely cut off from the world by sea or mountains, the only entrance to India was by a few extremely high passes, the most famous, of course, the Khyber. These passes were held by the ruler of the Punjab, but the moment his government weakened, the passes were open and another foreign invasion swept over India.

The first peoples of importance to come were the Aryans from the Southern Grasslands. They conquered the Punjab and slowly worked southward, intermarrying with the darker hillmen. The Aryans brought the Brahmo religion with them and developed the strict caste system so characteristic now of India. It is curious that the Anglo Indian despises the Aryan just as the Aryan once despised the native Indian.

After this Aryan invasion the passes were opened at intervals varying from a few years to two or three centuries. During this time there were three especially noteworthy invasions. (Continued on page 4)

WOMEN WILL HOLD NEXT DEBATE IN AFTERNOON

The Women's Interfaculty Debate must be made more popular. With this end in view, the next debate is to be held in the afternoon. It is hoped that the hour will prove more convenient for the majority of undergraduates and that the debate itself may seem less formal and less formidable.

The debate will be held at McMaster on February 20th at 4.30 p.m.

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire To Train or Not To Train?

Do you approve of cadet training and why?

J. C. Britton, II Philosophy: Yes. I approve of it as a method of discipline in high schools, but I see no necessity for its continuation in university.

A. H. Tiplin, II Classics: No, I don't approve of it. Although not necessarily preparation for war, it makes the fellows all too ready for it, instead of showing the Christ-like spirit of moderation and forgiveness. It is a man's nature to use a power more readily if he has it.

D. J. Sullivan, II Philosophy: No, no, no. And another thing, it's too much like work. Moreover, I won't do any, so there's no use in arguing much like work. So that's that.

C. F. Farwell, Trinity III: I do. In the present state of society it's not a bad thing to be prepared in case of emergencies.

W. G. Nield, II Victoria: I do personally, but I'm sure I don't know why.

G. Mallon, II Arts: Yes, very much. I take P.T. Edward Fennell, I U.C.: Yes, but not for myself.

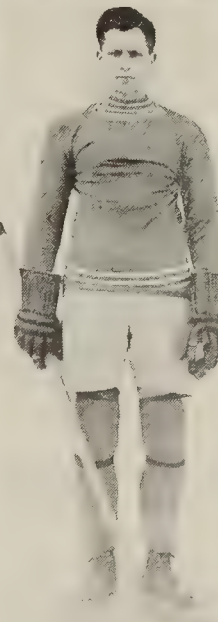

A. J. Elder, C and F. I: No, I don't. I consider it a preparation for war.

H. G. Walton-Ball, Dents, II: I don't think so. Not if we are to have world peace.

J. Sammon, II St. Michael's: I do, because it develops alertness and gives a preparation of service to one's country.

Leo Latchford, III U.C.: It teaches one to think a lot more clearly than other subjects. It's practical and far more interesting than some foreign languages.

Women Orators of U.C. May Compete for Annual Prize

The St. Margaret's Alumnae Association is offering an annual prize to be awarded in open competition to undergraduate women of University College in the forthcoming Women's Oratorical Contest. Free choice of subject matter allows the individual every opportunity for self-expression. The contest, which will be held on February the twenty-ninth at the Union, was primarily organized that all women interested might promote this power.

BANQUET TO-NIGHT IN HONOUR OF U.C. GRADUATING YEAR

Great Hall Requires Powerful Voice Says Principal
Hutton

The banquet to be tendered by the Alumni Association this evening to the graduating year of University College is quite a departure from established custom. It marks the beginning of a tradition that, it is hoped by the Alumni, will become permanent for future years in all faculties. A unique feature of the programme announced is the absence of all speeches.

Commenting on this laconic order of the day, Principal Hutton remarked: "It's a great comfort. They are most probably omitted because it is terribly difficult to speak in the Great Hall at Hart House. It requires a man with a very powerful voice, speaking from the dais, to be heard at the foot of the hall. Altogether it's not unwise. For there's nothing more deadly than speeches you can't hear—except, perhaps, speeches you do hear."

From the Alumni Office it was learned that the idea will not be strictly adhered to. There will be two ten-minute speeches delivered on vocational work, by Major E. P. Brown, former Hon. President of U.C. Literary Society, and Mr. T. A. Russell. (Continued on page 4)

TRIO OF SNEAK THIEVES ARRESTED FOR RIFLING UNIVERSITY CLOAK-ROOMS

Three young men, Walter Weber, Arnold Musselman and Leander Kramer, all 18 years of age, and living on Shuter Street, were picked up by the police over the week-end and given three months for thieving in various places, especially the buildings of the University of Toronto.

Chief D'Arcy of the University Police, when interviewed, stated that they had been on the watch for these men for some time. He said that they had been stealing extensively in University buildings, ranging from Victoria College to the University Schools, including Hart House and the Physics Building.

It is understood that the trio arrested are mainly cloak-room workers, visiting these places when the owners of the coats are absent, and going through the pockets or even lifting the coats themselves. They are alleged to have crashed into certain social events and gone through the cloak-rooms and stolen articles from pockets.

The authorities believe that they will have now put an end to the epidemic of sneak-thieving which has been going on for some time.

When the detectives entered their rooms, they claim to have found a varied assortment of articles, including watches, cameras, feminine jewelry, a dozen fountain pens, bundles of pencils, some purses, and street car tickets.

Annual H. H. Elections Will Be Held March 7

The annual Hart House elections will be held on Wednesday, March 7, it was announced yesterday by the House Committee.

New Room is Opened at H.H. For Those Who Lunch Lightly

Men desiring light luncheons from the Hart House tuck shop need no longer crowd before the counter. The new lunch room is open. It has been furnished with two rows of benches and seats fashioned after cafeteria style. As yet, however, it does not compare favourably with Bowles or the One Minute. The walls and floor just lack a little sheen. The plan of the hall committee to install lights, decorate the walls, and renovate the whole interior is one deserving commendation from the students.

ACCIDENTS VERY RARE

University Police Have Power to Arrest Responsible Parties

Offenders against traffic regulations on the campus are not in danger of being subjected to abusive sarcasm from Magistrate Browne or insulting advice from Magistrate Brunton. The University Police act on the principle that prevention is better than punishment.

The "No Parking" districts are few and well marked. There is usually an officer in the neighbourhood to remind any would-be parker of the prohibited area.

Of course, when traffic is crowded, as on the occasion of a lecture at Convocation Hall, or a social function at Hart House, regulations are changed. In these cases officers are always on hand to direct the traffic.

There was once a speed limit set for the campus—ten miles per hour. This rule was instituted when Toronto's limit was fifteen miles, and thirty miles an hour was considered a reckless, almost unheard-of pace. Now the authorities do not set a definite limit. They demand only that motorists do not endanger the lives and property of themselves or others. The police are very rarely annoyed by students using the campus drives as (Continued on page 4)

Uphold Canadian Universities Carry Sport Life To Excess

ENGAGE WESTERN TO-NIGHT

Will Return To Toronto in Time
For Wednesday's H. H.
Debate

The three debaters from the Maritime Provinces who are to debate in Hart House to-morrow, are leaving this morning for Western University at London. They arrived in Toronto on Saturday, and over the week-end were shown around the University.

They will debate at Western University this evening, and will return to Toronto in time for the Hart House debate to-morrow.

The course of the debaters, Elbert Paul, Ernest Howse and Hazen Fulton, has so far been attended by success, with one exception, when they lost to the University of Montreal. At McGill, however, they won by the decision of both the judges and the audience on the resolution, "Resolved that sport is carried to excess in Canadian university life."

Lovell Carroll, the first speaker for McGill, said that the onus of sport is that over-emphasis is laid on intercollegiate sport, to the neglect of intramural. The average student is cheated of opportunity to participate. There is an excess, he maintained, if there are some few who are over-indulging. In this connection he referred to the 1927 Carnegie Report, the Physical Education Journal and Bernard MacFadden's publications in "La Vie Parisienne." The desire to win, he stated, is the bogey of true amateurism. The admission charge is made as high as the people will pay. In places where the coupon system of compulsory payment is adopted, as at McGill, 90 per cent pay for the indulgence of the few.

He referred to gambling as a great evil which grows out of the expansion of sport to an unwarranted extent. "The alumni," he said, "call it loyalty, and the undergraduates emulate their example. Then the pro bettor steps in and capitalizes this sort of thing."

Elbert Paul of Acadia University said that one must have the facts of all the universities and not cite the example of the few individuals who carry sport in excess in order to prove the proposition. The proposition, he repeated, was universal and not particular. Until his opponents provided (Continued on page 4)

TWENTY "DON'TS" FOR YOUNG LADIES

Long List Compiled by Male Students at University of Cincinnati

AIM AT SELF-DEFENCE

"Young ladies, toe this line!" "You won't listen to your mothers, but you'll have to listen to us, if you expect us to take you around."

Certain men on the University of Cincinnati campus have drawn up a list of "don'ts for girls" as measures of self-defence.

Here they are, all 20 of them: "Don't gush over other girls and kiss them every time you meet that's a man's work."

"Don't look over our shoulder to read our newspaper. Go buy one—they only cost a few cents."

"Don't say you 'just adore' any girl who is your rival. Nobody is deceived by sham sweetness."

"Don't accept an invitation to have a sandwich and then order a whole meal."

"Don't have a nasal voice."

"Don't wear your hat on the back of your head."

"Don't keep us waiting more than a half hour, especially when a to-be-paid-for chariot awaits without."

"Don't be avidly interested in the things you say shock you."

"Don't fix our ties and touch our sleeves while you talk to us."

"On the way to a picture show, don't rave about what a wonderful musical comedy is in town."

"Don't say you are reducing—and then eat everything in sight."

"Don't let your nose shine, and don't powder it in public."

"Don't tell us all about how your grade should have been so and so, but the prof. only gave you so and so."

"Don't ask us whether or not to let your hair grow."

INCREASING MATERIALISM CONSTITUTES A MENACE

Rev. F. Moore Says Calamity is Certain Unless There is a Change

Rev. F. J. Moore, chaplain of Hart House, in an interview yesterday declared that he saw a serious menace in the world's increasing materialism, and stated that another great war would probably take place if idealism did not prevail soon.

"There is no doubt but that we live in a materialistic age, but all idealism has not been lost. Much of it still remains. We find evidences of it in the most unlikely places," he said. "Materialism is not supreme, and I believe that in time there will be a reaction against it."

"But if this reaction is delayed or is a long time in coming, I have no doubt but that we are in for another great smash such as the last war."

"Of course I do not believe with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle that some external deity will jump in to give us a spanking. That is sheer poppycock."

Wet on Campus and Cold Conspire Against Unwary

Yesterday University officials were up in arms. What meant all this unseemly conduct on the campus? But then, what can be expected when Communistic Debaters and Fire Brigades flourish in our midst. Was this a result of the Sunday service at Convocation Hall or merely a demonstration of the rapid motor reactions stimulated by the sight of the organ-grinder's monkey? Actions most peculiar to the campus were strikingly in evidence. One man directly in front of U.C. attempted what approached a handspring; a youth behind the Library thought he was riding an escalator; and a young lady—"these modern women, you know"—preferred a resting place half way across Queen's Park. Authorities became very much alarmed—what HAD caused such antics in sedate university students? Could no one discover the cause? At last the poet came to the rescue: the "Wet Sheet and Flowing Sea" of Saturday had become the "Icy Sheet Capsizing Me."

THOUGHT STILL LEADS TO PROGRESS

Claiming that perhaps never before has there been such a widespread orgy of self-congratulation, all because a scientific age is becoming self-conscious, more satisfied, and consequently less scientific, the Canadian Student, in a recent editorial, professes to believe that original thought is no longer at a premium and fears that as a result of scientific development a long predicted danger has become imminent with the individual being allowed to slowly rust the instrument which has made his civilization what it is,—the art of thinking. In the statement that "For instance, it is being increasingly forced upon us that man is not the rational animal we used to think him to be" there is some measure of truth. And so too in the thought that "Only on a few isolated occasions in the life of the average man does he think strenuously, and on fewer still does he think logically. Man is on the whole a creature of habit and impulse. He thinks when nature forces him to think, when he is forced into a situation so complicated that the ordinary routine of everyday life is insufficient. Spontaneous thought is a delusion." . . . "The danger to-day seems to be that the ordinary situations of life make few demands for strenuous thinking. We are threatened by no famine; we are harassed by no fear; our thrills are artificial, unreal, the puny emotions of domestic cattle."

In other words the Student fears that, satisfied in our achievements, our instruments, our utilities, our existence, we are, one and all, prepared to believe that all which can be done has been done and that all that can be invented has been invented and to go our individual ways in a calm and contented manner. Granted that man is a creature of habit and impulse rather than thought, it must be pointed out that, in his dim way, he realizes that he is not altogether contented,—no matter what his achievements, his past ambitions or the necessities of his life. And so he gropes continually toward something more, and, united in his groping, mankind perfects yet greater and more wonderful things than those which have gone before.

The very fact that "it is being increasingly forced upon us that man is not the rational animal that we used to think him to be" would serve to show that he is more rational than he used to be and that his achievements will be just as great and just as far-reaching as those of a previous age when floods, wars and famines gnawed at men's souls. With some the desire for wealth, never fully appeased, is just as great an urge toward progress as is want, while to others fame waves a glaring beacon. And with many more obligations to society, to family, to country or to science prove most insistent.

In every age there have been and will be leaders in thought and industry, and, while they may be in minority, their numbers are few. To these comes the insistent cry of the needs of all mankind, and to-day and to-morrow may we confidently expect our requirements to be fulfilled. Nor will we progress more at the push of the pessimist.

PATHS AND PATHFINDERS

There is something captivating about a path. A road or a highway is a means of transportation, a distance between two points,—but a path is a pleasure in itself. Nobody ever takes a path's way when in a hurry, or an emergency, because it was first trodden, most probably, by a lover of nature, or a thinker of dreams. It is twisty, windy, unexpected, and romantic. It reflects the mood of those who follow it, and characterises him who walked it first—the pathfinder.

The University has been called a modern mill,—a classified mind factory. We have tangible proof that it is not so—the "so-evidently-crooked" paths in the last week's snow of the front campus. Each one is different, goes off at a new angle, and ends up with a jerk; and when the lecture hour approaches, a stream of students "single files" across in the same crooked way.

There was a young man from Japan
 Whose verses never would scan,
 When asked why it was,
 He replied "It's because

I try to make the last line as long As I possibly can.

"What's become o' yer parrot, Mrs. Hicks?"

"We 'ad to sell 'im—e took to dropping 'is aitches somethin' 'orrible."
 C—C

Owing to our poem not having received the Jardine Prize we have decided to open a list in "The Varsity" office to petition the authorities to make sure that there was no undue favoritism. After readers have read our poem we are convinced that they will agree with our fear of injustice and rush immediately to the office to sign the petition. The poem follows—
 I saw her in the garden
 In a night of early June,
 As I peered from my window
 To admire the rising moon.

Her hair was dark and lustrous,
 Her eyes of shining blue,
 Her feet were small and dainty,
 Unadorned by man-made shoe.

And as I quietly watched her,
 She opened her mouth to sing,
 And soon the very houseposts
 Seemed with her voice to ring.

I gathered up some missiles,
 (A shoe or two to boot)
 And with a deadly certain aim
 I at her head did shoot.

Three boots I found sufficient
 To chase away the brat,
 Since then I've not been bothered
 With the singing of that cat. Pey.

C—C.

After scanning the above with a critical eye, we opine that the judges of the Prize Committee have lost none of their old poetic perception. They even turned down our limerick-sequence as follows:

NOSTALGIA

I
 There once was a maiden we knew
 With rosy eyes and lips of blue,
 Where'er she goes
 Men cry: "Those nose!
 Those locks the hue of glue!"

Oh, she was a blithesome young elf
 With pulchritude gifted and pelf,
 But Fate has bereft us
 For since she has left us
 We spend all our dimes on ourself! N.A.B.

IMMORTALITY

You say I shall not live again?
 Tell me, what should you know of God
 Who will not lay your bitter heart
 In peace against the quiet sod,

And feel all life, pulsing and sweet
 Push up against your finite dust,
 Giving you hope and life and joy
 Freedom from pain and lust,

You said I should not live again?
 I shall believe you when
 I cannot hear the birds in spring
 Nor see the daffodils again. A.F.R.

MAYOR FAVORS CHANGE IN DATE OF ELECTIONS

Mayor McBride stated yesterday that he is in favour of the proposal to change the date of the municipal elections from January 1 to some day in December. The first Monday in December, he said, had been suggested.

Psychologically, perhaps, there is a reason, an intellectual solution of mind over matter, or matter over mind, but we prefer to take it as evidence that the century-old soul of the University still lives on in its children,—the unhurried and researchful soul of the monk, and the ancient philosopher.

AIMS OF TOLERANCE

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
 As I believe we are equally sincere in our desire that the University of Toronto shall maintain her "reputation for excellence in all things," I hope you will not misconstrue this comment on your editorial concerning the Convocation Hall service of Mr. Max Yergan.

I am confident that those who attended Convocation Hall in the morning or in the evening of January 29 were impressed by the beauty and sufficiency of the music. It gave to those services what nothing else could have given, and, as one of the many who enjoyed its loveliness I would express my appreciation and gratitude.

You suggest some discourtesy on the part of the organist—"indignation" and "disgust" were the feelings that you experienced. While making due allowance for a peculiarly sensitive temperament, I think your language is a bit too colorful. Your criticism, however, is unjust. No doubt you are aware that an organist is permitted to start his motor as a speaker approaches the conclusion of his address. That Mr. Yergan was about to conclude when the organist returned to his bench was perfectly obvious, and that he prolonged his address is not the fault of the organist. Neither is he blamable for the rather noisy motor in Convocation Hall. But although the personal feelings of some few may have been disturbed, is it necessary to capitalize this slight annoyance? Have we not been proud of the spirit of tolerance in our University? Is it compatible with that larger view of things to clutch at such a trifle?

Yours sincerely,

Undergrad.

HIPPODROME

A hair-raising button-buster is the official description of "The Wizard" at Shea's Hippodrome this week. Certainly the latter part of the sketch is appropriate. The plot centres about an old, half-mad doctor who has engaged in anthropological research to produce some startling results. He undertakes to secure vengeance on the participants in a murder trial. The daughter of the judge concerned is very attractive, or if she isn't, it's the fan's fault. The newspaper reporter assigned to follow up the sequence of murder falls in love with her. From there you can finish the story for yourself. But we might suggest reading the Comedy of Errors and Tarzan of the Apes before you go, if you decide to. One of the most delightful sections of the picture shows the marathon efforts of a corpulent detective through the streets of a city, chained to his own swivel chair. There is also a full length assault-at-arms between an ape and the news reporter, (Continued on page 3)

PRELIMINARIES OF SENIOR ASSAULT-AT-ARMS TO-NIGHT AT 7.30

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Even with St. Germain's services it is hardly likely that McGill would have defeated Varsity, although their chances would have been considerably. Many called McGill to win because of their early season win at Montreal. They overlooked the fact that the Blue have improved wonderfully, while McGill have remained just about the same. As expected, Varsity's front line was a source of worry all evening to the Red rearguard, and at times appeared to be all over them. In the last period especially Varsity literally skated rings around McGill, and they may thank their stars that Powers in goal was playing one of the best games of his career. Whitehead was a great help on the defence, and here's hoping he will be able to play for the remainder of the season. "Red" is a clever player and seems likely to follow in the footsteps of the other illustrious "Red" of Grad fame. Captain Kirkpatrick was the "village hero," however, scoring what proved to be the winning goal. It must have been pretty sweet for "Kirk" especially to notch that tally. The next game between these two teams will be awaited with almost "football" interest. Last Saturday afternoon's crowd was considerably better than usual, but could be easily improved. Ask any player what a whale of a difference a good crowd and good rooting makes to a team, particularly if they are fighting with their backs to the wall as Varsity were on Saturday.

Well done, Wally Graham!

This evening the preliminaries of the Interfaculty assault will begin in the big gym. The participants in this meet are nearly all of Interfaculty fame. They have had all kinds of experience, and are now awaiting an opportunity to show their class. There are many new boys this year who will appear for the first time in a Varsity assault. Of these, Fell of Appleby and "Hub" Sprott from St. Andrew's are exceptionally clever mitt men, and will take a world of beating. The heavyweight division has caused considerable worry with the withdrawal of Don Carriek, and Harry Hill's ineptitude. Jerry Wood from School and Paul Smiley, ex-St. Andrew's heavyweight champion, appear to be the outstanding candidates. Coach Martin has almost all of last year's wrestling team back, besides a couple of likely looking new comers. And watch out for Dents in this meet, particularly in wrestling. They have innumerable candidates out and should furnish O.A.C. with all kinds of opposition.

JENNINGS CUP HOCKEY

The following Jennings Cup games are scheduled for to-day:

O.C.E. at St. Mike's (S.M.C. rink), at 4 p.m. Referee: Leak.

Wycliffe at Union (Victoria rink), at 5 p.m. Referee: Dewar.

To-morrow's games are:

Forestry vs Pharmacy (U.C.), at 5 p.m. Referee: Abehart.

Sr. U.C. vs St. Dents (I.C.), at 5 p.m. Referee: Barlow.

Vic.—St. Hilda Hockey Game Results in a Scoreless Tie

One of the best hockey games of the season was played at three o'clock Monday afternoon on the east cushion behind Trinity, when Victoria's first team played St. Hilda's. The keen ice and sparkling weather combined with the enthusiasm and spirit of the players to make a fast clean game, but neither side was caught off the defensive for a minute, and the game resulted in a tie with a score of 0-0.

Line-up:
St. Hilda's: Goal, Ursula Foster; centre, Kay Cockburn; defence, Gladys Martin, Fran, Brigstock, Florence Allan; wings, Billy Button, Enid McCall, Joyce Muirhead, Naomi Slater.

Victoria: Goal, F. Crawl; centre, Marnie Rieder; defence, H. Richardson, Myra Jarrett; wings, Kay West, Jean Bateman; subs, Eleanor McCubbin, Ann Wingfield, Emma Wright.

Sr. U.C. Surprise Sr. Meds McDonald and Gale Star

Senior U.C. yesterday won their first game from Senior Meds. In the first period the Meds had the edge of the play and scored the first goal, but U.C. came back in the last two periods, scoring two goals in each. McDonald and Gale starred for U.C. The former ran in two goals by

VICTORIA COLLEGE HOCKEY SEXTET WIN FROM O.A.C. Score of 6-1 Might Have Been Greater But for Work of O.A.C.'s Goalie

In a well played game on Little Vic. rink the Victoria College sextet triumphed over the Aggies by a 6-1 score. The Vic. team early in the game showed the form that won the Jennings Cup for them the two previous years. Lindsay scored within half a minute of the face-off by slapping in his own rebound. Hager's stick-handling featured the game and earned him two goals. Plewman also worked well, scoring twice and giving several passes, one of which resulted in a goal. The prettiest effort of the game was a solo rush by Stanley through the entire visiting team to bulge the net behind the O.A.C. guardian. The remainder of the Vic. team played consistently, and their defensive work was a feature. The star of the visiting team was the goalie, who saved them from a more severe defeat. Their only goal resulted from a momentary carelessness on the part of Vic's goalie.

Hunnisset refereed the game in a very capable manner.

Jr. School Trims Jr. U.C.

Jr. School again took Junior U.C. to task in one of the best interfaculty baseball games of the season, as is shown by the score of 3-0.

clever solo efforts, and the latter played a good offensive game and scored by a strong shot from outside the defence. Both teams showed good spirit. Very few penalties were handed out. U.C.: Goal, Walkinshaw; forwards, Gale, Jackson, McDonald; defence, Reid, Smart; subs, Anderson, Henry.

B. W. AND F. CLUB COMMENCES ANNUAL ASSAULT TO-NIGHT

Wrestlers Must Win To-night and To-morrow to Make Team

BOUTS START AT 7.30

Expect That Olympic Material May Be Unearthed at This Meet

The B. W. and F. Club hold their annual Senior Interfaculty Assault-at-Arms at Hart House Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week. The winners of the various weights and of the fencing matches in this tourney will represent Toronto in the Intercollegiate Assault held here next week.

The wrestling will furnish keen competition this year, and there is a long entry list of first-rate grapplers. Sufficient men have entered from Toronto alone to assure fans of a glorious evening's sport to-night. The entries from O.A.C. had not arrived late last night, but their usual strong representation will be down and will no doubt make Coach Martin's men go the limit to obtain a position on the Intercollegiate team. The Guelph men are not eligible for this team, but a Toronto man must win through both to-night and Wednesday night in order to make his position on the Intercollegiate team unchallengeable.

So far many boxers have failed to hand in their entries. This must be done to-morrow at weighing-in time—any time before 2 p.m. The lightweights with Wolstoff and Sprott, and the middleweights with Jackson as favourite, should furnish torrid encounters. Jackson should win on his showing during the last week, but several formidable boxers are entered against him. There may be surprises sprung in other weights also. A hard hitter has entered each of the lower weights, and the preliminaries to-night should not lack in that sure sign of a well trained mitt artist—clean, hard punches.

Bouts start at 7.30. Judging from the crowds who watch both boxers and wrestlers work each night, a record crowd will be out to watch what looks like one of the club's very best and most interesting tourneys. Men who show up well this week and next have a fair chance for Olympic consideration.

Sr. Vic. Win from Sr. Dents by 29-18 and Cinch Group

Sr. Vic. have cinched their group by virtue of their win over Sr. Dents last evening. In a fast and exciting game Sr. Vic. were victorious by the score of 29-18. The first half was a see-saw battle, ending with the score 0-7 for Vic. In the second half the Scarlet and Gold displayed better combination and increased the lead to 29-18.

King was high scorer for Vic., accounting for 14 points. Johnston played a stellar game at centre. For the Dental team it would be hard to pick out any individual stars, as they all played well.

Line-up:

Sr. Vic.: Daly, r.f.; King, l.f.; Johnston, c.; Ashton, r.g.; Kenny, l.g.; De Roche, Bryden, Stouffer, subs.
Sr. Dents: Roland, r.f.; Merrill, l.f.; Walden, c.; Slemmon, r.g.; Horwitz, l.g.; Powell, Cummings, Buchanan, subs.

ROWING CLUB WILL HOLD SKATING PARTY

Offer Varied and Interesting Programme for Wednesday Night

PRIZES TO BE PRESENTED

The skaters who turn out for the Rowing Club's Winter Carnival at the Stadium on Wednesday night will be rewarded by a programme of unequalled interest; so be there and you will have no regrets and enjoy heaps of fun.

Much work has been done to gather events that will surprise and thrill the spectators and add great sport to the skating to the strains of a fine band.

The three main speed events will be choice numbers to watch. A men's pursuit race—the cream of speed skating events; a women's open race, with a galaxy of stars entered, and preceding these a students' open race for all those speedy students with hopes of carrying off the silver trophy. These are the offerings on the card.

Following these peppy speed numbers, artists of figure skating will perform and compete for a waltzing prize. These skaters will feature fancy skating at its best, which means an exhibition of skill that is a show in itself, as evidenced by the crowds attracted by these members of the Toronto Skating Club at their own carnival night.

At the close of the programme, presentation of the prizes will be made by Mrs. T. R. Loudon, and skating will continue until 11 o'clock, enhanced by gay lights, rollicking tunes and attractive novelties.

of a sort to joy the hearts of the B.W. and F. stalwarts.

In the vaudeville programme the two headline attractions seemed the weakest of the evening. The "Passing Parade" possessed pulchritude, and showed it, but was quite lacking in any unity of motif or interest. Billy Day, the popular vocalist, received quite a public ovation, but displayed an unmistakable propensity for outstaying his prolonged welcome. The first and last numbers, Dippy Diers with Flo Bennet and Lee Marshall's Dancers were really much better done,

Dents defeated Sr. School in a Jennings Cup fixture by the score of 5-2. In the first period School started off with a rush and scored the first goal. Dents evened the score. School came right back and scored again, but Dents evened it up before the period ended. There was no score in the second period, although Dents had the edge and missed many chances. In the final period Dents added three more without School tallying once.

Dents: Hewitt, goal; Walden and Whitaker, defence; Conn and Sheridan, wings; Heron, centre; Mehafy and Armstrong.

vations—that of Alexander the Great in 326 B.C., that of the Persians, who still have a settlement near Bombay, and lastly that of the Mogul Kings.

A descendant of Timur the Lame formed a kingdom north of India, consolidated it during his lifetime, and at seventy years of age entered India, defeated the King of Delhi, and in 1482 founded the Mogul dynasty. His line ruled the greater part of Central and North India for several centuries. They are most famous, perhaps, for the marvelous architecture of their era—the Taj Mahal being an example. One of the family traditions seemingly was that the eldest son should rebel against his father.

This dynasty gradually lost power, and in 1600 the entrance of the British East India company spelt the knell of native hopes for dominion. Since the mutiny India has been united under one Ray for the first time in history. It is significant that the rule is a foreign one and not native. India is a group of peoples rather than a nation.

speedways. Occasionally a reckless driver is cautioned, but one warning is always sufficient.

Of course, all undergraduates are under the jurisdiction of the Students' Administrative Council. A repeated offender may be summoned to appear before that body, and, if necessary, fined.

Chief D'Arcy says that the University motorists are very ready to co-operate with the police, and that he has never had to deal with any serious violation of traffic laws.

The efficiency of the traffic control on the campus is shown by the fact that there has never been a motor accident, excepting an occasional damaged fender or bumper.

In the event of an accident, the University police are authorized to arrest the party or parties responsible, but the prosecution would be conducted in the city courts.

The city police have no jurisdiction on University property unless they are summoned.

A campus dance club to further the interest in dancing at the University of Oklahoma has been organized, the requirements being dancing ability and high scholastic standing.

Do You Know--

That Trinity College was founded in 1851, January 15?

That St. Michael's College was founded in 1852 by the Basilian Fathers?

That there really was no "University of Toronto" until 1853; and that up to this time it was "King's College"; that at the same time Victoria College and Queen's College were "affiliated" institutions?

That the Hon. Edward Blake, who was Chancellor of the University from 1876 to 1900, and established a number of scholarships, graduated in 1854.

That the first buildings for St. Michael's College were begun in 1855, and opened for lectures in 1856?

That the cornerstone of the present University College building was laid in 1858?

That Queen's Park was created in 1859 by a 999 year lease to the City of Toronto, and the University thereby lost a valuable part of its grounds?

MARITIME DEBATERS INCREASE VICTORIES

that whatever evils there are in Canadian sport arise from the excessive use of sport rather than excessive organization, their case was not proved.

He denied that all college athletes are out to win at all costs and affirmed that there was still, at least among the great majority, a true sense of sportsmanship. Sport is a good and necessary thing in that it makes a man adjust himself to situations.

Alex Edmison, of McGill, said that in the west there has only been an Intercollegiate Union for one year and as yet there is no friction, but this, he maintained, is just another case of "It won't be long now." Turning to the Maritime Provinces themselves, he cited several instances of what had happened in Intercollegiate sport there, which seemed to indicate that these differences and animosities were not confined to the McGill-Queen's-Varsity Union.

He criticized sport as conducted nowadays as it sets up a false standard of value. The surest way to popularity in a university is by success, not participation merely in athletics. Students' positions, he said, fall to athletes who are often not best fitted for the jobs. These evils, he maintained, can best be overcome by more general participation in sport. Most undergraduates are in the stands, and coaches are hired to win championships and not to promote the physical welfare of the average undergraduate, he said, and even for these star players there is often little enjoyment.

Hazen Fulton, of Mount Allison University, took up the case for the negative. He stated that he and his colleagues had written to several educational leaders in Canada asking "Does the student who participates in athletics do inferior work to one who does not?" The commonest answer was that there was not much difference noted between the athlete and the non-athlete in the matter of academic work.

Wm. Budden was the third speaker for McGill. If, he said, 90 per cent of Canadian undergraduates do not participate in sport, the other ten per cent must indulge to an excessive extent, and this proved the affirmative case. He maintained that sport should operate in two directions—for character building and for better physical development. Dealing with the spectacular aspect of sport he said that it may become an overwhelming and dangerous spectre, as everything is sacrificed to make a big spectacle, and this is the gauge by which the success of a sport is measured.

E. M. Howse, of Dalhousie University, spoke last for the negative and took exception in several particulars to the interpretation of the subject by the affirmative speakers.

He quoted Herbert Spencer as saying that education was "the complete living," and taking this definition, sport, far from being something aside from the main purpose of education, is an essential part of it and ought to occupy an important place in the life of every student.

"This age," he said, "places undue emphasis on self-expression. Sports show that a man's first duty is self-control." Referring to the specific cases cited by his opponents, he stated that it was the whole that must be considered, not isolated examples.

MEMBERS OF THE BRITISH FAMILY NEED DIPLOMACY

So States Mr. Amery in an Interview with the Ottawa Press

DEFINES "DIPLOMACY"

Most Students Recognize That World-citizenship is Means to Peace

Mr. Amery, interviewing members of the press in Ottawa, said: "By 'diplomacy' is usually meant the functions of an official whose place is to explain away incidents or happenings that might lead to misunderstandings between the peoples concerned. In order to do this he usually divulges just so much of this policy of his own government as will serve his purpose. But the relations within the British family are on an altogether different footing. We tell each other all we can and seek to make it clear that our interests are identical."

University students everywhere are seeking ways to world peace, and they generally discover that the development of a world-citizenship is the best road to such a peace.

But when we have, within our own empire, factions that seem to need "diplomacy" practised on them to preserve empire unity, the idea of world-citizenship seems foolish and ridiculous. How can people who seek to promote dis-union within their own race and kindred begin to grasp the idea of world citizenship?

We earnestly hope that Mr. Amery is right when he says that relations between the members of the British family are too intimate to need "diplomacy." If we can work for an empire, closely united by common bonds, and with a common ideal of peace in view, we have gone the first step in the establishment of world peace."

If we have some broad-mindedness within our own empire, we can begin to unite, in purpose at least, with the other nations and races that live on the earth.

Mr. Amery thinks that broad-mindedness exists now; so do the majority of our Empire statesmen. We accept their opinion as regards the masses, and add our own that the overwhelming majority of Canadian university students are also above empire "diplomacy," and hope that the time will come when "diplomacy" between all great nations and families of nations will be unnecessary. War may be considered a continual menace until then.

PERNICIOUS ANEMIA IS NO LONGER A HOPELESS DISEASE

Discovery of Liver Extract Said to be a Final Cure

RESULTS ARE QUICK

One Exceptional Case Showed Hemoglobin Increase of 68 per Cent

The announcement is made by the Connaught Laboratories that a limited regular distribution of liver extract for the treatment of pernicious anemia is being commenced. The extract is being distributed in the form of a solution for administration by mouth.

Production of this was taken up by most medical research schools of medicine following the discovery of the liver extract by Dr. George R. Minot and Dr. William P. Murphy and E. G. Cohn, chemist, of the Harvard Medical School in 1926 and 1927. In April, 1927, they made the announcement that they had at last found a "cure" for this dread disease which is the affliction of almost as many people as suffer from diabetes.

"Pernicious anemia is no longer the hopeless disease it used to be," was the announcement of the Harvard Medical School experimenters, who said at that time that striking improvement was shown in three weeks after one of their patients had taken the powder.

How the eating of liver changes the condition of pernicious anemia patients was shown to the doctors visiting the Canadian Medical Association meeting by Dr. Duncan Graham in June last year, when he actually produced patients who were making recoveries.

One exceptional case cited by Dr. Graham was that of a man with an overseas record who was only 34 years of age. Most pernicious anemia cases are over 40 when they take the disease. This man, who had entered the hospital in June, 1926, had practically made a recovery to normal in one month. His hemoglobin (red blood cells) count had increased from 42 per cent, to 68 per cent. In the autumn it had advanced to 102, practically normal. The man walked into the clinic showing every sign of vigorous health.

At the University of California there are nine students 15 years of age or younger.

Baldwin House the Lair of the Amateur Financier

"So I said, 'Gimme sixty shares of Doodil Lake at the market,' and he let me have 'em at thirty three and a third per cent margin. Then it went up three points and I sold out, and, boy, I'm sitting pretty!"

Boasts like this are becoming almost common-place among certain financially-minded groups of students on the campus, especially some of those in Commerce and Finance who are brought face to face with the possibilities of speculation. It is a fact that the present craze for trading in stocks, especially mines, is by no means confined to the wise brethren of the "street," but extends to the preacher, the butcher, the garage man and even the university student and his professors.

It is even reported that certain more venturesome professors make a practice of dashing over to the brokers' offices around Bloor and Bay to see how the market is behaving between lectures. The speculation among students, however, is largely confined to the gentry who have friends in brokers' offices, and through whom they are enabled at a moment's notice to get the dope on Kirkland Lake, Bigdoo, Howie, Wright Hargreaves, or any of the highly-touted mines.

Sometimes, however, conversation takes another tone, more plaintive. "Yeah," they wail, "Tehee-Haha struck a fault at the six hundred foot level and lost the darn vein, and first thing you know, blowie! I got sold out and bye-bye went 100 smackers!"

Trinity College Scientists Study Burbank's Works

The work of Luther Burbank was the subject for the eighth regular meeting of the Trinity College Science Club. Mr. J. A. Walters was the essayist for the evening. He reviewed Burbank's life from his early period as a market gardener in the Eastern States until the later period of his life, which he devoted entirely to experimental work in California. Burbank's system of working was one of rapid reproduction, careful breeding and choosing of the resulting specimens. His work was almost entirely experimental, not theoretical. From his experiments he considered that "Hereditry is the sum of all the environments."

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Are Engagements Desirable?

Do you think college students should get engaged?

G. C. Fee, U.C. 3T1: Not until the year before they graduate at least.

J. B. Brown, IV U.C.: Not before their fourth year.

Miss M. H., I St. Mike's: No, as they are too young.

Miss W. M. Hills, Arts III: No, as they are too inexperienced, and college is supposed to be an educational centre, not a matrimonial bureau.

W. G. Enderson, IV U.C.: Yes, to the person who can be of help to them.

F. W. Burton, II U.C.: I think it has a refining effect upon the man.

J. B. Gammell, II Vic.: No. Co-education is close enough as it is right now.

S. H. H. Symons, III U.C.: No. To break an engagement may prove a great disappointment to one of the parties, and as everyone is aware, the affinities of students are quite inconstant.

DR. MERCER LECTURES ON ARCHAEOLOGY

Stresses Romance of Subject at Trinity College Tuesday Night

DESCRIBES ROSETTA STONE

"In the study of Archaeology, there is much that appeals to the imagination," Dr. Mercer said in his address on "The Romance of Archaeology," given in the library of Trinity College on Tuesday evening. "There is equally as much romance in excavations as there is in Robinson Crusoe."

As an example of this romance Dr. Mercer took the Rosetta stone, one of the trophies which fell to Britain in the Napoleonic war. This stone was discovered at the mouth of the Nile by a soldier, fired with a romantic idea. It belonged to one of the most interesting periods of history—the time of Ptolemy, 196 B.C. This stone has served as a key to decipher hieroglyphics, and has opened up the past of Egypt, lengthening its history by 4000 years.

There are cemeteries over the world which contain wonderful pieces of art, but none exceed those of Egypt, the Great Pyramid, built 3800 B.C., built as the abode of one of the greatest of the Pharaohs, by his people who loved their king and wished to think he should live forever in the tomb which they constructed.

At the beginning of the Christian era comes the excavations in these magnificent awe-inspiring buildings. People from all corners of the world were thrilled with romance and ecstasy at the discovery of Tutankamen's tomb.

In Troy there were the excavations of Heinrich Schliemann, who thrilled with the stories of Homer and Troy, amongst prevalent disbelief of such tales, succeeded in proving the existence of Troy by excavations. In addition he satisfied his imagination.

Similarly Sir Arthur Evans excavated in Crete with the gratification of locating the palace of King Minos.

Of recent years the whole civic, social and family life of Rome and Egypt have been reconstructed by the discovery in Egypt of Papyrus, in the form of letters, business and personal.

"To understand the present and prepare for the future, we must know as much as we can about the past," Dr. Mercer concluded. After the lecture interesting slides were shown showing excavations.

Bluenose Men Will Return To Toronto This Afternoon

SPORT IS DISCUSSED

Easterners Have Already Spoken Thrice on This Subject

The Maritime debaters will be back from London this afternoon, according to information received lately, the Students' Administrative Council. Last night they debated against a team representing Western University. This evening they are scheduled to participate in the Hart House debate here.

The team, which represents the universities of the Maritime Provinces, consists of Elbert Paul, Ernest Howse and Hazen Fulton, three accomplished debaters. They are travelling across Canada and visiting the major universities of the Dominion. Thus far they have debated at the University of Montreal and McGill and Western Universities. Immediately after the Hart House debate this evening they will proceed to Regina, and thence on to the coast. Throughout the course of their tour they are upholding the negative of the resolution, "Resolved that sport is carried to excess in Canadian university life."

The debaters arrived in Toronto from McGill on Saturday and have since been quartered at Hart House.

This is the first debating project sponsored by the recently formed National Federation of Canadian University Students, which came into existence last March, following the recommendation of a conference of representatives of the various Canadian universities, held at Montreal, December 27-28-29-30, 1926. This new organization is the representative national body of Canada's 18,000 university students, and includes amongst its affiliated colleges the following: Universities of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Western Ontario, Toronto, McMaster, Queen's, Ontario Agricultural College, McGill, Bishop's University, University of Montreal, Macdonald College, Acadia, New Brunswick, Mount Allison, and Dalhousie.

This debating tour, therefore, has been planned with the object in view of giving the public, students in particular, an opportunity of meeting and hearing real Maritimers. It is hoped by the N.F.C.U.S. next year to send a western team east, while plans for 1928 already make provision for a team from the universities of Central Canada to tour the United States.

The Canadian Federation has also accepted an invitation from the National Union of Students of the Universities and University Colleges of England and Wales to send a team of two from Canada which will meet representatives of the universities of England, Scotland and Wales.

The personnel of the Maritime team, according to the Federation, has been selected with great caution. Each member is said to be not only a polished debater and speaker, but one of the outstanding leaders in student life at the university from which he hails.

Debates have been or will be held at the following points: Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Quebec; University of Montreal, Montreal, Canada; McGill University, Montreal, Canada; University of Toronto, Toronto, Canada; Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario; University of Western Ontario, London, Ontario; University of Manitoba, Winnipeg; University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon; University of Alberta, Edmonton; Calgary, Alberta, Canuck Club; University of British Columbia, Vancouver; Vic-

PROFESSOR McDONALD LEADS DISCUSSION ON MODERN POETRY

Gives Explanation of Poems Written Recently by American Authors

NEW EXPLANATION OF LIFE

Sandberg's Praise of Chicago Characteristic of Recent Productions

Considerable interest was aroused at the meeting of the U.C. Women's Literary Society in the Women's Union last evening when Professor J. F. McDonald discussed "Modern American Poetry."

Among the large number of American poets of to-day the figure of Edwin Arlington Robinson was outstanding. With a wealth of New England culture behind him, Robinson wrote in literary tradition and not in free verse. In 1916 "The Man Against the Sky" was published, which brought Robinson into prominence as the ablest of modern American writers. Professor McDonald described his work as "tense character studies with a primary interest in people who have just failed to be great, through some little defect." Richard Cory was the sketch of a man's hidden life which had a bit of theatricality about it but yet brought home the curious tragedies that lay hidden. No foreign critic has written anything with half the bite that is in "Cassandra." Although the power of this writer was greater than any other American poet of to-day, he was not necessarily the most poetical.

Robert Frost of San Francisco was a more gifted man as a genuine poet. In 1914 the most characteristic book of American verse, "North of Boston," was published. "Two Roads Diverge in a Yellow Wood" illustrated the writer's simplicity of style, in the way in which there was a half-hinted allegory. The most characteristic work of Frost was found in his whimsical "Good-bye to the Orchard," and the tenderness and accuracy of the picture of "Runaway" betokened an intimate knowledge of his country. "The Code Heroics" was the very essence of the country and explained the difficult situation of the city man who was ignorant of the code of the farmer.

UNIVERSITY CLOAKROOMS NOW ALMOST UNMOLESTED

Arrest of Three Sneak Thieves Believed to Ensure Safety

Although the cloakrooms of the University are very easy to get into and the students rather careless of where they deposit their coats when entering a lecture room, there has been no petty thieving going on around the colleges for some time, although some losses were sustained earlier in the term.

University College, the Library, and above all, Hart House, are easily entered; in fact, they are practically open to the public. Tradition has it that the "light fingered fraternity" just go up to Hart House and help themselves to a nice warm overcoat, but the Warden assures us that this is not so, especially since more students are availing themselves of the tuck shop checkroom service.

The University Police have been keeping a very strict vigilance for sneak thieves, and since the arrest over the week-end of three youths who are suspected of some petty thefts in this University, the police expect things to be very quiet indeed.

SENIOR ASSAULT-AT-ARMS BEGINS WITH GREAT INTEREST IN WRESTLING

G. W. Russell Coming

It was learned yesterday that "A. E." (George William Russell), one of the most outstanding poets of modern times, will visit and lecture at the University of Toronto towards the end of February.

"A. E." is making a lecture tour on this side of the water, and special efforts have been made to obtain his presence in Toronto.

PROPOSED SUBJECTS FOR H.H. DEBATES GUARDED BY PORTER

Everything from War Guilt to Civilization Seeks Discussion

POLITICS MOST PROMINENT

Members Must Be Prepared to Sponsor or Oppose Their Brain Children

With the air buzzing with the sound of debates, past, present and future, sometimes it strikes the mind to enquire who are the brilliant ones who think up the subjects to be considered by the more or less grave and reverend collection of their peers, either in gay and superficial banter or in the more serious and ponderous style of Wycliffe.

As to the college debates, the subjects chosen may be the brain-child of some member of the government for the moment in power, but in the case of those held in Hart House, many are selected from the brilliant contributions submitted by members of that institution, which are entered in a book, kept by the Hall Porter and neatly ruled in red ink with a space and number for the resolution and also two little squares in which those who volunteer to uphold either the affirmative or negative side of the proposed discussion, may signify their tenuous by signing their names and faculties or colleges.

In a University such as this one there are many minds and many more weird ideas, and probably nowhere outside of Rotary clubs are there more possibilities for their expression than in this modest little ledger in Hart House.

There are many "views with alarms" concerning matters of birth control, religion, politics, sociology and heaven (Continued from page 1)

Smallpox Outbreak at Knox College Centre House Temporarily Quarantined

Smallpox has once more appeared among students of the University of Toronto.

According to information received last night a Theological student residing in Centre House, Knox College, was found to have been attacked by smallpox.

The man afflicted, C. G. Webster, a first year Theological student, was removed yesterday afternoon to the Isolation Hospital.

All those resident in Knox College were quarantined until ten o'clock this morning, when Dr. Jackson, Assistant Medical Officer of Health, will be on hand to look into the situation. It is probable that all resident in Knox not already vaccinated

Agriculturalists Secure Lead Over Dental College of One Point

FAST BOXING BOUTS

Great Enthusiasm Aroused in Crowd of Spectators by Spirited Contests

The annual Senior Assault-at-Arms got away to a whirlwind start last night with a total of twenty fixtures. The wrestling element was in the great majority, there being but two boxing bouts on the programme. This is in sharp contrast to other years, when boxers far outnumbered the wrestlers. The small crowd that turned out seemed mightily pleased with the evening's entertainment, and left with appetites whetted for the finals to-night.

The Ontario Agricultural College, faithful to tradition, again carried the day, piling up a total of 12 points. However, Dents were close seconds with 11 points. Should the University's men come up to expectations, O.A.C. will have a real race for the Davis Cup this year. School was third with 4 points to its credit.

Jenner, Victoria, in the 125 lbs. wrestling, uncorked some flashlight work in his second bout, with Holden of Dents. His first fall came in 58 seconds, and a minute and a quarter later he cinched the bout with a second. In the afternoon he defeated Lapointe of O.A.C. with a fall before half time.

In the 134 lb. division Grant of Dents won decisively over the tricky and powerful Jamieson of O.A.C. Grant wrestled a careful bout throughout and was consistent in holding the offensive once having got the upper hand.

Among the heavyweights, Becking of U.C. and Webster of O.A.C. wrestled a strenuous if novel bout. On occasions, with ropes bulging and a hot pursuit in course, the spectators were a bit puzzled as to what category the bout should belong. Becking won a close decision on time.

Both boxing fixtures were fast and furious. MacDonald and Brownlee in the 125 lb. class boxed as red-blooded (Continued on page 3)

Debate To-night

The debate to-night, at which representatives from universities of the Maritime Provinces will take part, commences sharp at 8 o'clock in the Lecture Room of Hart House. Mr. M. K. Kenny of Victoria College will move, "That in the opinion of this House, sport is carried to excess in Canadian university life." Principal W. L. Guant will also be present and will take part in the debate.

DOUBLE DATES

In any institution of size there is bound to be some disharmony of activities and interlacing of events. The most primitive society, even, must sometimes have confounded "club" nights with cave "at-homes," and as the University is perhaps never free of a "happening," the student must be constantly using his discretion and power of elimination. Unconsciously, perhaps, each one constructs his own slide-rule. College may take precedence, and University follow after, or sport may always come first, and social events be relegated to the background.

As with other instruments of rule and measure, however, it might be well to establish a standard. Several instances have come to our notice in the last few days of class and college social events being held on the evening of an intercollegiate sporting event. These parties, we realize, have usually been planned and sanctioned a month or so beforehand, and free week-ends are scarce. In many cases, however, changes are possible, and would greatly add to the harmony of the whole. When those interested are spending countless hours and energy selling tickets, it is discouraging, to say the least, to find a whole class or society eliminated at one fell swoop. It is easy to make a mistake even when special days are set aside.

In the fall a convention date was being arranged for, the calendar was consulted for rugby games, possible conflicting days eliminated, an evening chosen, literature sent out, and the event occurred on the night of the Hart House Masquerade.

The future, with the University yet expanding and growing more complicated, may call for the installation of a "date secretary" for the purpose of registering and filing all events. At the present time we can but ask for consideration, and if the evenings cannot be changed, perhaps a shifting of hours would show closer co-operation and support.

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S VIEWS ON DEBATES

To-night the second International Debate of the year will take place. If it is anything like former debates, approximately two per cent. of the student body will be present. Some of these will be there because of their real interest in debating; others merely because of a sense of duty. These conditions have prevailed in college debating for the last four or five years.

At the outset let it be clearly understood that we are casting no reflections upon the debates' manager or the debaters. They have made the best of a difficult situation, and they perceive the need for some reformation just as we do. We think that in view of the labour that is expended both by the debaters and the manager better results ought to be forthcoming.

It is obvious that there is something wrong with the system. Is it a system which gives most benefit to and yields most interest to students? We can say with the authority of experience that it does not.

Under the present system debaters are chosen by means of a three or five-minute try-out speech. That is, they are judged principally on their delivery and only secondarily on their ability to reason and argue.

The debaters so chosen enter two weeks of hard training, preparing every possible argument. During this period they have no practice whatever; they meet no other team; in a word, have no actual experience in debating their subject.

This is certainly not a system calculated to produce the best results. The participants obtain no practice whatever in impromptu debating, and it is in that that the real merit of debating consists.

We advocate an entire reformation in the debating systems of the College, and we feel confident that both the debaters and the debates' manager will agree with us. A debating union which all students with an interest in speaking would be members, would provide the necessary opportunity for impromptu speaking which is essential for a good debater. This is the system which prevails in the Eastern and Old Country universities, and its results are best seen by the prominent place which debating holds in the student activities.

In concluding, we do not think that debating justifies the time and money spent upon it in view of the small amount of interest which it arouses among students. Unless the system is entirely reformed and made sufficiently alive to arouse interest and to be of actual benefit to many more students, it is not right that so much of the Alma Mater funds and so much time of two or three people should be so spent.

All right—back to normal. We are simply dying to tell a very weepy story about Oswald of Burwash (Hall, not Farm) who had a Tuxedo. It seems that he had a habit of loaning it to his friends upon demand.

One day Egbert, a friend of high repute, borrowed the w.k. Tux for a shindig at the Scandaloma Hotel.

Three weeks and no signs of Egbert bringing the Tuxedo back. Oswald of Burwash began to get worried. Finally he wanted the open-face effect for a party himself. So he went to Egbert's house and rang the bell.

The landlady came and informed him that Egbert had been dead three weeks.

"Tough," sympathized Oswald, "but can I have my Tux back?"

"Why," said the landlady, "it was the best suit he had, so we buried him in it."

"The heck you did," exclaimed Oswald. "Why, that Tux cost me $50."

At 7.30 to-night, weather permitting, the Rowing Club Carnival will get under way at the Stadium with the crack of the gun starting the students' open race. With speed and fancy skating as well, and prizes for all the events, the competition will be keen and exciting.

Leila Brooks Potter and Margaret McBride are to be on the list of entrants in the women's race, so there will be plenty of speed in that event. A men's pursuit race is also on the programme, and members of the Toronto Skating Club will execute figures and waltzes. The Stadium will be illuminated with lanterns and spotlights and other gay properties.

EMPIRE — "THE HOME-TOWNERS"

As regular reviewer of the Empire Theatre for the past two years, we have only had to leave one 100-karat brick in their direction since the very beginning. A presentation of "Caesar's Wife" back in February, 1927, was genuinely gosh-awful, and we said so. The management realized that we were telling the whole truth and nothing but—so he revised the stock company and gave us the same seats as usual.

Now, alas! this week we must tell the truth again in its miserable entirety, in spite of the fact that Mr. Kieppie gave us two fine aisle-seats on a night when the whole house was sold out to the B'Nai Brith. To be very frank, "The Home-Towners" by George M. Cohan is absolutely terrible. The play is as poor as the acting is good. Not even the name of the eminent Monsignor Cohan, who succeeded in bilking Broadway out of a cool million, can save this play from being just what it is, an unadulterated mass of maudlin pishposh. He attempts to play the Main Street Mind as compared with the breadth of Broadway, and for three unpleasant acts, six characters quarrel, curse, march, menace and even slap one another. The play is funny in 3% of its lines, and tragic to a point of boredom in the other 97%. The fine acting of Frank Camp, Robert Leslie, Edmund Abbey, Anne Carew and Edith Taliaferro is wasted in this banal dramatic fiasco. Will the director of the Empire please make full use of the fine talents of his company in choosing plays worthy of presentation—that is more than a request—it is a plea.

N.A.B.

THE UPTOWN

The feature presentation at the Uptown is "Beau Sabreur" with Gary Cooper, Evelyn Brent and Noah Beery. It is not quite as good as "Beau Geste," but the main points of the novel are still in evidence. The acting of Noah Beery as the sheik is excellent. All the fascination of the French Foreign Legion, Arab mobs, picturesque desert scenes, and above all, thrilling duels, go to make an excellent production.

The comedy is Charlie Case in "Never the Dames Shall Meet." The orchestra is featuring "My Heart Stood Still" and other musical selections from "The Connecticut Yankee."

Jack Arthur's interlude is "Rain," which is original with a ballet in a rainbow of slickers and ending with a real rainstorm and "April Showers." The News Review is extremely good showing recent Atlantic storms, in which the Aquitania suffered severe damage.

On the whole, one can say that the show is really worth seeing.

FINALS OF THE SENIOR ASSAULT-AT-ARMS TO-NIGHT AT 7.30

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity Intermediates play their last scheduled game to-night when they take on the Milton "Bad Men" on the latter's home ice. A win is essential for the Varsity outfit, as they need a victory to put them on even terms with Brampton and Newmarket. There is no particular reason why Varsity should not beat the brick makers, and if they do there will be a pretty little three-cornered tie for first place.

If Devins does not go to Montreal with the Seniors he will probably be used by the Intermediates in this game, particularly as there is a strong possibility that Bob Crosby may be unable to play. The big fellow has been suffering all season with a bad knee and hip, and has been playing under a big handicap. However, he will be playing if it is at all possible. The rest of the line-up will be the same as was used in the Newmarket game.

Varsity's Junior basketball team have had a very quiet season owing to the fact that they were unable to get into an organized league. Last year's grouping was discarded, and thus the only thing left was to accept a bye into the finals. The players would have preferred to fight it out as last year's smart little team did. The squad has been recently cut and is now down to proper proportions. Coaches McCutcheon and Doney have a wealth of material to choose from, almost too much to prevent the elimination of some really good players. Hutchinson and Garbe are clever little forwards and work together perfectly. Pasternak appears a certainty at centre, while Raynor of football fame, Scott of last year's team, and White are all good guards. The team is in excellent condition and are anxiously awaiting the results of the city championship which will decide who their opponents will be. Many observers claim they are even better than last year's team. Time alone will tell.

The Senior Interfaculty Assault got off to a good start yesterday afternoon with both wrestling and fencing bouts on the card. There was a large crowd present in the big gym when Coach Martin started the boys on their way, and judging by the remarks of the spectators the bouts were more than interesting. Both O.A.C. and Varsity showed the results of good coaching. There was none of the old-fashioned bone breaking performances but rather the scientific methods of to-day. Wrestling is making wonderful strides at the Varsity, where but a few years ago it was considered merely a matter of brute force. Yesterday's exhibition should do much to establish this sport more favourably in popular esteem.

Very little has been heard recently regarding the water polo and swimming activities. This does not mean, however, that Latchford, Goss and Co. have been idle. Practices have been held regularly for both teams, and there has been mighty keen competition for places on the team. McGill's prospects are at present unknown, but they may be counted on to give a good account of themselves.

The icy streets claimed another victim last night. A large car coming around Queen's Park skidded into Vic. gateway and crashed into the fence. The occupants were shaken up badly, but not seriously hurt. The car, however, lost decidedly in its bout with the University fence.

EXHIBITION GAMES ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Seniors and Juniors Show Their Wares in Big Gym

VISITORS FROM NIAGARA

On Friday night in the Big Gym a real treat is in store for all basketball fans. Coach McCutcheon has arranged for two real snappy exhibition games in which the Varsity Juniors, who drew a bye in their series, play the best that U.T.S. can offer, and let it be remembered that U.T.S. always turns out a smart aggregation of cage artists.

The real drawing card of the evening is none other than the famous team of Niagara University of Niagara Falls, New York, who play the present leaders in the Intercollegiate race, namely Varsity Seniors. During the Christmas holidays the local team in a heavy tour of the States ran up against this aggregation, and despite the fact that they were train weary and playing a game a day, they gave a good account of themselves and forced the home team to go to the limit to win. Now the Blue squad is working at top form, and combine as nicely as any representation that the University ever turned out; and if that does not mean a close game on Friday, somebody is stacking the deck.

By virtue of their wins over Queen's and Western in their two starts, the McCutcheonites are at the top of the heap, with Western second, having won one and lost one. Queen's have two losses and one win to their credit, while McGill have lost their only start. That shows how the Seniors are going at present, and before tackling the Western aggregation on their home lot next week, they intend to keep in good trim by entertaining Niagara U.

Not much is known of the visitors individually, but they have been winning consistently across the line; and when you remember that the game originated in the United States, and that basketball is a major sport with thousands of spectators out to see each game, Niagara will show Toronto all the latest tricks that have been developed. While the locals have improved immensely since the new year, it is not to be expected that the Americans have remained stationary, for they also have been continually at practice and playing regular scheduled games.

Captain Currie is setting a fast pace for the followers, and that defence man is never caught sleeping. The way he intercepts passes and works the ball up the floor is a treat to watch, while his shooting average is very high. Johnston and Newman at centre are staging a real old battle for the honour, the former showing up well in his shooting and the latter in his feeding. Mitchell and Faber at the scoring end of the floor have been turning in very consistent games to date with fast passing and accurate shooting. Both these men are comparatively new to basketball circles and have won positions which will make it mighty hard for others to displace them.

After the games the orchestra will function as usual and make a well rounded out programme. The novelty of providing an orchestra has met with the unanimous approval of basketball fans and is one feature looked forward to as a part of the evening's entertainment.

A group of 61 young men have registered in a beginner's course in creamery operation, which is being offered by the University of Minnesota. A professor of the dairy division is in charge of the course.

SENIOR ASSAULT BEGINS WITH GREAT INTEREST

Canadians should, the former getting the better of a close decision, despite two knockdowns to Brownlee's credit. Walstaff, boxing a plucky and persistent bout, was outpointed by a small margin in the 135 division. Though aggressive and having plenty of stamina, Walstaff gave his opponent, Gamble, O.A.C., several inches in height and reach.

The majority of the fencing bouts were run off yesterday afternoon, and Jack Dymont, S.P.S., is leading with 2 points received. Keffler of Vic, is second with 3 received. Bird, U.C., and Dunlap, U.C., are next in the order named, with Lee, Meds, not yet having fenced. All bouts were very fast, and the boys seemed to have a desire to get them over in a hurry. The two top men will compose the Intercollegiate team, while to-night they will fence 5 points for the University championship.

PROPOSED SUBJECTS FOR H.H. DEBATES

knows what. To be sure most of these exotic resolutions are ignored, but occasionally one sees a little notation beside the resolution to the effect that someone had taken cognizance of it back in November 1924.

One resolution to the effect that the late Allies were more responsible for the war than the Germans for some reason or other was ignored. This was sponsored by a solitary soul with an Irish name. Another was sponsored by a Med, presumably for his more erotic brethren, to the effect that the country would benefit greatly by the dissemination of knowledge of birth control methods. Some thoughtless person who evidently had not heard of the Orange order and the K.K.K. of Canada was all for having regulation XVII abolished, probably after perusal of the foregoing resolutions. Two disciples of Schopenhauer suggested that civilization would eventually destroy humanity, although the converse of this would have done just as well. And to cap all this, a soul whose habitat, according to his signature, is Trinity, moved for the abolition of the human race; consequently some will be able to appreciate his viewpoint.

What may be taken as evidence of the sturdy independent influence of covenanting ancestors was apparent in the resolution suggested that the house view with alarm the discussion of political questions from church pulpits.

These foregoing were the high lights of the picture of the cross section of the undergraduate mind as presented to the eyes of anyone who cares to look. Politics seem to be the major interest of all debaters, with the few bright exceptions or variation of the theme as exemplified above; and nowhere in the University but in this little book do these inspirations find official expression, for, of course, several of these resolutions mentioned above never got beyond the "proposed" stage, and most likely never will, especially after the fracas that was started by the communism debate of dubious memory. Picture the horror of the provincial mandarins when they

STUDENTS DABBLE IN STOCK GAME

offices, and owing to the fact that most orders are placed through friends who are junior members of the broker's staff, the dealers in stocks were unable to supply much definite information on the topic to "The Varsity."

"We can't tell whether we serve students or not," said one broker. "Certainly we have none on our books giving the University as their address."

Four of the larger brokers declared that they could not tell whether they had University students among their customers or not. Another prominent down-town broker said flatly that very few young men of any sort were listed on his books. "Our traders are nearly all middle-aged," he said.

One firm, however, which has recently opened a branch office near the University admitted that they did have a few students amongst their clients, but they were nearly all personal friends of members of the staff.

They considered their proximity to the University the chief reason for the patronage of these clients.

It is evidently the all-powerful lure of getting something for nothing that attracts students as well as other people to speculation in stocks.

After all, we may be thankful that speculation, which is eminently respectable, is preferred to betting on the ponies, poker, crap, and other more noxious methods of getting something for nothing.

KNOCK OUTS GALORE

Interfaculty Assault Reveals Prospects For The Intercollegiate

Action and more action was the password at the Senior Interfaculty Assault-at-arms concluded in Hart House last night when the Ontario College of Agriculture won the Davidson Cup for we don't know how many times in succession and ran up 30 points to win over S.P.S., who came second with 22 points, Dents and U.C. coming close for third and fourth positions, registering 21 and 20 points respectively. Victoria was mid-way at 12, while St. Mike's, Meds, Trinity and Knox clustered together at the bottom.

The outstanding feature of the evening was the bountiful crop of K.O.'s. All the boxing bouts were decided in that manner with not one getting as far as the third round. The judges had an easy time of it.

The wrestling was no slow exhibition either, and only three time decisions were handed out, all of the bouts being snappy and hard fought. O.A.C. won on their wrestling team as usual, and though we didn't care for their style, it was effective—the results tell that. The Royal City lads invariably wrestled a defensive game, held off the opponent and then rushed in at the first opening. It looked as though boxing gloves would be needed in some of the matches.

Jack Dymond of S.P.S. won the individual fencing championship by defeating J. Keffer (Vic.). The score was 5-3, and that was indicative of their ranking. Both men were very erratic last night and far below their usual form; parries were wide, re-poses not clean and they tended strongly to in-fighting. When these two meet McGill and Queen's next week in the Intercollegiate Assault, if they fence as they can fence, they should be able to handle what the visitors have to offer.

Sprott at 135 started the row of knock-outs when this clean-hitting man opened up all he had on Gamble and sent him to the floor for the count of seven. The Guelphite gamely attempted to come back, but when the gong sounded for the second round, he was unable to continue.

MacDonald at 112 put up a game but losing battle against the more experienced Jack Beer. The Trinity man took three knock-downs and was willing to go on to the end. Beer knew too much for him and flashed in rights and lefts at will. He will be a strong contender for the Intercollegiate title.

In the 118 lb. Fell gave a smart demonstration of the art; his footwork was good and he hit cleanly. Jeffrey

UNION THEOLOGISTS ENJOY FIRST ANNUAL AT-HOME

Musical Programme, Novelties, Skits and Refreshments go to Make Success

Union Theological College held its first annual at-home Tuesday. Over a hundred couples gathered at Wymilwood. The first part of the evening was given over to a musical programme and to skits. South House delighted the audience with a true account of the famous "Chicken Robbery." West and East House combined to give an uproarious farce entitled "A Scot and a Ford."

An amusing novelty was presented in an old-time fiddler contest. After the programme the guests were offered a choice of dancing for those who "did" and a movie for those who "didn't."

A tasty supper was served, and the usual novelties were distributed. Dancing was then resumed with added zest of squawkers and noise makers.

The party broke up with a mingled "Hora Zosta" and a "Uni-Uni" and ended with a lusty "Toronto."

The committee in charge are especially to be congratulated on the success of the first at-home.

ELIZABETHAN MUSIC SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

Dr. Ernest Macmillan Speaks

GOLDEN AGE OF MUSIC

"The characteristic type of music called Elizabethan does not end with her reign but continues on into that of James I," stated Dr. Ernest Macmillan in a paper read before the English Association last night at the Conservatory of Music. Elizabethan considered ignorance of the art of music as serious a fault as we did ignorance of literature. The sixteenth century was the golden age of music as of everything else; it represented the renaissance of music.

The outstanding features of 16th century music were: The religious setting, the technique built on one instrument and with it the human voice, and the intertwining of melodies. The idea of voices singing in different pitches opened a new field.

In the 16th century bars in the modern sense did not exist. Music was rarely published in score form, just in parts. The accent was not regularly fixed but fell according to the sense of the word. Thus the voice had an amazing degree of independence. The organization of a large number of parts thus arranged demanded a great deal of skill. The inter-play of accents was the essential

PROFESSOR PARKIN SPEAKS

Discussion of Requirements,
Shapes and Types of Both Fuselage and Chassis

"Fuselages and Undercarriages" was the subject of the Toronto Flying Club's lecture on Aeronautics last night. The lecturer, Prof. J. H. Parkin, first gave a brief outline of the types of fuselage or body of an aeroplane. There are two methods of classification: First, depending on the position of the propeller, whether in front of or behind the wings, and, second, depending on whether the machine is a land plane, flying boat, seaplane or amphibian. The latter is a machine capable of landing safely on either land or water.

"The requirements of the fuselage are chiefly to carry the wings, empennage, chassis, engine and the pilot and passengers," stated the speaker, "and all these must be contained in a body of very low air resistance and of light weight."

"In addition to this," continued Professor Parkin, "the fuselage must be in the form of a stiff girder, supported at the centre of gravity, and strong enough to withstand the excessive bending, torsional, and shock stresses due to such manoeuvres as 'looping,' diving and 'banking.' In coming out of a steep dive, a fuselage may be subjected to ten times the normal fly-

QUEEN'S HALL SENIORS FETED BY THIRD YEAR

Farewell Dinner and Dance Given Graduating Year
by Juniors

Once more were the Seniors of Queen's Hall feted by the Juniors in a most unique manner. When the doors of the dining hall were thrown open, the assembled guests felt the salty tang of sea air upon their faces. Beneath an azure sky grotesque sea gulls circled and swooped. Stately Spanish galleons rode the deep blue waves that broke against the walls. And there were fish—fat and funny fish that dived in the paper foam. A blue and orange craft bore each guest's name through the lights of a million candles to part within the shadow of the toast list.

The guests of honour, Lady Falconer, Mrs. Kirkwood, Mrs. Cochrane and Dr. Benson, proved delightful companions on this last voyage of the seaworthy 278. Lady Falconer, in response to a toast to our University, made each girl feel the joy and at the same time the responsibility of being a graduate.

After spending one night in quarantine the residents of Knox College assembled in the dining hall at 10 a.m. yesterday to meet Dr. Jackson of the Public Health Department of the City of Toronto, and Dr. Porter of the University in connection with the discovery of one case of smallpox in Centre House on the previous day. The patient, Mr. G. C. Webster in first year Theology, had been removed to the Isolation Hospital on the day of the discovery.

Dr. Jackson informed the students that no distinction would be made between residents of Centre House and those of the two other houses, nor

REV. STUART PARKER TALKS ON RELIGION

Effect on Life of Religious Reservations Discussed by Speaker

HEART RULES, NOT HEAD

"There is not one of us here who has not been won to the allegiance of Christ without having come on the half confession of faith that the man of my text uttered when he approached our Lord after His descent from the mount of transfiguration and said, 'Lord, I believe, help thou my unbelief,' with respect to the healing of his lunatic son," said Rev. Stuart Parker, speaking in Hart House Chapel yesterday.

The speaker took as his theme the reservations made by most people upon their acceptance of Christ and the effect of these reservations upon their lives. He went on to say that theology is not disproven by logic as some philosophers would have us believe, since philosophy itself is also incapable of proof, and as an example said that we all believe in truth despite the fact that actually it cannot be proved.

"The average believer believes because not to believe robs life of all that is worth while and destroys the usefulness of the individual," Rev. Stuart Parker stated. The address was brought to a close by the explanation of the divine that belief is not and cannot be founded on argument, but is purely a matter of the heart, the head being ruled by the heart and not the heart by the head.

INTERIOR REPAIRS IN MED BUILDING ARE COMPLETED

Suitable Weather Will Ensure Outside Damage Being Repaired Soon

According to information received at the Superintendent's office late Tuesday afternoon, the work of clearing up the debris caused by the fire is still going on in the Medical Building.

All essential repairs in classrooms have been made, and with the exception of the two or three research laboratories, all rooms are now occupied as usual.

With regard to the exterior parts of the building damaged, the speed of the repair work depends entirely on the suitability of the weather. The windows, now covered with beaver boards, are expected to be re-glazed within ten days.

The cause of the fire, in the opinion of Mr. W. H. Bonus, B.A.Sc., the assistant superintendent, was the disintegration of the rubber tubing of a bunsen burner in a biochemical laboratory.

The different departments are taking precautions to see that all rubber tubing is sound, and in most cases it is being replaced by metal tubing.

HOLD JOINT DEBATE IN JR. COMMON ROOM

U.C. Women's Debating Society and U.C. Parliamentary Club Meet To-morrow

TO START AT 4 P.M.

The "return" debate of the U.C. Women's Debating Society and the U.C. Parliamentary Club is to be held this afternoon. Last year the Parliamentary Club was the guest of the women, and the debate was held in the evening in the Women's Union. There were about ninety present at the debate last year, and many speakers from "the floor of the House" got a hearing. This year an even larger attendance is expected, since the debate is at 4 p.m. In order to allow as many as possible to take active part in the debate, only two speakers from each side will speak on the paper, being allowed ten or twelve minutes each, after which any one catching the eye of the speaker will be allowed the floor for six or seven minutes.

The subject allows scope for ample discussion. It is worded: "Resolved that the institution of afternoon tea in one of the Hart House common rooms for members and the fair sex (not necessarily invited by members) would enhance the gracious amenities of our University life."

The mover of the motion is Mr. Wynne Plumtree, supported by Mr. Lionel M. Gelber. Miss Isabel Brown and Miss Helen MacCallum are leading the negative. It is expected that those who attend the debate will sit and vote upon whichever side of the question they choose, irrespective of the fact that two men are leading the affirmative and two women the negative.

This year the debate is in the Junior Common Room, and all U.C. men and women are invited.

Majority of Nine Decides That Sport is Not Carried to Excess

ONE SPEAKER ON PAPER

Visiting Debalers From Maritimes Speak From The Floor

Sport is not carried to an excess in Canadian university life, decided the members of Hart House last night by a majority of nine votes. The decision was 41-32; the attendance seemed to indicate that there were counter attractions. The debate was unique in that three visiting Canadian debaters spoke during the evening.

Contrary to the usual procedure, there was only one speaker on the paper; others who spoke did so from the floor.

In contrast with the wild heckling which featured the preceding debate, last night's session was remarkably quiet. Occasional mock cries of "Shame!" were heard, but most of the speakers were granted a respectful hearing.

Over 1,400 male students, constituting nearly 45 per cent of the male student body, were actively engaged in sport at the University of Toronto. So stated Mr. M. K. Kenny, Victoria College, mover of the question. Of this number, he said, 1,200 were engaged in the more mild form of inter-faculty sport, whereas there were 250 students devoting two hours every day to the intensive form of intercollegiate competition. He cited the fact that the Carnegie Institute had commended the University of Toronto as one of study.

Continuing, he declared that the university was a place to train men for leadership through the development of a well organized mind by study. "Consider how much better the student would be if the hours spent on athletics were turned to study. The mind of the student becomes warped through the glorification of the athlete," he said. "The athlete, not the student, becomes the big man on the campus." He furthered this statement by an example set at the University of Minnesota, where the football captain married the most popular girl on the campus. "In Canadian universities the thin edge of the wedge is already being felt," he concluded.

The motion presupposed that someone had made a significant study of athletic conditions in Canadian universities, declared Mr. E. Paul of Acadia University, speaking for the opposition. The evangelical fervour aroused by athletes in the minds of the undergraduate body, he felt, justified the prominent position of sport in universities.

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Controversy on Value of Notes

Are lecture notes helpful in passing exams in May?

C. E. Lindenfield, II Meds: Yes, if you take them yourself and understand them. Notes copied from others are not so good.

H. V. Mallon, I St. Michael's: No, not much.

E. Sheare, I S.P.S.: Yes, they have always helped me.

H. P. Gracey, III S.P.S.: Yes, I think they serve as condensed text books.

R. J. Monkman, IV Victoria: Yes, if taken properly.

Miss G. Matthews, I U.C.: Yes, I think you would be lost without them.

Miss V. Harris, III St. Michael's: Yes, I think they can be used with advantage. They form a useful review of the year's work.

THE CANADIAN NOVEL

"Why is it that not more books come out of Canada? 'A Search for America' brings the sudden realization that there is material as rich and there must be authors quite as capable, as south of the border. . . . It is time that Canadian literature became something more imposing and more important than what some one once called it—a mere bud on the tree of the great Anglo-Saxon tradition." This comment appeared a couple of weeks ago in The New York Times Book Review.

The above definition is of course insufficient in that it ignores, for one thing, the whole body of French Canadian literature. But it is interesting inasmuch as it raises once again the question of the quantity and quality of our English prose. "A Search for America," which is the odyssey of a man who worked his way through the United States and finally settled in Canada, suggests that there is certainly a great deal of rich material in the field of the novel.

It is not unfair, in our opinion, to say that in this field, Canadian literature has been decidedly weak. Certain prize winning efforts that have been cited against this statement merely serve to confirm our position. Most of them have been merely English or European stories placed in a Canadian framework, and not a decidedly strong one at that. To uphold this type of novel is simply to assume that Canadian conditions have no distinctive character.

One reason that might be advanced for the failure to show any great strength in the novel is that there is no connection between the academic and journalistic wings. In the universities the stress is naturally placed upon the great English poetic tradition, and in this respect English literature is admittedly pre-eminent throughout the world. The tendency among the university men and women, past and present, has been and is at present in the direction of classical poetry. On the other hand, the journalists who have attempted to do realistic work in the prose novel have been weak in the form and style which is only gained by deep and critical reading. The leisure to do this is not possessed by men close to actual conditions in the world outside. These men are not inclined to observe a high standard of style according to academic standards and they would justify this refusal by saying that since their matter is non-academic they rightly decline to follow academic standards of style as being equally far removed from practical facts.

This division is only one of the many that are in the way of a truly national prose.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

"The Varsity" staff regrets to announce the sudden illness of the Editor-in-chief, Mr. James Robson, who on Tuesday contracted a high temperature developing into a severe attack of influenza. Last week the Managing Editor, Mr. Wilfred Sanders, was stricken with the mumps, and the temporary absence of the Editor-in-chief culminates a series of casualties on the newspaper staff.

At a meeting of the editorial staff yesterday afternoon, Mr. L. J. Ryan, former news editor, was unanimously elected to act as editor pro-tem.

Seventy-three men attended the debate at Hart House last night in which the representatives of the Maritime universities spoke under the auspices of the National Federation of University Students and of the Debates Committee of Hart House. The weather, the time of the year and counter-attractions may be blamed for the poor attendance, but it is nevertheless apparent that the change from the formal to the open-house system effected no increase of student interest.

"Ferrara"

Last evening the regular meeting of the University College Players' Guild was given a unique distinction by the presentation of the first full-length play written by a member of the Guild. The play was a three-act tragedy in blank verse by Bernard Delacour Beasish. The play was extremely well received by a large and appreciative audience.

The play is set in Italy of the sixteenth century when art, love and war reached their peak of Renaissance perfection. In its course the elements of gallantry, intrigue, cruelty and love were combined with splendid effect. As the Duke of Ferrara, Mr. James Knights played his role with a dignified restraint and artistry. As Guilia, the typical young hero-gallant of tragedy, W. A. Gilbert gave his role an impetuous élan, while Louis Golden as the Jewish trafficker, Shapirono, amply supplied the comic element. As the steward Antonio, Clarence Tracey gave an excellent interpretation of the blustering yet loyal follower and formed a striking contrast to the other steward, Francischueo, played by Mr. Benson with a reserve which made the role seem all the more powerful.

As Count Pistoja, the swashbuckling old warrior, Earl Fauman gave a fine verve and brio to his part, especially to an original stream of Renaissance profanity. As Margerita, the heroine who is betrothed to Ferrara against her will, Margaret Gordon gave her lines an intensity and power fitting to tragic drama, while Eleanor Chambers Norton made the lady-in-waiting Beatrice a very fascinating if amorous coquette. Lesser roles were capably filled by A. H. Miller, John Cowan and Paul Gardner. Special thanks are due Mr. T. F. Aspden for his settings, and to the direction of the author, who was capably assisted by Marjorie Milliken, whose prompting was conspicuous by its absence. A.B.C.

HART HOUSE MEMBERS IN FAVOUR OF SPORTS

sity life. The fact that the football coach of some American university had married the most popular co-ed on the campus was, he averred, no definite proof of the predominant position of sport. He was of opinion that present conditions did not warrant any steps being taken to curb or check athletic activities.

Mr. A. F. W. Plumtre, taking as his criterion that major sports were those indulged in by the majority of students, stated that the attending to awful deformities, particularly the over-exercised right arm, constituted the major sport. The over-exercised limb was shown in many phases by the speaker, from dealing cards to dancing, in which, Mr. Plumtre maintained, that although the left arm was held high, the right arm "bore the burden of the evening." Similarly in motoring, especially sport types, more attention was given to the right arm than the more intricate manipulation of the car by the left.

Mr. L. M. Gebler deprecated the use of statistics in arguments on sport. He considered that a sound mind in a sound body was the ideal to be achieved. The disease of spectatoritis was what was weakening university sport, contended the speaker. He felt that more people should participate in sports, instead of watching them.

Professor C. R. Fay, in rising to speak, wished that there was a cross-bench on which he might state contrary views. Asking the question, "What is sport?" he claimed in some cases sport had deviated from that of pure love for a game to the prize fight or gladiatorial aspect constituting excessive sport. "It is wrong when you have a huge number of people assembled to win at any cost." Referring to the financial aspect, he emphatically stated that no, or only a nominal, fee should be charged to see a game. "Excessive sport makes sport a tyrant, and becoming a tyrant is both a moral evil and danger to those engaged in sport and society at large.

That the part women played in sport was negligible, said Mr. V. J. Bourke, was the logical inference from the remarks of the affirmative. He felt that the gathering together of students in a body to watch and participate in athletics helped to arouse a feeling of loyalty to one's alma mater. Mr. H. Fulton, University of New Brunswick, speaking for the affirmative, defined excess as an active habit gratifying inordinate wants or desires. Mr. Fulton expressed the opinion that the present attitude adopted in sport was more towards ill-feeling than harmony. This attitude, (Continued on page 4)

ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE AGAIN WINS DAVIDSON CUP

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Intermediate O.H.A. team is somewhat disorganized as a result of losing their coach. "Jim" Robson coached the team this year and had them right at the top of the group. But now he is laid up with the "flu" and will not be able to function for another couple of weeks—then it may be too late.

A record was hung up last night as far as Interfaculty Assaults go. Not one boxing bout went the specified three rounds, and you know what that means—K.O., technical or otherwise.

They say that to the winner goes the spoils and the loser gets—spoiled. But last night every single loser was game to the last. Each gave his best and tried to give more, but experience told. The crowd was not slow in recognizing real grit, and each loser was roundly applauded as he left the ring.

The wrestling was fast too, with the occasional exception of a man refusing to wrestle, and those exceptions were not popular with the fans. Some men refused to make any attempt to come to grips, and pushed off the other fellow when he tried to come in. That isn't our idea of wrestling, but wins were registered that way.

On the other hand, Chepeswick and Shute gave lots of action and two falls for good measure. Holden and Jenner also provided plenty of excitement. These two got into some mighty tight places, and when they got out again the spectators didn't forget to show their appreciation. There are wrestling bouts and wrestling bouts.

Last night demonstrated that B. W. and F. do not mix. The fencing bout was alright as relief from the steady menu of ring and mat struggles, but only one bout was given. The sabre and duelling sword are not even on the cards, and these two divisions play a prominent role in the ancient and royal sport.

It may not be surprising to see a separate Fencing Club next year and even carry the separation into Intercollegiate circles. But then comes the question of finance, and that will be the big deterring influence. Only fencers can appreciate good fencing, and it is not fair to any of the three parties concerned to ask them to remain as one body.

To-morrow night the Junior basketball team gets into action for the first time this season, and then it is an exhibition game. They have been practicing consistently all along and look pretty good. The Seniors also play an exhibition match to-morrow and hope that Niagara University of Niagara, N.Y., will be the "victims."

To-night at Montreal the Intercollegiate hockey hopes play their final game and they must win. A win means at least a draw, while a loss means that the Queen's Cup will take a trip. It would be a shame to let the cup get away, especially since it is now considered a fixture in the Hart House show case.

VARSITY HOCKEYISTS WILL PLAY FLYING FRENCHMEN TO-NIGHT

Blue Team Faces Possible Elimination in Montreal Game

DEFENCE STRENGTHENED
Frenchmen Are Ready to Draw Varsity Blood

To-night the Blue Intercollegiate hockeyists face possible elimination when they meet the University of Montreal sextet in the latter city. A win for the Varsity team will mean a probable tie with McGill at the close of the schedule, unless the latter team upset the dope by losing to their city rivals, U. of M., in the final game. On the other hand, a loss to-night for Varsity will mean that it will be necessary to disturb the Queen's Cup from its thirteen year sojourn in Hart House and dust it off for McGill.

However, Whitehead's return to the Blue team recently has materially strengthened the team, both on the defence and the offence, and with Kirkpatrick playing stellar hockey beside this red-headed youth, it will be a strong forward line that will get by this pair. On the forward line Coach Pearson has rounded out a trio of well working puck-chasers in McMullen, Richards and Harley, and with Mac King, Stewart and Devins ready to step in at any time, the opposing defence is sure to have plenty of worry the whole sixty minutes. Carrick, as relief on the defence, has already made a name for himself, and Snyder in goal has been turning them aside all season with amazing regularity.

The Flying Frenchmen, though, are not to be under-rated. So far this season they have not won an Intercollegiate fixture, and right now are out to draw first blood. A win for them to-night and again against McGill and all three teams will be tied for first position. Page, the flashy centre, created a good impression with the Toronto fans here a few weeks ago, and if accorded any kind of good support whatever should make things quite interesting for Varsity to-night. The Frenchmen have been considerably weakened in the last few games by the loss of several of their star players to the professional ranks, but can be counted upon to die hard, if not upset some of the dope in their next two games.

The probable line-ups:
Varsity: Goal, Snyder; defence, Whitehead, Kirkpatrick; centre, McMullen; wings, Richards, Harley; subs, King, Carrick, Stewart.
U. of M.: Goal, Carboneau; defence, Lafrance, Ratté; centre, Page; wings, Gagne, Enard; subs, Roy, St. Michel.

Junior U.C. Defeats Jr. Vic. in Fast Basketball Game

Junior U.C. basketballers ran away with their opponents, Jr. Vic., in Tuesday's Interfaculty game, the final score being 23-5. The Vic. team were unable to cope with the fast attack of the U.C. forwards, and their forward line was away off in shooting. Howard Riggs, U.C. right forward, was the outstanding man on the floor, netting 17 points. Goldenberg also turned in a nice exhibition on defence. For the Victoria team Lautenslager and Barr were mostly in evidence, but failed to find the basket.

O.A.C. WINS SENIOR ASSAULT

proved no match and the bout was called in the second round at 1 min. 50 sec.

The Jackson-Morin bout (158) was the fastest of the evening, the latter going down for the count in 53 seconds under a barrage of rights and lefts.

Woods and Smily at 175 lbs. milled around for a round and a half before the latter was K.O'd. Neither was very experienced, but were quite willing to mix it, and in a couple of years should be able to give a good account of themselves.

So much for the K.O.'s and now for the mat burns!

Hilliard (118) was given a narrow but well earned time decision over Barrett, and the result was always somewhat shadowed.

Grant and Griffiths (135) almost staged a boxing match, as when the latter pushed off the Dental man, some of them didn't seem to be mere "pushes." The O.A.C. candidate broke through and gained a time decision.

The other time decision was also close when Furber defeated Mooney. This was at 158 and was productive of the most scientific wrestling of the evening.

Perhaps the liveliest tussle of the evening was between Jenner and Bis-hop (123). The former was aggressive, but the latter had a slight edge until Jenner secured a fall on a roll. Both wriggled out of some mighty tight positions.

Lindsay (145) got two falls from Diprose, the latter receiving a bad cut over one eye early in the bout. At '74 Shute weakened under the steady pressure of Chepeswick, and in the melee two falls were registered against him. Kickham gave Becking 30 pounds in the heavyweight class and then registered a win by a fall at 1:30.

Mr. Lou Scholes refereed the boxing and Mr. Chapman the wrestling, with Mr. W. Winterburn the time-keeper.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL DEFINITELY PLANNED

Intercollegiate Tournament to be Held in Toronto at Hart House

TEAM PRACTISING DAILY

Women's basketball plans are coming on apace, and the date for the Intercollegiate Meet has been definitely set for March 2 and 3. On Friday evening McGill will play Queen's, and Western Varsity. Saturday afternoon the winners of the previous night's games will compete for the championship, but first the losers will play an exhibition game.

The Varsity girls are planning to make their opponents enjoy themselves, even if they do not intend to let any of them take away the cup. The visitors will be billeted in the various residences. Saturday evening a dinner will be given in honour of the players and afterwards a dance.

Toronto girls have been practising regularly, and the team will be chosen this week. The change in the game allowing three forwards and three defence has radically altered the play and the choice of players.

Altogether this meet is something to be looked forward to, and since Varsity is very fortunate in having it held here in the Hart House gymnasium, everyone should turn out to the games and support the team.

WHEN you decide to wear your blue suit, do you select a tie to harmonize—a tie with a maison back-ground will go with a blue suit, or a warm brown one, or one with orange or yellow in it.

"Canadian colleges and colleges in the United States are not so much alike now as they were years ago, he believes since there are few working students in the Canadian schools. HART HOUSE MEMBERS IN FAVOUR OF SPORTS

he thought, also tended to make the athlete a show producer.

"There is much to be said on both sides," was the platitude with which Principal W. L. Grant of Upper Canada College prefaced his remarks. He asserted that there was too little interest in sport to-day. Submerging one's identity in something bigger than oneself was a lesson which athletics taught.

Major Grant advocated a Hart House double the size of the present one, and a library three times as big as the University Library. He indicated that he would provide for more space on the campus for playing fields than was at present allotted, had he authority to do so. He deprecated too much ballyhoo and not even sport in university life.

Though inclined towards the negative side of the question, Mr. Wood of Bradford felt that from a statistical viewpoint he must take the affirmative because conclusive evidence confirmed that belief.

"Canadian university life is no small thing," said Mr. E. M. Howse, of Dalhousie University, after condemning the irrelevancy of the speakers on the affirmative. He sought to discover how far sport was of value in realising the ultimate aims of university life. Its abuses he acknowledged, but he held that no proof that it was carried to excess. He employed the definition "complete, living" in arguing for greater development of sport.

Intercollegiate athletics were approved by Mr. T. V. Kennedy, because they gave the contenders opportunities to see other universities. Professional sport was to him a perfectly sensible means of earning a livelihood.

The President of the Rooters' Club, Mr. E. J. Hartmann, felt that undue preponderance was not given to athletic activities, and that the marked influence of football captains in certain universities of the U.S.A. was not generally applicable.

Sport made co-operation, contended Mr. J. Sammon, who opposed the motion.

Mr. Arrell took issue with the remarks of Mr. Plumptre. He recalled the auto prohibition, and attributed to liquor many of the vices which had been attributed formerly to sport.

In replying to the speakers of the evening, Mr. M. K. Kenny pointed out that sport requiring large financial backing, producing massed excitement urging for victory, tended to become a spectacle not a game.

Other speakers for the affirmative were Mr. Gringorton, who held up a bevy of evils produced through the desire to obtain athletes, and Mr. J. R. Cadwell, who mentioned the case of an athlete who through injury lost two weeks of lectures.

KNOX STUDENTS RELEASED FROM QUARANTINE

between those who had been in contact with the patient and those who had not. The distinction would be between those who could show a scar from previous vaccination and those who could not. Those who could show no scar would be vaccinated and quarantined till the 21st of February, and those who had scars were to be vaccinated along with the others but would not be quarantined. If any student refused to be vaccinated, and any fresh case were found, the period of quarantine for that student would be extended to 14 days from the time of the second outbreak and would be similarly extended for each subsequent case.

All social functions within the college were to be cancelled during the period of quarantine, but academic lectures and chapel service, suspended for yesterday, were to be resumed as usual. The students were told that no one could leave the City of Toronto without permission from the Medical Health Officer of the district to which he was going, and must show a certificate of permission at the City Hall in Toronto before leaving.

Dr. Porter then vaccinated all the students regardless of whether they had been previously vaccinated; no one was found to object.

Twenty-one students were placed in quarantine in the two top floors of West House, the regular occupants of this section changing rooms with those who were getting the two weeks' vacation. The latter have settled down characteristic of Elizabethan music, for all the accents did not necessarily fall in the same places with all the voices.

The Tudor composers expressed themselves in several forms, chiefly in church music, which was published in parts only, and in madrigals, which in their origin were possibly associated with folk songs. In both these forms the Elizabethan composer made a definite contribution to the world of music.

Dr. Macmillan illustrated his remarks with records.

When the Chairman of the House Committee was sought by "The Varsity" for an interview he was reported to be washing dishes up in the tower.

The quarantined students are strictly "confined to barracks," and their outdoor exercise must be taken only on the roof of the St. George Street tower.

It is rumoured that shaving is to be banned among the prisoners, and it is expected that at the end of their term they will issue forth bearing the characteristic facial embellishment of the followers of the House of David.

There are as yet five residents who have escaped examination, having left the college on or before Tuesday last, but the authorities are determined to locate them and bring them back to the residence.

PLENTY OF MATERIAL FOR JUNIOR BASKETBALL SQUAD

Team Anxious to Meet U.T.S. Friday in Hart House—Much Enthusiasm

Varsity's Junior basketball squad swing into action for the fourth time this year when they play U.T.S. in the first half of a double-header. The game will take place on Friday night in the big gym at Hart House. Of their three games played so far, the Juniors have won two and lost one. The squad is quite large and there is plenty of material. All in all the team should be better than last year's team. They have had no group games this year and have thus had to accept a place in the Toronto city play-offs. The squad has been practising hard ever since the close of the rugby season and they are in the pink of condition. The manager is of the opinion that they stand a good chance to win the junior honours.

For Friday's game the team will be picked from: Hutchison, Carr, Pasternak, Powell, Traynor, White, Sullivan, Ireland, Dawson, Brown and Noyes. Garbe and Scott are out with injuries.

AERONAUTICAL TALK GIVEN AT FLYING CLUB MEETING

The shape of the fuselage depends on the type of plane desired, whether a racer, a military, commercial, private or school machine. The type of engine often determines the proportions of the fuselage, a radial engine demanding a flat-nosed machine, whereas a vertical six-in-line can be fitted to a narrow shape. A fighting plane must be as short as possible for the sake of manoeuvrability.

There are two main types of fuselage construction, the wood and wire combination, and the riveted or welded steel tube construction.

The monocoque or shell type is an adaptation ship construction, being a light frame, planked with plywood. This principle is likely to be used extensively in the next few years, using metal instead of plywood. In this type the covering takes considerable stress, unlike the ordinary covering which adds nothing in strength.

Undercarriages or chasses are of several forms, some with through axles and others having none. Shock absorbers were dealt with with reference to the rubber and oleo types.

INTERCOLLEGIATE SENIOR HOCKEY TEAM WINS GAME

Defeat University of Montreal in Unexciting Battle
Score 3-2

KIRKPATRICK EFFECTIVE

Varsity Team at Head of Intercollegiate Hockey
Series

Montreal, Que., Feb. 9.—The Blue team put themselves at the head of the intercollegiate hockey series by their win over the University of Montreal by 3-2 at the Forum here to-night. But a handful of spectators watched the game, and in the main they did not miss much. There was but one bright period of the game, and that was in the second phase when Richards netted two in ten seconds and Devins added a third about two minutes later.

The Blue team were not up to the style which they displayed last Saturday, and providing that McGill can defeat the U. of M. on Monday then the probable play-off will have to see a better Varsity team. La France and Page of the Montreal team were the stars for their side. Snyder did not appear to pay much attention to the goal that Page put in in the first period. Whitehead was kept in check well.

Not more than a score of people are in the Forum for the face-off of the puck. It may be that the wintry weather outside has kept the crowd away, or perhaps the fact that the U. of M. do not fancy that they have much chance. The U. of M. are on the ice with three of the usual Q.A.H. A. men absent, due to the four-year rule. It looks as if it is going to be a good practice game for Varsity. (Continued on page 4)

TRADITIONAL CEREMONIES AT LEGISLATURE OPENING

Many Spectators Are Present

From the Throne

Traditional pomp and ceremony attended the opening of the local legislature yesterday afternoon. The booming of the guns in Queen's Park announced the commencement of the proceedings. The usual colourful procedure took place when His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, Mr. W. D. Ross, arrived at the Parliament Buildings.

Numerous spectators, among them many women, were on hand to hear the speech from the Throne and the preliminary remarks in the House.

By a vote of 26-16 the men and women of U.C. yesterday afternoon defeated the motion, "Resolved that the institution of afternoon tea in one of the Hart House common rooms for members and the fair sex (not necessarily invited by members) would enhance the gracious amenities of our University life." The debate was held by the U.C. Parliamentary Club, which supported the motion, and the U.C. Women's Debating Society, which opposed it.

A group of alleged Communists sitting near the door were inclined to somewhat heckle the speakers, and were particularly noisy when a reference was made to Russia as a nation of tea drinkers.

Mr. Plumptre, after welcoming the guests, went on to explain that no tea was being served at this meeting because of the noise it would make and the fact that those on the other

MILTON FORESAW DESTINY THAT HE WAS TO FULFILL

Professor Davis Lectures at University College on Poet's Life

"All Milton's work was a miracle and his whole life was built up to write it," declared Professor Davis in his lecture on Milton yesterday afternoon at University College. "Few among the greatest poets achieved so greatly what they had consciously set out to do. Even among his earlier work there is little that is merely experimental, fragmentary or unfinished." In 1645 at the age of thirty-six Milton published his early poems as a badge of his calling and indicating what was to follow. In a later edition all was added which had remained unprinted. Milton believed his life was being guided for a definite purpose, and while waiting for the great task before him wrote a masque and a pastoral elegy in which these forms were lifted to heights of imperishable beauty.

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS

Sir Robert Falconer, K.C.M.G.

Who to-day celebrates the sixty-first anniversary of his birth. He was born in Charlottetown, and in 1907, twenty-one years ago, he became President of the University of Toronto.

ULTIMATE PRINCIPLE IS PERSONAL DEITY

Professor Brown Explains Idea of Personal God to
S.C.A. Group

GOD CENTRE OF ACTIVITY

"Personality is the ultimate principle of the universe; it is essential not only to religion but to moral growth." In this statement Professor W. T. Brown of Victoria College struck the keynote of his lecture on "Grounds for Beliefs in a Personal God," given yesterday afternoon in Hart House as the second of a group of S.C.A. lectures.

Questionings of the idea of a personal God come early in our life. First the childhood idea of "God as a policeman" disappears, and finally we may come to accept the idea of a moral order for the universe, but to wonder whether there is a personality behind. Modern science has particularly influenced this question. The solution was not to be found in the theological doctrine of God's personality but in that religious conception of God made known through the religious conscience of ordinary man.

"First, then," stated Professor Brown, "what is the heart of the religious question? Is the universe friendly to me as a spiritual being, — that is the heart of the religious question."

"Religion," continued the lecturer, "hence is the assertion that the universe is friendly to man; that man's thoughts can rise no higher than the ultimate truth of things; and that the truth of things will contain the highest and noblest of man's thoughts. If so, then you have here the idea of a personal God."

KNOX BANS RAZORS AMONG QUARANTINED

Communitic Life and Atmosphere Now Paramount

WASH THRICE DAILY

With no new cases of smallpox nor any signs of the disease which has given them two full weeks' holiday, the students who are in quarantine at Knox College are enjoying themselves to the limit. The twenty-one students who have been quarantined are residing in the tower and the two upper floors of West House, where they while away the tedious hours with card games, magazines and other forms of amusement. A whisker producing contest has banned the use of the razor, and the boys are doing their utmost to produce beards to rival those grown by the men of the north country last year. Obviously the chairman of the house committee, D. K. Perrie, B.A., has far outdistanced his competitors, and looks like a sure winner in the contest. The most tedious task that the boys perform is the thrice-daily washing stunt. Fatigue parties of four have been listed which do duty for a stretch of four days at a time.

Medical health authorities are not looking for any other outbreak among the University students. It is estimated that with the wholesale vaccination which was done at Vic. last fall and at Knox just recently that nearly ninety per cent of the students now carry a vaccination mark. As previously announced, the Board of Governors have sanctioned the medical director's recommendation that all students entering the University in the future who cannot show vaccination marks must be vaccinated. PRINTERS' PROBLEMS SUBJECT OF LECTURE

Second of Series of Lectures on Business Administration is Delivered

SELLING END TREATED

"The printer is a manufacturer, but in selling he is a retailer," was the way in which the selling problem of the printing industry was summarized by Mr. A. L. Lewis of the Southern Press, Toronto, at the second of a series of lectures in Business Administration. The lecture, "Sales Problems of the Printing Industry," in accordance with the wish, took the form of a round table talk.

Mr. Lewis prefaced his discussion by a general description of the printing industry on this continent. The industry, he stated, was second largest in point of volume, having turned out in the United States alone a total volume of 2,500,000,000 tons. He then passed on to discuss what, in his opinion, were the three main handicaps of the industry. Because of its nature, it could not go in for advance production. There were conditions of "high peaks and deep valleys" which required at times much machinery and labour, and at others, in order to keep these employed, printing might be done almost at bare cost. The third handicap consisted in the personnel of the industry, the speaker remarked.

The great malady of the industry was that there was not enough demand. (Continued on page 3)

Psychologists Inspect Fellow Visiting Canine Prodigy

The interest of the psychology department of the University of Toronto is not solely focussed upon the conduct and behaviour of human beings; considerable time and study have been devoted this week to a canine prodigy. Fellow, a remarkably intelligent Alsatian dog, owned by Mr. Jacob Herbert, has aroused the attention of leading university psychologists. A demonstration of his ability was given on Thursday afternoon before faculty members of the department. The tests consisted chiefly of spoken commands to the dog by his owner which were in every case promptly and correctly obeyed. Professors E. A. Bott and W. E. Blatz both expressed their amazement at Fellow's reasoning powers. They considered him to be a canine genius. The visit of Mr. Herbert and his dog here is under the auspices of the Daily Star.

His Twenty-first Year as President

KNIGHTED, 1917

Guided University For Two Decades

To-day, the sixty-first birthday of the President of the University of Toronto, recalls again Sir Robert Falconer's distinguished achievements in scholarship and administration.

Born in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, he later went to Trinidad. Here attending Queen's Royal College he won the Gilchrist scholarship, entitling him to attendance at the University of London. A B.A. degree was received there, then graduate studies at Edinburgh entitled him to M.A. and Litt.D. Post-graduate studies were pursued in Berlin, Leipzig and Hamburg.

Returning to Nova Scotia, he held successively the positions of Lecturer, Professor and Principal of Pine Hill College, Halifax. In 1907 Sir Robert Falconer became President of the University of Toronto. He was knighted ten years later.

During his twenty years of office here the President has won the esteem and respect of faculty, graduates and undergraduates alike. The prominent position which this University holds in Canada is due in no small measure to his administrative efforts. Throughout the vicissitudes of two decades, progress slow but sure has been made. New departments have been introduced and old departments amplified; entrance standards have been raised, and at the same time attendance has increased about 1,500; there are over one thousand more women here now than there were in 1908. The teaching staff has been greatly augmented; many new buildings have been erected, of which the most outstanding is Hart House. These facts and many others are ample evidence that things have gone ahead under the capable guidance of Sir Robert Falconer.

CO-EDUCATION INEVITABLE ACCORDING TO ENGLISHMAN

George H. Wood Lectures on Woolen Trade at Baldwin
House

"Behind you all I think I can see something of a 'composite personality,'" said Mr. George H. Wood, statistician of the Woolen and Worsted Trades' Federation of Great Britain, when interviewed as to his impressions of the students of this University. Mr. Wood has had unusual opportunities of observing through the course of lectures he has just completed at Baldwin House. He went on to say that one of the remarkable things about Varsity, in his opinion, was the fact that though drawn democratically from almost all the strata of society, and of necessity without a common background of tradition such as that of the English public schools, the undergraduates here had achieved a real esprit de corps.

As an example of this feeling, Mr. Wood instanced his own observation that nowhere in Hart House had the unrestricted liberty enjoyed by the members been converted into license; even where no rules did or could obtain, an unspoken tradition took their place. "Thanks to the high standard of efficiency among your women and the prominent place they fill in your business world, co-education is, for Canada, absolutely inevitable."

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Colourful Clothes for Males?

Do you approve of brighter clothes for men?

J. Meritt, II English and History: Yes. If some combination of college colours were introduced into men's clothing it would be a definite improvement. Convention of to-day doesn't allow sufficient latitude for the expression of individuality.

J. B. Boyd, III Pass U.C.: Yes. Colour would get rid of the drab effect that is so depressing in the dress of most men who are called well dressed. The eye naturally delights in a variety of colour.

Leo Langham, II Commerce and Finance: Yes, from the aesthetic point of view, it would be a vast improvement over present day dress.

Dave Smith, II E. and H.: Yes, with special attention to ties and handkerchiefs.

T. R. Millman, II Arts Pass U.C.: Yes, I would welcome any movement back to the Elizabethan idea of dress. Why shouldn't men employ colour in their apparel as well as women; they have no monopoly in the matter.

E. S., Grad. Studies, U.C.: No, there is enough at present. Moreover, as most people know, coloured clothing is often unsanitary.

R. S. 4th U.C.: No, I don't. Gentlemen's dress of the day impresses me as quite satisfactory now. Why change?

REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT

For a number of years the Board of Governors of the University has allowed a measure of self-government to the students, the necessary power for this being vested in the Students' Administrative Councils. The maintenance of discipline, the promotion of inter-University functions, representation of the student body in all matters affecting the interests of the students, and the promotion of social and academic unity amongst all the Colleges and Faculties in the University, are some of the objects of these Councils. Representation on the Councils is the privilege of every College or Faculty whose students pay the Council fee of Four Dollars, and representatives are elected by the votes of their college associates. Students thus elected to seats on the Councils are primarily responsible for safeguarding the interests of their particular College or Faculty, as well as taking a share of responsibility in matters affecting the general good.

How far some of the students elected realize their responsibilities is a doubtful question. There are a number who have very faithfully attended the meetings of the Councils, but on the other hand there are many who seldom attend, and a few who appear once or twice only in the year. The quorum fixed for the men's Council is twelve, and it is often a difficult matter to get this number together on time for the meeting. It has been said that the only occasion on which a good attendance can be guaranteed is once a year, when the Councils meet at some photographer to have the group photograph taken for publication in "Torontonensis."

There have been complaints that when a quorum has been obtained and a meeting gets under way, there is even then no guarantee that the business on the agenda will be attended to fully. Some of these students' representatives appear to consider it an unnecessary waste of time attending these meetings, so that if the meeting continues longer than forty-five minutes, they leave, regardless of whatever may be under discussion, and without as much as a word of apology to the President or chairman of the meeting.

At the meeting held a week ago a matter of vital importance, and one which, in our opinion, is likely to effect the very life of student government, was being discussed, when suddenly the meeting automatically ended because a member decided he had to leave, and there was the mere quorum present. A member of the Council is the authority for this statement.

It is because we feel that the privilege of self-government now afforded the undergraduates is too valuable a one to be endangered and lost by indifference, and because we believe that we stand in jeopardy of losing it through the failure of certain students' representatives to fulfill the obligations which they undertook when they accepted election, that we bring this matter to the attention of the undergraduates. We hope that the guilty minority will mend their ways, and that at election time, which now fast approaches, undergraduates will take care that the men they select are worthy of the confidence reposed in them.

WHERE, OH WHERE . . . ?

Another disappointment has been added to the long list of life's little tragedies—the much discussed official crest for the University has not yet made its appearance, and there seems to be no prospect of its doing so in the near future. Perhaps it is inevitable that such enthusiasm as was created last year by the Crest Contest should die away, but we fail to see why the results of the contest should have suffered a like fate.

In response to repeated demands for an official insignia for the University of Toronto, the Students' Administrative Council conducted a contest, to which students were asked to submit designs for a crest, the winning design to become the official crest of the University. The contest is over, the award has been made, and for some time people talked blithely about getting "one of the new crests for my blazer." But now the memory of the contest as well as the thought of the new crest has faded away.

We wonder why. Is it because of "lack of interest,"—that reason assigned for the failure of so many scheme, or is there some other greater reason which is necessarily withheld?

Art, Music and Drama

Victoria Dramatics

"Tickless Time" was the very humorous one-act play presented by the Vic. Dramatic Society yesterday at Wymilwood. A young couple, played by Marvin Carson and Belle Munroe, deciding to live by truth instead of the "mean solar time of Philadelphia," erected a sundial and consigned to the grave all watches, alarm clocks and cuckoos. Serious objections raised by another couple (Grace Cranston and Howe Martin) and the intervention of Mrs. Stubbs and the practical maid (Marjorie Beer) resulted in both standard time and sun time giving place to dinner time.

A number of one-act plays will be given by other members of the society in the near future.

BEQUEATHAL

I
Oh, you dreamer of dreams,
You have given me sunrise,
And white roses wrapped in dew.
Like the tears from a baby's eyes.
And in the flaming of a crimson sunset
You have given me a long-forgotten vow,
For across the distance I have remembered your dreams —And I'll hold them forever now.

II

Oh, you singer of songs,
You have given me golden rhyme,
For I have heard you singing in the night
With only the stars to keep time.
And in the crooning of a lullaby
I have remembered your vow,
For all through the years I have walked with your voice,
—And I'll keep it forever now.

III

Oh, you builder of mansions,
Come with me only awhile,
For I have grown weary and day is so long
And the road stretches on, mile by mile.
But I've taken your dreams and all of your songs
And I'll try to remember just how,
For I've reached up to heaven and taken your hand,
—And I'll hold it forever now.

THE GIFT OF LIFE

Let the past as twilight be,
Sorrow all be dead,
Let the dawn for you and me
Lift a lovelier head.
Never anguish pressed the heart,
Never beauty died,
But their fair immortal part
Lives on sanctified.

So, when shines the morning-star
Griefs steal hence and home,
And from sorrows, streaming far,
Perfect song shall come.

Time and tears our portion seem,
But all these above
Wakes one truth like April dream:
Out of life comes love.

SUNDAY EVENING SONGSTER

The programme of the songster to be held in the Music Room of Hart House on 12th February at 8.45 p.m. will be drawn almost entirely from "The Beggar's Opera." Mr. J. Campbell McInnes will give a brief talk on "The Beggar's Opera."

The programme is as follows:

1. Praise, my Soul, the King of Heaven.
2. Through all the employments of life.
3. Virgins are like the fair flower.
4. Our Polly is a sad slut.
5. Can love be controlled by advice?
6. O Polly, you might have toy'd and kist.
7. My heart was so free.
8. Over the hills and far away.
9. Fill every glass.
10. If the heart of a man is depressed with care.
11. Youth's the season made for joys.
12. How happy could I be with either.
13. Cease your funning.
14. The modes of the court.

One by one the members of "The Varsity" staff are disappearing into the hospital in sad succession. We are still on our feet and have not yet chosen our complaint; and when it arrives, we expect to have no say in the matter.

C—C

We have just recently returned from a mixed debate in the U.C. Parliament. The argument was as to whether ladies should be allowed into Hart House for the proposed mixed teas which will be held in the Tuck Shop. One member fixed a baleful eye on us and delivered himself of this pronouncement: "Think of what the sweet presence of women in Hart House would do to remove the bitterness toward all things that one sees on the faces of members of the Varsity Staff." No women could ever remove that bitterness existent upon our dial; they placed it there many years ago.

It was rather humorous to see all the ladies sitting on the side of the "Noes," affirming that they did not care to go to Hart House—ever. Wait until the next Masquerade, and watch the brilliant gesture fade!

C—C

All hail to St. Patrick's young scion,
Neither Swedish, nor Scotch, nor Hawaiian,
Who is Editor now,
For the wreath of the brow
Of the eminent Josephus Ryan.

Faculty Tea Held

The weekly faculty tea, pleasant at any time, was rendered doubly so yesterday by the whistling winds and slithering sleet without and the homely warmth within. Mrs. E. S. Moore and Mrs. Grant Brown received, while Mrs. Cana, Mrs. Clewson and Mrs. Brown poured.

15. In the days of my youth.
16. Come sweet lass.
17. Which way shall I turn me?

SENIOR AND JUNIOR EXHIBITION BASKETBALL GAMES TO-NIGHT

SPEAKING OF SPORT

To-morrow afternoon in the Arena the league leading Varsity Seniors entertain the hard fighting Marlboros, and they must come through with a win if they hope to keep at the top of the heap. All four teams in the race this year are fairly evenly matched. Kitchener and Marlboros have been kept out of the running by one and two goal margins, while Preston and Varsity are so evenly matched that we would hate to place a bet on either. Peterboro was the weak sister of the league, being forced to drop out on account of no support.

To-night in the Big Gym at Hart House the Senior and Junior basketball teams are staging a double bill in exhibitions when U.T.S. struts their stuff at 7.30, and University of Niagara at 8.30. The Juniors are handicapped by having no schedule to play, but they have been practicing steadily all along and should give a good account of themselves. As we all know, the Seniors have been going like champions and look like sure title winners this year. Not much is known of the American team to be entertained this week, but anything that has University of Niagara tacked on its sweaters is bound to be good; just is their reputation.

Now that the Interfaculty Assault is over, the winners have to devote their time to preparations for the Intercollegiate Assault, which is being held in Toronto this year on Friday and Saturday next. This assault comes to Toronto only once in three years, and the fans should not miss the opportunity of seeing Intercollegiate calibre when it is offered to them. Toronto has won the title for the past couple of years, but many of the old stand-bys have left and a lot of promising newcomers have stepped into their places. The result is that there is bound to be a lot of uncertainty in this year's tournament. Both Queen's and McGill have strong entry lists, so the battle for the title will be wide open.

While the Intercollegiate assault is taking place here next Friday and Saturday, the swimmers will be doing their best up in Montreal. Friday will see the water poloists splashing around in a pool in our sister province, while the swimming meet will take place the night following. "Bill" Winterbourne has been at the boys for some time past and has rounded out a nice team of swimmers and poloists. The latter have had lots of practice in interfaculty fixtures, and lately were using the U.T.S. tank in order to become accustomed to a shallow tank. The Hart House pool is deeper than the one to be used next week.

And while we are talking about wrestling, the mat artists might keep in mind the fact that whenever O.A.C. men won an event, that same event or weight is still wide open as far as making the Intercollegiate team is concerned. The Agriculturalists cannot represent the U. of T. on an assault team, so all aspirants are warned not to break training for a while yet. The open weights are 135, 145, 174 and possibly one or two more. See Mr. Martin for details.

WOMEN'S EXHIBITION GAME WITH AURA LEE SATURDAY

Team Fresh From Victory Over Queen's Expects to Gain Laurels

Saturday afternoon at 1.30 sharp the Varsity women's hockey team will play an exhibition game against Aura Lee at the Arena. A double-header will be featured, the second game being Varsity O.H.A. against the Marlboros. Last Friday the Varsity women's team played an excellent game at Queen's and came home with the laurels by a score of 5-2. The exhibition game on Saturday should be a thriller. Aura Lee has always had a strong team. (Varsity team has not defeated them since about the year 1.) But this time the Blue and White team are going to give Aura Lee a good stiff game. Many of the players on the Aura Lee team are former Varsity players, including Doris Ross, centre, Janet Allan on right wing, and Marj Ross and Ev. Wilmott on defence, the latter being the brightest star at last winter's Varsity swimming meet. Babette Barr, who was in occupational therapy and played a sterling game for the championship

U.C. team in the interfaculty series last term, is playing wing for Aura Lee. The goalie, Athol Wesley, is well known in Varsity circles, especially for her coaching in various women's sports at University College. Th other players on Aura Lee are Molly Trinell, Babs Goulding and Beverly Grant, a Margaret Eaton student.

The Varsity line-up is as follows: Goal, Pat Tilston; defence, Eve Powell, Jessie Mooney; centre, Norma Bateman; left wing, Eileen Ditchburn; right wing, Helen Hilliard; subs, Vi. Murphy, Chris Kellock, Dot McNaughton. Miss Cecil Cassels, the Varsity manager, also stated the possibility of using Jean Bateman and Adele Statton from the Vic. and U.C.C. teams, because as this is an exhibition game it will not disqualify them.

Miss Cassels, Mr. Armstrong, the Varsity coach, and those who have seen the Blue and White team practising, expect a real game. Come out and give the girls your support!

The University of Washington announces that 496 students, or more than 6½ per cent of the entire student body, flunked the first semester. This is the largest number in the history of the University.

VICTORIOUS SENIORS TO FACE MARLBOROS

After Day's Rest Varsity Senior Hockey Team to Encounter Marlboros First Time

TWO TEAMS IN GOOD SHAPE

What a busy week-end this will be for the Varsity Seniors. Last night they played U. of Montreal, and to-morrow at 2.30 they meet Marlboros in the first game of the season between these two teams. Marlboros have been slipping a little lately, but are nevertheless not a team to be trifled with.

Marlboros will present a galaxy of stars, of whom Harry Watson of the old Granite team is probably the best known. Harry has not been playing as much as usual this year, but can still be counted on to provide much of his old time brand which made him a terror for rival defences and goalkeepers. Baker, the Dukes goalkeeper, ranks with the best and has been playing hockey in various leagues for many years. Of the remainder of the team, McPherson, Scotty Bruce and Heintzman are probably best known to Varsity hockey fans.

Varsity with a good day's rest between games should be in perfect condition and ready to play winning hockey. The team is in good shape and will have no alibis if defeated. Mac King is greatly missed, but fortunately for the team young McMullen has stepped into the pivot position with a vengeance and is playing really smart hockey. Another youngster who is likely to make his presence felt is Stewart. He is a capable relief man, and with this season's experience should be ready for the best company. On the front line Harley and Richards are two very smooth working players not particularly flashy but very effective. Along with McMullen they form as nice a forward line as the Blue have had in years. With Whitehead definitely back and Kirkpatrick as his team mate, Varsity are well fortified defensively, especially with a goalie like Snyder back of him. Murray is as cool as an Eskimo pie and handles shots directed at him to perfection.

Don't forget the crowd has a good deal to do with making or breaking an otherwise good game. Last Saturday's turnout was a revelation of what can be done with a little effort and sacrifice of some of the too numerous "pink teas." The game to-morrow should be every whit as good as last Saturday's with Varsity and Marlboros both determined to win.

Intercollegiates Down West End Y.M.C.A.

The Intercollegiate water polo team downed West End Y on Wednesday night by a score of 5-0. The West End team showed plenty of fight and were fairly fast in the water. They were unable to cope with the passing and shooting of the Intercollegiate forward line, however. The game was fairly close throughout and provided plenty of practice for the Toronto squad, which will be leaving for McGill next week.

NIAGARA UNIVERSITY PLAYS HERE TONIGHT

American Basketball Will Prove Tough Nut for U. of T. Stalwarts

VERY FAST GAME EXPECTED

Can the Niagara University cage quintet stop the triumphant march of the Blue and White five? The Varsity Intercollegiate basketball team is going like the well-known house in flames, and any team that can knock off the big Blues is one real smart team. The Niagara New York University team is one of the scrappy teams that is famed in inter-university competition across the line, and basketball on the other side of the boundary is a major sport that comes into being as the only winter sport of any moment with our American friends. The American style of play is quite different than that of the Canuck form, the U.S.A. lads depending a very great deal on working the leather right under the nets, and possession with them is of utmost importance. Their ball handling is simply short of marvellous, and the way they break in for the passes and get the plays off to the dot is a treat for the sore eyes of any student. If you want to treat your weary optics with speed and more speed just drop over to the Hart House gym to-night and take in this game.

You will be treated not only to a Senior affair but the Varsity Juniors hook up with the U.T.S. five in what promises to be a real battle. The Blue Juniors have been greatly handicapped of late with the unfortunate luck of not being able to find grouping in the leagues of the city, so the T. and D. A.B.A., the body that governs the game for the city and its suburbs, has given the Blue kids' team a place in the play-offs. Pretty soft, you say. Well, no, hard games make a team really good, and the Blues have lacked that, so this hitch up to the fast travelling University School team means a chance for the Varsity boys to take a real crack at what is supposed to be a team that is as good as the best in minor circles.

But coming back to the big game of the evening, The Niagara team, although they are rated as one of the fastest teams in and around the New York State, will have no cinch with the McCutcheon stalwarts, who are going particularly well now.

Just scan these names, and if you are following basketball they mean a great deal: Faber, Mitchell, Sharpe, Putnam, Burns, forwards; Newman, Johnston, centre; Currie, Sakler and Hurwitz, defence. A team picked out of this is sure to give any he-man's team a real scrap.

After the Junior game, which starts at 7.30, will come the big scrap, and then the "Music from 10 to 12" for those with twitching toes.

For the sake of the fans, here are the names of the visitors with the numbers that they will wear on their sweaters: Curran (3), Heffernan (4), Quigley (5), Cadzow (6), Mason (1), Fox (8), Schoad (2).

mand. In order to cope with this problem the U.T.A., an organization of printers of the North American continent, had provided a fourfold remedy. Firstly, they had investigated the problem thoroughly and had provided, and were declaring printing could help a man's business. What the industry required, then, was efficient salesmen who could convince business men of the value of printing. The second phase of the remedy consisted in a course in salesmanship. Thirdly, in order to follow up the course, sales clubs had been formed to discuss sales problems of the printing industry. Fourthly, there was now being prepared proper equipment for the salesmen.

As to the future, the speaker pointed out that the struggle would evolve not between the different members of the printing industry proper, but between the different units of it—the newspapers, trades journals, magazines and the job printers.

Marlboro-Varsity Game to Be Played in Afternoon

ority as received by Dr. Porter from the Board of Governors is not very specific, as it states that all students in the University not already vaccinated must be done. Dr. Porter is of the opinion that although this refers to all students, it will be practically impossible under present conditions to enforce this regulation throughout the whole University. Those who are entering the first and second years will be severely checked up, however, when they undergo their compulsory medical examination at the beginning of the term.

composed, satisfied and conscious that he had performed the work he set out to do. This attitude was the cause of much criticism later, but even Johnson, who did not like him, admitted his quality of sublimity. Wordsworth emphasized the superhuman elevation of Milton's mind and work. Poetry to Milton was no academic pleasure but a supreme joy which made him contemptuous of lesser lights. The astonishing quality of his poetry is not his austerity and sublimity but a beauty springing from a passionate and emotional nature. In some respects Milton was as sensuous as Keats and extremely susceptible to emotional impressions associated with the other senses.

The man who had grown in personality and success was the man who had entered into and made his own certain eternal principles of life. side of the house would not be able to participate. Tea drinking at Hart House would, he thought, be appropriate since there was generally something brewing there anyway. Tea drinking, he said, was conducive to health, and quoted Dr. Ranting of Hamilton as his authority. He contrasted the vigour of the tea drinking nations, England, China and India, with the laziness of the people of the United States, who could do nothing without the aid of labour-saving devices.

Miss Helen McCallum, in opposing the motion, said that the custom would not create good manners. Russia, which drank tea not by the cup but six or seven tall glasses of it at a time, was not to be commended as an exemplary nation. At these teas conversation would be impossible on account of the noise. The fact that they would incur extra expense would increase the resentment of the men, who already objected to women in the University and considered Hart House their only refuge.

Mr. Lionel Gelber, defending the motion, said that the entrance of women into Hart House would bring about equality of women with men.

"You know not what you do," said Miss Isabel Brown to the men defending the motion. If the men pursued a policy such as this, she prophesied that in a few years it would be they and not their wives who would have to prepare the meals at home. To go to tea with her hero would destroy a college girl's illusions and send her home in tears, she thought. The Thursday teas had not been a success, nor would the Hart House ones be any more so. They would neither conduce to good manners nor give students an opportunity to become acquainted. Their effect would be that women would over-run Hart House to such an extent that in 1938 "The Varsity" would announce a debate as to whether men should be allowed to attend the Hart House teas.

VARSITY SENIORS DOWN U. OF M. AT MONTREAL

Play all goes up to the U. of M. goal and there are many sallies, but Labrecque is on the go and saves them good, even though he has to fall down for a good few of them. As a French rush goes down there are five rooters who give the U. of M. yell, and the noise echoes like voices in the tomb. The play has been going for five minutes now and the first shot on Snyder has just been taken. McMullen is away for a good rush but the shot went high. Micheal took a shot on Snyder from half-way and the goalie was just able to turn it round the posts. The U. of M. are on the aggressive but this appears to be caused because the Blue men are not exerting themselves very much.

Gagne went through the Varsity defence with three men after him, and his shot was only frustrated when within six feet of Snyder. Page and Lafrance each take individual efforts, and while the latter was rather unlucky, Page skated round the net twice before he put in the first goal of the game, much to the surprise of all concerned. It was an individual effort and he deserved the goal. Up to the present U. of M. have been without Ratte, who skates down in fine style. Kirkpatrick is the man who Varsity are all out for the win now and the scoring began when Richards went down and netted one, while it was but ten seconds after when he added the second for Varsity. Ratte goes off for heavy work, and in the tussle round the goal Devins added the third. Things are going in a procession. Lafrance is doing good work for Montreal, but all his shots are too long. McMullen had a good chance with a rebound but fumbled.

A break down the ice by Montreal results in Ratte netting the second for the Gold and Blue. Raymond lost the puck in a chance that was not likely to be repeated. More spirited play finished the period, with the Montreal team getting the best of the breaks.

Penalties—Ratte.

Montreal get away good, but Ratte is brought down scoreless. Lafrance is on the offensive, and Montreal seems determined to tie the score.

Play is getting to be on the rough side. An exciting minute inside Varsity's blue line brings no score. Kirkpatrick and Stewart get away on a good passing act, but fail to score. Richards missed a good pass from Kirk. Whitehead comes to the front with some good work and is stopped forcibly once by Ratte, who gets a holiday. Richards goes down good, but the pass from which he netted was offside. Two minutes to play and there seems no possibility of a further score, as each side is showing signs of tiring. Varsity are pressing all the time now, and keep so to the end of the period.

Prof. Ross Aiken Gortner, noted United States chemist and authority on colloids, a form of cancer, in addressing the Royal Canadian Institute in Convocation Hall, outlined the history of the growth of colloidal chemistry during the past twenty years, before which time little of that science was known.

Prof. Gortner spoke on "colloid chemistry and living processes."

Explaining that the colloids are not a special kind of matter as was formerly believed, but rather a special state of matter, he showed how any material can, under proper conditions, be brought into the colloidal state.

In nature most materials concerned in the living processes are found in the colloidal state. Muscle, nervous tissue, the blood, the skin and hair

DENTISTRY AT HOME ATTRACTS HUNDREDS

Guests Include Representatives From Many Other Colleges

FLOWERS FOR FAVOURS

The Faculty of Dentistry held their annual at-home in the Pompeian Room of the King Edward Hotel on Friday night. Members of the faculty, graduates, undergraduates and their guests voted the evening a social success. The columns, walls and ceiling of the ballroom were decorated with garnet and sky blue—the dental colours. The orchestra drew rounds of applause from the couples for their programme of dance music, which included the latest fox trots, medleys of old favourites, and several dreamy moonlight waltzes. A very picturesque effect was produced in the latter as beams of coloured light played over the guests and among the shadows.

Hiram Berry, "the singing bellhop," was an instant success with his novelty jazz singing from time to time during the entertainment. Supper was served following the seventh dance in the Pickwick Room, which was also decorated.

The head table took the form of a large "T" at which were seated Dr. and Mrs. Wallace Secombe, Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Webster, Dr. and Mrs. A. D. A. Mason, and representatives from Queen's, McGill, O.A.C. and

ANGLICAN PRAYER BOOK DISCUSSED BY ST. MIKE'S

Many Speeches at Regular Meeting of St. Michael's Oratorical Club

The regular weekly meeting of the Oratorical Club of St. Michael's College took place Friday evening, Feb. 10. The Anglican Prayer Book was the topic of the address delivered by Tom Mooney, president of the club. He outlined the nature of the alterations made in the prayer book which had been rejected by the British parliament. Another revision is in course of preparation.

Joe Ord expressed the need for reform in the system of lectures about the University. He declared that the number of lectures for third and fourth years should be reduced, and suggested a better grouping of them in order to permit of more independent study.

Random thoughts on a University career was the theme of Geo. Power's speech. In his case, declared the speaker, a college course had developed a questioning attitude towards most problems. A brief open house discussion followed this speech.

The registration now approaches 750. A committee has been appointed by the Victoria College Senate to look

MR. A. Y. JACKSON SPEAKS ON NORTH

Artist Describes Scenery and Life in Hudson's Bay District

AT MRS. KIRKWOOD'S TEA

Mr. A. Y. Jackson gave a most amusing account of his voyage north with Dr. Banting last summer, at Mrs. Kirkwood's tea at the Union.

They travelled on a government steamer sent north to explore. At their first stopping place, Godhaafen, they invited the inhabitants on deck and entertained them by a movie. Mr. Jackson described the Eskimo's expert way of hopping across ice blocks. Their houses were built of whale-bone, canvas, and pieces of biscuit-tins. He thought the husky dogs acted under the impulse of mental telepathy and were exceedingly "floppy." The speaker told how they proceeded across Baffin Bay pounding through the big ice-fields, and when the sun shone in the middle of the night the artists would sit on the bridge and sketch.

They went as far north as Capt. Cook, visiting Devon Island, Ellsmere Islands and Etah, the winter headquarters for explorers. Mr. Jackson mentioned Sergeant Jay, who, although not a scientist, handed in reports of great value concerning water, flora, fauna and government.

They also followed the route across the Arctic taken by Franklin and Perry. They found food left 70 years ago, undecayed. Blocked by ice, they returned across Hudson Bay, along the Labrador coast to Montreal.

FUNDS ENTRUSTED TO BANK MANAGERS

Undergraduate Accounts Are Usually Rather Small

OF DOUBTFUL VALUE

Stimulated by the great interest shown by the President and others in the financial status of the University student, "The Varsity" obtained first-hand information regarding the issue from several sources. The reporter first visited the Bursar's office and found that students' cheques were not cashed except in payment of fees, in which case the cheque was to be marked. Professors' cheques were cashed, except when the money was not available, which was often the case as receipts were turned in daily.

On interviewing the managers of various banks in the neighbourhood of the University, it was found that a great many students kept bank accounts. The bankers were all agreed that, as a general rule, these accounts were too small to be worth while from a present financial standpoint unless there were quite a number. Most of those questioned, however, laid emphasis upon the fact that a great many students, when older and having accounts which would be really appreciable, would continue to do business with the bank with which they had had their accounts during their student days, and that, on account of the probable future connection, the student accounts were valuable.

One manager expressed a different opinion: "We like to accommodate people in our district, especially students, because the habit of thrift is a good one to cultivate in young people. I do not consider them of great importance for the future."

The opinion of another was that the chief reason for a student doing business with any particular bank was that his parents dealt with that bank. "Very often," he said, "the parents themselves open an account for their son or daughter in the bank of their selection, which is practically always the one in which they have their own accounts, because of the facilities for transferring money."

The majority of students were found to entrust their shekels to the banks instead of hoarding them in a sock under the pillow or burying them in some secret cache. They periodically deposit money in the bank, or have it transferred there, and withdraw it in small quantities as they need it. Some students, however, have their wherewithal sent down from home in comparatively small quantities when the hogs are taken to market, or some other transaction makes possible the sending of another instalment to keep the ambitious off Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Should Vaccination be the Rule?

Do you think that students should be vaccinated on entering college?

K. S. Armstrong, I, Eng. Hist. and Phil.: Yes, I do, because it's hardly fair for a residence to be quarantined on account of one student who has failed to take the necessary precautions.

L. C. H. Jenkins, III, S.P.S.: Personally, I think it should be done. It's a preventative measure and its efficiency is shown by the fact that those who contracted smallpox in the residences last fall were all unvaccinated cases.

M. R. Culbert, III, Dents: It all depends on where. P. A. Gardner, III, Classics: I haven't the faintest idea. G. W. C. IV, Meds: The vaccination of all students entering University in their first year combines the sound principles of economics and practical preventive medicine as has been indicated by the speedy control of the recent outbreaks.

S. Raxlen, II, Dents: Yes, I think they should. It is a thing for the good of the whole student body.

R. Barnes, III, S.P.S.: Yes, it is a safeguard against the rest of the students.

TRIALS OF OUR STATESMEN

To have been abducted, shaved, paddled, pummelled and ducked in a lake was the interesting experience recently of the president of the students' association at the University of Washington (State). He might claim to be a pioneer among student statesmen in undergoing such treatment, for although at least one student editor has been bounced by this time every year, either by the faculty or the student government, the presidents of studies bodies have managed generally to escape severe criticism and the personal violence that marks this particular case.

The offence of this executive seems to have been that he criticized strongly proposals and expenditures suggested by the graduate manager and alumni members of the board in control of student affairs. He carried this opposition into the columns of city newspapers and was attacked in turn by the University of Washington Daily, which either induced or reflected a considerable body of opinion against him. The official he had criticized was upheld by his colleagues on the board. The next night nine hooded men appeared and took the student president "for a ride." The ride was conducted along the lines of the French revolution in that the abductors first conducted a debate against the policies of their victim and ended by dipping him intermittently in Lake Washington, at the end of a rope.

The University of Washington Daily considered the action to have been indicative of public opinion but opined that the method was "childish." The abduction may or may not prove that there was a majority feeling against the student leader, in our opinion, and, moreover, we have learned from watching previous disputes in other universities that we cannot gauge the general attitude by reading the newspapers. In the big universities in the States where student government has become highly organized and complete, there is always the danger of the official paper becoming the organ of a faction. The final decision in all disputes should rest in the student body, but the majority are naturally more interested in their studies and athletics than in following political sessions. They pay their fees and then by their apathy allow energetic minorities to gain control. This is an instance of where we have to decide whether the nine hooded individuals were members of an extremely energetic minority or the enraged representatives of the sovereign people.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

We sympathize with the protest against garrulous representatives in Students' Council expressed in "Bourenot's" letter. Nevertheless we cannot agree that "Those of the student body who attend the open meetings will at once be inclined to condemn not the representatives who stay away, but the representatives of the smaller faculties who, by their flights of oratory drag the meeting on long past the appointed time." It is surely the lesser evil to have over-enthusiastic representatives than those who do not attend to their duties. If it were a virtue to stay away from parliaments, there would never have been any necessity for the works on parliamentary procedure written by "Bourenot's" namesake. The choice of representatives lies with the student body and we merely pointed out that we did not think it in the interest thereof to allow men to be elected who would not take their duties seriously.

A vote of thanks was recently expressed by the Council of the Faculty of Medicine to Fire Chief Russell in recognition of the work of the department at the recent fire.

The creation of a new University Avenue, with new Botanical Gardens on College Street, is among the plans advanced by Premier Ferguson at the Legislature.

Art, Music and Drama

Cyrano de Bergerac

In reviewing the various productions of amateur dramatic societies, one so very often finds himself constrained to pass gently over inevitable flaws on one hand, and on the other to praise lavishly the unexpected brilliance of an amateur presentation, but the splendid nature of the seventh annual production of the Trinity College Dramatic Society may be treated as one would criticize a professional offering—and yet not suffer in the judgment. "Cyrano de Bergerac," even in its premiere was a production that may be described only in superlatives. When one considers that the T.C.D.S. undertook the greatest drama in the French language, and not only acquitted themselves of the task nobly, but made the undertaking memorable in character, the hypercritical reader may be able to pardon what might seem a too-enthusiastic appreciation.

When Edmond Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac" was first produced in 1895, all Paris hailed him as the successor of Pierre Corneille and Victor Hugo, for not since "Le Cid" and "Hernani" had so inspiring and heroic a figure as the idealistic poet-swordsman-lover, Cyrano de Bergerac, appeared in the world of drama. Cyrano belongs to that immortal company of Romeo, Lear, Le Cid, Faust, Hernani, Peer Gynt and Saint Joan. He is one of the great dramatic heroes of all time. The original Cyrano of the French stage was Coquelin, and in the English version the late Richard Mansfield achieved fame. Recently Walter Hampden played for an entire year in New York in the role.

After paying due compliment to a large and most capable cast, a technical staff of rare ability, and excellent direction, one is forced to admit that the success of such a plan depends largely upon the portrayal of Cyrano himself, for it is almost a one-man play. During the entire five acts, Cyrano dominates the action. From the moment when he arises from the pit of the Théâtre de Bourgogne to castigate the ogling tragedian Montfleury until he dies in the Convent Garden challenging the phantoms of Falsehood, Prejudice and Compromise, Cyrano himself is the play, and from the Homeric stature of his ideal spirit, the play derives its lasting greatness. In a corrupt, sparkling age and society when intriguers, office-seekers, hypocrites, libertines, wits, précieuses and vain gallants filled Paris, the soul of Hercule Savinin Cyrano de Bergerac, poet, soldier, gentleman, swordsman, lover and steadfast idealist shone like a star above the mean brilliance of his surroundings.

To find adequate words to describe the acting of W. Lyndon Smith as Cyrano is very difficult. To call his portrayal acting is almost effrontery, and it is perhaps best simply to say that he fully comprehended, realized, and revealed the animating spirit of Cyrano underlying the play, and having done these things, he made an immortal figure live again. In his lines there was certainly, restraint, dignity and clearness, clothed in an intensity devoid of all rant, that bane of romantic tragedy. His portrayal shaded the gallantry of Cyrano with a quiet sadness that added a perfect touch, and his delivery of the lines in the balcony scene was remarkable for its modulated crescendo of feeling. But it was in that glorious death-scene of the last act that Mr. Smith's acting reached heights that made it the equal of any portrayal that we have seen in (Continued on page 4)

CONDEMNNS ORATORY AT S.A.C. MEETINGS

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

With regard to your excellent editorial of February 10 regarding the lack of interest shown by S.A.C. representatives, may I say that those of the student body who attend the open meetings will at once be inclined to condemn not the representatives who stay away, but the representatives of the smaller faculties who, by their flights of oratory drag the meeting on long past the appointed time for closing.

If these forensic exhibitions were confined to topics of vital interest, some justification could be found; but when they rant against what seems inevitable to the Council, the meeting degenerates into utter boredom and nothing is accomplished.

At the same time, these members occupy themselves with constitutional and other questions whose answers would be self-evident if a little forethought were given the matter.

It is indeed a privilege and a responsibility to be a member of the Council, but when the privilege is abused by some of the more volatile members, it seems to an onlooker, at least, perfectly excusable to automatically terminate a meeting which is verging on the futile by walking out.

In conclusion, I might suggest that some parliamentary means of soft-peddling the loquacity at S.A.C. meetings would help to clear up the lamentable situation which is brought to the public eye by your able editorial. A member of the Council is my authority for this statement.

I am, yours,

VARSITY SENIORS PLAY KITCHENER TO-NIGHT AT KITCHENER

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Another successful week-end has passed into sporting history of the University of Toronto. It was a protracted week-end, but it surely was good. Thursday the Intercollegiate tied up the Queen's Cup race by defeating U. of M. on their home ice. Friday saw the Senior and Junior basketball teams split on a double bill of exhibitions. Niagara U. was nosed out by one point in a very exciting finish, while the U.T.S. showed decided superiority to the local Juniors.

On Saturday afternoon the Senior and Intermediate O.H.A. teams came out ahead of Marlboros and Brampton. And that's about all for this week.

The game on Thursday necessitates a play-off between Varsity and McGill, and Ottawa is suggested. It seems a shame to have an Intercollegiate play-off in a city which has no particular interest in the game. Why not have some trusted party flip a coin and give the game to Montreal or Toronto? Ottawa will not draw many students from either of the universities.

so thrilling. And the big gym was but half filled.

The Juniors showed that they have not been having many games this year and the ragged game was the result. It was about their third exhibition of the season, and they need many more if they expect to do much in meeting the winners of the other Junior sections. At that the kids showed signs of good playing, as the combination was neat, but weak shooting spoiled good work. U.T.S. has a few who can drop baskets with great ease.

A three-cornered tie has resulted in the Intermediate group, and on Saturday at the Mutual Street Arena the Varsity Seconds reduced it to two when they defeated Brampton 2-1. On Monday they play Newmarket to decide who shall enter the semi-finals. With Coach Robson laid up with the "flu" the Seconds will have to watch their step now in order to remain in the running.

The Varsity-Marlboro game was a walk-around, and the Blue Seniors did not even have a good work-out. They ran in the goals by bunches, and then sat back and watched the visitors work—carelessness cost the Blues four goals, the first one striking the "funny-bone" of the fans. Captain "Herb" Kirkpatrick seemed to enjoy himself by rushing up the ice and then refusing to shoot, at least that was what it looked like to us.

To-night they journey to Kitchener to take on the Green Shirts, and unless the wind blows the wrong way, a three-goal lead should be the margin of Varsity's win. Preston in the team, they have to be careful about, and the locals can take no chances with the Riversides.

The Intercollegiate Assault is being held in Hart House on Friday and Saturday next, and from all reports it should be the most closely contested assault staged in Intercollegiate circles for some time. Queen's have been making great strides under the coaching of Mr. Jarvis and will present a real threat, while McGill have always been well up in the competition. And that isn't saying anything about what Varsity will have to offer, for that offer has been good in the past and should be just as good this time.

Apparently the rules governing football in this province are quite satisfactory, for the Intercollegiate refused to alter theirs, and on Saturday afternoon the O.R.F.U. executive did not even attempt to tamper with them. That means that all Varsity teams next year will be playing under identical rules as in the past.

Women's Basketball

Will the following players turn out for practice at 1 o'clock to-day at McGill Street Y.W.C.A.: Edith Buchanan, Edith Blackwell, Marion Forward, Mildred Wilkins, Dorothy Ker, Grace Keffer, Frances Service, Alice Muckle, Emma Weir, Constance Smith, Jean Bateman.

There will also probably be a practice for the 2nd team this evening. For definite information as to hour and place see Mildred Wilkins (U.C.), Billy Button (St. Hilda's), or Eleanor Taylor (Vic.).

In rather a heated editorial the Amherst Student argues that the employing of a campus watchman who also spies on students, is not in accord with the honor system supposedly in force at the college.

MARLBORO SWAMPED BY VARSITY SENIORS

Loosely Played Game Results in 9-4 Win for Blue Team

HARLEY SCORES FOUR

When Marlboros brought out their entire Junior team on Saturday to play the Varsity Senior O.H.A. entry, the locals ably demonstrated that there was a wide difference between Junior and Senior hockey and easily romped home winners by a 9-4 score. Leading 8-1 at the end of the second period, the Blues became careless, and after allowing the visitors to run in three tallies, with fifteen seconds to go, Harley and Legon combined for the final goal on a pretty combination play, and "Mel" slapped in his team mate's rebound.

Three and a half minutes from the face-off, Whitehead went up the ice, and as he hit the defence, McMullen took the puck from the end of his stick and beat Baker on a clean shot. Harley, King and Richards each tested the visiting net guardian on hard shots, but it took a Kirkpatrick-Whitehead combination to register the second goal. The opposing forwards could not get past the Varsity defence and had to content themselves with long shots from the blue line.

The second period was the real goal scoring bee. The big sorrel-topped defence man went up alone, and after beating the entire team, he shot in a wicked one into the nets. Twenty-two seconds later Harley brought the total to four on a pass from behind the net by Whitehead. Snyder was not having a holiday, as he was called upon to turn aside some fast offerings of the McPherson brothers, though many of the shots were wide and from far out. Richards and McMullen broke fast on an intercepted pass and added another, while perhaps the neatest play of the entire game came when Kirkpatrick seemed bottled up in the corner. He passed the puck out from between his legs to McMullen, who scored.

Harley pulled his favourite dodge trick twice in a row and materially increased the total. This wing man scored four times during the game. It was Murry Snyder who brought the laugh from the crowd though. Connacher secured the puck just inside the Varsity blue line and lifted a long one. It floated through the air and Murray ducked to let it go by; but instead of going by, the disc dropped into the net for the visitors' first tally of the game.

LADY PUCK CHASERS LOSE TO AURA LEE

Varsity Combination Fails Against Opponents' Individual Brilliance

PAT TILSTON STARS

In an exhibition game Saturday afternoon at the Arena, Varsity women's Intercollegiate hockey team was defeated 2 to 1 by the fast travelling Aura Lees.

During the first period the teams appeared to be feeling out each other and were unable to score. The game livened up considerably in the second period when Eileen Ditchburn scored for Varsity from a scramble in front of the net. Babs Goulding, the snappy left wing of Aura Lee, scored twice for her team on individual rushes, placing her team one goal up. No further score was made, as the teams battled through the final period without further bulging the nets.

Varsity played a nice combination, which on hard ice would have resulted in more scoring. The puck was dead and many passes were overskated. At the beginning of the third period, Athol Wesley, goalie for Aura Lee, was injured and was replaced by Betty Brent, who played the position well. Ev. Wilmot on the defence was a stumbling block for Varsity forwards. Pat Tilston in goal for Varsity put up a splendid exhibition, and it was due to her watchfulness that the score was not larger. Helen Hilliard on the wings played a nice game but was unable to find the net.

Aura Lee: Goal, Athol Wesley; defence, Ev. Wilmot, Mary Ross; centre, Doris Ross; wings, Jeanette Allen, Babs Goulding; subs, Beverley Grant, Molly Trinell.

Varsity: Goal, Pat Tilston; defence, Eve Powell, Jessie Mooney; centre, Nora Bateman; wings, Eileen Ditchburn, Helen Hilliard; subs, Jean Bateman, Vi. Murphy.

was Murry Snyder who brought the laugh from the crowd though. Connacher secured the puck just inside the Varsity blue line and lifted a long one. It floated through the air and Murray ducked to let it go by; but instead of going by, the disc dropped into the net for the visitors' first tally of the game.

Line-up:

Varsity: Goal, Snyder; defence, Kirkpatrick, Whitehead; centre, McMullen; wings, Harley, Richards; subs, King, Legon.

Marlboros: Goal, Baker; defence, Horner, Irvine; centre, S. McPherson; wings, J. McPherson, A. Connacher; subs, Mercer, C. Connacher. Referee: Herb Matthews.

INTERFACULTY SPORTS

U.C. Cage Men Swamp Trinity by a Margin of 19 Points

Senior U.C. swamped their traditional rivals Trinity in a fast basketball match 35-16. The score at half time was 15-14 in favour of the U.C. men. In the second half the latter broke loose and found the basket for 20 points to the Anglicans' 2. The U.C. team played poorly in the first half, and only hard work on the defence kept the Anglicans from running up a score. In the second half they combined much better, and coupled with brilliant shooting, easily won out.

Stubbings on defence was easily the best for Trinity. Barrett turned in a good game the first half and was high scorer. For the U.C. team Corbett led in points, with Kopman playing a brilliant game. The whole team worked well in the last half, and on their form should win their group.

Sr. U.C.: Dell (6), Corbett (11), Maconachie (8), Scholfield (2), Kopman (8), Haight, Wishart, Henderson.

Trinity: Barrett (6), Stubbings (2), Berwick (1), Evans (2), Ralfe, Rapsey, Turnbull.

Sr. U.C. Triumph Over S.P.S. Forestry and Pharmacy Tie

In two closely contested Interfaculty hockey games played on soft ice Friday afternoon, Senior U.C. triumphed over Senior S.P.S. by 1-0; while Forestry and Pharmacy went the full time with 1-1 as the result. The ice was not in good enough condition to warrant overtime.

U.C. Co-eds Defeat Medettes by 1-0 on Slushy Cushion

U.C. stalwart players walked over Medettes with a score of 1-0 in a slow but sure match Saturday in a scheduled game at Varsity Stadium. Unfortunately the ice had melted, but both teams played the game. During the first period the puck went from goal to goal, but luck was with the goalies and no score was tallied.

The second period was a real thriller. Everyone was alert, but no one was quick enough for Adel Statten, U.C. defence, who after a vigorous attack shot the puck spinning right into the Medettes' net, winning the match for her team.

The third period was a repetition of the first and the game ended with a victory for U.C.

U.C.: Goal, Helen McKinley; wings, Dorothy Starr, Grace Martin; defence, Betty Donaldson, Adel Statten; centre, Wilma Speers; subs, B. Crocker, Fritz Anderson, Elizabeth Anderson.

Medettes: Goal, Kay Baldwin; wings, Dot James, Marg. Patterson; defence, Ev. Gee, Marian Laird; centre, Vi. Henry; subs, Gwen Mahon, Jean Mustard, Marg. Smith.

Hart House Theatre or any other. Cyrano's passing is unlike that of Shakespeare's heroes, for in it there is neither the weary frustration of Hamlet's, the impetuous escape of Romeo, nor the overwhelming, appalling sorrow of Lear, but a triumphant glory of courage as the undaunted idealist, sword in hand, faces the phantoms of vices and abuses that he had fought all his life.

To Miss Dorothy Langley as Roxane who made the beautiful précieuse a most appealing heroine, much praise must be given, especial for her work in that superb last act. Mr. C. L. M. Douglas as Christian de Neuville was excellent, and Mr. John Frank made a splendid Comte de Guiche. Fine bits were contributed by Margaret Stewart as the Duenna, F. S. Edgar as Le Bret, E. A. Brooks as Carbon de Castel-Jaloux, and V. B. Collins as Raguenaud.

The lighting, costuming, settings and scenery were perfect in effect, and for these compliments is due Mr. T. Tremaine-Garstang, G. O. Murrell-Wright and D. G. Guest.

"Mo" Mitchell Scores in Last Few Seconds of Game

SCORE 35--34

It looks good for a Varsity cage title this year. On Friday night at the Hart House gym the Blue and White Senior basketball team defeated Niagara University 35 to 34 in a game that provided plenty of hair-raising plays and moments at which the crowd rose to its feet to cheer on the magnificent playing of both teams.

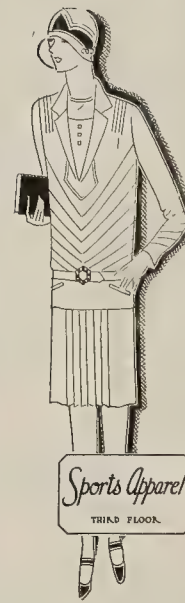

The game was nip and tuck from the start, with the big Blue team holding the famed Niagara team well in check, and at the same time was able to break at the half time gun with a two point lead, the scoring being 19 to 17. In the second half the Blue started with the Niagara quintet starting a great rally that found them up on the Varsity hopefuls by 9 counters. Then the McCutcheonites started the fireworks; they worked the ball in under the chains for score after score, and were within hailing distance when Hefferman, the flashy U. of N. forward, put the Falls team in the safe lead. With only a few minutes to go, Varsity again showed some real fight and came within one point of the visitors. Then the big thrill happened with only 20 seconds to go. Hurwitz made a perfect pass to "Mo" Mitchell, who potted the leather to win the game.

For the visiting team Hefferman played a most sensational game, scoring no less than 20 points and giving one of the finest displays seen here in many a day. Mason on the losers' defence was a power that checked superbly.

For the winners the forward line of Mitchell, Faber and Newman was outstanding, with Currie a bulwark of strength on the defence.

In the preliminary fixture U.T.S. won from the U. of T. Juniors in a rather loosely played game, 33 to 21. Hutcheon and Pasternak played well for the University team, the latter scoring 10 points. R. Coles and Marshall were best for U.T.S. with 9 and 5 points respectively.

RIFLE ASSOCIATION
INITIATES PROGRAMME

Sweepstakes and Match Shooting Expected to Revive Competition

The U. of T. Rifle Association has drawn up an interesting programme for the coming three months. Members have been grouped in classes according to past records, new members classed according to weekly scores, and all move up from class to class by improvement in shooting.

Sweepstake and match shooting for each class has been provided, and an association spoon or pin is awarded to member scoring highest in match shooting. Three members in each group have opportunity of winning sweepstake money three weeks in each month.

The range will be open for shooting from 4.15 to 6 Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons. Members who have lost interest because of lack of competition are sure of plenty of opposition now, and any who are fond of shooting should find in the numerous matches sufficient to attract their interest. Full details of scoring, matches, sweepstakes and challenge board are posted in the range and may be consulted when range is open.

STUDENTS OF VICTORIA COLLEGE VOTE FOR RESTRICTED ATTENDANCE

By Margin of Three Votes Mixed Gathering Supports Principle

VOTE 113-110

Lively Discussion and Large Gathering Feature This Important Debate

By a very close vote, the students of Victoria College showed themselves in favour of limitation of registration, when the affirmative of the resolution "Resolved that Victoria College should limit its numbers" was upheld by the narrow margin of 113-110, at the mixed debate held in the College Chapel last night before a crowded house. The affirmative was upheld by M. K. Kenny and Miss K. Christie, while the negative was supported by Miss Mary Coleman and W. Addison.

Rapid increase in registration in the past few years had brought Victoria College to the parting of the ways, stated Mr. Kenny. Should it follow the way of least restraint and continue to take all, or should it take the difficult way and start to restrict? This last way was the route to achievement.

It was said that the ideal democracy was to extend education to all, but in the practice of democracy it was very hard to achieve perfection. Thus today in the United States this had led to "a mob of people getting a small smattering of knowledge." So American educators were turning to the idea of specialization in honour courses. But this was already in Toronto, and so Victoria College, so situated and without political ties, was an environment ideal for a forward step, and in the words of the speaker, "Restriction is that forward step."

He outlined a natural plan of restriction—that of allowing all to come at first, and then restricting on the ground of ability at the end of the first year.

"What this country needs is not white collar men, but men who will work," emphasized Mr. Kenny. Our universities at present by turning out a surplus of white collar men were little more than training schools for the United States.

Surplus for the Year

In the twenty-first annual report of the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto, which was tabled before the legislature, it was indicated that the University had a surplus of $3,915 for 1927.

It was also shown that new Hygiene and Public Health buildings were erected during the year with the expenditure totalling $406,369. The new arena cost $225,000, of which $200,000 was paid by the athletic board. Further university properties were purchased for male residents at St. George Street at a cost of $66,334. Furnishings cost $12,000 extra.

The revenue for the year was $1,242,963. Scholarships and other incidentals amounted to $24,619, leaving the net revenue at $1,218,344. The legislative grant of $1,059,026 brought the available income to $2,277,370. Salary and maintenance costs $2,273,455, leaving a surplus for the year of $3,915.

NOTABLE SPEAKERS BROUGHT BY S.C.A.

Visiting Speakers as Well as Members of Staff Have Given Fine Series of Talks

LARGE AUDIENCES ATTEND

The following are a few of the interesting speakers which the Student Christian Association has introduced to undergraduates this year.

Mr. Roy Lee, a graduate of Sydney and Oxford Universities, visited Toronto last October, telling of student work in France, and other European countries.

Dr. Bruce Curry, of New York, spent four days here, leading student "life-problem" groups. He is one of the most attractive and vital personalities students have met for some time.

Miss Margaret Crutchfield, a recent graduate of Vassar College, spent a week-end with us in preparation for the Detroit Student Convention. She introduced us to a fresh and most stimulating view of missions.

Mr. Max Yergan, negro student secretary in South Africa, attracted large audiences in Convocation Hall, telling of his work among African students and of the great difficulties which surround the race question there.

Mr. Micklem of Queen's University, who spoke at the annual S.C.A. dinner in January, was one of the most enjoyable speakers. His whimsical and yet serious dialogue between Mr. A. and the D.P. (Mr. Micklem strongly suspected that "P" stood for parson), was one of the most thoughtful expositions on the subject of religion that has been heard in a long time.

Rabbi Isserman, Sir Bertram Windle, Dr. Richard Roberts, and Dr. J. R. P. Slater are outstanding religious leaders of the city, who have given time to address the students.

In addition, the following are some of the professors who have spoken this year: Principal Hutton, Professor W. T. Brown, Professor W. R. Taylor, Professor H. J. Davis, Professor Mercer-Wilson, Professor John Bailie, Professor Speakman.

B. W. & F. EXECUTIVE AMEND CONSTITUTION AFTER DISCUSSION

Favour Increasing the Fencing Team From Two to Three Men

NEW RULES FOR BOXERS

Amendments Were Recommended by the Intercollegiate Executive

At a meeting of the B. W. and F. executive on Friday evening the amendments to the constitution recommended by the Intercollegiate executive were thoroughly discussed and passed upon. Owing to an oversight, these amendments were not forwarded to the local executive at the beginning of the season and therefore could not be given the consideration desirable.

The following changes met with the approval of the executive: That for Intercollegiate assaults, it be necessary to weigh in at 12 noon on the first day of the assault. If the winner of a preliminary bout is incapacitated by that bout, the loser goes into the finals against the man who drew a bye. That the referee of a boxing bout shall remain outside of the ring. This is patterned after the Olympic rules, and those who have tried it find it very satisfactory.

In boxing, it was agreed that there be three 3-minute rounds instead of three 2-minute ones, and that there shall be no extra round. The referee and timekeeper shall count in unison in case of a knock down, and that the count shall start as soon as the man hits the floor.

The wrestling bout was to be divided into two 4½-minute bouts, with 30 seconds intervals between them; this is to replace the nine minute bouts which was the former ruling. The six minutes overtime is to remain as before. In case of a roll off the mat to avoid a fall, the contestants are to return to the centre of the mat with one man on top instead of both on their feet. The weight of 118 pounds instead of 117.

The executive was in favour of increasing the fencing team to three men instead of two, and that the man placing first shall count 2 points and second man shall count 1, and that (Continued on page 3)

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Self-Government For Students?

Do you think that University students should be entrusted with self-government, and why?

E. L. P., II U.C.: Oh, rather! T. W. O'B. Wilson, II Meds: No, I don't think they should in a large university.

D. R. Gunn, Meds III: It is a valuable training for those who actively participate, but the average student does not benefit greatly from it.

M. E. S., III U.C.: Most certainly. Eventually they must manage their own affairs, and there is no reason why they should not start here.

W. B. MacMurray, I English and History: Yes, I believe it to be an excellent training to enable one to solve the later problems of life.

Miss R. E. Reade, I Modern Languages: Yes, university students are old enough to be capable of managing their own affairs.

S. Wesley, II Forestry: Yes, I do. It develops their ability for government in later life.

FACULTY FEDERATION IMPRESSIVE RECORD OF THEIR GROWTH

Youngest Member of Federation is Faculty of Dentistry

MEDICINE TAUGHT AT KNOX

Professor Galbraith Learned in All Branches of Engineering

A commonly discussed feature in the growth of the University is the federation of Arts colleges. Worthy of prominence as is this feature, its scope should not exclude the development of various other faculties. They too have their history of affiliations and federations, dating back into history.

Priority in connection with the University is rightly claimed by the faculty of Medicine. The opening of Knox College in 1843 witnessed the first properly organized study of medicine in Ontario. The two-room medical building of that day would afford a striking contrast to the present structure. For some years the influence of Dr. John Rolph tended to keep the study of medicine distinctly separate from the University. While examinations and degrees were set and granted by this University it was not until 1887 that the faculty of Medicine came into being in the University of Toronto.

The faculty of Applied Science also shows a rapid growth. Fifty years ago, known as the School of Practical Science, it became a part of the University. In 1904 incorporation into the University as a separate faculty followed. A remarkable incident in its history is that of Professor Galbraith, who taught all branches of engineering. Since that time S.P.S. speaks for itself through its graduates.

The faculty of Dentistry, however, is the youngest child of federation. While examinations had been conducted previously by the University, it was not until 1925 that its present status was attained. A high standard, a reputation for efficiency mark it as being above the ordinary.

The faculty of Graduate Studies, instituted in 1922, shows a rapid growth. Before war time less than one hundred students was its quota; at the present time, under Dean McMurrich, there are about three hundred and fifty.

The faculties of Education, Forestry and Music, all of recent incorporation, are also rapidly developing branches of the University of Toronto.

LECTURE ON DRAMA MOST INSTRUCTIVE

Sheridan's "Rivals" Subject of Interesting Afternoon Speech

FOLLOWED BY TEA

On Sunday afternoon the undergraduates and alumnae of Loretto Abbey College and their friends had the pleasure of hearing a most interesting address by Sir Bertram Windle on the drama of the eighteenth century, and especially of Sheridan's "Rivals" which was presented by the Loretto College Players this term. After an outline of the history of the drama, the speaker gave a witty analysis of each character of the play, throwing many humorous sidelights on different lines, which were fully appreciated by the audience.

Rev. F. Kingston, S.J., moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer, and stressed his ability to "speak on any subject in the most interesting way possible."

Following the lecture, tea was served by the undergraduates, with Miss R. Sylvester, C. Nolan Fitzpatrick and V. Mueller pouring. During the course of the afternoon Miss M. Monroe sang delightfully "Duna," and a quartet from the Choral Club sang "Hark, Hark the Lark." Among the guests were Sir Bertram and Lady Windle, Rev. J. Kingston, Rev. J. O'Connor, Judge and Mrs. O'Connell, Dr. and Mrs. Temple, Mrs. Mulholland, Mrs. Watson and the members of the alumnae of the college.

LORETTA ANNUAL AT-HOME IS HELD AT CASA LOMA

Elaborate Evening Purse, Novelty Dance Prize, Won
by Miss Ethel Fry

On Friday evening the annual at-home of the undergraduates of Loretto Abbey College was held at Casa Loma. Dancing was held in the Oak Room, which was decorated with the college banners, while supper was served in the Conservatory. The novelty dance was won by Miss Ethel Fry, who received an elaborate evening purse. The patronesses were Lady Falconer, Lady Windle, Mrs. H. T. Kelly, Mrs. Roessler, Mrs. Mallon and Mrs. Harkins.

Tiny coloured bouquets were given as favours, and each detail of the evening was prettily arranged and carried out.

Montreal University Defeats McGill

SCORE WAS 6-5

Ten Minute Overtime Session Necessary

Montreal, Que., Feb. 13.—University of Toronto hockey squad gained Senior Intercollegiate honours for the tenth consecutive time when University of Montreal defeated McGill in the final scheduled match at the Forum here to-night. University of Montreal, fighting hard to regain the Beaubien Cup, emblematic of the local inter-varsity title, defeated the McGill squad after a ten-minute overtime session by a five to four score.

The gong ended on the regular sixty minutes with both squads deadlocked at four all, but after four minutes of overtime Ulrich Page, French centre player, broke clear of the McGill defence and beat Powers neatly to give Toronto Varsity the title and to give his own team the Beaubien Cup.

Play on the whole was unimpressive. The team played loose hockey, and opposing forwards had many chances to count, a great majority of which were spoiled by sloppy play.

The McGill team was weakened by the illness of Ralph St. Germain. The captain of the Red squad was in uniform and was on the ice long enough to score three of his team's four goals; but he required frequent rests, and shortly before the final gong he was veritably carried off the ice and was unable to appear for the overtime session. He suffered from a re-time session. (Continued on page 3)

"APPROACH OF GOD" SUBJECT OF SERIES

Dr. Fred MacCallum, Rabbi
Isserman and Dr. Slater
Will Speak

ALL STUDENTS WELCOME

The second series of noon-hour addresses, arranged by the Women's Student Association of University College, will take place on Wednesdays in the auditorium of the Union at 1.30 p.m.

The subject for this term is "The Approach of God"—in Mohammedanism, in Judaism, and in Christianity. Following the series on "The Search for Reality" in the various activities of life, these subjects should be interesting, as they further knowledge of the ultimate reality in three of the great religions of the world.

Dr. Fred MacCallum, who has spent most of his life in Turkey, and who is well acquainted with the world of Islam, will speak on Mohammedanism; Rabbi Isserman, the popular rabbi of the Holy Blossom Synagogue, will speak on Judaism; and Dr. J. R. P. Slater, the well-known minister of Old St. Andrew's Church, will speak on Christianity.

The first address is on Wednesday next on Mohammedanism. It is hoped that all students who are interested will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing these outstanding speakers.

A ROYAL ROAD TO LEARNING

Why waste four long years at College? In twenty-four hours you can develop a dynamic, forceful, fascinating personality. By spending fifteen minutes a day, within a few weeks you can become a powerful speaker. For twenty-five cents you may overcome self-consciousness, and learn to play the banjo in ten minutes. Six weeks will make an expert in French,—drafting may be learned at home, in your spare time. The art of piano-playing is masterable in six books, and for the small sum of three dollars you may acquire the magnetic power to influence the minds of men and women "to make them do what you want them to."

Such alluring advertisements are being circulated far and wide in paper and magazine. They beg you to become a "social asset"; they fairly shriek prosperity; they savour of golden streets, and fairy godmothers. They guarantee success, a position, and a chance to "earn while you learn." College offers four years of "intensity," and promises nothing. Four long years,—and at its close, what?—a certain amount of knowledge acquired, a deal of sport, perhaps—a smattering of language, and some social prestige. Whereas, in six months, spending fifteen minutes a day on each course, one could, supposedly, surpass the grandest hopes of the campus idol.

We have been taught that there is no royal road to learning. Such lurid advertisements would persuade us that there is. Either we have no right to be here, or else such dastardly designs should be effectively suppressed. Every day of the year, hosts of the ambitious, or gullible, part with their hard-earned shekels,—and are taken in.

The craze has gone far enough. And every knowledge-loving individual who cares for truth, and the search for truth, should rise up in defence of the University,—and true education.

LIFE AT COLLEGE

A student was once asked if at college he was adequately preparing himself for the life he would follow after graduation. The student replied that he was not preparing himself for life but was already living! We wonder if life about the Campus is typical of what we sometimes designate as "real life," or whether this is a strained period in which every kind of activity is pursued to excess. Whether the student who is at the head of things will be the student who will be at the head of things later on. Whether what is permitted, said, or done on the Campus, is the thing to be permitted, said, or done afterwards. Will the student who expresses his radical thought now, always give expression to his radicalism?

It is very true that the University is the centre of new thought and experiment, and it should be. It is also often the centre of new customs, and conventions. The serious minded youth does things he never dreamed of doing, or expects to do afterwards. He wished to be classified as "Collegian." He says there is a to-morrow in which to be what he really is. But if it is true that we are living now and not just getting ready to live, we are prototypes of what we will be later on. College becomes not four, five, or seven years in which to put in time, joyously, studiously, or any other way, but a time in which we are living as much as we shall live in the future.

The average cost of a four year course at the Ohio State University is estimated at $4,000. Three-fourths of this amount is personal cost of the student; the remaining expense is borne by the state and federal government.

Lafayette's debate team recently held a contest with Haverford debaters, neither team being informed of their subject until 48 hours before the time for the debate. Lafayette won the contest by a vote of the audience.

Art, Music and Drama

The Friday afternoon recital given in the Music Room of Hart House by Miss M. Downing, harpist, was charming in its intimacy. The soloist very kindly demonstrated the capabilities of her instrument, and throughout the programme delighted her audience with anecdotes connected with her numbers.

The music of the harp falls perhaps a little strangely upon ears accustomed to the sonorities of the pianoforte or the sustained vigour of bowed strings; it is the music of Elysium, soothing and wistful "music from nowhere." Miss Downing's programme was chosen with the express purpose of revealing the beauty rather than the power of the harp, and consequently transcriptions and numbers of dazzling brilliancy were absent. The artist aimed to delight, and that she succeeded was obvious in the enthusiastic applause which greeted her. The outstanding number was a Ballade of Hasselmans in which the composer has superimposed glissando passages upon a well-defined melody reminiscent of a Chopin nocturne. Miss Downing's skill and artistry in these continued glissando passages were particularly evident in the beautiful pianissimo conclusion of The Cascade, a study in falling cadences. We were disappointed that the Vardalle numbers were cut, but the substituted numbers pleased the audience.

"DISRAELI"—EMPIRE PROLOGUE

It was with no great feeling of safety that we settled ourselves in our wonted seat at the Empire this week, for last occasion we had been honest to the point of unfriendliness. In short, we had risen in critical indignation and launched a not-too-refined malediction upon the play (not the acting) of last week. We said a number of inflammable things about the maudlin sentiment of "The Home Towners," and we hoped that the Empire management had not seen or at least would overlook our previous blast. Just as all things seemed serene, the Lady-who-accompanys showed us the programme. There in cold type, on page two, was the following:

"Herewith we are printing two reviews of 'The Home-Towners' which we staged last week. The first is from Saturday Night, and the second from that bright little weekly paper, 'Varsity.' We are frank to confess that we are at a loss to know which is right. We sort of feel like the man and the donkey"—and following this little introduction there appeared our denunciation of Mr. Cohan's chef-d'oeuvre side by side with a dignified appreciation of the play written in "Saturday Night" by H. W. McM.

The foreword was wrong in referring to our paper as a bright little weekly, for ours is a daily, and it is (Continued on page 4)

CANADIAN LITERATURE

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Your editorial of Thursday last gives me a long-awaited opportunity to loosen my tongue in respect to the deplorable fit of classicism this university has indulged in for the last fifty (and more) years. Must we wait until every present professor is superannuated, before it will be possible to inform the undergraduates that the university is pre-war in its attitude? Or is the professional aristocracy so comfortably and firmly established that generation after generation will cling to the "beliefs, the ideals of our forefathers?"

Sir, it is time for a rebellion. You give the reasons why our prose literature is so unrelated to the events, the problems, the people of this nation: but the real propaganda should be a pamphlet of remedies presented to each and every professor, whatever his faculty—a tangible evidence of the undergraduate need for a rational interest in things Canadian. There is a feeling which must be interpreted sooner or later. Most quickly this will happen if there is a more intelligent and tolerant outlook on the part of the teaching body.

Yours very truly,

D. K. L.

With the Theatres

SHEA'S HIPPODROME

The management of Shea's Hippodrome are to be congratulated on their presentation this week. The entire entertainment is very good—both vaudeville and movies.

As usual, the opening act is an acrobatic one in which Norman and Norman perform very gracefully. The next act was an Irish one in which Thomas J. Ryan shows that youth is not an essential for the stage. He is accompanied in song, dance and conversation by Hazel Harrington. Following them, Reed and Lucy in a burlesque of concert tenor and accompanist throw the audience into a gale of mirth prolonged by the next performance, "The Monologist," a very unique one indeed, an original and refreshing change from the usual style. Finally Lloyd Ibach and Co. with some excellent music and clever dancing complete one of the best vaudeville bills ever seen here.

The feature presentation on the screen is "The Four Flushers," which although not anything you shouldn't miss, is light comedy and so thoroughly enjoyable. We whisper it—it was the Collegian cast starring Marion Nixon and George Lewis—but it is a changed one—one would never recognize it. We trust that is sufficient, honestly you wouldn't!

The comedy is good, and as a strange coincidence the News Review shows the Hollinger Mine in action. H.B. and R.T.

VARSITY WINS INTERCOLLEGIATE SENIOR HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity's Senior hockey team continued its triumphant march with last Saturday's victory over an assorted lot of Marlboros, juniors and seniors both taking part in the game. According to those who saw the game the youngsters really played better hockey than the regulars. It was a fairly interesting game to watch, but was hardly in the class displayed the preceding Saturday against McGill. Varsity's only worry at present is that, playing in two leagues as they do, they may become stale.

This afternoon will witness another indoor track meet in Hart House. The past few meets have seen the breaking of several long standing records, and to-day's programme should also show some more work for the recorders. The events carded for to-day include the 100 yard, hop, step and jump, and pole vault, three of the most interesting events in any track meet. The 100 yard event should prove interesting with several intercollegiate stars entered. The pole vault was to have been held several weeks ago but was carried over until to-day. Those interested in track should make a point of being in Hart House at 5 p.m.

The Junior basketball team's defeat was merely a repetition of the old, old story of the evils of no opposition and indifference. Their defeat by U.T.S. was a disgrace and a hard blow for those who have the interests of the team at heart. The Juniors have all kinds of material and ability, but will have to take their exhibition tilts more seriously if they have any hopes of getting anywhere. With a few more games under their belts they should be ready for stiffer opposition and live up to past records of junior teams. The odds are with them if they settle down and play real basketball.

It is fortunate indeed that Varsity Seniors are well supplied with hockey players. The Senior O.H.A. schedule consists of twelve games for each team, with the first two teams in a play-off at the end of the season making it fourteen games for Varsity before the Allan Cup play-downs start, always provided, of course, that they live up to form and come through. In addition to that they have four intercollegiate games and a play-off with McGill in the offing. The intercollegiate series this year is closer than it has been for some time, and the contests are no longer merely work-outs between O.H.A. games. Despite the fact that Varsity will enter the Allan Cup eliminations through the O.H.A. if at all, they are all set to win the college series and are taking it in all seriousness. The Blue will have to be careful that they do not crack under the strain of so many games, though as yet they have shown no signs of doing so. Plenty of material allows the management to alternate players and so ease the strain on all concerned.

VARSITY SENIORS LOSE TO KITCHENER IN FAST GAME

Smartly Played Contest Results in 6-2 Defeat

REFEREE CHASES MANY
Harley and Richards Star for University of Toronto

The best game of the season was staged at the Kitchener Arena last night before a few hundred fans. The fast travelling Green Shirts outscored their opponents in every period, and were never headed, although the students worked hard for the equalizing counter in the second period.

The first period was notable for the high class hockey played by both teams and the referee found little need to penalize. There was little to choose between the teams in this period, and it ended—Kitchener 1, Varsity 0.

The next session the Green Shirts displayed superiority over their rivals in team play and they set a fast clip. Kitchener netted three more goals, and Varsity was rewarded with their initial tally. Score at the end of the second period—Kitchener 4, Varsity 1. The final period was full of thrills for the fans, but the referee kept matters well in hand, although he had to penalize nine men to do it. The Blue and White scored their second goal of the game, while Kitchener netted two more. The final score being—Kitchener 6, Varsity 2.

For the winners, Karges, Seagram and Molson were best, and for the Blue and White, Harley and Richards played their usual stellar game, combining on many dangerous attacks. They were a constant threat to the winners throughout the game.

these shall count on the assault score. The recommendation that fencing be held in conjunction with the gymnasium team was held over. It was considered that it was too late in the season to consider such a move feasible. That the U. of M. be invited to send a team which would not count in the assault score, was considered too late in the season to act upon. Uniform score sheets met with approval. The suggestion that tight-fitting trousers and shirts be worn by each competitor was also agreeable to the executive.

The executive then recommended that a letter be sent to the sister universities requesting that an exhibition heavyweight bout be held in the event that there be only one heavyweight entrant in this year's assault.

BLUE SHIRTS DEFEAT BRAMPTON BY 2-1 SCORE

Listless Play in Slow Game When Varsity Eliminates Brampton

Varsity Intermediates eliminated Brampton from the group play-offs on Saturday afternoon, defeating them 2-1 at the Mutual Street Arena in one of the slowest games played in the group this season.

There was no reason why Varsity should not have run up a comfortable score on the visitors except that the blue-shirted boys refused to take the game seriously, while Brampton were playing a strenuous game. The Varsity forwards seemed listless and disinterested and left the burden of the defensive work to the defence pair and the goalie.

There was no score in the first forty minutes, and the gamblers were laying two to one after the second period that neither team would win by two goals. However, in the last frame Varsity stepped out and got two goals, but even then the game was not safe, for Brampton got a gift goal and tried hard for the equalizer.

The worst exhibition on the part of the Varsity team came in the second period when with three Brampton men in the penalty box the Blue were unable to score. It was bad hockey throughout, but the best team won, so there can be no kicking on that score.

INTERMEDIATES DEFEAT McMASTER'S CAGE MEN

Varsity Upholds Long End of a 32-22 Score

In an intermediate basketball game staged in Central Y.M.C.A. Saturday evening, the Varsity team maintained their string of victories when they defeated McMaster University for the second time this season by a score of 32-22. The game was played on a large floor space, and this handicapped the locals to a great extent and resulted in a very loosely played game which was featured by the long shooting of the McMaster guards.

The Seconds were at full strength, being reinforced by Johnston, Putnam and Burns of the Senior squad, who, however, were away off form after playing in a closely contested exhibition game with U. of Niagara the night previous. Wood on the defence turned in a great exhibition and staved off a strong rally of the Baptists in the closing moments of the game.

The Varsity team had the jump all the way, leading by 17-10 when the half-time gun was fired, and that lead was perhaps responsible for the listless playing.

Line-up: Putnam (l.f.), Burns (r.f.), Johnston (c.), Beube (r.g.), Wood (l.g.), Dunn, Stevenson, Shields (subs).

Their checks failing to arrive from home on time, two University of Washington students set out to pawn a revolver. They considered this a very safe and sane way to help them over their financial crisis. But it landed them in police court.

INTERFACULTY SPORTS

St. Michael's 23, Jr. S.P.S. 20

St. Michael's College basketball team defeated Jr. S.P.S. 23-20 in a fast, snappy basketball game in the upper gym yesterday afternoon, and the two teams are tied for the group lead. In their first game Jr. S.P.S. defeated St. Mike's 31-20, but the Irish boys showed real basketball playing in yesterday's tussle.

E. Sammons of St. Mike's was the high scorer of the game with 16 points. Steves and Warren for St. Mike's put up a stubborn defence which was mighty hard to beat.

Hutcheon, Davey and Pasternak were the outstanding players for the losers.

Line-up:

Jr. S.P.S.: Hutcheon (5), Davey (5), Pasternak (5), Wilson (3), Traynor (2), Ireland, Kirk, Mercer, White. St. Mike's: Sammons (16), Riley (4), Warren (2), Quigley (1), McMahon, Steves.

Sr. Dents Defeat Sr. Arts in Interfaculty Baseball

Playing a fine brand of ball and giving their pitcher every support, Sr. Dents defeated Sr. Arts by a large score. Rowland provided the feature of the game with a couple of brilliant line drive catches and in the last innings playing at first base he retired the side. Bill Lawson was high scorer of the game, counting for four runs. Mickey O'Brien and Geo. Hind each added three more. Beare for Arts made two counts, while Walkinshaw made the third. Graham started pitching for Arts and was relieved by Mabee in the third, who stopped the batting spree and held the hard hitting Dents to two runs. Somerville pitched the entire game for the exodontists.

Umpire: S. C. Stewart. Scorer: Geo. E. Beavers. Time 45 mins.

Areopagus Club Holds Banquet With Mr. Joseph Orde as Guest

The annual banquet of the Areopagus Club was held Tuesday in Bowle's banquet hall. Mr. Flynn officiated as toastmaster, and introduced the guest of honour, Mr. Joseph Orde of the Labour party. Mr. Orde conveyed the felicitations of the French and Chinese branches. Toasts were proposed and responded by Messrs. McCann, Hilborn, Shepard, Sammon, Kendrick and Walters.

Student Christian Association Makes Plea for Further Funds

This week the students of University College will have the opportunity of contributing to the work of the Student Christian Association. The men's and women's organizations are having their annual finance campaigns and are hoping for the active cooperation of all the students of the college.

During the year the S.C.A. has organized many study-groups and has provided opportunities for students to hear a number of outstanding speakers.

The financing of secretaries, office expenses, etc., forms a large part of the budget, which also includes a contribution to the World's Student Christian Federation.

Since the organization has no membership fee, it is dependent upon the voluntary contributions of those students who believe in its work, and the executive hopes that the canvassers will be welcomed.

"To improve the colleges, begin with the professors of education," is the advice of Bernard De Voto, former English professor of Northwestern College. In other professions the incompetent settle to the bottom, where they become impotent, he says, but in pedagogy they become professors of education. He states that the present plight of colleges is due to uneducated fanatics and crazed enthusiasts in official capacities.

ART, MUSIC AND DRAMA

The delightful "Saturday Night" that is a "bright little weekly." The inclusion of the respective critiques is at a loss to account for our failure to agree with Mr. H. W. McM. in his appreciative glance. Let us try to clear that up:

If the "Saturday Night" reviewer has exhausted his superlatives in lauding "The Home-Towners," what will remain to be said of "Disraeli," for even the most dim-witted spectator must admit that there is a difference between the plays, a very visible one. One is obviously drama, the other goulash. Why should even the kindest and most venerable dramatic critic fail to say that a play is poor merely because it is well acted? Irvy in "Abie's Irish Rose" would not be nearly as fine as Edmund Abbey in "Disraeli." An actor may have a world of talent, but cast in a poor play he is like a marlin in a bathtub, or a McBride without a Toronto. In 1616 there died a dramatist named Shakespeare whose opinions are considerably esteemed. He put his sentiments into these words: "The Play's the thing!" If Mr. S. added "wherein I'll catch the conscience of the king," dare we add also "wherein I'll show the talent in a man."

We disagree with H. W. McM. in his approval of "The Home-Towners" because such approval will never urge a company on to the heights of "Disraeli." Such approval will only leave them contented in the slough of American farce.

"Disraeli" is unquestionably one of the finest stock presentations ever given in this city. It is not only a splendid piece of dramatic writing, but it gives full scope to the talent of such excellent actors as Edmund Abbey, Frank Camp and Robert Leslie, and with such material they rise to heights of dramatic portraiture that would be impossible in a less distinguished play. As Benjamin Disraeli, Mr. Abbey gave a performance that was little short of perfection, and we doubt that even George Arliss, the originator of the role, could have improved upon Mr. Abbey's work. His measured diction, his careful meticulous gesture, and studied artistry made it a memorable accomplishment. Robert Leslie as Count Deeford, at first a typical Victorian disciple of Ruskin, tail unattended. "Disraeli" was a little more than good drama, for the last act had all the courtly beauty of a Victorian pageant. That grand old era lived again with all of its haughty studied serenity that left the audience in profound admiration. "Disraeli," we repeat, is one of the truly worth-while events of the present dramatic season.

STUDENTS OF VICTORIA VOTE FOR RESTRICTION

and almost hide it from the view. So it is with out education here. There are some minds around that obstruct the progress of the others. Remove the vines and the truth appears, and so the analogy follows with the policy of restriction."

Miss Mary Coleman, for the negative, quoted statistics to show that the high average college attendance in the United States would soon appear in Canada. Larger numbers would come to Canadian colleges, so why not give all a chance. Increase in registration at Victoria at present came because of church union, and "Why should Victoria not accept her new responsibilities in this connection." Miss Coleman sketched various modes of restriction, geographical, sectarian and otherwise and showed how obviously impractical they were.

Miss K. Christie, the second speaker for the affirmative, stated that our largest colleges to-day were "mass production plants, places of teaching, not learning, giving the maximum of instruction with the minimum of effort." The students were "a crowd in which the individual was subdued, and the noxious qualities of the whole appeared."

"In Victoria College," said Miss Christie, "the residences were the best factor in combating this, and can residence accommodation increase with registration?" If Victoria College did limit, it would only be one amongst twenty-two Canadian colleges that did not, so while all could still get an education, Victoria College would provide better education for some, and thus help to combat the fact that "the cult of democratic education was becoming the cult of mediocrity."

Bill Addison, the concluding speaker for the negative, appealed to tradition. Quoting the "History of Victoria College" by Chancellor Burwash, he showed how the college was founded on democratic, all inclusive registration principles.

"Hence restriction absolutely cuts across the principles and ideals on which the college was founded," he pointed out.

As to the practical effects of limitation, Mr. Addison emphasized that Victoria was part of a confederation of four colleges. If she turned away applicants for registration, she would quickly alienate friends to the college and church. Those turned away who went to other colleges would there foster antagonism to Victoria, and cooperation between Victoria and the other colleges would become impossible.

At present it was hard enough to get accustomed to business life after college, but from the intellectual exclusiveness of a small college, it would almost be impossible ever to become accustomed.

Why not face the problem of increased registration by providing group systems of classes for all, build more lecture rooms, and obtain more professors.

"Limitation is the last solution; why not try other solutions first?" was the concluding thought of Mr. Addison.

Mr. Kenny in his rebuttal stated that restriction in Victoria College would not hinder the University, but help it in its progress towards higher standards.

Six students spoke from the floor of the house. Those speaking for the affirmative were Mr. Stevenson, Charles Leslie, Miss E. Tyhurst, R. Fredenburg and Miss K. Coburn, and for the negative F. St. L. Daly.

The women students at Antioch College voted on whether they shall smoke in private or in public. A straw vote held before the regular vote indicated that 12 of the 57 women questioned were against smoking in public. The others were "all for it."

SIR ROBT. FALCONER TO ADDRESS M'GILL UNDERGRADUATES

Unofficial Celebration of U. of
T. Centennial to be Held
To-night at Ritz-Carlton

OTHER GUESTS

"Canadian Universities, Their Origin and Workings," will be President's Subject

An unofficial celebration of the University of Toronto Centennial will be held at McGill to-night, when the annual Arts banquet will be staged at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, will be the principal speaker of the evening, and a number of distinguished Varsity graduates resident in Montreal have been invited to attend.

"In planning for the banquet this year," says the McGill Daily, "the executive of the Arts Undergraduate Society considered that it would be fitting to have the function in some way connected with the Varsity Centennial celebration. With this in mind an invitation was sent to Sir Robert Falconer to be present at the banquet, and at the same time a number of Varsity graduates were invited to attend. Sir Robert, in collaboration with the president of the Arts Undergraduate Society, chose as his subject 'Canadian Universities, Their Origin and Workings,' and in his address he is expected to pay special attention to the University of Toronto with which he has been connected as president for the past twenty years."

"Sir Robert Falconer," continues the Daily, "has had experience with universities and educational systems both in Canada and abroad. He himself was educated at Queen's Royal School, Trinidad, and later attended the University of Edinburgh, Leipzig, Berlin, and Marburg. He has been president of the University of Toronto since 1907, and is thus celebrating his twentieth anniversary as president at the same time as the University is celebrating its centennial. He has written a number of books on educational subjects, and it is doubtful if a more capable speaker could be found for the subject which he will discuss."

Arrangements for the banquet have now been practically completed. A toast list has been arranged. Freddie Gross' orchestra will be in attendance, and several special features will lend special interest to proceedings. Members of the faculty and representatives from Queen's, Varsity and U. of M. have been invited to attend.

"As this is the only major event on the programme of the Arts Undergraduate Society each year, it always attracts special interest, and it is hoped that this year an even larger attendance."

Miss Addison to Continue Dean of Victoria Women

Miss M. E. T. Addison, B.A., Dean of Women of Victoria College, who last fall handed in her resignation, has been requested by the Board of Regents to continue in her present position for an indefinite period.

Miss Addison handed in her resignation in the belief that twenty-five years was long enough for one person to hold the position of Dean of Women; but both the faculty and students will be pleased to learn that she has been asked to re-consider the matter.

Student government has always found a strong supporter in Miss Addison, and she it was who first advocated it among the residence women of Victoria College, and fostered it to the important position it occupies in student administration to-day.

Miss Addison is just now contemplating a respite from her duties in the form of a trip to the Pacific Coast.

HOUSE ELECTIONS SLATED FOR MARCH 7

Smaller Faculties and Colleges Assured Representation on Hart House Committees

NOMINATIONS CLOSE FEB. 29

The elections for the Student Committees of Hart House, the House, Hall, Library, Music, Billiard and Sketch Committees, will take place by ballot in Hart House on Wednesday, 7th March. Nominations will be accepted from 9 a.m. on Tuesday next, 21st February, until nominations close at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, 29th February. Nomination forms, which must be filled out with the name, address and signature of the nominee, as well as those of his mover and seconder, can be obtained at the Warden's office any time after Tuesday morning, 21st February. Names will appear on the ballot paper in order of the receipt of nominations at the Warden's office.

Nominations for the Camera and Squash Raquets Committees will be received within the same period of time as those for the other committees, and the elections for these committees will be held at a meeting of all those interested in the activities of these two committees in Hart House at 5 p.m. on Thursday, 8th March.

The elections will be held on the same system this year as last. With a view to giving the smaller colleges and faculties a chance of representation on the committees the man receiving the highest number of votes of the candidates from each faculty or college (provided this number is two hundred or over) is declared elected before taking a second man from any one faculty or college. However, this rule does not apply in the case of candidates from any faculty or college which already has representation.

PROFESSOR GOGGIO ADDRESSES ITALIAN- SPANISH CLUB

Asserts Mussolini Has Been the Saviour of His Country
Since the War

ITALY PROSPEROUS

Fascism Suits Temperament and Traditions of Italian People

"As it was an honour to be a Roman citizen, so it will be an honour to be an Italian citizen." Thus quoted Professor Goggio at the Italian and Spanish Club in Wymilwood last evening. Professor Goggio compared the situation in Italy immediately after the armistice, with the present promising condition of the existing government. In 1922 there were two thousand strikes in Italy, great disorder, and communism was spreading rapidly from the north to the south.

But a saviour appeared backed by young men believing in his ideals. The march on Rome closing the bloodless revolution heralded a multitude of reforms. Order was restored, taxation redistributed, and the railway reorganized, linking up the backward South with the modern North, and fusing the whole with a spirit of unity.

The growth of the country was developed along lines of individuality in which sport and education were prominent. Since Italy could not afford the expenses of a strike, a system of arbitrary compulsion was introduced.

Mussolini, originally a socialist, who had himself been of the working class, was an earnest worker for the benefit of labour and passed its famous charter.

"We cannot criticize Fascism until we fully understand the temperament and traditions which underlie the Italian nature. What is good for them would probably not be suited for Canada."

A delightful musical programme was then presented by the pupils of Senor Ferrari-Fontana, selections being charmingly rendered by Mrs. Helen Gladwin, Miss Marjorie Thompson and Miss Jessie MacGregor.

S.C.A. Will Entertain Sunday at International Tea Party

Sunday, February 19th, is being observed throughout the world as a Universal Day of Prayer for Students. The Student Christian Association of the University of Toronto will accordingly hold a special service next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock in Knox College Chapel, and all men and women students are cordially invited to attend. The service will conclude at 10.30.

There will also be a celebration of the Holy Communion (for men) in Hart House Chapel at 8 a.m.

Besides these services, an International Tea Party will be held in Annesley Hall at 4.30 p.m. Sunday, when the S.C.A. will act as host to the foreign students on the campus. Any foreign student who by accident does not receive a personal invitation, will be welcomed, and local students cordially invited by the S.C.A.

Dr. Leslie Pidgeon Conducts Retreat at Union Theol. Col.

APPLICATION FOR CHANGE IN CHARTER OF VICTORIA COLLEGE

Provision to be Made for Existence of Theological Faculty Within Victoria Univ.

IN FORM OF PRIVATE BILL

Union Theological College will be Combined in New Institution

Among the private bills to be introduced at the present session of the Provincial Legislature will be the application for a new, or revised, charter for Victoria University.

Owing to the formation of the United Church, the present charter has proved inadequate. The new charter is expected to provide for the existence of a theological college and Victoria College as an Arts faculty in Victoria University as separate entities. The status of college officials will be revised at the same time.

The formation of the United Church and the addition of a number of students and members of the staff from Knox College, it is understood, made necessary the formation of the Union Theological Seminary as a temporary institution. At the same time there exists the Theological and Arts faculties of Victoria College. By the new charter it is expected that these three bodies will be combined.

Notice of application for a private bill has already been advertised in the daily press.

LORETTO ABBEY COLLEGE HOLDS "SOIREE FRANCAIS"

Undergrads Hear Lecture by Father Murray on Brittany and Normandy

Last evening the undergraduates of Loretto Abbey College held a social "French" evening. Father Murray of St. Michael's College delivered an interesting address in French on Brittany and Normandy, which was illustrated by many lantern slides. The College Choral Club sang several spirited French folk-songs, "Vive la rose," "C'est aujourd'hui la Fête," "Bonne-jour," and by request "Ma Fille, veux-tu un Bouquet?"

After the lecture, tea was served in the art room, and a social hour was enjoyed by the budding linguists.

On Monday the fourth of the inter-year debates for the debating trophy was held in the College Auditorium, and resulted in a victory for Third Year, represented by Miss Viola Harris and Miss Dorothy Clark, over First Year, represented by Miss Jean Peppiatt and Miss Marie Harpell. The subject of the very lively and humorous debate was, "It is better to have loved and lost, than never to have loved at all."

Annual At-Home of Forestry Club Held in Hart House

Last night the Music Room in Hart House was the scene of a very enjoyable social event when the annual at-home of the Forestry Club took place. It was the success it has been in past years. Dancing began at 9 o'clock and continued until one in the morning. Music was furnished by the Country Club Orchestra, refreshments being served in the Great Hall.

The patronesses for the occasion were: Mrs. C. D. Howe, Mrs. T. W. Dwight, Mrs. J. H. White, Mrs. W. N. Millar and Mrs. R. C. Hosie.

The committee in charge was composed of: L. H. Scheult, C. H. Boston, A. W. M. Carmichael and J. W. Johnston.

Hart House Concert

Returning from a most successful tour of the Middle Western States with the Hart House Quartet, M. Gera de Kresz, violinist of note, will give a concert in the Great Hall, Hart House, on Sunday evening, Feb. 19. M. de Kresz is being recognized in almost every city of the continent as a master of the violin. He will be assisted in one number by Mr. Harris, another accomplished violinist, who is probably not so well known.

MANY ONTARIO PLACE- NAMES DUE TO SIMCOE

Great Governor Would Have Had Toronto Permanently Called York

NO INDIAN NAMES

Many Ontario place-names are due to His Excellency Colonel John Graves Simcoe, Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada from 1792 to 1796, according to the Geographic Board of Canada. As the first governor of the new province, it devolved upon him to organize it politically, and in 1792 he divided it into nineteen counties, which he called Glengarry, Stormont, Dundas, Grenville, Leeds, Frontenac, Ontario, Addington, Lennox, Prince Edward, Hastings, Northumberland, Durham, York, Lincoln, Norfolk, Suffolk, Essex and Kent. With the exception of Suffolk, all these names still survive. The counties Northumberland and Kent are named after the shires and counties along the east coast of England.

Before sailing from England, Simcoe had considered calling the capital of the upper province "Georgina" after the reigning sovereign, George III, but this name was never actually given. On first surveying the situation in Upper Canada, Simcoe's intention was to locate the capital where London now stands, but owing to obstacles, chiefly the difficulty of transportation, he later relinquished this plan. London, as is shown by the Governor's correspondence, received its present name some time previous to September, 1793. Earlier in the year the river La Tranche, on which London now stands, had become the Thames, and Chatham had been selected as the name of a projected city 18 miles from its mouth.

Simcoe was no respecter of Indian names, and under date July 24, 1793, there is mention of the probable sale of government being for a time established at "York." Toronto was then re-named in honour of Prince Frederick, Duke of York, and the Indian name was not restored until 1834.

Other place-names in the vicinity of Toronto due to Simcoe are Humber river and Don river, named after the rivers of the same name in Yorkshire.

Fate of Official Undergrad Paper Wonder What a Varsity Thinks About?

The life of a "Varsity" is a tedious one. Its services are many and varied, ranging from its intended purpose of providing the student body with university news to that of wiping the dust-besmirched shoes of Varsity students. There is, however, one comfort in knowing that the paper is usually read before the latter operation takes place.

It would seem, also, that students seldom become exceptionally attached to their particular copies of "The Varsity" to judge from the ruthless way in which they shed themselves of them. Cases have been known where undergraduates have prized their "Varsities" and have veritably fondled them; but such instances are rare. As it is, from enquiries made in the U.C.

GOV'T'S ATTITUDE ON AMUSEMENT TAX IS INFLEXIBLE

But the "Inquiring Reporter" Discovers Many Methods of Evading It

DOES DANCING AMUSE?

Charity Often the Best Policy in Arranging
"Amusements"

"Amusement tax must be paid the government by every person attending a place of amusement where admission is charged." So runs the official ruling of the Provincial Treasurer's Department in regard to amusement tax.

Dances are amusements in the eyes of the law. Accordingly, dances put on by university students are liable to tax. Is it paid? Not if the Dance Committee can help it.

An interesting question is brought up. Do the dances which are put on every so often in the Women's Union and Wymilwood pay taxes? If they did, the Union and Wymilwood would class as dance halls. This is far from the ideals of University authorities.

Yet the ruling is iron-clad. Even if one threw a party in one's own home, invited guests and took up a collection to defray expenses, the Department would still claim tax on the ground that those attending the "place of amusement" had to pay admission.

Much travail and agony are gone through by committees in charge of University functions in order to dodge the government tax. Yet those who attended the Arts Ball or the Hart House Masquerade, whether they realized it or not, paid a tax which was unavoidable and was included in the price of the ticket.

Class parties seem to be practically the only functions which escape the tax. These are looked upon in the light of parties given by an organization, to which dues have been paid, but not specifically for a dance. No tickets are sold for these, even if members usually have to show a year card to identify themselves.

This also applies to dances given by clubs, fraternities and so on, which, although private dances, are often held in a rented hall. In this case, despite the fact that the brethren have ostensibly held a levy to buy a new Chesterfield or so for the living room, the tax is also paid whether they realize it or not. Those in charge of the hall are taxed, and the fraternity or club foots the bill anyhow, when the tax is passed on.

There are, of course, ways and means of getting around the Amusement Act. One can put on an exhibition of paintings, instead, and an or-

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Are Burlesque Shows for Students?

Do you think students should go to burlesque shows?

Edgar Burwash, 3T1, C. and F.: Sure, if they enjoy them.
Thomas Boynton, 3T1, U.C.: All right for light entertainment.
Cecil Wright, 2T9, U.C.: Why, certainly, if you care for that kind of amusement.
Bruce Leslie, 3T1: Of course. Variety is the spice of life.
Arthur Fletcher, 3T1, C. and F., U.C.: Certainly. It is a very pleasant diversion.
Andrew C. Green, II U.C.: That's up to them. Personally I have no use for burlesque shows.
George M. Vicar, III U.C.: I can't see anything in them myself. It's a matter of personal opinion.
Alice Young, I, U.C.: I think it is just the novelty that attracts them, and after a few times the novelty wears off.
Margaret Willoughby, I, U.C.: As far as I can see, people merely attend burlesque shows to satisfy their curiosity.

INTERMEDIATES ONE GOAL DOWN, PLAY IN NEWMARKET TO-NIGHT

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Jennings Cup series is under discussion again, and coupled with that Interfaculty sport, the Varsity Arena is often mentioned. In this connection we hear remarks as these: "Since the weather has been so unfavourable this year and the Jennings Cup games have been regularly postponed, why not play them in the Varsity Arena? Wasn't the Arena built for the students? Teams of the Mercantile League can get both practice and game hours, but when it comes to Interfaculty teams,—then it is altogether different."

These are the opinions expressed on all sides, and we must admit that it does not seem fair to the University students to be deprived of the use of their own property. But that is only one side of the question.

One fact seldom taken into consideration is that there are exactly nineteen teams in the Jennings Cup series this year and that forty-two games must be played in declaring group winners. Eight of these games are scheduled for Guelph, Victoria and St. Michael's rinks, and the remaining games for the three hockey cushions of the Stadium rink; and incidentally these three cushions were provided at great expense to the Athletic Directorate for the sole purpose of playing Interfaculty games, games which bring no revenue. In the case of an exceptional season as this one, were one game to be played in the Arena, the remaining forty-one should also have that consideration. But when would these games be played? University teams have the preference for practice hours, and rightly so, and these hours are 4:30 to 6:00. What hours then for Jennings Cup games? One of the larger faculties objected when the Juniors asked for a practice in the middle of the day, and if that were to be the case for the Junior O.H.A. squad, what would the authorities say to a whole series, not mentioning practice hours and play-downs, being played in the afternoon or morning? Laboratory work and lectures would undoubtedly suffer more than the professors would care to permit.

The hours of four to six have proved satisfactory for these games, but a change to the evening might help matters a lot. This year the Mercantile League has contracted for many of the hours in the evening, and even if these contracts could be broken, there would be objections. The student body is blessed or cursed with a multitude of activities, and hockey is crowded out of the programmes. This crowding out means that the Varsity games are not attended by the students, and hence the expenses in connection with keeping up an artificial ice plant must be met in some other way. The Mercantile League helps and officials claim that their contracts are useful in decreasing the deficit rather than accruing profits.

Under ordinary circumstances the Interfaculty schedule would be run off in three weeks' time. This year Jupiter Pluvius proved inopportune and the true sport will have to take his decision, just as numerous O.H.A. teams throughout the province did. At least this is the official position.

A grey, three button coat, with patch pockets and purple trimming, is the emblem of the sophomore class at Purdue University.

The graduate council of Princeton, an alumni organization, has pledged itself to raise $2,000,000 for a fund to be used in raising the salaries of the university faculty.

The University of Southern California is now offering a full four year course in the technique of the motion picture industry. It has been endorsed by Milton Sills and Will Rogers.

The council of administration of the University of Illinois has denied the senior class to have its annual senior ball because of rowdiness at the senior informal.

INTERMEDIATES MEET NEWMARKET TONIGHT IN FINAL GAME

Seconds Must Register Win to Avoid Summary Elimination from O.H.A. Race

BOB CROSBY OUT

Sharp Recovery of Form on Part of Locals Necessary to Whip Flashy Marketers

To-night in Newmarket the Varsity Intermediate O.H.A. team plays in their last group game of the season, and this is the most important game to date. On Monday night they lost to Newmarket by a 1-0 score, and in the return game must come home with a win or else be cast into the discard as far as their O.H.A. title ambitions are concerned. The locals started the season in championship style, easily sweeping everything before them. But later in the season Brampton and Newmarket stepped in and gave the Seconds much to worry over, with that self same worry looming very large at present. Brampton was disposed of on Saturday last, and unless the locals present an entirely different kind of game to-night, Newmarket will enter the play-offs.

Perhaps the absence of their regular coach has much to do with the apparent disorganization of the team, for "Jim" Robson knew his players and could play his subs to the best advantage. However, Coach Robson has been laid up with the flu for the past week, and his services have been lost to the team. In his absence the team is being handled by Manager Dewar and Joe Carruthers.

There is a possibility that Jack Sinclair may be called on for to-night's game. He has not been playing all season, but may be persuaded to turn out for this game, and if he does it should strengthen the team considerably. Bob Crosby, who suffered a painful gash in the face and the loss of two teeth in the last game, will be in the line-up as usual. The big fellow gave a pretty display of nerve on Monday night when cut down in the second period.

HOCKEY NOTES

University of Montreal pulled the surprise of the season on Monday night when they handed the Intercollegiate hockey title to Varsity. They did it on a silver platter too, and that almost takes away the sting of the defeat suffered by the Blue hopes in Kitchener when the Greenshirts proved that they were very much in the running for the O.H.A. title. Preston, Kitchener and Varsity are now clustered around the top and a rare battle for the honours is a sure thing which will appeal to the fans.

Kitchener plays a return game here on Friday night, and if that isn't a real game we are very much mistaken. In addition to the O.H.A. fixture, the ladies' Intercollegiate squad entertains Queen's, making a double-header.

To-night the Intermediates journey to Newmarket to play their final game for the group title, and the Seconds are one goal down as a result of Monday's clash. From all reports, clash is the word to use, and two of the local regulars are laid up with injuries received in the game.

U.C. TRACK TEAM ARE INDOOR CHAMPIONS

School Springs Big Surprise by Winning Mile Relay Over U.C. Quartet

RECORD FOR DAVENPORT

University College won the interfaculty indoor track championship in the concluding meet at Hart House last night. The final standing by faculties for the series of meets is as follows: U.C. 60; S.P.S. 46; Dents 16; Meds 9; St. Mike's 8; Vic. 3.

However, a School man, Jack Davenport, Canadian and Intercollegiate pole-vault champion, featured the final meet by creating a new record of 11 ft. 3-4 ins. in the pole vault. The height of the jump was officially measured by three of the officials. Davenport's leap was a magnificent effort, and predicts a fine showing in the forthcoming Olympic trials. Dennis U.C., and McKay, U.C., were second and third in this event.

Cam Mabee again triumphed in the 100 yards dash, defeating Harley Russell of S.P.S. in the deciding run after both men had tied for first place in 11 1-5 secs. Mabee's final time was 11 seconds flat. Finlayson of U.C., Jermyn of U.C., and Thompson of S.P.S. tied for third place.

S.P.S. sprang a real surprise in the mile relay, defeating two University College teams. Russell, Nimmo, Grant and Thompson, running in that order, covered the distance in 3:47 1-5 with U.C. (Mabee, Gilbert, Finlayson and Jermyn) timed in 3:50 1-5 for second place. A second U.C. team (McKay, Merritt, Wilson and Smith) finished third.

Bill Finlayson won the hop, step and jump from Corky Burke of S.P.S. in his last jump of 28 ft. 7 1-2 in. Burke had led with 28 ft. 1-2 in. until this last jump, in the event. D. J. McKenzie, S.P.S., finished third.

in a way to console Messrs. Don Barton and One-Round Martin for last week's assault. He even does a Tarzan act through the tree-tops, which should convince the most sceptical undergraduate of "Shields' College" that Darwin was right. The amiability of his married (?) life is a delight to see, but in the same connection the incipient amors with the Lady of the Miracle, whose past was excellently portrayed, was, to say the least, in very doubtful taste. On the whole the introduction of an element of Sunday-school morality added nothing to the picture and was open to objection.

The news reel was all very well, but we do miss those snappy and absurd little comedies for which movies are the one perfect vehicle, and which, in the form of animated cartoons, seem to be Hollywood's one real contribution to the drama. As for Jack Arthur's presentation, it was very pretty, but it pains us beyond power of expression to hear an orchestra, technically so proficient, wasting its time and ours in the production of musical inanities.

deny the necessity and usefulness of these games.

So far this season, even when there was ice on the open-air cushions, it was necessary to utilize every hour for scheduled games. Practice has become a thing of the past. If such a state of affairs continues, and there is no indication that it will not continue, then where are our future University teams to come from?

The reason advanced by those in authority for the non-use of the Arena was that it would cost too much. A well-known member of the Athletic Directorate speaking at the annual athletic dinner in Trinity College, spoke of the professionalism in universities. To quote from the Review " . . . that large gate receipts had not been a danger in the past . . . and to the fact that our own Athletic Association had kept itself heavily in debt. But he foresaw danger ahead when the Arena had been paid for and the moon of the stadium completed."

Can the two statements be reconciled? Surely no more desirable way of keeping in debt could be found than to lose money by allowing interfaculty teams to use the Arena. It must be remembered that after all it is said and done that it is Varsity Arena. Whether it has justified its name is not for us to say.

Moreover, rumour hath it—and in this case rumour dies hard—that even the intercollegiate and O.H.A. teams from the University find it hard to get all the practice hours they desire. If such is the case, then it certainly is time that the situation be remedied.

It seems evident that with City Hockey League teams practising there daily that the Arena must be doing a trifle more than paying for itself. It may not, but it will be hard to convince students in general otherwise.

Interfaculty hockey certainly is not a money making proposition, and to refuse it the use of the Arena on these grounds alone is, to say the least, laying the foundation for cries of "Professionalism."

In fact, after considering the situation as it stands to-day, we would suggest that the name be changed to the Bloor Street Arena.

England; Yonge street, thirty-two miles long, after Sir George Yonge, Secretary of State for War, a neighbour; and Dundas street after Henry Dundas, Viscount Melville, Secretary of State. All these names date from 1793 as do the re-naming of lac aux Claires as lake Simcoe, and the giving of the names Kempenfelt and Cook to bays in the lake. Lake Simcoe was named after Rear Admiral Richard Captain John Simcoe of the Royal Navy, who was killed in action at Quebec in 1759; the two bays were named after Rear Admiral Richard Kempenfelt and Captain James Cook, the circumnavigator, both of whom had served with Simcoe's father. At this time, too, Holland river was named after Surveyor-General Samuel Holland and Matchedash bay in Georgian bay was re-named Gloucester bay, after William Henry, son of George II, first Duke of Gloucester, but the name never came into general use.

Simcoe himself is commemorated by Simcoe county, which was called after him in 1798, two years after he had returned to England.

Charity can also be used as an alibi if those in charge feel that an exhibition of fancy-work or knitting would be acceptable at $5.00 a throw. Then if the major part of the gross receipts are given to charity, i.e., fifty per cent or more, and after all, it is decided to hold a dance, then the tax may be overlooked.

It will be easily seen that a tax of roughly ten per cent on all the admissions charged to dances in the University would amount to a pretty part of the provincial revenue.

SIR ROBERT FALCONER PRAISES HONOUR SYSTEM OF UNIVERSITIES

University of Toronto Feted at Annual Arts Banquet
Held at McGill

CURRIE PAYS TRIBUTE

W. A. Gilbert Represents

of Relations

Montreal, Que., Feb. 16.—"That the Arts faculties of American universities will come to follow more and more the English and Canadian system of giving both 'pass' and honours degrees in Arts," was the prediction of Sir Robert Falconer at McGill last night when he spoke on the development of Canadian universities. Sir Robert was the guest of honour of the McGill Arts Undergraduate Society's annual banquet when representatives of the Arts faculties from Varsity, Queen's and University of Montreal were present to bring greetings to the Arts faculty of their sister university.

Sir Arthur Currie, who replied to the Alma Mater toast, paid tribute to the work of Sir Robert in the University of Toronto when he remarked on the part that the university had had in Canadian affairs during the 100 years of its existence. "There has been no more imposing record in its existence than the last twenty years, the period of Sir Robert's principalship," declared Sir Arthur, who also spoke of the harmonious relations that exists between the Universities of Toronto and McGill.

"By reason of the origin of our Canadian universities in the days of the United Empire Loyalists, and from the influence of the early teachers, Canadian universities are closer to Britain than they are to those of the United States," said Sir Robert. "The origin of our Eastern universities is traceable to social desires as well as to religious, prevalent in sections in which the Loyalists first settled when they came to Canada in 1784. The inspiration which largely dominated the early founders of these Eastern universities was largely to maintain the status quo of the conditions which the Loyalists had quit their homes to preserve. It was the endeavour to preserve a bulwark against the new ideals south of the border that dominated the early thought of the founders of the institutions.

"This position of status quo was not sufficient—never was sufficient. A university is largely a place where thought is sifted. If it merely passes

IMPORTANT CHANGES PROPOSED BY S.A.C.

President of the University to Appoint Secretary of Student Council

ATHLETICS NOT SUPPORTED

Appointment of a committee to pass on proposed changes to the constitution and the adoption of the report of the Literary and Debates Committee, which in the absence of Mr. Terrence was presented by Mr. Donohue, about covers the business gone into by the S.A.C. at their open meeting yesterday afternoon.

There were thirteen members present, a quorum being twelve and an audience of one.

One of the most important changes of the S.A.C. constitution which is mediated is that the President of the University shall hereafter appoint the secretary-treasurer of the council, which will make the holder of that office a member of the staff. At present the President passes on the appointment as made by the council.

Mr. Hartmann, St. Michael's, reported that he had attended a meeting of a committee of the Athletic Directorate to investigate the problem of dragging the student out to the athletic events. Ever since the price of rugby tickets had been raised from twenty-five to fifty cents for some reason or other there had been a falling-off in attendance. As there was not a quorum at the meeting, nothing definite could be done. However, an informal discussion was held in which it developed that McGill is faced with the same problem. The sale of a book of tickets admitting the holders to all the major sports, i.e., rugby, hockey and track, was scouted, and the Directorate asked the council's opinion of the matter. After considerable meditation, the council decided that it might be a good idea if their purchase were not made compulsory and if the price should be no more than five dollars.

EXPULSION RESULT OF HAZING LEADER OF STUDENT BODY

Expression of Displeasure at President's Actions Takes Violent Form

MANY SUSPENDED

Most Prominent Men Are Implicated in Action

University of Washington, Seattle, Feb. 7.—Two students were expelled from the University of Washington, six suspended from activities for one year, and another for one quarter by the faculty discipline committee as punishment for the parts they played in the kidnapping, hazing and ducking of Marion Zioncheck, president of the Associated Students of the U. of W. The punishment of the sensational affair which had assumed statewide attention and newspaper comment was disclosed following a session of the discipline group in President Spencer's office.

Those of the hazing squad were: Wilbur "Mickey" McGuire, head of the A.S.U.W. publicity bureau; John Geehan, varsity football quarterback; Philip Wolgemuth, manager of the varsity football squad; Leland Shelton, guard; Walter Sahil, end; Joseph Bowen, substitute centre; Chad Knowles, manager of basketball, production manager of 1928 Bigtime, who would have graduated this quarter; Elliot Pulver, substitute quarterback, and Hall Johnson, basketball guard.

President Spencer himself refused to give out the names of the men who were implicated in the hazing.

Several of the suspended students declared that at least 100 students representing various campus groups, knew in advance of the plan to haze and duck Zioncheck. They stated that they were carrying out the implied sentiment of at least 2,000 students who resented the student president's attack on the management of A.S.U.W. affairs.

Harvey Lantz, professor of law, who was the spokesman for the discipline committee, declared that the two who were expelled were singled out because they already had been on probation. From the list of hazers the names of only Geehan and McGuire could be recalled as being on probation.

Pulver was declared to have received the lightest punishment, suspension from activities for one quarter.

It was revealed for the first time that President Spencer has in his possession counter charges against Zioncheck for alleged misconduct, which are said to have precipitated the hazing party. The president of the University, however, would not state whether these charges would be acted upon.

"We did not at any time, and do not now, feel that these youths perpetrated a criminal act," Professor Lantz said. "They were inspired by grievances which seem to have been shared by students generally. Yet the method they pursued in showing their displeasure cannot be tolerated in a university of learning."

White-clad Chefs the Ghosts of Dark Hart House Caverns

The rumour that Hart House contains in its depth, caves and catacombs, is, alas, unfounded. St. Michael's College Arbitration Ended

A train of events dating from November 17, 1921, came to an end on Tuesday when the result of the arbitration over the St. Michael's College expropriation was announced at the City Hall. The arbiters were Judge Marson, representing the city, Frank Arnoldi, K.C., representing the college, and Sir Thomas White, the chairman. The college claimed $999,014.71 plus costs and was awarded $266,932.20, and their costs were not allowed. It is not known whether the college will appeal the decision or not. Father Carr, who was Superior at the time of the expropriation, had nothing to say until he should see the text of judgment. Besides reimbursement for their expropriated land, the college claimed funds to help defray the cost of improvements necessitated by the expropriation.

VICTORIA STUDENTS ENJOY GAY AT-HOME

Distinguished Patronesses Receive Guests at Dance Held by Faculty

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAMME

Resplendent with many coloured lights shining beneath a canopy of blue and white, the big gym was the scene last night of the third annual Victoria College At-Home. A spirit of refined gaiety pervaded Hart House as two hundred couples enjoyed the entertainment provided by those in charge of the youngest of faculty at-homes.

The programme consisted of sixteen dances, including five waltzes and two extra numbers. After the eighth dance a sit-down supper was served in the Great Hall. The East Common Room and the Lower Gallery were available as sitting-out rooms for those who tired of dancing or were in search of comparative solitude.

The patronesses who received the guests were Lady Falconer, Lady Flavell, Mrs. R. P. Bowles, Miss M. E. T. Addison, Mrs. N. W. DeWitt, Mrs. J. R. L. Starr and Mrs. W. W. Evans.

The committee in charge of the event to whom the excellent arrangements were due was as follows: T. R. Sargeant (chairman), Miss M. A. Forward, M. K. Kenny, J. S. Stevenson, R. L. Fredenburg, G. L. Dunn, F. St. L. Daly, F. A. Wansborough, W. J. Addison, G. S. Packham, F. M. Cryderman, H. D. Kirby, J. W. Kefffer and J. R. Johnson.

Extemporaneous Speeches Heard at Areopagus Club

The weekly meeting of the Areopagus Club was held on Tuesday evening. Extemporaneous speeches were the feature.

F. Walters delivered an address on the solution of the modern city traffic problem. The advantages of social activity, as stressed by McCann in his speech, marked his as the most enlightening talk of the evening.

McAndrew spoke on "Pretty Pictures," Trulman on the advantages derived from sport, Moylan on "Queen's," Kenricks on the social aspects of university life, and Sammon on "Clubs."

Business discussion was carried on with Mr. Moylan in the chair.

DISTINGUISHED PROFESSOR DIES SUDDENLY OF HEART FAILURE

Prof. John Squair, once head of the department of French at the University of Toronto, died suddenly yesterday from heart failure. The professor, who retired in 1916 from the teaching staff, was 78 years old. Till Tuesday he was enjoying normal health.

Professor Squair is probably best known for his work on the Fraser and Squair High School French Grammar. His interest in the teaching of French is evinced by his long connection with the department of French and by his work on the Modern Languages Association of Ontario.

Professor F. C. A. Jeanneret, present head of the department, paid tribute to his work in an interview yesterday. "Professor Squair was held in very high esteem by all teachers of French in America," he said. "He probably did more for the teaching of this language than anyone else, and in addition accomplished much for the promotion of good will between France and Canada and between French and English-speaking Canadians."

Professor Squair graduated from University College in 1883, and immediately joined the staff of that college as Fellow of French. It was in this same year that Language Fellowships were established. He was a brilliant scholar in his student days, and at his graduation received the Gold Medal in Modern Languages, being head of his class in English, French, German, Italian and Spanish.

The Cross of the Legion of Honour, presented by the French Government, was one of the coveted awards which Professor Squair held. He was a member of numerous local clubs, among them the Art Gallery, the York Club and the Ontario Historical Society.

"The History of the Townships of Darlington and Clarke" came from his pen last year, and he has written numerous other pamphlets and treatise on diverse subjects. An autobiography of his professional experiences was to have appeared shortly from the University of Toronto Press.

VARSITY GIRLS PLAY TEAM FROM QUEEN'S

Attractive Bill Offered to Hockey Enthusiasts on Friday Night

LADIES INVITE SUPPORT

On Friday, Feb. 17th, the Varsity Ladies will play the Queen's Ladies at 7.30, Varsity Arena. The same night at 8.30 the Varsity Senior O.H.A. will play Kitchener, and the women's team appreciate the fact that the men have consented to have a double-header with such an important game. This bill ought to draw a large crowd—the hockey enthusiasts of both sexes should certainly turn out and give the Blue and White their hearty support. To-day tickets will be on sale at all the buildings.

The Varsity Ladies starred at Queen's, bringing home a victory of 5-2. Their home game on Friday is the last scheduled one of the season, and it is expected that the onlookers will be given a fine brand of women's hockey. Dot Langley, the fastest skater on the Varsity team, has had a very busy time lately, as she was leading lady in the recent and most successful Trinity play. Jessie Mooney is the Varsity captain. She hails from the West, and this is her third year in Intercollegiate hockey. Eileen Ditchburn is the only member of the Varsity team which won the L.O.H.A. championship four years ago, beating the Pats and Aura Lee in the city games and went on and defeated Grimsby and the champion Ottawa Alerts. This is Eileen's last season with Varsity, as she graduates this year.

Helen Hilliard and Norma Bateman, sophomores from the Vic. Interfaculty team, are both splendid shots, while Eve Powell and Jessie Mooney form a powerful defence. But it was not star play but team work which won the game at Queen's, and it is combination work which should make the Friday game a fast one. The Queen's team have been practising hard, and in an exhibition game last week they won against McGill 1-0. Their best players are Erma Beach, centre, one of the fastest players in women's hockey, and Mary Rowland, who has had several years' experience.

Probable line-up:
Varsity: Goal, Pat Tilston; defence, Eve Powell, Jessie Mooney; centre, Norma Bateman; wings, Dot Langley.

CO-EDS RETALIATE WITH NEW "DON'TS"

Refuse to Take Advice from Men in Silence; Girls
Compile Their Own

ASSERT INDEPENDENCE

University of Toronto girls responded nobly to the challenge when the list of "Don'ts for Girls" compiled by the men of Cincinnati University appeared in print. The following day "The Varsity" Women's Office was besieged by freshmen, seniors, undergraduates of every size and description, bearing lists of "Don'ts for Men." We print the first compilation handed in:

Ye swains—take heed!
When better rules are set, we'll set 'em,—ask the man who owns one.

If you would attain that miraculous popularity practise these simple rules:

1. Don't compile rules for young ladies' behaviour—or at least be original.

2. Don't gush over one girl when you are with another.

3. Don't hide behind a newspaper in a street car, and offer your seat to a girl with a great show of courtesy—when your stop comes.

4. Don't say a smart girl is "not so much" because she didn't fall for you.

5. Don't wait for your girl to order coffee and toast before you order chicken salad.

6. Don't wear loud smelling hair oils.

7. Don't hire a meter-cab to keep your eyes fixed on the meter all through the ride.

8. Don't drop hints about off-colour jokes and then deplore the lack of delicacy in modern girls.

9. Don't wear your ties crooked; brush your clothes—relieve us of a tiresome duty.

10. Don't say they are the best seats you could get when the fifteen rows in front of you are vacant.

11. Don't ask a girl out if you are going to spend the evening audibly worrying where your next week's lunches are coming from.

12. Don't kiss a girl against her will,—take "No" for an answer.

13. Don't expect every girl you take out to be a John Held Jr. Cartoon.
14. Don't call "big men" by name to give the impression that you are well-known.

15. Don't rave about your wild par-

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Is University Spirit Vanishing?

Has college spirit replaced university spirit among the undergraduate body?

H. Goldhamer, III U.C., Philosophy (E. or H.): Not at U.C. at any rate, although it may be true of the smaller colleges. There is no reason, however, why one should exclude the other.

G. Montgomery, I U.C., Pass: College spirit has superseded university spirit inasmuch as they have become identical one with the other; whereas university spirit ought naturally to predominate.

D. G. McCullagh, IV Trinity, Political Science: By no means. How can we distinguish between the two? What is university spirit? How is it possible to show loyalty to your university if not by participation in college activities?

D. R. Smith, III Victoria, English and History: This is a rather nice distinction; but it would appear that during the season of inter-university games, especially that of rugby, university spirit is supreme. During the remainder of the year, college activities claim the loyalty of the students, although Hart House tends to offset this.

J. H. Merritt, II U.C., English and History: On the contrary, university spirit has superseded college spirit to an unfortunate extent in U.C. at least. The smaller colleges naturally have greater unity.

M. Appel, II Medicine: I cannot say that it has. Hart House, which is symbolic of university spirit, still remains the rallying point for the students of all our colleges.

WILD AND WOOLLY

We once met a man, a Medical student, who said that he would never dance with a girl in English and History. This great denial is typical of the state of mind that looks with suspicion upon the conversation and activities of that comparatively harmless body of men and women reading courses in honour Arts. Harmless they are, yea, weak in the opinion of our brethren in the practical faculties, and their only strong point is this supposed attitude of mental superiority with which they seem to have impressed the hardy ones.

All of which leads us to the question: What is a "high-brow"? He might be called the bogey of ignorant people because most of us will apply the term to anyone by whom we are excelled. But this does not include that very distinct type that exists around us, the witty, superficial, irritating sort of person drawn on one-tenth the scale of those dashing clever people in the post-war English novels. Yet surely these people have a right to their tea-room assemblies in which the voice of a nineteen year old rises from time to time above the atmosphere of crossed legs and smoke to propound the tremendous aphorism: "Ah, yes, Life is Like That." At least they have every bit as much right, they would claim, as have certain of the primitive to demand forty beers at inappropriate times and places. The trouble begins, it appears, when the highbrows attempt to convert the benighted ones or when the other browns, low and broad, suspect a forthcoming missionary effort. This is the situation at the University of Western Ontario, according to the editor of the Western U. Gazette, who has set about the "high-brows" with a vim and vigour worthy of our great Western tradition.

He begins: "When we assumed the editorial chair last fall with all its attendant vicissitudes, we determined on a policy of common-sense editorials in common-sense language." His policy, he believes, has pleased the vast majority of his readers, but a grumbling few still demand a "high-hat" editorial. (Students in honour English are chiefly to blame.) He responds with a mighty philippic against the intelligentsia, a verbal execution of the mentally-elevated. We reproduce it here for the benefit of our Toronto smarties that, seeing the fate of their comrades, they may repeat of their ways. After a hearty breakfast of bacon and caviare, the "high-brows" are taken down a peg by the editorial Ellis from the University of Western Ontario:

"As we have already suggested, there is, on practically every campus in America, a coterie to whom the beautiful in the commonplace does not appeal. In some universities this group, who (though goodness knows what Intelligence has to do with it) delight to be called 'The Intelligentsia', are definitely banded together; in others, as at Western, those who 'belong' are only discoverable by their own announcement in word or in deed. The symptoms may vary with the locality, but the disease is everywhere the same. Some, among the effeminate males of the group, allow their hair to grow poetically; others, it may be, affect fawn overcoats of wing collars; nearly all acquire an accent. What the lady members of this group do, other than acquire the accent, we have never yet investigated. In many institutions, (and it might be in ours, but we don't know), one of the characteristics of this crowd is made manifest in a sudden, uncontrollable and almost divine inspiration to aid in the uplift of the 'dramma' or it may be the 'drammer'.

"One of the greatest dangers of this intellectual hypocrisy which is sweeping our colleges, lies in the fact that it often engenders fads and encourages faddists, coincidentally destroying student initiative in the realms of thought. If Heywood Brown says in the New York Times or the Port Burwell Examiner, that Eugene O'Neill is the greatest American dramatist, what do we find? Do we not find that the 'intelligentsia' of Port Burwell are disappointed when they cannot borrow Eugene O'Neill's plays from the local clergyman, and the 'intelligentsia' of the universities are likewise disappointed unless they can immediately start smearing smut all over their stages? Our argument is this—why not be honest? Why not say what we think and glory in it regardless of what intelligentsia or the critics may say? If we fail to see the overpowering beauty which some professor says there is in Blake's poetry, why go round preaching Blake? If we can sit enthralled by Chopin's Nocturne in D-flat major,

A.C. Players' Guild

"Paths of Glory," an interlude in the private life of General Isaac Brock the night before the Battle of Queenston Heights, written by N. A. Benson, B.A., was the presentation at the University College Players' Guild yesterday afternoon.

Superficially the play treats with the treasonable intentions of Lieutenant D'Arras—a poetic soul whose sheer intelligence has made him a superior soldier. He fails to see that war is his affair, when his women-folk are toiling at home, and consequently contemplates desertion. General Brock, however, by a "men must work and women must weep" speech, wins him over to militarism and the vision of a greater empire.

Mars triumphing over Calliope is the burden of the play. Isaac Brock himself has leanings towards peace, poetry, and farming, but by masterly suppression diverts his yearnings into imperialism. D'Arras is an example of the somewhat discontented thinking individualist, who holds out for a time, but at length succumbs to the tutelar influence of older and wiser heads.

The character of Sir Isaac as outlined by Benson is somewhat puzzling. He hardly appears as the sterling disciplinarian and martinet of the regular army. His political views also perform an alarming volte-face; for in the early parts of the play his utterances would do credit to the Sons of Canada, while in the latter half he seems to forsee Canada as a link of empire.

Lieutenant D'Arras' entry is the beginning of the true dramatic action in the play. At the same time he delivers a touchingly poetic speech on country life and the growth of the soil. D'Arras is the best character in the play, and carries a sad message to those who incline to egotism and pacific radicalism.

Benson handles the machinery of drama very cleverly. The sudden conversion of D'Arras, although smacking of the miracle of grace, is typical of the character portrayed. The playwright also employs a lady just arrived from York in a carriage as sort of a deus ex machina to relieve the awkward tension at the end.

Apart from the length of Brock's part, by which Mr. S. H. Dale's acting suffered to a certain extent, the play was very creditably presented when the obvious difficulties of such undergraduate productions are considered. Mr. Benson himself took the part of D'Arras; Mr. Fauman gave a convincing picture of the colonel of the one-track mind; Mr. Card acted as D'Arras' friend and betrayer. Messrs. Usher, Walkinshaw and Golden also appeared.

N.J.D.

We are beginning to take the revival of Canadian literature very seriously, and after beginning a new Northern Renaissance yesterday with our "Ballade d'un Canadien" we want to prove that there may still be some really good Canadian prose and poetry which has not yet appeared in print. Therefore we offer a prize of five chocolate bars for the best Canadian poem which is submitted to us for publication in this column before February the 24th. The prize-winning efforts must not exceed 20 lines in length and the prize is to be known as the "Champus Cat Memorial Award for Canadian Verse."

As a further stimulus of national effort we begin to-day a thrilling five-part novel of Life in the North-West called:

"PAULINE OF THE PRAIRIE"
Chapter One—"The Oath of an Oxonian"

Nine hundred and ninety-five and a half miles from the nearest Child's Restaurant stood Fort Fruitless on the left bank of the turbid placid Skunk River. Fort Fruitless was a collection of ramshackle buildings like the Don Jail, built of roughly-hewn palm-whittled to a rough degree of inter-tree logs laid each by each and stitial symmetry by Nature's own hand. The Fort was in charge of the honest old Factor, Aloysius McWheele, a parsimonious old Scot who had reached the age of 97 simply because it was against his principle to give up anything, even the ghost. Rigorously he kept the Sabbath and anything else that he could lay his hands on. But despite his icular cast of phiz, there was one thing in this life that made his heart glow, his lovely golden-haired lassie, Pauline. He, the least generous of all men, would have given her anything, even his sparrow. He well remembered when he had first beheld her, lying wrapped in a Hudson Bay blanket of four-ply twist, and he remembered that only one other occasion in this life had given him such pleasure, the time that he had conceived the idea of being married in his own backyard so that the rice might be eaten by his chickens. Pauline was as dear to him as the tobacco that he had to buy every year in Winnipeg. He watched her standing in the light of the September sun setting in the sombre shadow of Fort Fruitless, that Outpost in the Barrens. He why let some critic force us to say that we like Polonaise better, because he, the critic, does?

"In short, why bother with the chimerical vapourings of certain flutulent fanatics dignified by the name of critic and worshipped with a gullible fetishism by the so-called intelligentsia of the campus?"

"True, this specific brand of cerebrasthenia seems to have afflicted chiefly those in the non-creative divisions of student study. The student of science, accustomed as he is to a more careful investigation of anything startlingly new, has, as yet, been happily free from any cataclysmic results of these encephalic waves. May he remain so! For even science is not free from its intelligentsia and its faddists.

"As for the students who are at present afflicted, may we suggest the immediate procuring of a replevinary order for the return of the good old Horse Sense with which they were natively endowed. If the caterwauling of the intelligentsia ever starts growing endogenously, a mighty upheaval will be necessary for the revitalization of student thought.

"As the matter stands at present, it is incumbent upon the rest of us who do not 'belong', to wage a crusade against the deceptive fanfaronading gyrations of this body which can only have emollient effect upon us, replacing our past standards with a flaccidity and an insipidness which we do not covet.

"If the intelligentsia feel that they are the intellectual capitalists, we, ourselves, are ready to turn Bolshevik.

Last night in Newmarket a weakened Varsity Intermediate O.H.A. team was eliminated from the race when they lost 2-0 on the game, and the round 3-0.

The Varsity Intercollegiate basketball team have a tough proposition on their hands when they play Western in London on Saturday night. True enough, Varsity routed the Londoners on their local appearance, but a game in London is an entirely different proposition. Before the home crowd Western usually play their best basketball, and would like nothing better than to avenge themselves for their early season defeat by Varsity as well as last season's reverses. Hence Varsity have been taking no chances and have put in a really strenuous week in anticipation of a hard struggle. The team is in excellent shape with the exception of Johnson, who was hurt early in the season. A win would give the local team a strangle hold on the title, while a defeat—but then they simply can't see such a thing.

This is McGill's year for the annual swimming carnival between Varsity and the Red and White. Varsity are entered at full strength, and with any kind of luck should even better last year's record. The meet will be staged on Friday and Saturday night as per usual. McGill's prospects are more or less unknown, but they can always be counted on to provide plenty of opposition. The Montrealers have been intensely interested in swimming for many years, during which they have won the title many times. Last year's defeat was a sore blow to them and one which they would like to avenge.

Varsity is very fortunate this year in having the annual Intercollegiate assault held here. This occurs only once every three years, and is so treble welcome. The withdrawal of Don Carrick from the heavyweight division has added considerable interest in what is usually counted the most interesting bout of the evening. All three branches of the assault, namely, boxing, fencing and wrestling, will be well represented, especially the boxing and fencing, which in themselves should be able to win enough points to cinch the meet. The wrestling squad are slightly handicapped by lack of experience, but after their recent work out with O.A.C. should be ready to go the route. O.A.C. always furnish the toughest opposition in wrestling, and simply because the team was beaten by them is no indication what the Blue boys will do against McGill and Queen's.

Credit where credit is due is the only thing, and we have been guilty of error in the past. "Bill" Winterburn has been given the credit for coaching the Varsity Intercollegiate water polo and swimming teams this year and he disclaims all and sundry honours. "Les" Blackwell coached the water polo team to their first Intercollegiate victory last year, and Mr. Paul Copeland has been entrusted with repeating the order this year. "Fran" Lorenzen and Mr. A. Goss have charge of the swimmers this year and are taking a smart team to Montreal to-day. About three records are expected to be broken.

FLYING CLUB TALK BY PROF. PARKIN

Stability of Aeroplanes and Practical Flying Fully Discussed

TYPES OF STABILITY

"Some people think that a perfectly stable aeroplane is a fine thing, but it is in reality far from it," stated Prof. J. H. Parkin in his lecture last night to the Toronto Flying Club. "Such a machine is very difficult to land, and impossible to manoeuvre quickly. A perfectly stable machine has such a tendency to return to a normal flying attitude that it is a hard job to force it out of such an attitude. The ideal type of machine for ordinary sport and commercial work is one which when swung out of neutral will show a not-too-marked tendency to return."

SERIES TO BEGIN MONDAY ON ASPECTS OF WRITING

Courses Given in Journalism Sponsored by Fraternity Will Last Three Weeks

Napier Moore, editor of McLean's Magazine, will be the first speaker in the fifth annual course of lectures on journalistic subjects which opens next Monday. Mr. Moore will speak on "The Harvest of the Fourth Estate."

The course is put on under the auspices of Sigma Delta Chi, the Professional Journalistic Fraternity, and the Department of University Extension.

The first lecture will be held in the Mining Building at 5 p.m. next Monday, February 20.

The complete programme is as follows:

Monday, Feb. 20—"The Harvest of the Fourth Estate." Napier Moore, editor, McLean's Magazine.

Wednesday, Feb. 22—"Dramatic Criticism in a Daily." Augustus Bridle, The Toronto Star.

Monday, Feb. 27—"Journalism from the Magazine Angle." J. L. Rutledge, editor, Canadian Magazine.

Wednesday, Feb. 29—"The Financial Pages." W. J. Jeffers, financial editor, The Globe.

Monday, March 5—"Woman's Field in Journalism." Miss Anne Elizabeth Wilson, of McLean Publishing Co.

Each lecture commences at 5 p.m., Mining Building, University of Toronto.

Admission each lecture, 25 cents, or complete series $1.00. Tickets on sale at Extension Office, Simcoe Hall, S.A.C. Office, Hart House, and Room 82, University College.

The lecturer went on to describe the types of longitudinal stability, and discussed the necessity for having both static and dynamic stability. If a machine has only static stability, it tends to return to a neutral position when thrown off. A machine having both static and dynamic stability not only tends to return but actually does.

Lateral stability, "rolling and yawing," was discussed, and inherent and automatic stability were touched upon.

In an ordinary aeroplane, the required longitudinal stability is obtained by the use of the elevator surfaces, which counteract the very unstable effect of the wings, which is due to their cambered shape. A pitching moment curve was shown, which is an index to the stability of a given type of plane.

After Prof. Parkin's lecture, Captain G. Carter Guest, the instructor to the Flying Club, gave a talk on "Practical Flying," illustrating his remarks by a model of a Nieuport Scout, one of the famous war-time machines.

SWIMMING AND POLO TEAMS ARE STRONG

Latchford and Goss Are Stars in Line-up for Friday's Meet at McGill

OLYMPIC MATERIAL

This week-end will witness the annual swimming meet between McGill and Toronto at Montreal. These two colleges have been old rivals for many years in all lines of sport, and swimming and water polo are no exception. It is to be regretted that these two sports do not receive greater publicity and support, as there are no two sports more interesting or exciting. Varsity have hopes of winning both events, and thus duplicate last year's performance.

The water polo team leaves Friday for Montreal and is composed of several of last year's stars and some really clever newcomers. In exhibition games to date the team has done remarkably well and hope to keep up the good work in the Quebec city. Most of the teams are well known to all followers of polo, especially Hetherington, Sinclair and Leo Latchford.

These boys are old hands at the game, and with Walker, Baker, Graham, Thompson and Wansbrough round out a team that has all kinds of speed and scoring ability. Leo Latchford is one of the fastest and most effective forwards ever seen at Varsity.

The Blue took the laurels from McGill last year after a ten year attempt and hope to keep them for a while longer in Toronto. And after watching the team in practice there seems no conceivable reason why they shouldn't.

The swimming squad expect to entrain Thursday, and are taking with them several stand-bys as well as several promising newcomers. Johnny Goss is captain and needs no introduction. As a speed swimmer he is second to none in Canada and seems almost certain to land a place on the Olympic team. Leo Latchford is again performing the "iron man" stunt playing on the polo team as well as swimming. Tommy Marsh, Eddie Sinclair, who is incidentally duplicating Latchford's feat, and Lloyd Boddy are ex-U.T.S. stalwarts and should give a good account of themselves. Scott, Ross, Thompson and Bertram compose the remainder of the team. The divers are Merrill, Gunn and Gundy. Such an array of talent should be more than able to cope with any team, even the highly touted Red and White.

The following are the swimming events:

1. 50 Yards free style.
2. 200 Yards free style.
3. Fancy diving.
4. 100 Yards back stroke.
5. Novelty event by home club.
6. 100 Yards free style.
7. 100 Yards breast stroke.
8. 400 Yards free style.
9. Novelty event.
10. Relay race, 200 yards, four men each 50 yards.

INTERFACULTY SPORTS

Senior Vic. quintet, playing a sparkling brand of basketball, defeated Senior S.P.S. 50-22, and thus advanced into the play-off for the Sifton Cup. Senior Vic. have yet to lose a game, and their exhibition last evening gives the reason for their success. Playing a dashing, fast passing game, Vic. were by far superior to the Schoolmen.

In the first half play lagged a slight bit at the start but livened up towards the end. At half time the score was 21-7 for Vic. It was in the second half that the best basketball was played. Collins for S.P.S. in this half ran in seven field goals and scored a foul; this constituted all the scoring for School. It would be hard to pick out the stars for Vic. Stouffer of Vic. was high scorer for his team with 11 points. Kenny on defence played a beautiful game, both offensively and defensively. The rest of the Vic. team were on a par, both regulars and substitutes.

Line-up:

Sr. Vic.: King, r.f.; Daly, l.f.; Johnston, c.; De Roche, r.g.; Kenny, l.g.; Ashton, Bryden, Stouffer, Donohue, subs.

Sr. S.P.S.: Swartman, r.f.; Collins, l.f.; Parkins, c.; Emerson, r.g.; Woodside, l.g.; Long, McDonald, subs.

watched her as she playfully stroked a porcupine the wrong way and threw pine-knots at an Arctic woodpecker.

Far from this scene, down the turbulent tossing Skunk River, came a stalwart, sun-bronzed Apollo paddling precariously his birch-bark canoe. The sun set on his folsome features with a beauty unobserved by him; he was out to Get His Man!—He was a Mountie!—his Red Tunic shone on the waters like a September maple leaf.

This was Algernon Asselthwaite, former remittance man of Thwaite Towers, Perks, Bunks, Upshire, England. Twenty years ago he had been shipped to Canada, for his cousin, Percival Pune, had accused him before Lord Asselthwaite of having thrown crumpets at his little sister's governess—and he had been packed off to Canada, the land of forgotten men. But in his heart he had sworn to find Percival Pune again, and force the truth from him. So now he was paddling to Fort Fruitless where Percival had been seen shooting snipe three years ago—Oswald had sworn vengeance and he was out to Get His Man!...

There our chapter must end, for we are dashing off to read a little biology in order to be in time for Daffydil Night, and after a rip-snorting Rabelaisian evening, we hope to give Chapter Two something of life in the rough, as it is lived once a year, by the men of Medicine. N.A.B.

on old opinion and ideas, it's function is not being fulfilled.

"The Scottish settlers were largely instrumental in changing this attitude.
The old settlers demanded higher education for their sons free from all trammels—ecclesiastical, political or otherwise. Thus for many years there was a struggle between what might be called 'privilege' in higher education and 'democracy' in higher education."

Sir Robert praised the system of "honours" degrees in Canadian universities. "This process of differentiation means that students of special aptitude are allowed to carry further along in studies in which they are interested. Intellectual power comes from interest and will be carried further if exercised along lines in which the student is interested."

W. A. Gilbert represented the University of Toronto at the banquet, and spoke concerning the amiable relations that exist between the two universities.

executive of the council be empowered to act through the joint executive mittee of the board of governors what had become of the design for an official crest which had been submitted for their consideration last year.

The report of the Literary and Debates Committee re the visit of the Maritime debaters revealed the fact that the expenses incurred by the council were sixty-one dollars, sixty dollars of which was covered by the guarantee and the extra dollar was incurred in meeting the debaters.

Mr. Arnold's (U.C.) motion that a picture of the council be presented to every member in the photograph was defeated on account of a scarcity of funds.

C. O. T. C.

The annual inspection of the U. of
T. C.O.T.C. will take place at the University Avenue Armouries on Friday evening, 23rd March, 1928.

All cadets are reminded of the fact that besides being otherwise "efficient" they must attend the pre-inspection parade and the annual inspection, to be eligible for a grant.

The responsibility of seeing that their attendance is correctly marked up lies with the individual cadet. This year no revision of the attendance list will be made after the annual inspection.

All ranks are reminded of the fact that they must complete their musketry in order to be listed "efficient;"
this should be done at once. The following are the hours at the rifle range:

Mondays—2 to 4, any company.
Tuesdays—12 to 1, any company;
5 to 6, "B" Co., No. 7 Pln.
Thursdays—12 to 1, "C" Co.; 5 to 6, any company, commencing Feb. 16.
Fridays—12 to 1, any company.

White-clad Chefs the Ghosts of Dark Hart House Caverns

ing along one corridor, came only to the kitchens where white clad chefs were preparing for the Vic. At-Home.
Thus they essayed another dark passage, but it led only to the rifle range, where terrible things were happening,
such as men shooting at little cards.
This they found to be the lowest place in Hart House. It is on a level with the theatre, which is one hundred per cent underground. So in despair they interviewed one of the help of Hart House. Here also they were doomed to disappointment, for he, too, attested to the fact that one could not penetrate no lower than the theatre. Indeed, what passages there are, are very modern with central heating and electric lighting. And so if any students would find hide beneath the earth they must find other places than Hart House.

VARSITY SENIOR O.H.A. TO PLAY KITCHENER AT ARENA TO-NIGHT

Green Shirts Will Provide Toughest Opposition for Blue

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED
Varsity and Preston Play-off if Kitchener is Eliminated

To-night at the Varsity Arena the fans should be treated to one of the most thrilling hockey games of the season, when the Blue and White Senior O.H.A. team meet the fast travelling Kitchener Green Shirts. The visiting sextet have come into their own in the last few games, with the result that they are now in third position, only one game behind Varsity and Preston, who are tied for the leadership. Last Monday evening in Kitchener the Green Shirts had the satisfaction of topping the Blue and White off the top rung when they defeated Mike Pearson's aggregation decisively 6 to 2, making this Varsity's second loss of the season, as they were previously defeated by the Preston Riversiders. Kitchener put up a great argument last Monday and presented a stubborn defence which Varsity could not penetrate, and to-night they are expected to give even stiffer opposition, as a win puts them on an even basis with the students and gives them a promising opportunity to clinch a play-off position. Karges, Molson and Seagram have been playing great hockey for the Green Shirts and to-night will provide the toughest opposition for the Varsity defence.

QUEEN'S MIT, MAT AND FOIL MEN WILL INCLUDE MANY NEW FACES

Intercollegiate Contestants Only One Member of Last Year's Squad to Make Trip to Toronto

WRESTLERS EXPERIENCED

This Year's Aggregation Stronger By the Presence of New Men

Special to "The Varsity" from "Queen's Journal"

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 16.—The 1928 assault team of Queen's University presents many new faces. The boxing team in particular has undergone complete renovation. Owing to illness and injury, three members of last year's squad dropped out early this year, leaving only one member of last year's team to make the trip to Toronto.

The team has been considerably strengthened by the new members, however. Coach Jarvis has proved himself adept at whipping raw material into shape, and is sending an octette of leather pushers to the Queen City meet, who, on their form in the four assaults in which they have already competed, are better conditioned and considerably more conversant with the art of giving without taking.

Come From Behind To Win Thrilling Game 41—36

PUTNAM AND BURNS STAR

On Wednesday night in Guelph the most thrilling Intermediate basketball game in the history of Intercollegiate circles was staged when Varsity Seconds came from behind to win 41-36. Varsity entered the game cold, and the O.A.C. stalwarts quickly ran up a fairly safe lead. Once warmed up, the visiting team got their combination working and reduced the lead enough to make the Guelph fans excited.

Putnam and Burns were perhaps the best on the Blue team and played well

INTERCOLLEGIATE ASSAULT-AT-ARMS CONTESTED IN HART HOUSE TO-NIGHT

Governor General At Hart House

The Governor General and Lady Willington paid a short and unofficial visit to Hart House yesterday afternoon. Their Excellencies went to the Warden's office at about a quarter to five, where they met the Board of Stewards informally.

Lady Willington also honoured the lecture on Mental Hygiene in Convocation Hall with her presence.

Varsity's Team Inexperienced In Intercollegiate Series

DRAW KNOWN TO-NIGHT

Varsity Four Times Champions Hope For Fifth Victory

Once in three years the sporting fans of Toronto are treated with the Intercollegiate Assault-at-arms, and this being the third year, McGill, Queen's and Varsity assemble in Hart House to decide the title to-night and to-morrow night. The Blue team has won the championship for the past four years, and the B. W. and F. coaches are out to make it five; but unless advance notices are very much off colour, Varsity will be extended to the limit in order to retain the silverware for another year. Both Queen's and McGill have strong entries this year, and every bout on the cards will be hard fought.

VARSITY BASKETEERS PLAY WESTERN

A Win for the Blue and White Will Make First Place a Certainty

VARSITY IN GOOD FORM

The Varsity basketball team travels to Western University to-morrow evening to take on the London representatives in an Intercollegiate fixture that means a great deal to both teams. A loss for the Western team will make it hard sledding for them to cop the cage title, while a win for the Blue and White will give the McEntee coached squad a stranglehold on the first place. The four teams in the series have each won two games, while the Blue and White quintet is the only one that has not suffered a loss to date.

The Western University team has the ability to win at its home floor with a good deal of consistency, and last year after Varsity defeated them decisively in Toronto, turned around and handed the Blues a defeat; and what is more, won the Intercollegiate title. The Westerners have still a chance of repeating last year's performance if they lose no more games, and if the Varsity team drops two fixtures there will be a strong possibility for a tie for first place; but the way the big Blue squad is going now there does not seem to be any likelihood of them dropping a game to the Western team, although "you never can tell." Whichever way the set-to goes there is bound to be a smart tussle, and the Western students are in for a real evening's entertainment.

One feature of the Varsity team is the comparative inexperience of the men, that is as far as Intercollegiate sport is concerned. The men have all had experience, but a very small percentage have faced either the Tricolour or the Red in scheduled bouts. Another feature of the local team is the hitting of the boxers; each man on the squad hits right from the shoulder and hits hard with much snap. The wrestlers are an almost unknown quantity aside from three past Intercollegiate champions who are expected to repeat again this time. In the fencing Dymant and Keffer have both been on the team, and under the new ruling with Dunlap as third man, the six visiting foil men will have to be very alert to get the points.

"Joe" Mahon is coming out of retirement after a year's lay-off, and this heady, careful boxer will try to maintain his unbroken string of Intercollegiate wins. Next in line is Wood of School, who will attempt to take Don Carrick's place. "Woodie" is by no means the finished boxer that Carrick is, but he packs a great punch, and we have an idea that those things help. Magee and Sprott are newcomers to the squad, and though making their debut, are well known locally, both being noted for their K.O.'s. Fell at 118 lbs. is also experienced, and, like a good boxer, knows when to step in and when to step out. Of "Jack" Beer nothing need be said. He is last year's champion and is called to retirement.

McGILL B. W. AND F. TEAMS AT ASSAULT AT HART HOUSE

Wrestling Team Weakened by Loss of Derrick, Krupken and Ciley

SILVER WRESTLES AGAIN

Musselman and Taylor Show Up Well in Bouts; Fencers in Good Form

Special despatch to "The Varsity" from "McGill Daily"

Montreal, Que., Feb. 16.—The McGill B. W. and F. teams leaves to-night for Toronto. The wrestling team has been seriously affected by the loss of Derrick, 134 lb., Intercollegiate champion, owing to exams on Friday, as are Krupken and Ciley, college champions in 118 and 159 respectively, Krupken being out owing to injury received in a practice.

Schleiffer fights in 112 lb. boxing, and was runner-up last year in the Intercollegiate. Brain in 118 boxing, also runner-up last year, has shown improved form this year. "Barney" Musselman, Intercollegiate champion in 126 lbs., again entered and has shown up well so far. Lyon Stein fights in 135 boxing and won his event in the college assault. Lucien Trudel, 147 lb. boxer, is famous here for his heavy hitting, having scored several knock-outs in practices. Doran, 160 lb. boxer, fights steadily and has good style. Harry Boyce in 175 lbs. is in good condition and hits hard. Fred Taylor, heavyweight, has greatly improved over last year, when he was knocked out by Carrick. Bert Light is boxing coach.

Silver, 112 lb. Intercollegiate champion, is entered again in wrestling. Berger, 118 lb. wrestler, and runner-up in the college assault, takes the place of Krupken, who as mentioned above is detained in the city. Greenberg will go as 123 lb. wrestler, and Gordon as 134. Gordon showed up well in practice meets. Touzel, Intercollegiate 145 lb. entry, takes Ciley's place and has shown fairly good form this season. Quinton, 175 lb. wrestler, has won all his practice bouts this year, and Church, the heavyweight, stood up fairly well against Stocton, Olympic wrestler in the Y.M.C.A. meet last fall. George Smith is wrestling coach.

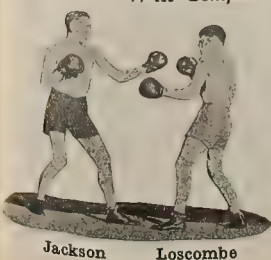

The fencing team consists of Desbarats, McKergow and Brown. All did fair in the meet with Norwich here lately. The fencing coach is Raimondi.

GAMES TO-DAY

St. Mike's vs. Forestry, 5 p.m., in a cushion.
The O.C.E. Pharmacy game scheduled for to-day will not be played.

Will Compete To-night

These two ring men are new to the Intercollegiate squad, but in all bouts this season have shown that they have a right there now. Jackson is particularly famous for his K.O. blow, and Loscombe is not far from him.

BOOKS, STUDENTS AND THE FACULTY

"Out of the Faculty desk." The first time the student hears this, on applying for a book at the Library, he is apt to feel somewhat flattered. It is evident to him that he and the Faculty have tastes in common in literature. After a decent interval he applies again only to be greeted with the same answer—and this may continue indefinitely. Or perhaps a compassionate Librarian suggests having the book recalled. At first this seems a rather drastic measure since it is a case of the Faculty, but it is probably only a short time before the student becomes quite brazen about it. If not, his reading is likely to be restricted to text books recommended in lectures. Of contemporary literature, of the books which are being talked about, he will know nothing.

It is generally recognized that the student aims to get at least a smattering of knowledge of things outside his immediate course. If he hears a book discussed the desire may seize him to glance through it that he may know something about it. If the book has to be recalled, in the first place he may feel the matter is not important enough to justify his extracting it from someone, or if he does recall it, by the time the book is available he has lost interest, or other things of more importance takes his time.

When the undergraduate borrows an overnight book from the Library he does not dare to keep it later than ten o'clock of the following morning. As for a day overtime on a week book, the amount of the fine is enough to discourage any lapse of memory—the mere thought conjures up visions of a lunchless week. No one questions the necessity of such rules. They are quite indispensable if the books are to be accessible to the great number using the Library. But if the students are to be held to account so strictly, is it quite fair that members of the Faculty may take out books and keep them for an apparently indefinite length of time? Surely they have means of obtaining books which the student has not; their need of a library is surely less.

It is certain that if a book is taken out with no time limit set, there is nothing easier than to let time slip by without realizing the extent of the period. On the other hand, there is something decidedly unpleasant in demanding the return of a book. One gets the uncomfortable feeling that it has been snatched out of the reader's hands while he is at the most interesting point.

The situation is one which can have small advantages for the Faculty while it has decided disadvantages for the student. Could there be any objection to a time limit being set for the Faculty as well as the student body?

HAVE WE A THEATRE?

The approach of the elections for the Standing Committees of Hart House necessarily directs student attention toward the system on which this house is run. The committee system, used so successfully in most clubs, proves no less effective when applied to Hart House. It is doubtful if a system could be devised which would stimulate more active interest in the various departments of the house among members than the present one.

However, why should we curtail a good system? Why limit the committee system to the familiar House, Hall, Library, Music, Billiard and Sketch Committees? Could not a theatre committee be included?

At present, although supposedly an integral part of Hart House, members of the house have absolutely no representation on the Board of Syndics of Hart House Theatre.

The Theatre is at present no more a part of the University than a down town professional theatre, as far as undergraduates are concerned.

It would be interesting to ascertain what percentage of the audience at a regular production of the theatre are students. Or, to draw the point still further, what percentage of the talent used

THE CHAMPUS ECLECTIC PRIMER LESSON V

Here we have a sergeant in the training corps.

He walks behind a company like he had splints on his knees, and carries a howitzer at half-mast.

He looks as if he were fond of human blood and delighted in carnage.

Has the sergeant ever been in a war?

No.

Then what does the sergeant know about war?

Loneliness in the sigh of the night-winds,
But I shall not think of thee more.

Deep in the sanded sea;
Grief in the heart of a rose-bud,
But I have forgotten thee.

in productions is taken from undergraduates, or even graduates of this University.

We often hear the self satisfied statement, "Our University has the best equipped and most complete Little Theatre in Canada." This statement is not in accordance with the facts, for while Hart House Theatre is undoubtedly the best equipped Little Theatre in Canada, the undergraduates of the University of Toronto cannot conscientiously claim to be giving this Theatre support, either actively or by attendance at the performances.

Under these conditions it is not to be wondered at that we continually hear complaints of lack of student interest in the Theatre.

The remedy lies not in the hands of the Director. As long as students have no say whatever in the destiny or policies of the Theatre, he cannot be expected to obtain full student support.

The solution, in our opinion, is in the election of a committee of two from members of Hart House to comprise, with the present members of the board, the Board of Syndics, and thus have some voice in the affairs of the Theatre. In this way a feeling of interest and concern for the welfare of the Theatre could be aroused among the undergraduates.

"THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES"

Yesterday the Women's Staff of "The Varsity" placed its third and only remaining sign on the office door, the other two having been bewitched in the dead of night and transported away by unseen hands,—supposedly. We rejoice that someone has thought enough of the staff, or the signs, to so cherish them, and realize that they would well relieve the monotony of white-washed residence walls, or fraternity wall papers. The custom is harmless, if the signs be obsolete. This one was not. Without it, several individuals of doubtful origin have followed the "out" sign in the front rotunda of University College, into the Women's Office. It has been mistaken for the President's office, the Caretakers' Club Room, and on Thursdays, for an umbrella and rubber depository for the U.C. lectures. It is in the interests of the embarrassed public as well as the harassed staff that this one remain.

The craze for sign-collecting has spread to an almost kleptomaniacal degree. The length of time in which an announcement can influence the public is distinctly limited. It extends from the moment the hard-working poster-maker "thumb-tacks" it up, to the first minute it is left unguarded, and sometimes not that long. We envision a future in which signs will be engraved in stone and chained to the eternal porticos of the University's halls.

Within the last week, however, this craze for collecting has thoughtlessly overstepped the mark. A rather valuable sign belonging to the U.C. Players' Guild, which was used week by week, has been spirited away. As it represents many hours of artistic labour, and is not an "incidental announcement," we are sure that whoever is guarding it will be glad to restore it to its original home.

Living in a world of their own they are practically purblind to outside viewpoints. But on graduation they seem to be forced to acquire a toleration which would have been greatly desirable at an earlier stage.

Miss M. Binning, III Vic.: They certainly shouldn't be, but at times one is forced to acknowledge that human nature gets the better of education.

SENIOR O.H.A. HOCKEY TO-NIGHT

On the other hand, a win to-night for Varsity will practically eliminate Kitchener and leave Preston and Varsity in the play-offs, unless the Green Shirts can deliver a win against Preston. With these three teams fighting for two play-off positions to-night's game should draw a record crowd to the Arena to cheer their Alma Mater to victory.

LADY WILLINGDON ATTENDS ADDRESS

per cent. of the school children are in need of mental hygiene treatment. Dr. Martin pointed out that the national efficiency was endangered by these conditions. It was to guard against this national danger that the society was organized. The psychologists have also joined these progressive ranks. The scope of the education undertaken by the National Committee for Mental Hygiene is very wide and has met with great results. Medical schools have been founded; courses for studies and research and mental clinics have been established in hospitals, and classes for parent education have been started. In seven of the provinces of Canada six million dollars have been spent on these improvements. Fourteen fellowships have been founded for study abroad, and for the first time in the history of Canadian universities twenty scientific scholars representing all Canada have come together and formed a committee to work on this subject. Many mental hospitals for the care and cure of mental disorders have been founded throughout Canada. Two hundred classes for mentally deficient children have been started, and one hundred thousand dollars have been spent in founding nursery schools for the study of the mental child of pre-school age.

The society aims through the government, the doctor, the social worker, the nurse and the citizen to achieve its purpose. Mr. Martin said in closing that medicine alone could not solve this difficulty of mental hygiene but must turn to the scriptures and the lives of the saints to help solve this problem. Sir Robert Falconer, who had introduced Mr. Martin, thanked him for his exposition of the work of the society and pointed out the value and power of public interest and opinion on this work. He then asked Lady Willingdon to say a few words. Lady Willingdon, who had come from Ottawa just to attend this meeting, expressed her pleasure at being present, and stated that a very important question mental hygiene was for a young growing country like Canada. She has given her patronage to the society and her name and prestige to the Lady Willingdon Fund, which she said she hoped would gain the support of many. Lady Willingdon then very graciously thanked Dr. Martin for his splendid address.

One thing which has been noticeable in the exhibition assaults and elimination bouts is that this year's team can hit. Three of them, Hank Brown, the heavyweight, Agnew, the welter, and Baker, the featherweight representative, have wallops which mean curtains for their recipient. Brown in particular is possessed of a murderous right-hand punch, and a left hook which is almost as effective. Jolliffe, the middleweight, is the boy who lost to the Toronto champion last year. This, by the way, was his only defeat. He is faster this year than last, and has developed a stiff wallop in either hand.

Eric Nichol, the light-heavy, is substituting for Cliff Howard, out with a broken hand. Nichol has a solid two-handed punch and is a glutton for punishment. He is a fair boxer.

The lightweight division will be represented by Claire White, a shifty boy who can box.

In the bantam and flyweight classes Roberts and Seright will try conclusions with Varsity and McGill. These two newcomers have shown up remarkably well. Both are fast and pack stiff punches for their weights. They are regarded as two of Jarvis' best discoveries.

With the wrestlers the big ace is Dutch Honsberger, Intercollegiate middleweight champion and holder of a decision over the champion of Canada. Close on his heels are Cornell, former lightweight title-holder, and Simpson, the 147 pounder, who recently took a bout from the Ontario champion.

George Ketiladze, the giant Georgian, who won the title in his division last year, is in better shape than ever. The Cossack recently won from "Tirpo" Brown.

Earl Nagel, of snap back fame, will essay a comeback at the meet game in the light-heavyweight division.

The other members of the wrestling squad are Hall, featherweight, a former Intercollegiate representative who has returned to college, Wallbridge, who was on the team last year, and Sanders, the flyweight, who is something of a dark horse.

The wrestling team is more experiauditorium of the Women's Union.

A number of graduates in French will present "L'Epreuve," a one-act comedy by Marivaux. The play is under the direction of Prof. Green, and will be given in costume. Refreshments will be served as usual. Don't miss this evening.

peat again this year.

Coaches Martin and Durnan have been at the wrestlers ever since the term started last fall, and with a lot of new blood added to some of the old stock, a real snappy aggregation is the result. Only one of last year's champions is with the squad, and that is President Calman in the light-heavy division. "Cal" is expected to come through again this time. Both Marshall and Hilliard are former Intercollegiate champions and are back in the game again after a year or two absence; the two of them weigh 228 lbs., and each pound is stored full of energy. Jenner at 123 is entirely new to even local circles, but if he displays the aggressiveness this week that he did last, he will win by a mile. "Al" Grant, Diprose and Furbur are all well known in local circles at least, and though their opposition is highly touted, we won't believe them defeated until the last overtime is up.

Messrs. Walters and Moore of experience fame have been untiring in their efforts to again turn out a team that will win the foil title. Jack Dymont, their chief protégé, is exceptionally fast on his attacks and often takes his opponents by surprise; his foil darts in with the rapidity of a viper's tongue. Keffer, the second man on the team, is a "south-paw," and as a left-hander is bound to give some trouble to his opponents; he seems to rely more on ripostes than attacks. Dunlap is an all-round fencer, being strong both defensively and offensively.

The draw will not be announced until this afternoon, and it often happens that some of the best bouts of the meet are run off the first evening. This is an opportunity that ring and mat fans should not pass up in a hurry—once in three years is not a very big average for an Intercollegiate event.

enced than the boxers, and indeed present a formidable array, but Jack Jarvis' proteges are all of the type who are dangerous while they are in the ring. None of them has been knocked out.

UNIVERSITY SETTLEMENT HAS MANY PARTIES

The University Settlement House is the scene of many parties this week. Here St. Valentine's Day is not restricted to the 14th, since every day there are to be at least two parties. Each club has its own separate celebration from the smallest boys and girls to the men's and women's clubs. The Settlement is gaily decorated with hearts, tulips and red candles. The programmes at the various parties are much alike, consisting in Valentine games, stunts, contests and races. A real postman who delivered a Valentine to everyone present was an interesting feature of the little boys' and girls' party. Of course each party was closed with appropriate St. Valentine refreshments.

RESEARCH WORK DESTROYED BY FIRE

The results of a year and a half of work went up in smoke when the notes of Dr. Harry Borsook were burnt during the fire at the University Medical Building. The notes were the results of 18 months' observation of Arginine, an element which influences proteins. The work will all have to be repeated, though Dr. Borsook hopes that it will not take so long the second time. Researches on the normal metabolism of sugar and starches, and his investigations of the changes caused by Vitamin B will be delayed for two months, while new apparatus is being constructed, said Dr. Borsook.

both defensively and on the attack. Stevenson and Dunn were also good. A feature of the game was the prevalence of personal fouls. Every man on the Varsity team had three personal fouls on him, and another would have meant banishment. As it was, two Guelph men received undesired rests on similar charges.

With the opening of the second frame Toronto quickly reduced a large lead through a sensational rally, and after time out went at it again and a see-saw battle resulted. With two and a half minutes to go, a pretty combination threw Varsity into the lead, and five points was the meagre margin as the game ended.

A novel and successful class party was held at the Women's Union on Monday evening in the form of a bridge by the third year women of University College.

SCHOOL ORGANIZED IN 1915

This is the first of a series of articles dealing with the history of faculties in the University of Toronto. The next will appear in an early issue.

Graduate studies of a sort have been carried on at the University of Toronto ever since the inauguration of lectures in 1843, and traces of the present faculty may be seen as far back as 1897, when the research degree of Ph.D. was established by the Senate. But it was not until 1922 that the Board of Graduate Studies, formed in 1915 for Arts only, was, on the recommendation of a special committee, transformed into the School of Graduate Studies, and recognized as a separate faculty of the University.

Its administration is in the hands of "The Council of the School of Graduate Studies" which consists of the President of the University, the Dean of the School, and "those members to the University faculties of professional rank who are conducting or directing the work of graduate character." And there is as well an Executive Committee, comprising the President, the Dean and nineteen members from the faculties of Arts, Medicine, Applied Science, Engineering, and Forestry. The students, of course, must be bonafide graduates of a university, and must conform to

BOURNE OF MCGILL IS STAR

Johnny Goss and Leo Latchford Make Points Pile Up for Varsity

The Varsity swimming team was very successful at Montreal on Friday, winning the Intercollegiate championship for the third consecutive year. As the point score, 44½ to 26½, indicates, the Varsity swimmers took the honours from McGill by a decisive margin.

Bourne of McGill proved to be something of a sensation and was the individual star in Friday night's performance. He scored over half of McGill's points himself, setting two new records, a new Intercollegiate record of 56.3-5 secs. for the 100 yard free style and a new Canadian record of 1 min. 9.2-5 secs. for the 100 yard back stroke.

Johnny Goss and Leo Latchford of Varsity were the next most persistent point winners. Leo won the 50 yard free style handily and took second place in the 100 yard back stroke. Johnny Goss came through with a first in the 200 yard free style and second in the 100 yard free style.

Mort Gibbons for the third consecutive year captured the Intercollegiate diving title. Varsity's divers, Gundy and Gundy, took second and third places in this event.

The Champions of the World

When They Were "Undergrads"

First they were the "Grads," then "Wonder Team," later the "Olympics," but now they are "Champions of the World," representing Canada, Toronto and "Varsity."

Three games in three days and on bad ice, their total amounted to only 38 tallies, while the opposition registered none. Sweden went down 11-0, England followed 14-0, with Switzerland taking a 13-0 defeat.

This team has turned in a wonderful record during its short existence, and fought their way through the O.H.A. Eastern play-downs, and finally won the Allan Cup in a spectacular series with Fort William a year ago. This year a strenuous exhibition series was run off prior to their crossing the Atlantic, and in these games three separate teams of ten took the ice in attempts to provide real opposition.

More exhibitions in Europe and then the Olympic games,—games which demonstrated Canada's superiority in her own winter sport.

NEW GUINEA MEN WEAR TAIL

"All unmarried men live not with their families but in a class by themselves," said Sir Bertram Windle, in speaking of the people of New Guinea on Friday. This was the seventh of a series of lectures on India, and described the customs of Assam, Burma, the Malay Peninsula, Siam, Cambodia and Annam.

These New Guinea folk, when in full dress, wear a tail festooned with human hair, which custom is gradually dying out. The coming of the white race has not meant entirely improvement; the abstinence from mild beer has resulted in the use of opium, while the adoption of European clothing has led to increased disease. A suggestion was made that missionaries have a practical course in ethnology which might lead to a realization of the danger of too rapid change. Obscenity, the "fungus of civilization," is very seldom apparent among primitive people, and when found is severely punished. Most primitive communities have a very high morality.

In Rangoon, elephants were shown pushing and lifting tack, a very heavy wood, and rice boats with most extraordinary wood carving, the steersman's seat resembling a royal chair. Another temple, with walls of gold leaf, is supposed to hide eight hairs of Buddha. The Burmese wood carving reached a high water mark in art.

The people are small, with a Mongolian cast of countenance. They wear the characteristic rain hat; men carry umbrellas, and drive bullock carts. The women are proverbial smokers, and noted for their dancing performances.

Cambodia, belonging to France, has a puzzling history. At one time it had a remarkable civilization; to-day it resembles the Burmese. The oriental orchestra uses the xylophone and symbols.

at Wrestling

University of Toronto smashed, grizzled and parried its way to its fifth consecutive Intercollegiate assault championship on Friday and Saturday nights of last week when they collected 10 points. Queen's made great advances by running up 6, while McGill fell down badly with only 3. Queen's was strong in the wrestling division, winning 5 of the 8 titles and but one boxing event. Varsity was strong in the boxing and fencing, and in the former won 13 bouts, including preliminaries and finals, 8 of these being by the K.O. route.

Jackson was the only one to register a clean K.O., and this hard hitting Varsity man sent Doran of McGill to the floor for the count after 2 min. 40 sec. of boxing. The local mit artists clearly outclassed their opponents for six of the eight weights, as four technical K.O.'s and a K.O. accounted for five of the wins.

"Jackie" Beer did the usual thing in carrying off the 112 lb. class, winning both his bouts by technical knock-outs. The same applies to the other three lighter classes, in which Fell, McGee and Sprott all polished off their opposition.

Loscombe, although handicapped by an injured wrist, none the less won handily over Trudell of McGill. In the middleweight division, Jackson, having gained a close decision over the clever Joliffe of Queen's in the semi-finals, came back with a bang on Saturday night, and took Doran of McGill into camp after a few moments terrific action.

In the light-heavy class Woods of Varsity put up a tremendously fine show of gameness against the automatic punching Nicol from Queen's.

"LA PRESSE" PAYS TRIBUTE

A funeral service for Professor John Squair was held Friday afternoon at his late residence, 368 Palmerston Boulevard.

The service was brief, and Rev. Stuart Parker of New St. Andrew's Church and Dr. Thomas Eakin of Knox College officiated.

Besides relatives and friends and members of the University staff, Sir Robert Falconer and Principal Hutton were among those who paid their last respects.

The pall-bearers at the house were Mr. W. D. Gregory, Mr. Gordon Waldron, K.C., Dr. J. C. McLennan, Dr. W. A. Parks, Mr. R. J. Hamilton and Prof. St. Elme de Champ. Immediately following the service the body was taken by motor to Bowmanville for interment in the family plot. At Bowmanville the local minister, Mr. Best, conducted the service at the graveside. The bearers were all nephews of the late Prof. Squair; Messrs. Kyle Squair, Lawrence Squair, William Moffatt, Roy Longmaid, Alec Proust and Everson Proust. AT ART GALLERY

"Art is the spontaneous expression of the soul," said Mr. Arthur Lismer in his lecture on recent Canadian art, at the Art Gallery on Friday evening.

The speaker stated that the only way to prevent stagnation in art was to allow artists the same room for experimentation and progress as was accorded to scientists. Art was a process of becoming, a pathway that reached a summit only to begin and decline.

A nation might draw its inspiration from another nation, but it could never substitute that nation's culture for its own. Even so, Canada was

COLLEGE SPIRIT HAS BECOME PRONOUNCED

In a recent Diogenes Daily Questionnaire asking "Has college spirit replaced university spirit among the undergraduate body?" opinion was either divided or else professed to see no distinction between the two. Unfortunately the replies came, for the most part from students in the arts colleges, and, as such, are not entirely a fair criterion of university opinion.

To say that college spirit has replaced university spirit would be to indicate that at some time in the past there existed an attitude of entire co-operation among the students of this university. While we are willing to believe that such was the case, we are, at the same time, distinctly of the opinion that it was before our time, when the registration was small and the university did not include the numerous faculties that it does to-day. In any case, observations made during the last few years have served to convince us that a genuine university spirit is lacking to-day although a college spirit does exist and, at times, becomes most pronounced.

In University College, with its multitude of students and many courses, with its tradition as the original college of this university, it is the university spirit that tends to make itself most manifest. But, and the implication may be strenuously denied, in the faculties of Medicine, Dentistry, St. Michael's and the School of Science, with perhaps the addition of one or two smaller colleges, it is the college spirit that is most pronounced. Dentistry and St. Michael's may be isolated by the distance separating them from the heart of student activities, Hart House, but the fact remains that with the exception of a few men actively engaged on Varsity teams or executives the majority of the students registered in these faculties take but a passive interest in university affairs, preferring to give first loyalty to their college. If, however, the college has good representation on some university team, support may be transferred to that team, indirectly the result of college loyalty. Students in the School of Science and, more, in the Faculty of Medicine are well known as members of Varsity teams and executives. And while many of these representatives have developed a real university spirit one is inclined to believe that such has, in the course of time, replaced the college spirit that gave them their original incentive to secure university prominence.

The professional nature of the teachings in School, Dentistry and Medicine, with the long hours of study and work involved, isolate the students of these faculties among others of their own kind. In many cases they remain working in their own laboratories from morning to night with their only contact with the students from the other colleges coming from interfaculty contests in hockey, basketball, baseball or some other sport. Perhaps at least fifty students from each college are engaged in interfaculty sport, about which they are heartily enthusiastic so long as their team remains in the running. Fifty students from one college—a greater number than purchase student tickets for many a Varsity hockey game.

College elections was enthusiastic and partisan, with almost every available vote being cast. But with the exception of the Hart House elections, university elections receive but scant attention. The competition for office and the lack of enthusiasm shown by the electors in athletic club elections are generally a disgrace.

We do not here wish to indicate whether we believe the spirit shown at this university is other than natural. We do know that lack of either college or university spirit is bad, just as too rabid college spirit is not good. We do feel that the student should give his allegiance first to his university and then to his college and that, in such a proportion, both are good and both are necessary. The colleges know themselves and their own men best. And it is up to each of them, separately, to take cognizance of their own ills and to seek their own remedies.

Art, Music and Drama

Sunday Evening Concert

To his audience in Hart House, Sunday evening, Geza de Kresz paid the sincerest compliment which an artist can grant his hearers, in rendering a programme of astounding brilliance, a programme which illustrated the literature of the violin from the eighteenth century composers to the contemporary Ravel. Throughout the evening, the soloist held his audience spellbound, now with the sparkling freshness of Mozart, now with the forcefulness of Brahms. In the opening number, Handel's G minor sonata for two violins, M. de Kresz was assisted by Erwin Harris, and Handel's incomparable string music was given added charm and dignity in the fluent phrasing of the violins and the gracefulness of Norah Drewett's accompanying. The same indescribable grace was given the Mozart Concerto. The Ysaye Ballade, an amazing technical display in broken chords, was a vivid contrast to the earlier numbers. Ravel's Tzigane opened with a long passage for the unaccompanied violin which later reached heights of dazzling brilliancy in a rhythmic movement to which the piano adds an accompaniment characteristic of Ravel. We feel reasonably safe in stating that few but M. de Kresz would have attempted a programme of such variety and technical difficulty. The Hart House audience with enthusiasm appreciated the sincere tribute paid to their discernment.

"PAULINE OF THE PRAIRIE"

Chapter II
OUT OF THE NIGHT

Dear readers, you will remember the cast of our little novel of the Great Lone Lands: Aloysius McWhiegle, that stern old Scot, Factor of Fort Fruitless, Pauline, his lovely daughter, and Algernon Asselthwaite, who was paddling furiously to Fort Fruitless to find his cousin, Percival Pune, upon whom he had sworn vengeance. So let us continue:

That night the great forces of the North arose and smit the forests with all the terrible power of a Northern blizzard. The pine-trees pined, the fir-trees furred, the spruces weren't as spruce as usual, and the maples mooched to and fro in the blast. Lightning loped down in livid lines, thunder bolted and boomed, and wild wind wound wearily around Fort Fruitless. "Lass, it's a fierce night! You'll no Hielan' zephyr," said old Aloysius McWhiegle, snug in the shelter of Fort Fruitless.

Pauline's azure eyes filled with tears. "Heaven help the poor mounties on a night like this!" she sighed fervently.

Suddenly—there was a loud scratching on the door—a vast furry form leaped in—this was Flea-Tin-Tin, the Wonder Dog, called by the Indians Mis-guoh-taw-taw, which means He-Who-Scratches-Continually.

"Woof!" cried Flea-Tin-Tin. "Woof yourself!" cried Aloysius. "What ails you?" For answer the great Husky bounded at Aloysius and fastened his teeth upon his left garter.

"Father," said Pauline with a woman's tuition, "he never bites you unless someone is lost on the Barrens!" Lost on the Barrens! What do you think of that, reader? Have you ever thought what it means to be lost on the Barrens, a place the size of six hundred campuses and not a Hart House in sight? It must be great!

Suddenly—(things always happen at all)—a man fell down the chimney exhausted and lit on the coals. Aloysius dragged him out.

"The loon's put out the fire wi' his daft tricks."

But Pauline saw his red tunic—"Santa Claus—No! It's a Mountie!" she cried. "Father, fetch the brandy!" "Na, na, lass; I had to buy that."

"Where am I?" said Algernon Asselthwaite, opening a frost-bitten eyelid.

"You are in good hands and generous," said Pauline.

The stranger saw Aloysius' kilt and sporran.

"In good hands? I doubt it, fair maiden."

"DON'TS"

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

As one of the "swains" I feel that I cannot let pass such unpractical "don'ts," kindly submitted by the fair or dark co-ed's of our university, without submitting a "don't" of my own for them. The one, dear sir, that I think would adequately cover all is purely and simply—

"Don't offer us such trash if you can't think of helpful suggestions."

To imagine a boy gushing over one girl when out with another is unthinkable, let alone imagining him keeping his eyes glued on the meter, is a joke, especially when the girl friend is beside him.

I would therefore suggest that each and every male quote to the co-ed a prayer similar to this one—

"Oh, dear maidens, offer us some useful and sensible 'don'ts' or don't waste your precious time on us, mere males."

Yours very truly,

"A Humble Male."

TAG DAY IS PLANNED FOR THURSDAY, FEB. 23

S.C.A., S.A.C., I.S.A. and Menorah Society Join for Day

The students of the University of Toronto are to be given an opportunity on Thursday, the 23rd, to support the work that is being done for needy students by the International Student Service. The I.S.S. is the successor of the organization known as European Student Relief, which came to the help of European students in the immediate post-war years, when the student class had been entirely overlooked by every other relief organization. The I.S.S. has extended its scope, and to-day is assisting not only European students, irrespective of race or creed, but Russian emigre students, and is administering relief in Africa. Besides offering material help, it is doing a great deal by its researches not only into conditions of student life but into situations that confront students on graduation. It is also, by the organization of conferences, fostering international goodwill and fellowship.

It is interesting to note that the editor of its monthly magazine, For Studentium, is a graduate of University College, Miss Mary McGeachy.

On Thursday, the Student Christian Association, the Students' Administrative Council, the International Students' Association, and the Menorah Society are uniting in a Tag Day on behalf of International Student Service, and all students are appealed to for support.

VARSITY WINS FOUR INTERCOLLEGIATE EVENTS OVER WEEK-END

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Oh, what a glorious week-end!

The women started it on Friday by defeating Queen's hockey squad, and the Seniors took a 2-1 decision from Kitchener. The same night the swimmers in Montreal won the Intercollegiate title.

The Saturday was better even if marred by the water poloists dropping a one goal decision to McGill; they have a return game, though, and goals count. The bright spots were the basketball victory in London and the winning of the Intercollegiate assault-at-arms for the fifth consecutive time.

Two Intercollegiate titles in two days is not bad work, while the two wins in hockey and basketball give Varsity two firm grips on first position in both sports.

On top of that the Grads won the amateur hockey title of the world on Sunday in defeating Switzerland 13-0.

Yes, we ARE feeling good!

The Kitchener game was a nip and tuck affair, and it looks as though Preston and Varsity will meet in the play-offs. The Green Shirts have a mathematical change of tying Preston for second place, but "maths" and sport do not seem to go together at all.

WORLD REPRESENTED AT S.C.M. RECEPTION

Foreign Students Present Views on International Situation

"The assembly of foreign students can after all really begin at home," stated Miss Eunice Tyhurst, chairman of the Toronto Women's S.C.M. Council, in welcoming the foreign students at Annesley Hall last night. "We need not go to distant conventions to acquire the spirit of fellowship."

Miss Checha Eipi, one of the first women students at Madras University, now studying at Victoria College, spoke of university life and spirit in Southern India, where owing to the traditional suppression of women, it was difficult for the first students to engage in public activities. Indian students cannot enjoy a "good time" in the same sense as American students do. Their chief motive is to study, and it is not natural for them to write in mutual enjoyment.

Mr. Elio, from Africa, a former Oxford student, expressed his opinion that Christianity alone would unite international associations and schools. He humorously compared American and Nigerian universities.

Students were present representing Jugo-Slavia, Roumania, Macedonia, Austria, Czechoslovakia, France, Holland, Finland, Norway, Ukraine, Russia, Great Britain, the United States, Bermuda, India, China, Japan.

Basketball looks very rosy right now—three wins and no losses so far and three more to go. McGill plays here Friday coming in the last home game, and a win will give us the title. The Red and White have not won a game so far and are due to break into the win column soon. They might do it Friday.

Five Assault titles in a row was the result of Saturday's meet. Queen's made a strong bid for the championship this time, coming second with six points, five of which were wrestling and one boxing. Advance notices made us expect them to do better in the boxing, but Dr. Black's proteges are all hard hitters, and five of Varsity's six boxing wins were by the K.O. route. That speaks for itself.

McGill fell down badly this year, but exams and injuries accounted for that, several of the Montreal men being forced out of the meet.

A new system was introduced in fencing this year. Formerly two men on a team won one point, while each boxing or wrestling win meant a point—in other words a ratio of 1 to 8. Now three fencers are on, and a team win means two points, with one more for individual champion. Varsity won all three points.

SWIMMERS WIN TITLE AT MONTREAL

The 440 yard free style proved to be the most exciting race of the evening. Bourne started off in great style, but Boddy of Varsity slowly crept up and tied things up at the 425 yard mark. Bourne, however, just put enough into the final spurt to win by about a foot.

50 Yard Free Style—1, L. Latchford, Varsity; 2, Parker, McGill; 3, Clarkin, McGill. Time 26 1-5 secs.

200 Yard Free Style—1, J. Goss, Varsity; 2, Boddy, Varsity; 3, Poole, McGill. Time 2 mins. 16 4-5 secs.

Diving—1, Gibbons, McGill; 2, Gundy, Varsity; 3, Gunn, Varsity.

100 Yard Back Stroke—1, Bourne, McGill; 2, Latchford, Varsity; 3, Thompson, Varsity. Time 1:09 2-5 (Canadian record).

100 Yard Free Style—1, Bourne, McGill; 2, Goss, Varsity; 3, Scott, Varsity, and Poole, McGill, dead heat. Time 56 3-5 secs (Intercollegiate record).

100 Yard Breast Stroke—1, Bertin, Varsity; 2, Sinclair, Varsity; 3, Southam, McGill.

440 Yard Free Style—1, Bourne, McGill; 2, Boddy, Varsity; 3, Marsh, Varsity.

Relay—Varsity (Latchford, Thompson, Scott and Goss).

U. OF T. LADIES TEAM GAINS TITLE BY WIN

Win Game 3-2 and Round 8-4 by Saturday's Victory

E. DITCHBURN SCORES TWO

Varsity girls' hockey team won the Intercollegiate honours when they defeated Queen's 3 to 2 in a closely contested game played at Varsity Arena last Friday night. The Blue and White won the first game in Kingston by 5-2, thus giving them the round by 8 goals to 4.

The Blue and White scored the only goal of the first period on a long hard shot by Eileen Ditchburn, who came on midway during the period, and after a splendid individual rush landed the puck in the net. Queen's did not have the combination of Varsity and all shots on goal were handled perfectly by Pat Tilston.

The second period started off with a rush. Eve Powell secured the puck on a pass, but Queen's goalie, on her toes, prevented the Blue from scoring. Queen's made a nice rush with a shot dead on goal, but Pat Tilston saved nicely. Irma Beach, one of the speediest skaters on Queen's, did good work for her team. Eve Powell was playing the star game of this period but was slightly injured. The Tricolour lived up and in a few minutes scored twice.

At the beginning of the third period both teams played with a dash that meant goals. Norma Bateman scored, making it a tie. In a few minutes Eileen Ditchburn scored from a pass from behind the net, putting the Blue and White one goal up.

Line-up: Varsity: Goal, Pat Tilston; defence, Eve Powell, Jessie Mooney; centre, Norma Bateman; wings, Dot Langley, Eileen Ditchburn, Helen Hilliard; subs, Vi. Murphy, Chris. Kellock, Dot McNaughton.

INTERFACULTY SPORTS

Vic. Seniors Nose Out Saints by 2-1 Score in Third Game

In the third game against St. Hilda's, Vic. Seniors won by a score of 2-1 in a game played on Friday. This was the hardest fought game in the first series in spite of the condition of the ice. In the first period Anne Wingfield made a snappy pass to Eleanor MacCubbin, who made the first goal for Vic. In the second period Flo Allen scored a fine high goal and tied the score.

Both teams showed some nice combination work in the last period, and Marnie Reid scored the final goal for Vic. The defence on both teams showed good form, and on the whole the playing was of a high order.

Line-up: St. Hilda's: Goal, Ursula Foster; defence, Flo Allen, G. Martin; wings, E. McColl, J. Muirhead, H. Oliver; centre, C. Coburn.

Vic.: Goal, Evelyn Craw; defence, Helen Richardson, Molly Jerrit; wings, Kay West, Jean Bateman; centre, Marnie Reid; subs, Eleanor McCubbin, Anne Wingfield, Emma Wright.

VARSITY PUCKSTERS AVENGE LAST DEFEAT AND BEAT KITCHENER

Two Goals Better Than One When Varsity Plays Kitchener

"BILL" STEWART THE HERO Five Man Attack Fails to Benefit Green Shirts at the End

In one of the most interesting and hard fought tussles of the present O.H.A. season, Varsity reversed the 6-2 decision of the game in Kitchener the week previous, when they nosed out the Green Shirts by the odd goal in three Friday night. The game was in doubt till the final bell, the last five minutes seeing a desperate five-man attack by Kitchener against a disorganized Varsity defence.

"Bill" Stewart was the hero of the evening when he realized a hockey player's dream by stick-handling his way through the whole team and with a terrific burst of speed which left him cold against the goal post as he shoved the winning counter past Berner. Kirkpatrick also was carried off the ice when Schneider, the Kitchener bad man, floored him with a hard body check, but both he and Stewart were able to return to the game after a considerable rest. "Red" Legon, another Varsity sub, usurped the limelight when he stepped into Kirk's place on the defence. The diminutive sorrel-top stopped all and sundry with such pep and abandon that even the Kitchener supporters cheered his trip to the penalty box.

Roth stood out for Kitchener with his speed and uncanny stick-handling though Hiller's rushes were a source of worry to the Varsity defence. Karges seemed to be slower than usual, but the old fox gave Varsity supporters several thrills. Varsity forward line effectively back-checked until they tired in the final stanza, when Snyder in Varsity goal was called upon to make some sparkling saves.

Varsity's back-checking predominated the second period, which was the fastest of the night. Play roughened up after Kirk's departure, apparently to the high glee of the fans, with Schneider drawing two penalties. Roth shot what looked like a goal after a brilliant effort, but Referee Collett over-ruled the goal umpire.

In the third period Kitchener at last took the offensive in earnest. A determined protracted effort finally netted them one off Molson's stick after Kirk had been waved for trip.

St. Mike's Tie with Forestry in Interfaculty Hockey Match

On a poor sheet of ice Forestry and St. Mike's played to a 2-2 tie. After the first period when St. Mike's scored both their counters, Forestry had the advantage of the play.

U.C. Quintet Beats Meds by Staging Aggressive Comeback

The second game between U.C. and Meds was a replica of the first game, which Meds won 8-7, except the score was a little higher and favoured U.C. by 15-14. Meds had a slight advantage the first half and held it for a part of the second, but then U.C. rallied, and led on by Young on the forward line and Goldenberg on the defence, proceeded to hold the future doctors down while they tallied enough to win the game. Young and Goldenberg for U.C. and Garbe, Scott and Sinclair for Meds were the pick.

U.C.: Forwards, Sullivan, Young, Mayor; centre, Humphrey; defence, Dobrindt, Goldenberg, Wood; subs, Hodgson, Feuer.

WATER POLO TEAM LOSES TO MCGILL

3-2 Loss for Varsity in First Intercollegiate Game

WANSBROUGH SAVES MANY

On Saturday night Varsity and McGill again tangled horns in the first Intercollegiate water polo game, which McGill won 3-2. In the first period McGill started off with a beautiful passing game, and after considerable effort Gibbons netted one for the first counter. McGill followed with a second and short time later on a fluke shot. The McGill forwards were shooting at every chance, but Wansbrough was playing a stellar game in the Varsity goal. In the second period McGill peppered the Varsity goalie from all angles, but he put up a wonderful exhibition. In the third period the Varsity players began to hit their stride and the game became fairly even. No scoring in this period. Just after the beginning of the fourth, Latchford registered the first for Varsity.

The game ranged around centre for a while, then Hetherington secured the ball and netted Varsity's second with a beautiful shot. This closed the scoring for the game at 3-2 in favour of McGill.

ping. Three minutes later Stewart did his hero act and that ended the scoring for the night.

Kitchener: Berner, goal; Karges and Schneider, defence; Seagram, centre; Molson, right; Heller, left; Roth and Farrell, subs.

Referee: Ernie Collett, Toronto.

WIN FOR CAGE MEN FROM WESTERN TEAM BY SCORE OF 29-20

Whole Team Stars as Blue Boys Swamp Rivals

THIRD WIN IN ROW Hold First Place and Seem Sure of Copping Title

In London on Saturday night the local Senior Intercollegiate basketball team took a firm grip on first place when they maintained their winning streak in defeating Western University 29-20. The game was very evenly contested, with Varsity leading by a slight margin throughout except for a few minutes in the first half.

The large floor space disorganized the Blue machine for the first half of the game and the attacks showed much weakness. In the second frame, though, the McCutcheonites came back strong and gave such a demonstration of three-man combination as the London people had never seen before. Faber, Michell and Newman worked together with perfect combination, and the seven Toronto field goals came from neat work around the cage.

Varsity started the scoring with two foul shots by Mitchell, but Ladouceur quickly tied it up and then went into the lead for the only time of the game when the Westernites dropped in a foul shot. Varsity quickly tied it up with another foul, and Newman dropped in a basket to make the count 5-3. From then on the locals kept the lead, though it was only 11-10 when the first gun was fired.

Varsity dominated the play for the whole of the second half except for a short rally of the home team, when three field goals were run in in three minutes on long shots. All of Western's goals came on long shots, and not one scored from inside the defence.

ASSAULT TITLE STAYS AT VARSITY FOR YEARS

Although he went down hard twice, Woods wanted to go right on and fight it out. Yet a little experience, and we shall hear from him again.
The heavyweight boxing went to Taylor of McGill, whose herculean bulk and reach was the undoing of the other finalist, Brown of Queen's.

The Toronto wrestlers were not so fortunate as their boxing brethren. Calman in the light-heavy class was the only man to carry his weight. In neither of his bouts did he experience any difficulty in winning, getting two falls over Nagel of McGill in 3 mins. and 46 secs. in the finals. In the lighter weight Queen's and McGill realized. Marshall lost out after a game struggle in the 112 lb. class, and the final between Silver and Sanders went to the former, the McGill representative. Hilliard of Varsity seemed to have almost a minute time margin in the next weight, but the judges awarded the bout to Wallbridge of Queen's. Greenberg of McGill succeeded in getting a small margin over Jenner, his less rugged blue and white opponent, in the 123 lb. final. On Friday night, however, Jenner wrestled Hall of Queen's to a standstill.

Overtime was again required to decide the lightweight wrestling. Toronto's man, Grant, lost out after a strenuous bout to Cornell of Kingston, whose aggressiveness earned him the judge's decision. Deprose's inexperience was a heavy handicap in the welterweight, where Simpson of Queen's eliminated him in the semifinals, and then went on to the finals to defeat Tonzel of McGill.

Which brings us to the feature of the assault—Furber vs. Honsberger in the 158 lb. class. The latter, from Queen's, only a few days ago beat the Ontario amateur champion in his weight. In the first half the speedy Furber had considerable time margin over his much more experienced opponent. Honsberger succeeded in forcing a fall after 2 min. and 50 secs. Coming back strong when the final gong rang, Furber had the Kingston man on the bottom and in an uncomfortable leg hold which might have yielded a fall with another half minute. The bout was spectacular, lightning fast and clean throughout. Kickhan in the heavyweight had the hopeless task of wrestling a man weighing 40 lbs. heavier and generally of a bigger size.

Varsity's fencers did a large job in their department, making a clean sweep in every match, tournament, and exhibition. Dymont, Keffer and Dunlop only received 35 hits, to McGill's 53, and Queen's 83. In addition to the team championship, Jim Keffer bore off the individual prize, only receiving two hits throughout his engagements. Dymont, also of Toronto, came second with the long score of six against his team.

same committee for as many years as he is elected thereto.
Prospective candidates should bear in mind that members of any committee who are absent from two consecutive meetings or three meetings in all, thereby forfeit their membership on that committee.

Nominations for two of the special committees, the Camera Committee and the Squash Committee, also open and close on the same dates as do those for the standing committees. Nominees for the Camera Committee must be active members of the Camera Club, and nominees for the Squash Raquets Committee must be undergraduate regular squash players. A regular squash player is one whose name has appeared on the reservation list at least five times during the academic year. The elections for these special committees will take place at special meetings held on Thursday, 8th March.

Nominations for the Debates Committee open at 9 a.m. Wednesday, 22nd February, and close at 6 p.m. on Monday, 27th February. The election of the Debates Committee will take place at the debate on 29th February.

PROF. JOHN SQUIR IS QUIETLY BURIED

"The regretted deceased lived long enough to ascertain that his patriotism and that of his compatriots who followed his example is bringing gratifying results. From one end of the Dominion to the other, Anglo-Canadians and French-Canadians are more and more agreed on joining hands to work together for the development and prosperity of our young country. The sorrow undertaken by men like John Squir is beginning to produce with richness and abundance, and all to the honour of such valiant workers for the bonne entente. Canada, above all the Canada of to-morrow, will never cease to venerate their memory and to receive inspiration from their teachings."

ARTISTS MUST HAVE ROOM FOR PROGRESS

indebted to European art to a certain extent; she had also felt the influence of the Orient, but her art was characteristically her own. Environment had set its stamp upon it.

Canada had not the right kind of interpretative critics because her art was young and had not yet passed into aesthetic language as it were. Artists were called upon not only to paint but to explain.

The spirit of adventure, the desire to find new phases of life to interpret, had driven artists into the north. There, among the trees and rocks and skies of northern Ontario they had found scenes that had never challenged the brush of artists. They were working with new elements and had to find new mediums of interpretation and treatment. This new field had to be made intelligible to others, but while artists felt this driving force they were not conscious of a definite aim for conscious art lost its effectiveness.

The very nature of Canada had impressed upon art a certain energy and power. The force of broad sweeping lines carried with it a typical rhythm. Canadian art was not a studio art. It derived its distinctive qualities from participation in the beauty of Canada, and never, until that beauty was exhausted, could our art become a mere copy of other art.

the first time this season, but his defence more than made up for it. Only one substitute was used during the whole game, and then when Hurwitz replaced Sackler, the team was not one whit weakened. Ladoucer was best for the Purple and White in the first half, but Hind and C. Hauch were very effective in the last half.

The line-up:
Western: Forwards, Hinds (5), Batz (0), Ladoucer (6), Evans (2); centre, Bice (0); guards, Turville (1), P. Hauch (0), C. Hauch (6).
Varsity: Forwards, Faber (7), Mitchell (8); centre, Newman (10); guards, Currie (0), Sackler (4), Hurwitz (0).

certain scholastic standards.
The faculty's growth has been remarkable. From less than 100 students in 1919 its number has steadily increased until last year there was a total of 365, of which no less than 89 held staff appointments in the University of Toronto. And there are representatives from every province, with not a few from the States and other Overseas Dominions.

During the session 1926-27 there were 35 subjects chosen as the major study, with English engaging 46, Pedagogy 44, Philosophy 43, and Chemistry 25. There are a variety of degrees attainable, that of M.A. attracting the most with 139, and Ph.D. coming second with 88; but there is a pressing need for fellowships, only seven being at present available for graduate students. There is as yet no regular staff of instructors, but work is carried on under members of the various other faculties; making the School of Graduate Studies, as it were, a faculty within a faculty. Because of this, there is at present no recognized centre or faculty residence, but this question is expected to come up some day.

Both our own University and McGill have the honour to be members of the Association of American Universities, which consists of representatives from the various Schools of Graduate Studies in the foremost American colleges, and at whose annual meeting in Washington last year the University of Toronto was represented by the Dean of its Faculty of Graduate Studies, Professor J. Playfair McMurich.

MOHAMMEDAN GOD'S REMARKABLE HOLD

Accepting the definition of religion as an "awareness of God," Dr. Macallum claimed that the Mohammedans were the most religious sect in the world. The word "God" used in a reverent spirit was constantly before one's eyes and ringing in one's ears. The Mohammedan confession of faith, "There is no God but Allah and Mohammed is the apostle of God," was repeated many times a day.

"To the Mohammedan, God was absolute power and absolute will—a Great Being above all law, whose power was irresistible. His will was the only standard of right and wrong. The effect of this was to produce a spirit of fear, submission and resignation."

Dr. Macallum described the five methods of Mohammedan approach to God as being formal and ceremonial. These had to be observed exactly and minutely. They included the repetition of the confession of faith; prayer, the liturgical form of which was repeated with minuteness of detail five times a day; alms giving in which one-fourth of a man's income was devoted to the poor; fasting one month of every year; and a pilgrimage to Mecca, which every Mohammedan who was able made at least once in his lifetime.

TRANSLATION OF UNIVERSITY MOTTO QUITE DIFFICULT

College of Heralds Granted

It is interesting to notice that, although the University has long used its present crest and motto, "Velut arbor aevo"—students in many cases have never quite appreciated. There seems to be some little difficulty in rendering it adequately into English.

Professor Norwood, on being approached, stated: "Like so many mottos it has been taken from its context and applied. Hence in its new role it becomes somewhat unintelligible. The motto in question is found in the twelfth ode of the first book of Horace. Rendering it with its context it reads: 'The fame of Marcellus grows like a tree, in sensible laps of time—that is—slowly but steadily.' The difficulty is to find some adequate expression that corresponds to it in English. As the motto of the University crest, I would translate it—'Growing like a tree as the years advance.'"

Mr. Bennett remarked that there was no difficulty in giving a literal translation. "The hard part of it," he (Continued on page 3)

WALL STREET EXPERIENCE

"Reporting is like flirting: if you're good at it, nobody can stop you; if you're not, nobody can teach you!" said Mr. Napier Moore, editor of McLean's Magazine, in his lecture yesterday afternoon in annual course on journalism.

Mr. Moore was introduced by Sir Robert Falconer, who touched on his own experiences in newspaperdom. The speaker told how he had been eating in a restaurant in New York when the great Wall Street explosion occurred in front of Pierpont Morgan's establishment. Mr. Moore, (Continued on page 4)

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Is Fair Sex Too Submissive?

Do you consider that women are too submissive to men?

Miss K. C. Ferguson, IV Mod. Hist.: It depends on the object—and what submission gets you.

Miss H. Radigan, II Pol. Sci.: They're both deucedly stubborn. Everybody will have their own way—but it all depends.

Miss M. C. Rieder, III Pass: No, I don't think women are more submissive than men. A woman usually gets the better of an argument, but this may be due to her superior intellect, to which, when a man recognizes it, he submits.

Miss H. D. Price, II Eng. and Hist.: Bunk! Did you never hear of policy?

Reg. Bull, I U.C.: No. Not submissive enough.

Miss A. E. Thompson, II Pass: It all depends on the woman.

Bruce Murray, Pol. Sci.: Most of them are but some of them aren't.

Margaret Pirie, I Pass: No, not at all.

W. E. Kenny, IV Pol. Sci.: Yes, on week days.

Miss M. Quinn, St. Joseph's: I think they are rather, sometimes.

Miss M. Gardiner, St. Joseph's: It all depends. Just in what way?

Yes, I rather think they are.

COLLECTION OF WOODCUTS FOR HART HOUSE

January

What's That?

Till a few days ago the University has been acting as host to Mr. George H. Wood, F.R.S.S., Secretary to the Woolen and Worsted Trades Federation of Great Britain. Through a series of lectures there Mr. Wood made himself known to the denizens of Baldwin House as a statistician of ability, a reputation which has tended to obscure his artistic achievements. As a vehicle of expression Mr. Wood chose the difficult but delightful woodcut. After unsuccessful attempts to develop professional interest about Bradford he undertook to teach himself. He is a "Compleat" craftsman. "He got boxwood logs from the importers, made up, levelled and faced his own blocks, acquired a collection of gravers, scorers, spitsicks, tint-tools and shavers, and found out the little ways of each; converted a superannuated copying press into a printing press and learned the mysteries of overlay and underlay." As a result we have a book of "Twenty Woodcuts," two of which are shown above, from the forward of which by John F. Greenwood, A.R.E., most of this information was obtained.

Throughout the work is charmingly comprehensible, for the most part a series of landscapes and architectural sketches, being, to quote the same authority, "a straight forward, objective realization." In one notable etching, "Harlech Castle," Mr. Greenwood professes to find something of the "greater intensity of expression" characteristic of the modern schools. This quality seems even more marked in the last cut of the set, entitled "Grief," a black hooded covering figure whose face is covered by its hand, which stands out startling white against its sombre garb.

Besides the book of woodcuts, Mr. Wood has also presented Hart House with twelve or fifteen copies, unbound, so that they may be hung.

Methods of Improving Modern Motor Car Are Dealt With

COMPETITION BIG THING

The methods of manufacturing and improving the modern motor car were dealt with by Mr. W. J. Davidson, secretary of the General Motors Corporation, who spoke yesterday before the Engineering Society.

In manufacturing a motor car, said the speaker, there is no point in making a car which is supposed to be good if the public will not buy it. The point is to get an idea of what the public think they want.

There are many factors that are to be taken into account in the manufacturing of a motor car, such as comfort, appearance, performance, durability, economy and others. A car will sell to the public if it includes most of these factors to the highest possible degree, without reacting against one another. For example, a car cannot have a first class performance such as high speed, good hill climbing and pick up, and at the same time economical. Comfort, appearance and durability are also relative to the economical point of view.

"Of course," said Mr. Davidson, "if the world consisted only of Scotchmen, we would just have to build the cheapest possible car and it would sell."

Competition also comes into the automobile industry, and is becoming rarer than ever, said Mr. Davidson. Nevertheless, it is a good thing, since if one has a good car, a better one can be found to compare it with.

NEWER INVENTIONS OF THIS CENTURY HURT BOOK TRADE

Mr. Watson Delivers Lecture on "The Evolution of Publishing"

19th CENTURY HELPFUL
Radio, Motion Pictures, Cars and Sports Provide Competition

That the inventions of the 19th century had helped to develop the publishing trade, while nearly all those of the 20th century proved harmful to it, was the assertion of Mr. S. B. Watson, General Manager of the Thos. Nelson Co. in Canada, at a lecture on "The Evolution of Publishing" at Baldwin House.

"The book trade is suffering to-day from indirect competition in the form of the radio, moving pictures, motor-ing and commercialized sport," said Mr. Watson. Books in the 18th century gained a greater political and social influence than ever before or since. In those days, however, the business was not as highly organized as to-day, Samuel Johnson receiving only £1,500 for his famous dictionary. Books were then published by committees rather than individuals, stated Mr. Watson, and this accounted for the number of names often found on the title page.

The first real publisher was Titus Atticus of Rome, a friend of Cicero. Following a period when the Romans had relied on the Greeks for their books, they now began to produce their own, with the aid of slave labour, which was plentiful. The Greeks are believed to have been responsible for the invention of binding about this time.

Books were first printed in Europe about 1440, the first dated copy in 1454. The new invention spread rapidly through France and Italy as well as Germany, but it made slow progress in England, where the local (Continued on page 4)

In speaking to the Graduates' Association last evening on the Irish Movement and George Russell (A.E.), who is to visit Toronto this week, Dean De Lury began his address by referring to A.E. as one of the most distinguished and beautiful figures of the Irish movement.

It was a great delight for the Dean's audience to realize that they were listening to one who not only understood but felt the peculiar significance of the movement of which the prospective visitor is so prominent a member. Russell in his address, which is to be delivered Friday evening, will discuss certain prominent representatives in the movement, which was interpreted by Dean De Lury as a yearning toward perfect literary expression. "The movement," said the speaker, "is a reaction toward something, and its importance depends upon its vividness, final nobility, and achievement of beautiful expression. In this day we are apt to sneer at Pope and Tennyson, but this is only (Continued on page 3)

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT

It now appears to be certain that corporal punishment is not to be abolished in our schools. It has been stated that the great majority, if not all, of the members of the board of education are opposed to its abolition, though some apparently see a necessity for restriction in its use. It is not for us to offer advice to the board and we have no intention whatever of doing so, but we do know that, administered under certain conditions and after a certain fashion, corporal punishment can prove itself not only a disgrace to the pupil but also to the teacher and that its results may do incalculable harm to both.

Only a small group of our early teachers remain in our memories to-day. They are the best and the worst we ever had. Of the best we can honestly say that we can conceive of no finer schoolroom disciplinarians. Men and women they were of personality, tact and charm that not only gave them complete control of their pupils but of their classroom at all times. They were able men and women, sufficient unto their positions, and as such it is difficult to believe that any of them ever found any necessity for administering corporal punishment. On the other hand we can recall one teacher who "punished" each and every one of a class of ten year old pupils for talking. Anybody that talked was promised the strap, and, well, how can a ten year old keep still. We've seen a supposedly dignified high school teacher run wildly down an aisle, raining blows furiously right and left, in an endeavour to appease her own un-reasonable fury. And we have seen the strap administered to a child with the greatest severity in an effort to "make him tell the truth" when it was proven later he was never in a lie. . . . Just instances, these, but they would serve to show that corporal punishment has been employed unjustly while nervous, excited elders have, not seldom but many times, degraded themselves before their pupils by an outbreak of their own poor spirits. The fact is that, in most localities, no male teacher is in any necessity of employing corporal punishment, especially in the public school, and it is rather to be conceived that a man would leave such an instrument to the bully when other corrective measure may be so easily found. And many female teachers we conceive to be too emotional, too easily unbalanced, to possess any such right.

We have no doubt that the threat of corporal punishment should remain, and, hence, we would vest the rights of such discipline solely in the hands of the principal or some specifically assigned member of the teaching staff. We have seen breaks in discipline and even fisticuffs between teacher and pupil, but it is difficult to recall a single instance where the pupil has been the aggressor or where he was doing other than to stand up for some fancied rights of his own. Explanation, team-work between the boy and the man, paves the way, and it is satisfactory indeed to know that a recent graduate of this university is conducting an educational institution on such a sane, sober and reasonable basis.

SECOND ROUND OF GOUGH TROPHY DEBATE IS HELD

Affirmative Carries Motion
 Condemning "Deferred Payments"

The second round of the Gough Trophy debates was held Monday night in St. Michael's College, with Mr. E. Garvey occupying the chair. "Resolved that the deferred payment plan, as it exists to-day, is detrimental to the community," formed the question. C. J. Daly, leader of the affirmative, stated that the plan created an artificial stimulation of production, inevitably followed by a reaction.

That the instalment plan facilitated young men starting out in life, was the viewpoint of M. Parabocki, of the negative.

T. V. Kennedy took the viewpoint that the plan reduced the average wage earner to a state of economic serfdom.

With an able appeal W. Kendrick claimed that the United States owed part of its prosperity to the plan.

After the rebuttal by C. J. Daly, a decision favourable to the affirmative was rendered by Father Murray.

LIKENS CHAMPUS CAT TO SHAKESPEARE

Trinity House,

Fri. Feb. 16, 1928.

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Once or twice recently Champus

Cat has struck me with a sense of haunting familiarity which, with Friday's humorous output, merged into definite recognition. Consequently I am writing to congratulate the conductor of the column on the good taste with which he chooses sources from which to cull his wit.

Please don't understand this as a charge of plagiarism—that term does not fit this case any better than it does Shakespeare's. For has not the Cat given evidence of his superior genius by promoting his hero from lance corporal to sergeant? I also note that "carnage" has been replaced by "carriage," but perhaps that is due to the superior genius of the linotype man.

At any rate, may I humbly suggest that it would be a graceful, if slightly superfluous, gesture on the part of the Cat to acknowledge the debt (such as it is) to Eugene Field?

SPEAKING OF SPORT

After their week-end win over Kitchener everything looks rosy for the Intercollegiate hockey team. They are through with the college series and can now devote all of their time to the O.H.A. group. With a week or so between games they are getting plenty of rest and should not get stale as it was feared they might if they were forced to remain much longer in two leagues and play several games a week. The players are blessing the U. of Montreal for relieving them of another strenuous game with McGill. Varsity's win against Kitchener was not especially decisive, but was enough to reveal the kind of hockey the Blue can play if pressed. And don't forget Kitchener are one of the best teams in the province. Next Friday night Varsity play Marlborough in a game which should be fairly interesting, even if there is nothing much at stake.

A peculiar feature of all recent wrestling assaults recently has been the remarkable showing of the smaller colleges. In the annual Interfaculty assault Guelph O.A.C. won with ease as per usual. And now Queen's has won the Intercollegiate wrestling title by a decided margin. What's the explanation? One suggestion that has been put forward is that the comparatively large percentage of students from rural sections at these colleges may have something to do with it. In the country, boys wrestle from the time they can walk, and as a result become very proficient. The city boy, on the other hand, seems to prefer his fists. This may have something to do with the recent O.A.C. and Queen's success.

What's a one goal lead? "Not so much," claim the water polo team, and most of their supporters are inclined to agree. McGill's defeat of Varsity's water polo team by a 3 to 2 count is really no indication of the kind of game the locals are capable of playing. They are confidently preparing for the return game in Hart House on March 3, in which they not only expect to banish McGill's one point lead but net a few extras for their own satisfaction. Varsity were very slow in getting started, but once in motion gave the McGill team plenty to worry about. The return game should draw a capacity house, as it is very seldom that two such evenly matched teams as this year's meet.

Senior U.C. Run Up Score of 8-0 to Defeat Dentistry

Dents defeated Sr. U.C. in a one-sided scoring bee. When the final bell rang Dents walked off with eight goals to their credit, while U.C. had not succeeded in bulging the twine at all. The first period was rather close, but after that Dents displayed their superiority. Final score—Dents 8, Sr. U.C. 0.

DEAN DE LURY

ADDRESSES GRADS

a modern critical tendency." In the Irish movement beautiful souls found a renewal of artistic sustenance, especially after the loss of poetry's appeal in the post-Tennyson era and the political debacle in Ireland. The Irish were a race nurtured on politics for one hundred years, but about 1885 the Irish soul turned inward upon itself and sought a vigorous spiritual existence in poetry. A new type of poetry arose. Yeats sought artistic expression and perfection, never being content with the imperfect line or unsatisfying word. He was not a seeker of mystery, but a sincere apostle of simplicity, whose words are easily followed, but whose spiritual message is never entirely resolved into clarity. His poetry has the quality of never admitting a final meaning or significance.

"The poets of the Irish Literary Movement," continued the speaker, "could not choose to be obvious, serviceable or strong. They spoke in symbols and left much to the discernment and perception of the reader."

The misfortune and glory of Ireland lay in her power to breed "unlikes," so evident in the variation of Yeats, Russell Synge, Stephens and Colum. In the poetry of this group was something in the nature of a religion, a convincing yet indefinable assurance of purpose.

In his address Dean De Lury referred to a pamphlet on the Movement written by a Japanese professor. "These men," said the Oriental savant, "Yeats and Russell, say subtle things we read them in the East—they are popular here."

"Not in the sense of one who has written a great popular novel," was the answer as the questioned scholar forgot the widely-bruited novelist's name. "Then," concluded the Eastern professor, "in this questing, urgent age men weary of subtlety—they demand directness—they would leave nothing to silence!"

After this illuminating reference Dean De Lury gave a short biography of George Russell, a self-supporting poet who earned his sustenance in a shop in Dublin. A.E. wrote poems, edited a journal, and in studying art met W. B. Yeats and J. B. Yeats, the artist. Russell, a wide reader and man of varied interests, sane, kindly and just, gathered groups about him in Dublin. Then came the growth of the new agricultural organization. Russell, as mystic, poet, and economist, was interested by Sir Horace Plunkett in the art of agriculture in Ireland. He improved methods of farming, opened co-operative banks for the benefit of the poor, and after achieving certain fame, inaugurated his Sunday evenings of "multitudinous conversation" in Dublin. He edited

JUNIOR SCHOOL WIN FROM O.C.E.

Wilson, Mercer and Hutcheson Combine Well for School

DAVEY MISSED

Junior School's basketball team eliminated O.C.E. from any further consideration yesterday when they downed them 25-15. The first half play was very slow, and the half-time score of 14-11 was made up to a large extent of foul shots. School suffered several technical fouls and were somewhat disorganized. Starting the second half, Wilson, Mercer and Hutcheson showed some good combination, the former running his score up to 11. White's steady defensive play kept O.C.E. off the score sheet until he left the game a minute from the finish. The score in this period was 11 to 4 for S.P.S. The O.C.E. team played hard, but lack of practice limited them to individual efforts. The absence of their popular captain and star, Earl Davey, was sorely felt. This O.R.F.U. rugby player and coach of junior Varsity basketball team has suffered a bad heart attack through playing while having the flu, and is out for the season. He was the pivot man of the School squad, which, it will be remembered, defeated the smart Sr. Vic. team, favourites for the Sifton Cup, 20-19 a while ago.

School: Wilson, Mercer, Hutcheson, Kirk, White, Traynor, Rapsey, Pasternak, Strohan.

the "Irish Homestead," a magazine containing several pages of true literary discussion, through whose medium a welcome culture found its way into Irish homes. Later he edited the "Irish Statesman."

Dean De Lury read some of Russell's magical prose, first, on the "Nationality of Irishmen," which revealed A.E. as a political idealist of the highest type, then part of a critique of the poetry of Seumas O'Sullivan, startling in its beauty of expression, then of "Life and Art," uncommonly beautiful prose fully revealed by the speaker's sympathetic interpretative reading, on "An Irish Hill," a passage of inspiring mysticism, and lastly, part of an essay, "The Hero in Man," a matchless illumination of the spiritual power existent in mankind.

As a conclusion of his address the speaker read many of the beautiful and awakening poems of A.E., including "Dust," "Mystery," "Conemara," and "Reconciliation."

WINTER CARNIVAL STARTS TO-NIGHT

Toronto Skating Club to Give Exhibition of Figure Skating

SEVERAL NOVELTY NUMBERS

At 7.30 to-night the Varsity Stadium will open its doors for the Rowing Club Winter Carnival. In spite of postponements the programme remains intact, and a wonderful time is promised to all skaters. The participants in the speed and fancy skating events will all be on hand to give a real exhibition of their respective sports, and it will be a fine show, for they are experts in their lines. Skating starts at 7.30, and the speed events get under way by 8 o'clock. The first number will be the students' open race, which will provide a heap of competition for everyone with a knack for developing speed on skates is out for the cup. If you have any challenges to hurl, get them off your chest and be ready for the starting gun to support them.

Speed skaters from the prominent clubs of the city will provide the thrills in the men's pursuit race and the women's open race. They are all set to defend the laurels they have won at previous meets, so be on hand to witness their speed.

Fancy skating by members of the Toronto Skating Club is always a treat for the spectators, so don't miss their exhibition of figures and waltzing to-night; it will add a lot of interest to your skating.

A "moon band," "lantern band," and "leap year band" are among the novelty numbers which will give fun to the skaters throughout the evening and make the Stadium the gayest of places.

UPTOWN

Ernest Lubitsch is to be congratulated on the production of yet another masterpiece. Those who are acquainted with this gentleman's past deeds would naturally assume that he could be responsible for nothing else but a masterpiece. Enough, therefore, to intimate that this famous European director is not of common talent. And when we state that "The Student Prince" is a production which ranges high in the scale of his achievements, the natural conclusion to be drawn is that this picture is certainly worth seeing.

There are three things which determine the merit of a production—the story itself, the producer and the cast. With regard to the story, we must refer you to the play bearing that name, written by the famous Richard Mansfield. The picture is but a screen version of the opera (which, by the way, was presented in this city some time ago).

The cast is well headed by Ramon Novarro, who plays the part of the student prince, who, while attending military college in old Heidelberg, falls in love with a young servant girl. But the State has other plans for the prospective king, and arranges for his marriage with a princess of a neighboring kingdom. Thus the youthful romance is shattered, and stays shattered! The prince makes the supreme sacrifice for the sake of the State.

Norma Shearer plays the part of the young prince's sweetheart well. We would personally like to add the name of Jean Hersholt, who plays the Ghandi, of "Mother India." He considered that the writer of the book had deliberately exaggerated and distorted fact.

Rabindranath Tagore, the poet, also decries the book. "We have become painfully familiar with deliberate circulation of hideous lies in the West against enemy countries, but a similar attack against individuals whose countrymen have obviously offended the writer by their political aspirations, has come to me as a surprise," he writes.

Dr. Annie Besant, the Theosophist leader, also attacks "Mother India" and quotes in defence of Hindunism the following:

"Your article, 'Child Marriage in India,' is, permit me to say, unfair to the Indians. It is precisely as if an Indian were to select the most appalling evils of civilization. There is a bright side to the picture. Child marriage or not, there are no old maids or spinsters; animal sacrifice notwithstanding, India does not slaughter animals for food at the rate of a score for each tick of the clock.

"I have spent in India the greater part of my time since 1893, living as an Indian, welcomed in their homes as though I were one of their own people, and I have never come across the horrors she describes. I have myself worked against child-marriage, with the help and support of large numbers of Indians, men and women. Everyone knows that the first marriage among Hindus is only a betrothal—though if the boy dies, it makes the young wife a widow—and the girl-wife remains in her parents' house until the 'second marriage' takes place."

The general opinion of supporters of India, to judge by the pamphlet, is that Miss Katherine Mayo, the writer of "Mother India," was subsidized by the British Government and haters of Hinduism.

TRANSLATION OF UNIVERSITY MOTTO

said, "was in taking the phrase away from its context and in trying to get an idiomatic English equivalent. I would translate it: 'It flourishes like a tree in its growth.'"

Dr. Brebner, the Registrar, introduced a more interesting note into the discussion. He stated that the University would have no authority to use the crest and motto until the college of Heraldry had passed upon it. The late Sir Edmund Walker, he thought, was the prime mover in having it affirmed by this body. He suggested that "The Varsity" apply to view and note the warrant from the College of Heraldry, since he felt sure that it would be of interest to the students. The motto, in his estimation, was best rendered—"Like a tree through the ages"

Through the kindness of the President's office and Col. Le Pan, the warrant was produced for "The Varsity." It was beautifully emblazoned and couched in the royal terms of Heraldry. In the upper left-hand corner the University crest was exemplified; across the top the Royal Seal was depicted. In itself the document gave a complete and graphic history of the foundation and progress of the University.

The following extract contains the permission for the University to bear its crest:

"Know Ye therefore, that We the said Garter, Clarenceux, Norroy, in obedience to the Royal Command, in pursuance of his Lordship's Warrant and by virtue of the Letters Patent of Our several Offices to each of Us respectively granted, do by these Presents grant and exemplify unto the said University of Toronto, the Arms following, that is to say: Azure two open Books and in Base a Beaver all proper upon a Chief Argent the Royal and Imperial Crown also proper. And for the Crest On a wreath of the Colours An Oak-tree proper stemmed and fruited Or as the same are in the margin hereof more plainly depicted, to be borne and used forever hereafter by the said University of Toronto."

MANY STUDENTS PREFER TO SEND WASHING HOME

U.S. Undergraduates Consider Postage Cheaper Than Laundries

"Half of the Minnesota students send their clothes to the laundry, while four out of five at the University of Wisconsin send their washing bundles home to mother. Evidently the Badgers like their ironed the way mother does it," comments the Minnesota Daily.

The house mother in another says that every last man contributes to his mother by "blue Monday." Only four men in one group regard mothers enough to favor her with this weekly remembrance.

Several Minneapolis laundries receive whole consignments of the less conspicuous but equally important men's furnishings. Shirts, though by no means always conspicuous, are included generously on the list. The washerwoman seems to be a character already slipping into the past.

An inquiry into the causes of these statistics seems to show that the popular practice of sending mother the washing is based in some cases upon a sentimental regard for this connection with home, in others upon the theory and practice that the postage on a laundry box is comparatively small.

Wan, Peaked and Wasted Faces Argue Rural Health Inferior to Urban

By a majority of fourteen votes the Students' Parliament of St. Michael's College rejected the motion, "That the welfare of the people of North America has been promoted by large cities." This session, held in the Lecture Room of Hart House last night, attracted the majority of the student body. The Honourable Nelson Parliament acted as Speaker pro tem.

In presenting the motion, Geo. Power, the Prime Minister, reminded the House that it had always been the instinct of mankind to congregate in large cities. This, he argued, indicated that it was a normal and healthy tendency.

Ed. Hartmann, opposing the motion, also cited history to show that ancient cities were the cause of the downfall of the great empires of the past, and the presence of similar tendencies in our modern cities bespeaks a like fate for modern civilization.

"The wan, peaked and wasted faces of rural women" who have worked themselves to death for "hubby and the kids" argued that rural health was inferior to that enjoyed by city dwellers. This was the contention of Vernon Bourke, second speaker for the motion.

EDITOR CONFINED TO CAMPUS DOINGS

Record of Events Preferred by Student Council to Undergraduate Opinion

STUDENT PAPER INVOLVED

Lake Forest, Ill., Feb. 9.—Student editors spend time occasionally explaining to critical correspondents why they limit news in their papers to campus events, yet the editor of the "Stentor" of Lake Forest College has been trying to tell the student council why he doesn't restrict his news to college activities exclusively.

The editor, Fred Genschmer, who gently ignored the council's first summons to discuss the paper's policy, was informed that he is "only an appointee of the council and subject to its action." As reported in the Stentor:

"The council point of view was epitomized by Mr. Macklin who stated that the students were not interested in literary and technical matters appearing in various columns; that more items of local interest should be covered; and that the news should be written down to the interest of the readers. The student council further contended that not enough space was being devoted to important student (Continued on page 4)

LATIN OPTIONAL FOR SCIENCE MEN SPREAD OF SPECIALIZATION DEPLORED

"Still another milestone upon the part of education towards meeting the practical interests of life is recorded in the report which Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, tabled in the House of Commons" (according to a despatch from Ottawa yesterday) "telling of an arrangement which has been made with the University of Toronto whereby arithmetic, mechanical drawing or shopwork can substitute for Latin in the requirements for the School of Science. A similar option is declared to be in course of preparation for girls who are desirous of entering the Household Science Department.

"The arrangement is the subject of reference by Hon. Mr. Heenan since in his capacity as Minister of Labor, he administers the technical education aid granted by the Federal authorities to the Provincial Governments. The new matriculation course to which the University of Toronto has now agreed, he states in the report which he has placed before the House, is the only one which will be recognized in technical schools as qualifying for Federal aid."

In regard to the report tabled in the Federal House by the Minister of Labor in which it stated that Latin would no longer be compulsory for admission into the School of Practical Science of the University of Toronto, and in place an option of arithmetic, mechanical drawing, or shopwork would be accepted, Mr. Fennell, assistant registrar, pointed out that these particular options applied only to technical school students and that standards which at present apply to high schools and colleges remained the same.

Latin has not been compulsory for the last two years to students entering S.P.S. from high school or colleges, an option of another language being given.

G. E. Norwood, Professor of Classics, University College, remarked that "it was a great pity" that Latin should be ignored. He thought that students should be brought into contact with a wide range of subjects till as late as possible in life. Specialization, he contended, begins too early; and in reply to the plea for the expediency of dropping Latin in favour of more practical subjects, he said that the application of experience need not necessarily stop with Latin, and that there were many subjects on the curriculum of future engineers which were no more essential to an engineer's education than Latin, yet no one has advocated their abolition.

The idea of early specialization could be carried to extreme, and the dropping of the study of English literature, French and History from the curriculum could be advocated on the same plea as that advanced for the abolition of Latin.

Wycliffe Oratorical

Handley R. Perkins won the annual Wycliffe Oratorical Contest with a speech on "Spectators of Sport," in which he decried the recent wave of sensationalism.

S. P. Hunt spoke on "British Imperialism," tracing the rise of Empire from the early days.

J. J. Hurley and W. R. Sproule also spoke.

CANADA ON PAR WITH UNCLE SAM

Dominion is Not Outstripped by So-called Progress of States

INTER-YEAR ARGUMENT

Alan T. Christie, President of the U.C. "Lit.," was elected to be the first recipient of the Maurice Cody Memorial Prize, at a meeting of the U.C. Literary and Athletic Society last evening. W. L. Plumptre, runner-up in the vote, was awarded the Honorary President's prize donated by Mr. McLaughlin, present occupant of the office.

Despite a diminished attendance, much of moment was transacted at this last regular meeting of the U.C. "Lit." It was announced that nominations of officers would take place on March 6, 1928, and elections on the following Tuesday.

A debate between the second and third years to decide the college championship provided the literary entertainment of the evening. Messrs. Gringorten and Finlayson of 3T0 supported the resolution, "Resolved that the United States is leaving Canada far behind," against Messrs. Henry and Millar of the class of '29.

"Americans are the greatest dare-devils the world has ever seen; theirs is the go-get-it spirit," was the contention of Mr. Gringorten. He maintained that the U.S. was far ahead of Canada in its proximity to the ideal of all governments,—democracy. He deplored the Governor General's possible veto-power in Canada, and that a grave danger lay in the fact that "the Canadian Senate may thwart the people's intentions." The speaker went on to discuss the superior position which the United States holds as a world power.

Mr. Henry, the leader of the negative, maintained that "Canada has the necessities for developing a substantial civilization,—land, climate, natural resources, extent of country, easy communication and a virile, intelligent and progressive people. These facts, he contended, showed that Canada was ahead of the United States rather than vice versa. "We ask you," he said, "to share with us our well founded Canadian optimism."

Mr. Finlayson asked, "What has Canada that the United States has not?" The United States, he continued, was far ahead of Canada, firstly in scientific methods, secondly in experiments in organization, and third— (Continued on page 4)

Russell's Theories Discussed at Philosophical Society

A study of Bertrand Russell's "Outline of Philosophy" was continued at last night's meeting of the Philosophical Society at Wymilwood. Professor Brett briefly outlined the second part of the book, preparing the way for two papers read by Mr. J. Manuel and Mr. Jaques. Following the papers an effort was made in the discussion to further define the relation between physics, behaviourism and introspective psychology as brilliantly conceived by Mr. Russell. His "logical atomism" as the final consummation of his theories became the occasion of much debate.

STATE INTEREST AND RESEARCH ARE LINKED

Faculty of Forestry Changes To Suit Varying Needs of Province

RESEARCH MEN TRAINED

This is the second of a series of articles on the history of faculties in the University of Toronto.

The history of the faculty of Forestry is a varied and interesting one. Dr. B. E. Fernow, who has been chief Forester for the United States and later Dean of the faculty of Forestry at Cornell, came about 1902-03 to Queen's in the course of a lecture tour following the disbanding of the Cornell School. As a result of his talks in the Limestone City, many people in Ontario, particularly the lumbermen, became interested in the idea of a Forestry School in Canada, and so, on the recommendation of the Royal Commission of 1906, the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto established a Faculty of Forestry, with Dr. Fernow, "The Father of Forestry in America," as Dean. The practical use of the school may be adjudged from the words of the commissioners: "It would be difficult to mention a case in which the State's duty and interest go more completely in hand."

In the early days the faculty had no easy time. Quartered at first in the Dean's House of University College, it was moved in '08 to No. 11 Queen's Park, where it shared 4 or 5 rooms with the Botany Department. In this inadequate space the faculty remained for 17 years, until in 1925 it was housed in a new and specially designed building on St. George St. The attendance has always been small. In the entrance class of '08 there were 17 or 18 students, whereas this session there are 25 newcomers, with a total of 60 for the whole faculty.

There are 32 courses given in the school; 15 concerning forestry itself. (Continued on page 4)

ELECT COMMITTEE AT FINAL DEBATE

Lyndon Smith to Move Motion in Hart House on U.S. Naval Expenditure

HARVARD REPRESENTED

"That this House views with apprehension the growing naval expenditure of the U.S.A." is the motion which Mr. W. Lyndon Smith of Trinity College will move at the final Hart House debate on Wednesday, 29th February. Two representatives of the Harvard University Debating Union have accepted the invitation to be present as hon. visitors; one will speak for the ayes and one for the noes. Invitations have been sent to McGill University and Mr. Ernst, M.P. The speeches will again be restricted to five minutes, except the mover, who will have ten minutes. This curtailment of the length of speeches has improved their quality, and also gives more members an opportunity of speaking.

At the debate the eight undergraduate members of the Debates Committee of Hart House will be elected. Nominations for this committee are made on the ordinary nomination forms at the Warden's office; the signatures of the nominee, proposer and seconder are required. Nominations close at 6 p.m. on Monday, 27th Feb. (Continued on page 4)

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire College Students Aim at Culture

Why did you come to college?

This question is much discussed to-day among college students. It is interesting to note that of the 24 students interviewed, 11 came to college to partake of broadening and cultural influences, 6 frankly to prepare for a career, 4 for a good time, and 3 were "sent."

Price Brown, IV, Eng. and Hist.: A knowledge of the best that has been said or done in the world is the best preparation for life. There is too much specialization nowadays. A college education should broaden one's horizon and offset the inevitable specialization which must follow later.

Kay Cockburn, IV, Trinity: I came to get a degree in Arts so that I might be qualified to secure a suitable position after graduation.

Margaret Gordon, IV, U.C.: It seems the best next step after school to gain experience in life—not a unique experience, of course, but extremely interesting and useful.

Mary McGarvey, IV, St. Michael's: To have a good time, of course.

Isabel McNiven, IV, Pass Arts, Trinity: Because I was sent: such is the soul's salvation.

Marjorie Crawford, III, Household Science: Because I can't be bored by not doing anything.

Laura McDougall, III, Modern History, U.C.: Four pleasant years—a rather entertaining talk.

Mildred Jackson, III, Moderns, Victoria: Because it's the only logical place to go at the age at which one usually enters college. One doesn't find out why one came (or shouldn't have come) till one gets here.

Muriel Eames, III, Household Economics, Trinity: Because it was the only way to equip myself for the sort of job I want to get when I graduate.

Harvey W. Becking, III, Pass: That by being trained to study and think out the problems of life I would be able to serve the youth of China better.

R. E. Whiting, II, C. and M.: Primarily for the academic opportunities it offers. Its academic activity is what distinguishes a university from other institutions. The athletic and social phases of university life have their place and should not be neglected.

Miss M. Uhrich, II, Moderns, Loretto: Because "a little learning is a dangerous thing."

Miss J. Muirhead, II, Eng. and Hist., Trinity: So that when I leave I'll know I don't know anything.

Miss G. Moynihan, II, Moderns, U.C.: It gives one such a righteous feeling.

Sidney T. Jones, II, S.P.S.: I came to gain some practical knowledge to prepare for an engineering career. (Continued on page 4)

CANADA SUITABLE TO AIRPLANES

Comparatively Free From Fogs Which Form Gaze Menace to Airmen

HELP PREVENT SMUGGLING

"The Development of Aviation in Canada" was the subject of the paper given at the eighth regular meeting of the Trinity College Science Club held in Trinity House last evening. Mr. J. Tuzo Wilson was the essayist for the evening. He outlined very briefly the development of aviation in other countries, and then showed how Canada has profited from their experiences.

Canada is very well adapted to aviation. The many lakes and rivers and plains make landing easy. Also, we are comparatively free from fogs, which are such a menace to airmen.

There are four distinct divisions to our air service—the air force, the Canadian Government's civil operations, and the control and technical ends. The civil operations have been developed furthest. There is very little passenger service, but a mail service is being steadily improved. Airplanes are being used extensively in mapping and photographing the country. Few realize that there are at present over two hundred and fifty thousand square miles photographed by government planes alone. The importance of planes in forest preservation is well known. Other interesting examples of the importance of the flying service were given. For instance, airmen have done much to prevent smuggling and illegal fishing.

The paper was very interesting and provoked a lively discussion.

GOODNOW TABOOS RAH-RAH SPIRIT

Democracy Should Not Exist in Privately-Endowed Colleges

PRESIDENT OF HOPKINS

If Frank J. Goodnow, President of the Johns Hopkins University, retires before the end of this year, as he has announced he will do, American education will lose a valuable man. And it will lose a rather unusual man. In an age when the university President tends more and more to become a hand-shaker, a good fellow, a leg-puller of Legislatures and a go-getter of money, this tall, gaunt man, with his reserve of manner yet curiously brutal directness of statement, has seemed the very antithesis of the modern type. And his thinking has been as far from the norm as his personality.

"Democracy," he said on one occasion, "may be all right in government. But it has no place in a university. At least it has no place in a university like Hopkins. It is the duty of the state, I suppose, to provide an education for all of its citizens, and for that reason the state university must accept all who apply for admission. But at Hopkins we are concerned with knowledge, and knowledge may not be profitably pursued by every boy who happens to want a university degree. From now on, in order to maintain the high standard that we have set for ourselves, we shall have to select those whom we will educate."

And with that idea he has run his university. Oddly enough, this involved going straight back to the ideals of its founders. After a period of rah-rah spirit and emphasis on the undergraduate, it practically abolished the undergraduate and began again to concentrate on the austere reaches of advanced work. What it will do now, we may be sure, will be a subject of interested speculation for some time to come.—New York World.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

When Kitchener defeated Preston on Monday night in a Senior O.H.A. fixture the Green Shirts put themselves in a very good position to tie for second place and necessitate a play-off with Preston. The win also assured Varsity of first place in the group, and all the Blue team has to worry over now is winning the finals.

And that will mean a lot too because though they won the Intercollegiate title they must win the O.H.A. title in order to get into the race for the Allan Cup. It surely would be a nice thing for the Grads to have won it and then the Undergrads to successfully defend it.

On Friday the Senior basketball team plays their last home game of the season when McGill comes here. The Red have not won a game this season, and it seldom happens that they go through the season without coming through at least once. A win for Varsity will mean the championship, but a loss will necessitate at least one win on the trip to McGill and Queen's which they make the following week.

The way that basketball team is going now it looks as though they will finish up with a clean sweep—but you never can tell. Faber, Mitchell and Newman make a powerful forward line, and their combination is perfect, breaking through the opposing guards under almost impossible conditions and tossing the baskets in with uncanny skill. The defence is just as good, and that was ably demonstrated on Saturday last at London when last year's champions did not score one goal from within the defence.

Mike Pearson has his hockey squad in rare form now, and if they only show the brand of hockey they are capable of they should go a long way toward the Dominion title. "Dickie" Richards, "Mel" Harley and "Jimmie" McMullen are going great guns at present, and when they swoop down the ice there is always bound to be lots of action. Kirkpatrick and Whitehead on the defence are always dangerous on rushes, and "Red" has one of the wickedest shots in amateur hockey. His aim is not always the best.

In Friday's game "Bill" Stewart and "Red" Legon were very much in the limelight, and this is saying a lot for two substitutes. Legon stepped into the breach when "Kirk" was laid out and came through with some lively work; he skated his head off and met with great favour among the fans. On the other hand, Stewart scored the winning goal in the dying minutes of play. With these facts to look back on, the game on Friday, though having no bearing on the title, should be a real battle with lots of action.

ASSAULT-AT-ARMS AROUSES INTEREST

Classes Begin Next Week for Embryo Boxers, Wrestlers and Fencers

OPENINGS FOR NEW MEN

The Intercollegiate Assault-at-arms on Friday and Saturday of last week did not mark the end of activities in that line of sports as far as University of Toronto is concerned. The men are taking rests as a rule, but next week a chance is being offered beginners when classes will start for those whose interest has been aroused by the assault.

Monday and Wednesday at 5 o'clock will be conducted boxing and wrestling classes for beginners, and any who have ambitions in those lines are well advised to get in on some pre-season training, as many of this year's team graduate and many weights will be opened up for new men. Fencing classes for beginners will start with Tuesday of next week and be held every Tuesday and Thursday from then on. This sport has received a great impetus in the past few years, and with the possibility of a separate fencing club in the future, the ancient and royal art will stage a great revival. At present only the foil is used in Intercollegiate competition, and the sabre and epee (duelling sword) are very interesting divisions of the sport. The sabre especially is interesting to watch, and more interesting to participate in, as here the "cut" as well as the "point" is used and more intricate guards are necessary.

Varsity has won the Intercollegiate title for the past five years, but

HARD TASK FACES JUNIOR BASKETEERS

Varsity Team Meets Xebecs in Home-and-home Series of Play-offs

FORMIDABLE OPPONENTS

At last the Junior Varsity basketball team gets its chance at some real games. The Juniors take on Xebec, the winners of the Toronto Basketball League, who have a number of smart players on their outfit, and the Blue and White will have no easy task defeating the boys with the peculiar name.

Owing to the fact that the Blues could not be placed in a regular league the Toronto and District Basketball Association, the body that governs the cage game in and around Toronto, gave the Varsity representatives grading as league winners and a right to enter the play-offs.

As a result of that ruling the Blues, although getting right into the play-downs, have had no hard fixtures, and as a consequence are not a little off on their playing, although they have a list of well-known players that looked real good in junior company last year.

The first game of the series will be played at Central Y to-day, the Xebec taking the Y floor as their home playing space. The return game will be played at Hart House gym on Saturday, with the points on the round counting. The winners will then advance further in the play-down until a city winner is declared. The other junior quintets in the city include West End Y, a team that many of the critics consider to be the team to beat. The West Enders meet Elizabeth Playground in the first round. The Lizzies, as they are known to basketball followers, are the same team that won the Ontario championship in the Juvenile section last year, and are considered to be among the best in the city, the forward line in particular being outstanding, having won all their games to date with a minimum of 40 points per game. Some of the players on this team are due for Varsity next year, being in their final year of high school. The team that got the bye was the Rotakin team, champions of the Church League, and a team that all opponents will find hard to handle. They are a fast breaking outfit that know how to handle the ball and can shoot with the best of them.

All in all, it means that the McCutcheon-Mayor squad is in for a hard round if they get any further than the first games.

VIC.-U.C. CONTEST IN HOCKEY FINALS

St. Hilda's, Medettes, Second Placers in Women's Inter-faculty Hockey

CLOSE GAME EXPECTED

The Senior Vic. and the U.C. women's hockey teams are the winners of Group I and Group II respectively in the Interfaculty Series. In spite of the frequent thaws, the hockey managers, Betty Donaldson of U.C. and Jean Bateman of Vic., have shown decided efficiency in getting their teams out to practice and to games. The Medettes won second place in the U.C. group, while St. Hilda's gave the Vic. Seniors a very close run for honours. The final games should be quite exciting, as both U.C. and Vic. Seniors are strong teams, Harry Ebbs and Cecil Banwell acting as coaches for the former and Bill Brunt for the latter.

Wilma Spiers (centre) and Grace Martin (wings) on the U.C. line-up, played last year, while Helen McKinley, the goalie, and Betty Donaldson subbed. Five of the Vic. girls are seasoned players, and this year they have been showing some snappy combination work.

A great deal of interest has been shown in women's hockey this year. The Varsity team have won the Intercollegiate title, and the winners of the Interfaculty series should put up a fine game in the finals.

U.C.: Goal, Helen McKinley; defence, Betty Donaldson, Adele Statton; centre, Wilma Spiers; wings, Grace Martin, Dot Starr; subs, Bee Crocker, Fritz Anderson.

Vic.: Goal, Evelyn Craw; defence, Helen Richardson, Molly Jerrit; centre, Marnie Reider; wings, Jean Bateman, Kay West; subs, Eleanor McCubbin, Anne Wingfield, Emma Wright.

Sr. Vic. Group Winners in Sifton Cup Schedule

The last scheduled game in Group I of the Sifton Cup series went to Sr. School when Sr. Dents failed to field a team. Sr. Vic. were returned group winners, taking all of their four starts.

Sr. School: Collins, Parkins, Woodside, Ing, Emerson.

The Good Roads Association meets to-morrow in Convocation Hall. A large number of snow-plows, tractors, drags, graders, ploughs, ditching machines and other road machinery of every size and description is to be seen outside the hall, and up against the Physics Building.

EMPIRE—"THE SECOND MRS. TANQUERAY"

At the Empire this week the Players are presenting Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's famous moral tragedy of the nineties, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." No doubt in its day this tense emotional drama left the less-sophisticated audiences of that era in a state of mingled doubt, consternation and tumult. To be honest, it is a gripping and forceful play, and its overwhelming expected dénouement has a most depressing effect, entirely lacking in that first essential of tragedy, catharsis.

The play deals with the grim progress of events in the home of Aubrey Tanqueray, whose second wife, Paula, was not what might be termed (Continued on page 4) and 17 concerning such other topics as economics, elementary physics, pathology, geology, geography, mineralogy and engineering drawing. The former include dendrology, a study of the native forest trees; silvics, the life history of the forest; forest protection, and forest administration. In addition to this, and in spite of the fact that the school is in the city, the future foresters of the U. of T. get more practical experience in the woods than in any other forestry school. Employment in the field is given during the summer vacation in the first three years, and six weeks at the beginning of the fourth year are spent at the Forestry School Camp in Algonquin Park.

The foresters of the U. of T. have built up an excellent reputation for themselves in the past, and, on graduation, find many openings in Government and private employ, private enterprise and teaching.

"The future is assured," said Professor C. D. Howe, present Dean of the faculty, when questioned by "The Varsity," "but we may have to modify the nature of our course from time to time to meet changing conditions. For example, we must prepare men for research work in forestry. On the other hand, it may be necessary to give somewhat modified courses to men who go into private employment. But I look forward to the time when there will be special courses given to such men as fire rangers and the more intelligent of the woods workers. A school like ours must more or less adapt itself to the needs of the province and the country in forestry matters."

tended engagement, and after realizing the futility in maintaining her struggle against the past, Paula suicided.

Not a very encouraging or hopeful solution of human affairs, but one that is reached by a master-dramatist after four intensely emotional acts. The technique of the play is perfect, the development of plot sure and swift, and the conclusion appalling in its finality.

As Paula Tanqueray, Edith Taliaferro gave a memorable interpretation of the role made famous by Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Ethel Barrymore. As her husband, Robert Leslie's acting was one of marked ability and fine restraint. Frank E. Camp as the old family friend, Cayley Drummie, contributed his usual splendid touch to the play, while Ellen Crowe, House Jameson, Anne Carew, Nat Burns and Janet Aldworth completed a perfectly-balanced cast.

"Welfare is a state of the mind, and consists in an inner deep-rooted feeling of calm and repose." This was the analysis of the question made by Mr. Aurelien Belanger, M.P.P. This ideal was more readily attainable away from the artificiality of the great cities. "Enjoyment is to be found in the country, and to be imitated in the city," he declared.

Professor Bladen, who was a visitor at the proceedings, welcomed the men to Hart House as the "federal house" in university parliaments. Messrs. Mooney, Garvey and McAndrew also spoke from the floor.

Those who leave the House before the end of the debate, but later than 9 p.m., may vote on the motion by ballot and for the committee. Those who stay to the end hand their committee ballot to the tellers as they pass through the division doors. Any member of Hart House may vote. In addition to the eight members elected, the Board of Stewards nominates two faculty, two graduate and two other members.

activities, such as the Junior Prom and athletic events.

"In answer to these arguments the editor pointed out the growing tendency in modern colleges to outgrow provincialism; that it is by far easier to fill up a paper with accounts of events with which every reader is already acquainted; that news articles were purposely condensed so as to get a wider range of subjects; and that the students might voice their opinions in letters appearing in the paper. The council, however, contended that the school paper should be more a matter of record than of student opinion or comment."

The meeting ended in a deadlock, and the Senator is still grazing in foreign pastures.

HERGESHEIMER IS SUBJECT OF PAPER AT U.C. WOMEN'S LIT.

Presbyterianism Combined with Quakerism for Early Influence

LONG ARTISTIC EDUCATION

Style Was Between Ultra-
Realism and Older Modernism

A Presbyterian child brought up under the strict discipline of a Quaker grandfather, Joseph Hergesheimer, the American writer, spent many years of his life studying art. Such was the subject of the paper given by Miss Margaret McKay at the U.C. Women's Literary Society in the Women's Union Tuesday evening.

The influence of his artistic education was felt keenly throughout his novels and came before in his detailed descriptions. "Tampico," a town in Mexico, was vividly portrayed with but few smiles, and the writer had the power to communicate the exact appearance of the thing without telling his readers what it resembled.

Hergesheimer had the habit of inserting a great quantity of proper names to avoid confusing the reader with his various individuals, but for the rest the author's choice of words was excellent. The power of suggestion was very apparent in all his books, and by a few true and well chosen phrases a vivid picture was created. In style, Hergesheimer stood midway between the ultra realism of the new school and the modernism of the older writers.

"Tampico" Hergesheimer's best commercial novel, was the story of commercial imperialism, being a full length portrait of the unscrupulous American who exploited a country for his own gain. Here one was given the impression that the author knew his Mexico from the Tampico cafés to the oil fields. The book had plenty of picturesque phrasing, was large in design and ambitious in scope. The greater number of Hergesheimer's books rang with melodrama, and there was always much blood and thunder, plot and counter-plot.

"Cytheria" was a novel of a quite different type, but the hero was the usual man of about forty-five, who, tiring of his practical common-place wife, fell in love with the doll Cytheria. Hergesheimer almost made the doll an animated human being, so real was his description. Then the hero met Cytheria personified and promptly fell in love with her, in consequence of which he quarreled bitterly with his wife. Like the hero of Tampico, Hergesheimer left the man in Cytheria stranded and rather aimless at the death of Cytheria, and the author left you with his abrupt ending, like an unfinished song.

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Students Favour Cars on Campus

Should undergrads be permitted to drive motor cars on the campus?

H. M. Skeak, IV year, S.P.S.: Most assuredly. It is not doing anybody any harm, and in lots of cases it provides a means of getting to lectures that would otherwise be missed. Again, the distances to be traversed between lectures is often so great that a car would be a most useful acquisition. Take for example going between Victoria College and Baldwin House. Cars are so common now that they would be brought anyway, and if the drivers were forbidden to bring them into the grounds it would only result in cluttering up Queen's Park or Bloor Street with cars.

M. W. Kollerman, III year, University College: No reason why not. In my opinion, it is an expression of freedom, especially when the horns are loudly tooted.

Stephens, III year, University College: Ask the man who owns one. Calvin, II year, Arts, University College: No, it is not a good thing. The use of a motor car has a distracting influence towards studies and attendance of lectures.

Design for I.S.S. Tags Made by Arthur Lismer

Arthur Lismer, the well known artist and member of "The Group of Seven," has designed the tag which is being used for the I.S.S. Tag Day. In the foreground of the circle are a Russian peasant and French student representing the fields where relief work is being done by I.S.S. to-day. In the background can be seen a mosque, a church spire, the sun of Japan, the crescent of Turkey, and the figures of an Indian girl and a Dutch boy. All these are symbols of the international character of I.S.S.

Temporary Repairs Effected in Fire-gutted Med. Building

As yet no extensive repairs are being made in the Medical Building, but smaller minor repairs have been effected to make the building habitable in those sections destroyed by fire. Where outside windows were destroyed, large sheets of paper have been placed to afford protection from wintry blasts. In the interior floors and doors have been rearranged and constructed. However, the work as yet is only temporary in character.

"UNITY OF GOD" IDEA CHARACTERIZES THE JEWISH RELIGION

Rabbi Isserman Gave Talk on
"A Jewish Approach to God"
Before U.C. Women

MANY CONCEPTIONS OF GOD

The Reward of Sin is Sin, and the Reward of Virtue is Virtue

"A characteristic Jewish conception of religion has been the Unity of God," Rabbi Isserman stated in his lecture at the Women's Union. "The Jews and Christians parted when the Christians ascribed divinity to Jesus of Nazareth, who to the Jews was a great prophet."

To most people the Jewish God is identified with the God of the Old Testament, but there are many conceptions of God, chronic in the Old Testament.

Religion in its early stages was that of the primitive tribes, but Semitism in time gave way to a higher and finer conception of God. Every tribe had its own God until Saul and David welded Israel into a nation. Then the tribal conception of God took a back place in the consciousness of the Israelites.

At times God was limited to certain places, at times to certain families or tribes. But when the tribes united, God became a national God.

Subsequent to the national conception of God, there came the universal conception. A few great geniuses of Israel gave the idea that God was interested in the Ethiopians as well as the Samaritans. Then there was the conception of God who wanted justice, righteousness and a universal knowledge of Him.

Judaism was a great contributor to the religion of mankind, but the Jewish conception of God did not cease with the completion of the Old Testament literature. There was a continuous conception of God throughout the ages. Jewish minds continued to develop the notion of God and the conception of ethics. The Bible was not the last word on religion. There was another Jewish view, that revelation was a progressive thing, that God revealed Himself through all ages.

The idea of Jehovah, cruel, the God of vengeance, represented one phase in religious development. Other peoples had in similar stages developed a similar conception of God.

Judaism frequently spoke of the holiness of God. This was the perfection which man ascribed to God. Thus our gropings for God were limited by the limitations of our own personalities. God himself did not change, but man's experience deepened. Man's relation to God was to be holy, as God was holy.

The conception of sin to-day rose out of the primitive conception of God. If an individual transgressed God's laws, he must be punished by man to retain the favour of God. "But sin is not so much an offense against society as an offense against the deity, against the Deity, not punishable by society. The reward of sin is sin, and the reward of virtue is virtue," Rabbi Isserman maintained. There was a universal purpose, though that purpose was not always apparent. We were finite, frail human beings, groping for faith. The scheme would assert itself and find glorious expression through the artistry of the universe.

PROFESSOR PARKIN GIVES LECTURE ON AEROPLANE CONTROL

Joy Stick Control Resembles Gear Shift Lever of Automobile

WHEEL CONTROL DISCUSSED

General Shapes of Elevators, Rudders, Ailerons Discussed and Illustrated

"Aeroplane Controls" was the subject of Prof. S. H. Parkin's lecture to the Toronto Flying Club last night.

"There are three control surfaces," stated the speaker, "the elevator and stabilizer, the rudder and fin, and the ailerons. The stick or 'joystick' is the most common method of controlling an aeroplane. This stick is reminiscent of the gear-shift lever of an automobile, but often has a handle like that of a spade, to give a firm grip. When the stick is moved to the right, the aeroplane tips in that direction; when it is thrown forward, it dives; when back, it climbs; and when moved in intermediate directions, produces a combination of those movements. The lateral direction of the aeroplane is controlled by pedals attached to the rudder."

The dependusin or wheel control was discussed. In this type of control the wheel controls the lateral attitude by the ailerons, while the backward or forward movement of the frame holding the wheel controls the longitudinal attitude.

The general shapes of elevators, rudders and ailerons were discussed at length, the various types being described and illustrated. The balancing of the surfaces relieves the operator of considerable effort, and there are three methods of doing this, the horn, backward hinge and avro.

The ailerons give the most trouble, for their operation not only tips the machine but also makes a yawing movement, which must be counteracted by the rudder. Sometimes, in slow flying, or when near the stalling angle, the rudder is not strong enough to do this. Then there must be special rigs on the aileron, or rigs affecting the aileron, to have satisfactory operation.

U.C. JUNIOR-SENIOR DANCE HAS SPRING'S ATMOSPHERE

Red and Yellow Tulips with Hearts Adorn Walls and Lights

The essence of spring tinged the atmosphere of the auditorium of the Women's Union, the scene of the U.C. Junior-Senior dance last evening. Huge red and yellow tulips with heart-shaped centres adorned the walls, and the same colour scheme was carried out in the latticed window, while overhead lanterns with painted blooms swayed gently to the strains of the orchestra. Streamers and boms added to the fun, and the lucky number dance was quite novel and was won by Miss Betty Brown and Mr. Alex McDonald. Mrs. Kirkwood and Professor and Mrs. Cochran were the patronesses and patron at this most enjoyable dance.

NOTED CRITIC GIVES JOURNALISM LECTURE

Second Sigma Delta Chi
Lecture is Given by Augustus Bridle

DRAMATIC CRITICISM

"Criticism is, after all, a form of appreciation," declared Augustus Bridle, dramatic, literary and musical critic of the Daily Star, in the second lecture of the journalism course. Mr. Bridle, whose subject was "Dramatic Criticism in a Daily," discussed from a critical standpoint plays he had seen lately, and compared the modern stage with that of several decades ago.

The speaker likened drama to a continuous succession of vivid pictures. The three essentials in a production were the play itself, the acting and the staging. He believed that the critic should approach the play with an open mind, and eliminate all preconceived ideas. He should make his mind as impressionable as possible.

Mr. Bridle considered that technique and staging had greatly improved of late years, and that the general standard of acting had been raised. "The stage must become an actor," was his opinion of the function of the setting.

Most of the talk was devoted to a discussion of plays which Mr. Bridle had seen on a recent visit to New York. He commented on the tendency to "Broadwayize" certain productions.

Victoria and Union
Theological College

ARTS FACULTY SEPARATE

Name of New College Formed by Amalgamation Not Yet Announced

The Board of Regents of Victoria University and the Board of Management of Union Theological College will make application to the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario at its present session, according to Mr. J. R. L. Starr, solicitor, for an Act for the following purposes:

1. To provide that the Acts of incorporation of Victoria University and the Act of incorporation of Union Theological College shall be consolidated and amended.

2. To vest in the Board of Regents of Victoria University all real and personal property of Victoria University and of Union Theological College and to make provisions as to the membership and powers of the Board and Senate of the University.

3. To provide that the Faculty of Arts known as Victoria College shall be continued and to create a Council of the said College and to define the powers and duties thereof.

4. To provide that the Union Theological College and the Faculty of Theology now established in Victoria University shall be amalgamated and carried on as a College of Victoria University and to create a Council of the said College and to define the powers and duties thereof.

"The Board and Senate of the University mentioned in Mr. Starr's statement," said Mr. W. J. Little, B.A., accountant in Victoria College, when interviewed by "The Varsity," "pertains to Victoria University, not the University of Toronto. At the present time we have Victoria University with two faculties, Arts and Theology. Everyone knows that the Faculty of Arts is the Victoria College in the University of Toronto. The Faculty of Theology is not a part of the University of Toronto. Then there is Union Theological College, which was incorporated by the Executive Committee of the General Council of the United Church of Canada."

The name of the new college formed by the amalgamation of Union Theological College and the Faculty of Theology of Victoria University has not yet been announced. The corporate body will be Victoria University; the academic organization will be two colleges, Victoria College and College.

THE SENSATIONAL NEWSPAPER STORY NEED NOT EXIST

Scoring the publication of sensational crime stories, the Rev. Gerald Kirby took the newspapers of to-day to task in a sermon at St. Michael's Cathedral Sunday morning. That the attack was justified we heartily believe, for the trend of the times in the field of journalism would appear to be toward the ultra sensational. But that the newspaper editor is to some extent worthy of sympathy we must submit.

Circulation brings advertising and, as a consequence, greater circulation is the continual cry of the business staffs of our great dailies. And as the "proof of the pudding is in the eating" so too has it been found that it is the sensational, the "yellow," newspaper that gains the greater popular sale. While willing to decry the sensational story as unfit for home consumption the average householder exhibits no inclination to discontinue his subscription on that account. But rather in fact, if the mystery be particularly choice or the details particularly gruesome, he adds to his "horror" by purchasing an additional paper. One newspaper editor has said that "journalists find great difficulty in writing down to their readers," meaning that, if left to his own choice, the newspaperman would indulge in an elevated type of story that would have an appeal to but a small minority, and that, consequently, the paper would go out of existence through lack of a reading public. Father Kirby stated that, according to psychologists, the average mind of the newspaper reader was that of a fourteen year old child. "If this be true," he continued, "what is the obligation of the press toward its readers? Do we feel that a fourteen year old child in the family is to be allowed whatever it demands?"

As we say, we sympathize with the editor of the great daily. We do feel certain that he realizes the dignity of his position and that he would consider his "job" to be ideal if he could print that only which he chose. But when the public insists that a murder story is news, and when it either demands that "news" or else transfers its allegiance to another journal, his owners and his business office leave him but little choice in the matter. The tabloid newspapers were swept into being on a huge wave of popular appeal, and that they have made their influence marked there can be no doubt when one witnesses his favourite newspaper pursue tactics that seem to him abhorrent—as witness the practice of many of the newspapers of to-day in providing pictures of "X marks where the body was found," "the body," "the knife," "John strides into the room with knife upraised," and what not. For the thinking man, for the person that has the least regard for the finer feelings, even for the person that scans with morbid interest the details of the gruesome story, the pictures of such events are more than stomach can stand. Fortunately, that good taste might not be too generally offended; the practice is not general, but is more or less confined to one sheet in every community. It is sincerely to be hoped that the custom does not spread.

As we have said, we sympathize with the newspaper editor, but that does not mean that he is not in the wrong. We do feel that the public can be educated up to the standard of the newspaper and that it is not essential for the existence of the paper that it lower itself to meet the standard of the public. We do not believe that the average newspaper reader is a fourteen year old, but rather that he has become so accustomed to a type of pre-digested news that he is willing to accept the ultra-digested. And that, like the mystery story, his interest and imagination are aroused by the dismal and that, if he is allowed to purchase such a type of literature, he will. Lurid books, novels and magazines that are not literature but do contain sex appeal, find a ready sale unless banned. But being banned their circulation is not great, nor is the urge to acquire them pronounced. By prohibition of import the authorities have found an excellent means to discourage the sale of objectionable literature

Menorah Dramatics

The Menorah Society staged its annual dramatic presentation in the Hart House Theatre last evening. The performance took the form of two one-act plays.

"Forgotten Souls," modestly styled "a one-act drama," was an ambitious bit of work, but it further strengthened our previous opinion that a drama cannot be presented adequately in one act. We are now fully assured that such fine talent was spent upon the play. The players acted very well and made the very best they could of an impossibility. In particular we should like to commend the acting of Vera Alexander and Jack Gringorten. Freda Schlessler also performed rather well.

The second play saved the situation, and, as a matter of fact, pulled the evening over to make the 1928 performance of Menorah dramatics a triumphant success, to judge from the fine, contented spirit with which the audience left the theatre. "The Pot Boiler" was a comedy satirizing upon the trials and tribulations of a director and his cast "behind the scenes."

S. U. Goldhar, the actual director of the Menorah Dramatics, plays the part of the director-playwright, and we have seldom seen a professional performer do a similar part as well as it was played last evening. Congratulations, Mr. Goldhar! Anne Gussack, Gertrude Houser, H. A. Minden, J. Lieberman, H. L. Daufman and Anne Epstein took the parts of the members of the unfortunate cast.

As a suggestion to those in charge we might recommend that in the future they could reap much better results by concentrating their energies on one play. The effect would be much better than is the case when talent is divided among two. For one is just beginning to get acquainted with the characters when the curtain rings down on the play, and much desirable effect is thus lost.

A.C. Players' Guild

At the Players' Guild yesterday afternoon Miss Margaret Gordon presented two beautiful and original little pantomimes of her own composition. The first "Salomé" was based upon the Biblical event borrowed by Oscar Wilde for his play of the same name. Miss Gordon's pantomime opens with Herod, the Tetrarch, on his divan, being charmed by the lovely and seductive Herodias. Into their presence enters John prophesying doom, and after Herod's frightened exit, the temptress attempts to beguile the

in this country. And similarly, by the prohibition of the publication of certain types of stories in a certain objectionable way, a taste for such stories would be discouraged, and the newspapers, with no fear of a rival "scoop," could go on their way untarnished. We recognize and would fight for the freedom of the press, and we do not wish to suggest by the above that government influence might be brought to bear upon our newspapers, but what we would like to indicate is that the remedy lies in the hands of the editors or owners themselves. That is, it is within the power of the editors, nay, it is the privilege of the editors of this city, of this province, of this dominion to come together to agree or to insist that all publish their stories in such a way that they can carry no offence, that they will not tarnish taste nor decency, that they will not injure the morals of the young by suggestion or example. By united action the newspaper owners can stamp out an evil that is rapidly appearing, that is fast spreading, and by united action can they shame the journal that persists in remaining the "black sheep." So far it is the business office that is to blame, but it is distinctly up to the newspaper owners to realize that circulation can be built as rapidly and more honourably by ethical means than by the sensational, provided that the other owners can be persuaded upon a joint method of presenting news that meets with the approval of good taste. And if the editors are sincere in their claims toward the ethical, such an agreement should readily be reached.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

While we should view with alarm the establishment of frequent tag days by various organizations on the campus we would like to ask the undergraduate body to favour the appeal that is to be made on behalf of the International Student Service to-day. Carrying the approval of the S.A.C., the S.C.A., the International Students' Association and the Menorah Society, it may be seen that this means of raising money for student relief has been accepted as satisfactory by many of the influential undergraduate organizations in the university.

Prophet. She is repulsed, and commands her daughter Salome to dance for the Tetrarch and to demand the Prophet's head in payment. Salome dances and Herod grants her request. The pantomime closes with the dancer falling at the feet of the executioner who bears the Prophet's head. The pantomime was clothed in the poetry of silence, rich in colour, movement, grace and beauty. The lighting, costumes, and musical setting were almost perfect. As Herodias, Miss Eleanor Norton gave a superb portrayal of the voluptuous queen; as Salome, Margaret Gordon danced in a manner that charmed not only Herod but her entire audience; Earl Fauman made a striking Herod, and Hamilton Miller a most sombre prophet.

The second pantomime was based upon Keats' "Eye of St. Agnes" and showed Porphyro, Marjorie Eoll, entering his beloved Madeline's chamber on the magical eve. Much beauty was given to the movements of the lovers by the exceedingly graceful actors. The musical accompaniment was chosen and played by Mr. C. Herbert Denness. Miss Gordon is to be heartily congratulated upon her charming presentation. After the performance there was a spirited discussion of Mr. Beamish's recent production, "Ferara."

GYMNASTS LEAVE TO-MORROW FOR MEET IN MONTREAL

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The gym squad are now in the final stage of preparation for Saturday night's meet in Montreal with McGill. Little errors have been corrected and now the team are working out simply to keep fit. The team has enjoyed a really successful year under Mr. Barton's tuition and the guidance of Capt. Gunn, who is one of the cleverest gymnasts ever to perform for Varsity. To drop into the gym some afternoon and watch this chap perform is a pleasure. His team mates, although not quite so proficient, are none the less clever performers. The local squad has hopes of repeating last year's success when they won the championship quite handsly.

Varsity's Senior basketball team are not underestimating a possible McGill win in their game here to-morrow night. They have been practising faithfully all week, and are in great shape to go the route. The Intermediates have improved considerably and are furnishing the Seniors with fairly stiff opposition. McGill are a dangerous team at any time, and spurned on by recent close defeats, are likely to give Varsity considerable trouble. They have been more out-lucked than outclassed so far and would like to redeem themselves at the locals' expense. Basketball is full of upsets, and to-morrow night may provide one of the season's biggest. A win for the Blue practically clinches the title for them, won last year by the Western five.

It seems too bad that there should be two Senior fixtures on Friday night. That is the Marlboro-Varsity hockey and McGill-Varsity basketball game. Both will be well worth seeing and so sport fans will have to decide for themselves. The Senior hockey team has already defeated Marlboros and should experience little difficulty in repeating. If the Dukes use some of their starry juniors a good game should result.

The 3-2 defeat suffered by Varsity's poloists at McGill last week has merely served as an incentive to more intensive training. One goal does not mean much in this game, as the locals are resolved to show in the next meeting between these rivals on March 3 in the return game at Hart House. Varsity have been working on some smart plays, and may spring a surprise or two against McGill. With two speed merchants like Thompson and Latchford, assisted by a smooth working forward line and defence, one is tempted to wonder what was wrong at Montreal. McGill undoubtedly have all kinds of class—but have they enough to hold their one goal margin?

ranging from basket to basket. Captain Garbe scored the first point of the game with a foul shot. Hutcheon and Garbe combined nicely to score several baskets, while Scott, White and Pasternak formed a steady defence. The Xebec team was hemmed in their half of the floor, resorting to long shots. Half time score 16-5 in favour of Varsity.

The second period started with Xebecs changing their style of game to the man for man type. Varsity were in repeatedly, but missed several easy shots. Combination plays accounted for many baskets, with Pasternak on the scoring end of them.

The Juniors played a clean, fast game, with the substitutes working in nicely with the rest of the team. To pick a star would not be fair, as the points resulted from unselfish passing. Varsity had four fouls called on them as compared with twelve for Xebecs. Dargavel and Carruth were best for Xebecs, scoring on long shots.

Varsity: Garbe (9), Hutcheon (8), Carr (2), Sullivan, forwards; Pasternak (9), Hodgson (2), centres; Scott (5), White, Traynor, Brown, defence. Xebecs: Dargavel (5), Leask, McHarg, Hobson, Ramer, Andrews, Carruth (4), Wadsworth, Tutty. Referee: H. N. Crighton.

"PAULINE OF THE PRAIRIE"

Chapter Three

"FIVE-MINUTE EGGS"

It was spring in the North Country, and all of that great frozen waste north of Winnipeg was no longer wasted upon its inhabitants. The grasses grew, the great pine trees blossomed with rich fruits, the deer shed their horns, and the Group of Seven came north to paint. Day after day the sky was overcast with great flocks of sparrows, parrots and peewits returning from Atlantic City and Hollywood. Even the frozen heart of Aloysius McWheeler, the stern factor of Fort Fruitless, was a little less tight than usual. His lovely Pauline romped on the Scotch thistles with Algernon Asselthwaite, and the great huskie, Flea-Tin-Tin (called Mis-quoh-taw-taw by the Indians, He-Who-Scratches Continually) lay at their feet and playfully bit large pieces out of Algernon's trousers. Spring had come, and with it, love in the hearts of Pauline and Algernon. Stranger, have you ever been in love in the North Country? Well, take my advice and don't be in it, for when the sugar-making month (Slop-gush-goulash) comes, no man can tell what the sap will do. Algernon had been asked his intentions by the old Factor, and replied: "I love your daughter. I'll marry her."

But out of the North (this never happens in the South) came a rumour, an odour like socks burning. A wisp of smoke came drifting up at dawn and the great husky howled heckishly. Algernon sprang to the window of Fort Fruitless.

"My Goodness Gracious!" he cried, "the forest is on fire!"

"Hoots! Toots! How did you guess it!" cried the Factor.

"I am an Oxford man," said Algernon simply, while Pauline wept hysterically into her grape-fruit.

Algernon swept her up in his arms like so much debris; Flea-Tin-Tin seized the old Factor in his teeth, and they carried their respective burdens four hundred and thirty-six miles through fire, dead matches, smoke, brimstone and fire-works until they came to a little pool six feet wide. (Stranger, have you ever tried to run away from a forest fire?—it is like the Registrar—only more insistent—have you, stranger, ever been north in a forest fire? No, well, take our tip and stay south—never go further north than St. Clair Avenue.)

In the pool stood a small sinister-looking man. "You can't come in," he said; "there's only room for four!"

"One side, varlet!" cried Algernon, throwing in Pauline, Aloysius, and perhaps the most unique figure of the eighteenth century in France. In the midst of the sometimes sordid comedy and the sentimental "comédie larmoyante" of the period, Marivaux's plays are very refreshing. Marivaux wrote drawing-room comedies in which he dramatized the discussions going on in the elite salons of the period.

"L'Epreuve," for example, deals with the delicate question as to whether a wealthy young Parisian of good birth might reasonably marry a country girl who has neither the wealth or the position that he has. "L'Epreuve" consists of the attempts of the young man to test the love of this refined bourgeois young lady, to find if he be for himself or for his money and position. The struggle in the heart of the heroine is portrayed with great insight, and the grace of the dialogue and the charm of the intrigue assures a most enjoyable hour's entertainment.

The cast of the play follows, and it is suggested that those intending to be present clip it out and bring it with them to serve as a programme: Madame Argante,

Miss F. E. Boake, B.A.
Angélique Miss E. B. Abbott, B.A.
Lisette Miss I. E. Cleland
Lucidor Mr. C. J. Macdonald, B.A.
Maitre Blaise Mr. H. Peterson
Frontin Mr. J. K. Crozier, B.A.

Flea-Tin-Tin heroically. "I," he cried, "shall stay on the bank. 'Tis nobler to be fried than boiled." Then he looked at the stranger. "You! You!" he uttered, "you are Percival Pamel! You are the Man I am Out to Get!"

"Well," said Percival, "I am getting out anyhow—it's too crowded." Out he got—and Algernon climbed in.

Percival drew a fire-extinguisher from his pocket, sprayed his way three hundred miles to safety and dropped another match. The fire crept back to the pool, and the water began to boil. Our little party grew discontented. They grew hard-boiled—they had been on more than three minutes. What could save them?—That's too hard a one to answer now—will have to think one up in Chapter Four. N.A.B.

Forestry Wins Third Game of Series by Defeating Wycliffe

Forestry won the third game of their series in basketball last night. The game in the first half was not spectacular, neither team getting well under way. Score at the end of the first half was 8-3, Forestry.

Considerable improvement appeared in the second half when Forestry made some pretty plays by means of good passing and team work, especially on the part of Wiley, Start and Grainger. Some well timed individual rushes were made by Stringer and Wilkes of the Wycliffe team, but did not produce points. The last few minutes of play saw the Wycliffe team showering the Foresters' board with shots which came nowhere near the basket. Final score: 17 to 7, favour of Forestry.

Forestry: Start and Gray, forwards; MacBean and Wiley, guards; Grainger, centre; Robinson, spare.

Wycliffe: Hunt, James, Hurley, Newby, Stringer, Wilkes and Boyd.

The play will be given in costume of the period. Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting. Admission free.

IN any house the foundation invariably precedes the roof. And so it is with the building of financial independence. Its foundation is work—and a Savings Account.

Saving is common sense, not stinginess. The regular habit of putting aside a certain percentage of earnings into bank savings, to accumulate healthily at interest, means comfort, security and independence. You have money always at hand to use in emergencies, in business or for pleasure.

Don't envy wealth. Acquire it. Save regularly. Deposit your money in a bank.

COMMON FRIVOLITY IS FOUND LACKING ON LOCAL CAMPUS

Father Paul Bull, of Community of the Resurrection, is Distinguished Visitor

LECTURING AT TRINITY

Has Had Exceptionally Interesting Experiences and Travels

"I am deeply impressed by the life of the University, with the dignity and the gravity of the behaviour of the students everywhere on the campus," said Father Bull, in a special interview with "The Varsity." "There is a lack of the frivolity evidenced elsewhere and an attitude of dignity and self-respect," he continued. Father Bull remarked that the University of Toronto was more like Oxford than any other place he had visited, and that it reminded him of his own college days in years gone by.

Father Paul Bull is one of the most picturesque, and at the same time one of the most outstanding educationists who has visited the University. He is a priest in the Community of the Resurrection at Mirfield, England. He has been on many preaching tours in the United States, to Canada as a missionary from the Archbishop of Canterbury and York, and to the army in India, where he lectured to 50,000 soldiers at the request of the Commander-in-Chief. This is his fourth visit to Canada, and he hopes to return next year. He was a special lecturer in Pastoral Theology at the General Theological Seminary in New York from 1924-27. At the present time he is delivering a short course of lectures at Trinity College.

His life history is extremely interesting and might well serve as a page from a fairy tale. He was born in Surrey in 1864, and educated at St. John's College, Hurstpierpoint and Worcester College, Oxford. He became a schoolmaster at Mansfield, and later at Hurstpierpoint. He was ordained in 1889. He was chaplain to the Guards at Chelsea, and to the army at Aldershot. As chaplain to General French's Cavalry Division he rode through many battles in the South African war. He wears the coveted distinction of the medal with five bars.

Father Bull has preached many missions in England, was attached for five years to the Admiralty to give moral instruction to all the boys and men in the Royal Navy, and has done much work among men and boys in (Continued on page 4)

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Criticism of Sensational Press

Do you believe in sensationalism in the press?

George M. Gray, IV, S.P.S.: Most decidedly not. It breaks down the morale of the younger generation, and it is only an advertising medium and does not represent popular opinion or interests.

Alexander MacAlpine, II, McMaster: Yes and no. In some ways publication of the occurrence of a particular crime has a good effect in rousing the authorities to stamping it out, and then again publication of the more lurid details may act on some people as incentive to commit the same or similar crime.

G. H. Lowndes, II, U.C.: I don't think that too much sensational news such as murders, etc., should be published, but I like reading them.

F. Hunniset, I, Victoria: Yes, newspapers are intended to give the public all the news, and I believe that all the facts of any news story should be published or else none at all.

B. Maura, I, U.C.: No. All newspaper editors should realize that the public mind is very impressionable and the more lurid portions of assaults and testimony in divorces should be expurgated for the public peace of mind.

P. Kingston, I, U.C.: I don't think it matters much. It takes all kinds of papers to make interesting reading, so why eliminate the colourful when we have so much that is drab?

PREVENTION OF WAR DISCUSSED BY I.S.A.

Influence of League of Nations is Dealt With by Speakers

CONDITIONS IN MACEDONIA

"The possibilities of future war, and the influence of the League of Nations in preventing war," was the topic of an interesting discussion at the monthly meeting of the International Students' Association in Hart House last night.

Mr. Martinoff, who led off the discussion, thought that the possibility of a future war had been shown last year by the breaking of diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Russia. Now people were beginning to discuss the possibility of a future war seriously. Many thought a war between Great Britain and the United States impossible because of the close relationship between these two nations. These people forgot that England and Germany came of the same stock and were virtually the same. A league had existed before 1914, but this had not prevented the war. The present league was not truly a league of nations because countries such as the United States and Russia were not members.

Mr. Evans, a native of Macedonia, gave a very lucid description of conditions in his home land. He outlined the various difficulties found there on account of the many nationalities of its inhabitants. Some solution might, he thought, be found in a union of Balkan states somewhat similar to that of the United States, and he pointed out the help that the league could give in the solution of this.

Professor Mackenzie then told of the league, its aims, its difficulties and its possibilities. It was, he said, a sincere effort on the part of the nations of the world to solve their problems before they went to war, not after they had fought and killed each other's men. True, it might fail, and yet the aim was worth while. It might not stop war, but if by its attempts and its failures it should lead to something better, then it was indeed worth while.

NATURE IS SUPREME MAN ONE WITH HER GOETHE'S DOCTRINE

Professor Fairley Treats of Great German Poet in University College Lecture

LIFE WAS UNEVENTFUL

Valued His Writings as Means of Self-expression in His Care for Spiritual Health

"It is a common experience for those who approach Goethe to find that his character baffles them," said Professor Fairley yesterday afternoon in the West Hall of University College. Goethe's range of personality does not altogether account for this fact, nor is it merely because he is hard to label, resisting all qualifications. He is a lyrical poet, taking nature as his theme, yet his place is not with the lyric poets. He draws us, not merely into the heart of words but into the state of mind behind those words. Other poets have it within their power to draw this experience from us, but Goethe forces it from us.

And yet the poet who could exercise this coercion was singularly lacking in ambition. Referring to the well-known saying, "By their fruits ye shall know them," Goethe once remarked, "Are these our fruits—these writings with which we soil paper?" The fact is, Goethe's poetry was too natural to him to make him ambitious about it. One cannot imagine him not writing poems. He was not so much conscious of a power to please others as of a gift to please himself. "My works are a fragment of a great confession," he once said. His writings were valuable to him as a means of self-expression. His deepest thought and care were for his spiritual health.

Goethe came by his ideal of life early and easily. He experienced no religious crisis but first gave voice to his philosophy of life at Strasbourg in 1770-1771. It was the supremacy of nature and man's oneness with nature. He had an ideal conception of nature and of the inner integrity of man. His poetry rings the changes for the basis of this ideal.

Goethe's truly impeccable work is to be found in his shorter poems. They seem to have come to him unbidden and unforced. His sense of life in (Continued on page 4)

HEBREW ORIGINAL GOSPEL DECLARED A POSSIBILITY

Oriental Association Compares Renderings of Gospel of St. Matthew

Was the original of St. Matthew's gospel written in Hebrew, Aramaic, or Greek? This was the question which engaged the attention of the members of the Oriental Association when they met yesterday at Wycliffe College.

A paper was given by Mr. Reid, which dealt very ably with a book stating the claim of a certain Mr. Schonfield, that a Hebrew manuscript found in 1553 by a French bishop points to a Hebrew original of the Gospel of St. Matthew. This manuscript was first translated into Latin and later into English, and shows some very interesting variations from the received text of the Greek. Numerous examples were given by the speaker to emphasize the superiority of the Hebrew rendering to that of the Greek.

At the conclusion of the paper the members of the association fully discussed the theory and its practicability.

READINESS TO BUY THEATRE TICKETS BUT NOT GOOD BOOKS

Fourth of Series on Business Administration Delivered in Baldwin House

PUBLISHING PROBLEMS

Press Publicity an Important Factor in the Marketing of Books

That there is to be had a greater thrill of suspense in the publishing of a book than in wagering on a race horse, was the opinion stated by Mr. F. F. Appleton, of Hodder Stoughton, Toronto, in the fourth of a series of lectures in business administration at Baldwin House yesterday afternoon. "You can size up a horse before putting your money on him in a race, but the publisher of a book has no way of estimating its success, because that depends on the fickle taste of the public," he said.

The lecture dealt with a general view of the modern publishing trade and its problems. He described the general routine in the publishing of a book from the time it is submitted as a manuscript by the author to the actual sale.

In telling of how the reader and critic employed by the publishers review each manuscript, Mr. Appleton emphasized the frequent need of improving upon the titles submitted by the author himself. He stated that the attractiveness of the title makes a world of difference in the probability of its success.

"Publishers think there is an underconsumption of books," he continued. "People readily pay $2.00 or more for a theatre ticket, but they think twice before they will even pay 75c or $1.00 for a book."

He went on to describe the setting of prices and division of profits between author and publisher. In the royalty system the author usually gets about ten per cent on each copy sold. He pointed out the extreme importance of large scale production in printing. After the war, books have become much cheaper, because more are being sold.

The speaker went on to compare the methods in the publishing trade of Great Britain, United States and Canada. "Press publicity is the most valuable factor in the sale of a book," he stated. "Writing a book requires only paper and a pen; publishing is harder, for genius delights in illegible handwriting; harder yet is reading due to the human tendency to fall asleep, but selling a book is the most difficult of all," he continued.

The lecture closed with a display of "galley" proofs, sample "dummy" copies and the original manuscript, with the author's own corrections, of the novel "One Increasing Purpose" by the well known A. S. N. Hutchins.

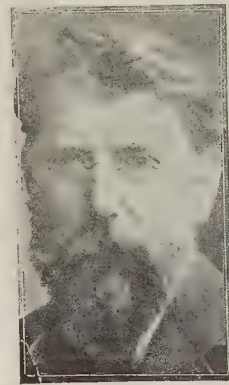

Faculty Tea

Mrs. Satterley and Mrs. Craigie were the patronesses of a most delightful tea in the Graduate Room yesterday afternoon. A very prettily arranged spring bouquet of daffodils and narcissus graced the serving table with the many assorted cookies. A large number of students were there and enjoyed the tea particularly well on account of the damp weather.

Examination Applications

Students in the Faculty of Arts are reminded that applications for the annual examinations should be filed not later than March 1st. Application forms may be obtained from the office of the College Registrar or from the Registrar's Office, Simcoe Hall.

GUEST FROM IRELAND TO SPEAK TO-NIGHT

George William Russell Will Address Audience in U.T.S. Auditorium

IRISH LITERATURE

George William Russell, poet, painter, economist and journalist, will speak in the University of Toronto Schools auditorium to-night under the auspices of the Canadian Authors' Association, the staff in English of the University and other bodies. His subject will be, "Some Personalities in Irish Literature." Dean Delury will preside.

Mr. Russell's work has been important both from a national and international standpoint. His poetry, written under the well known pseudonym "AE" has attracted universal attention in its beauty and mysticism. His prose too is distinguished, and of this one of the better known examples is his "National Being." Yet this as well as his poetry is derived from his own feeling for his country.

This feeling he has not only expressed in words but in action too. With characteristic versatility, Mr. Russell has worked for Ireland as a leader both in literature and economics. As a critic and writer he was the first among the group that initiated the Irish Renaissance. In addition he has all his life advocated a system of co-operative marketing for farmers, a system which would extend to and include the cities.

Of late years Mr. Russell's chief interest has been his journal, "The Irish Statesman." He is in Toronto in connection with his first American tour, in which he has visited and will visit leading cities in the United States.

Areopagus Club Hears Speeches

The weekly meeting of the Areopagus Club was held last night. Speeches were delivered by Messrs. Hilborn and Flynn, the former speak on "Ghengis Khan," and the latter on "Western Adventures."

Extemporaneous speeches were delivered by Kindrick, Walters and Monahan.

Rev. Father McCorkell gave a very much appreciated criticism of the different oratorical efforts.

FACULTY OF MUSIC IS DISTINCT FROM THE CONSERVATORY

Dr. MacMillan Suggests Closer Co-operation Between Music and Arts

DEGREE AWARDED IN MUSIC

This is the third of a series of articles on the history of faculties in the University of Toronto.

The City of Toronto has for many years enjoyed an outstanding musical reputation, especially in its possession of such organizations as the Mendelssohn Choir, the Hart House String Quartet, and the New Symphony Orchestra, and this reputation has for the past four decades been fostered by the Toronto Conservatory of Music, the pioneer institution of its kind in Canada. Incorporated in 1886, and opened the following year, the Conservatory grew rapidly, in 1896 was affiliated with the University, and in 1897 was moved from its quarters on Yonge Street to its present situation at College Street and University Avenue. Its closest connection with the University of Toronto dates from 1921, when the trusteeship of the Conservatory passed to the University under an Act of the local Legislature of 1919, and its management was directed by a special Board appointed by the University and responsible to its Board of Governors.

The Faculty of Music, however, in the University of Toronto is distinct from, and independent of, the Conservatory of Music. Created in 1918 with Dr. A. S. Vogt as dean, it now offers a three-year course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Music, for admission to which Pass Matriculation is necessary. This intensive and rather difficult course includes harmony and counterpoint, a survey of the history of music, musical form, orchestration, and original composition. The degree of Doctor of Music is also available, but requires an examination of a more advanced character than is involved in that of Bachelor of Music, as well as an original composition of the nature of a cantata, or an orchestral tone-poem. EVOLUTIONARY IDEA BEGAN WITH GREEKS

"Evolution and the Belief in Immortality" Subject of S.C.A. Lecture

MAN PART OF NATURE

"The extinction of human life is a contradiction of the whole direction of evolution," said Prof. W. R. Taylor in his lecture for the S.C.A. at Hart House yesterday. Remarking that he had to speak on an immense subject, "Evolution and the Belief in Immortality," he went on to say that "the arguments do point in favour of an evolutionary doctrine," and that the truth of some such theory was now generally admitted. He claimed, however, that the theory strengthened rather than weakened the evidence for immortality.

Prof. Taylor recalled the ancient idea of the universe as resembling an Oriental household with three stories, the highest inhabited by the master, the next by his servants, and the lowest a place of dark and forbidding aspect. This view spread westward with Christianity, and is not yet entirely removed from the minds of many people. Modern thought, however, necessitated a different concept. (Continued on page 4)

DOES THE BETTER STUDENT WORK HIS WAY THROUGH COLLEGE?

That instead of outside work being detrimental to the students' career, it actually helps those compelled to work to be more successful than the non-workers, is the conclusion arrived at by Francis T. McCabe of Harvard University, after an exhaustive study of a group of 758 students.

In the "Vocational Guidance Magazine" (Cambridge, Mass.) there appears a long report of the investigations which, when summed up, disclose that the group of students was divided into those who did not work, those who worked for extra pocket money and those who had to work their way through college. In order to determine the relative abilities of the three sections of the group, group intelligence tests were administered and, so as to gauge the measure of school success, all school records were separately kept. From the point of view of intelligence, the tests showed no distinction in general mental ability between one section and another; in honour marks, those obliged to work are superior to either the non-workers or the workers for extra money; in average marks, those obliged to work are superior to those working for extra cash; and the workers have fewer failures than either the non-workers or those working to augment the already healthy pocket book. Final conclusions were that students obliged to work take first place, and those that do not work, second place. It would seem, therefore, if one can judge by these findings, that the student who has to work or quit college is, on an average, the best student of the three classes. We are rather doubtful as to whether this can be accepted as a general rule, but the study at least serves to defend the young man who endeavours to put himself through college by his own labour, and of whom only a year ago we heard some far from encouraging remarks by an authority of our own university.

THE ANSWER

I am the unreturning,
Fashioned of mist and dew;
Living beyond the star-dust,
I may never come back to you.

I am the heart of violets
That died at birth of dawn;
I am the falling fountain,
I am the leaping faun.

I am the heart of dreamland
Living 'mid lonely years;
I can but see your misted eyes,
I can but feel your tears.

I shall pass you in the darkness
And in the sleeping rain;
I cannot cease your calling,
I can but ease your pain.

I am the unreturning,
Dreaming beyond the dark—
I shall call you at the dawning
In the singing of a lark.

Your dreams have drawn the gold

Your songs fold every tear within a you weep

Lives on, a joy the poet only knows.

Hart House Quartet

Last evening the Hart House String Quartet gave their last recital of the present series, and in their choice of programme and artistic interpretation revealed themselves as an organization worthy of comparison with the superb Flonzaley Quartet.

The first number given last evening was Bela Bartok's "Quartet No. 1, Opus 7." Bartok is regarded as the foremost representative of modern Hungarian music, and his Quartet is rich with the colour, vigour and stress of the Slavonic nature. The number is not particularly restful, graceful, nor soothing in quality, but has at times a deep melancholy, a power of emotion and thought rare in modern music. The Quartet is uneven in tone, harsh strident and barbaric passages leap from the diabolic movements of Slavonic dances, then strangely, the loudest passages suddenly fall and deepen into pure mournful beauty. Crescendos of power break suddenly into pure and solemn sweetness, and unusual haunting measures develop into grotesque czardas of the Hungarian dance. In the last movement the cello dominates, and then one piercing note is sustained by the first violin, and the other strings continue until the spell is broken with a stark, discordant bagpipe-effect. The Quartet closes with a weird mocking little passage. The number is a memorable one, perhaps not entirely pleasing, but in any case, strikingly original, forceful and inspiring. The H.H. Quartet was never heard to better advantage than (Continued on page 4)

Glorious! Glorious! The Twanky-dillo Tag Day was a grand success! The fair taggers of the University of Twanky-dillo reaped a golden harvest in their drive to purchase hand-painted bed-warmers for the poor of Patagoria.

Interest was stimulated in the worthy cause by several gentlemen who organized the campaign on a business basis. The Daily Dillo, official undergraduate newspaper, published a stirring appeal under the headline: "Come over into Patagoria and warm us!" The campus atheist opined that a few hardwood slats would be more to the point, especially if a few tacks were added. His solitary growl was squelched, however, by Peter Pill (Pi Phi) Perpetual Pest for the Preservation of the Patagoria Plebs. Mr. Pill denounced anyone who spent his money within the University of Twanky-dillo and said that any man who would not throw his money away in another continent wasn't a man. (Prolonged cheering.)

Mr. Pill impressed the Leading Men of the University student body with a brilliant peroration in which he asked, "What would become of secretaries and travelling delegates and the grand old art of agitation if such noble causes like this were to fail?"

Quite the cutest devices were employed for boosting the total amount received. Students were allowed to miss nine o'clocks on payment of 50c to The Fund. Those who paid a dollar were allowed, nay encouraged, to shoot beebies at professors who did not endorse the project. Nor were the fair taggers forgotten. The most successful taggers received jolly prizes: first, an Anglo-Saxon dictionary.

Editor, "The Varsity."
Dear Sir:
In your Editorial Comment of yesterday's issue I note that you make mention of Tag Days. Like you I agree that the one in question is worthy of support, but why not limit it to tagging? I think that ticket or placard would have been more appropriate in this instance.
It seems to me that regulations should be introduced with reference to the size of the so-called "tags," for though I willingly give my support to the International Students' Service and appreciate the workmanship of the artist, I hate being "papered."
Sincerely,
Jewell.

ary which was carried off in triumph by Miss Meddler. Second prize, the works of Nitze and Dargan in Braille, was awarded to Miss D. Dora (last name withheld). The lackadaisical and indifferent among the fair workers were punished by being forced to memorize Ramsay Muir's "History of the British Commonwealth" in two hours or in lieu thereof to dance the Black Bottom with peas in their shoes on the edge of the roof on top of the Main Building.

Peter Pill entertained his fellow agitators at a Banquet to celebrate the success of the Tag Day. All the proceeds were used up in the Jolly Revel and a deficit declared. The student body was requested to take over the deficit, but Mr. Pill loaned the money to them to pay it off, at six percent interest.

The disappointed Patagorians staged several riots and burned the Chinese ambassador. As a result Patagorian history has been dropped as a major in the University of Twanky-dillo and agriculture or ad-writing may be offered as an optional subject. Academe.

WINS TO-NIGHT WILL MEAN TITLES FOR BASKETBALL SQUADS

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Without very much shouting and hilarious enthusiasm, the Varsity gym team practised consistently all season, held their Interfaculty meet, and are now away to Montreal to participate in the annual Intercollegiate competition. Last year "Don" Barton produced a winning team, and of course made a repeat this time. History has had only two consecutive wins in this line of sport, and this is the chance for Varsity to make it three. McGill won the Caron Cup in '22 and '23, then it alternated until '26, when Toronto won it and retained it to date.

The hockey game to-night has no direct bearing on the standing of the teams in the O.H.A. race, but a defeat for the Blue and White would make things decidedly uncomfortable. The whole squad is going like a championship team right now and stand in good stead to finish the season in first place. With Whitehead back, a well rounded out team is the result. Don Carrick passed up boxing this year in order to help out the hockey squad when it was badly in need of a defence man. He is subbing now, but was in the game for the part of the season when most needed.

The Jennings Cup play-downs are announced in to-day's issue, and these "two-thirty" games are going to arouse a lot of interest. Interfaculty hockey and rugby always bring to the surface much latent college spirit.

To-night marks the final appearance of the Blue Senior Intercollegiate basketball team for this season, when the McCutcheonites entertain Coach Van Wagner's Red men in the first game of their home and home series. A win to-night for Varsity practically means the copping the title lost last year to the University of Western Ontario. Although McGill are firmly entrenched in the cellar with three losses, the Red and White have always been famed for their fighting spirit, and will make a last desperate attempt to break into the win column at the expense of the leaders. With three games left to be played, two victories for Varsity will clinch the championship, while one victory would probably end in a tie with Queen's; so that at present it appears that the cup will probably rest with Varsity for the 1928 season.

In the first game the Intermediates play the crucial game of their schedule when they meet O.A.C. At present Varsity is sitting at the top of the heap, but the Aggies are still very much in the running, and a win for them to-night will result in the season ending tie. On the other hand, if "Mac" McCutcheon's seconds win to-night the title will be theirs without further argument. The Guelphites were early heralded as the team to beat for the Intermediate championship; but by virtue of the Blue's win in Guelph last week, the latter are now favourites for the title. However, to-night's battle promises to be a lively one, with O.A.C. making a determined effort to uphold advance expectations.

ACTION IS PROMISED BLUE MEET "MARBLIES"

Regular O.H.A. Fixture at Arena To-night, Varsity Playing Marlboros

The Blue and White are in for rough going to-night when they hitch up with Marlboro Seniors in a regular O.H.A. fixture. The Blues are leading the local group and the Marlboros are at the bottom of the heap, but that makes no difference to the "Marbles," who like to muck it up and always provide plenty of action every time they take the ice. The Marlboro team will make it most interesting for the league leaders, and a defeat for the Mike Pearson clan will make it tough in getting in the leading position.

The Marlboros may sport Harry Watson on their line-up, and if the former Olympic star is in his real form there is only one thing to do for the Blues, and that is watch Watson. Although he has been out of the game for a time, he is always ready to go at it hard, and his presence on the Marlboro team at the Varsity Arena to-night will make a big difference. The Blue at present are going great guns with an outstanding feature the smart playing of

MCGILL WILL OFFER STRONG OPPOSITION TO BLUE BASKETEERS

Varsity Losses to McGill and Queen's Would Cause Tie

Varsity Squad at Work

Captain is Best Defence Man in Intercollegiate Circles

Advance word has arrived from McGill as to the probable line-up for the big cage game at Varsity to-night. The lineup is a formidable one and although some new faces appear, some of the old stand-bys of former years are still there. Perhaps the most outstanding man on the McGill quintet is Captain Weldon at centre, who will be remembered as the big centre man in last year's game when McGill took Varsity to camp in the last game of the year to win the championship for Western, whom the Toronto boys had defeated in the two tilts of last year. Weldon scored thirteen points in that game and led the veteran Hutchison a merry chase at centre. The same situation may arise this year, and the Queen's Parkers are taking no chances. Queen's have only dropped two games in the championship race, and are out to get Varsity blood in Kingston. So that a loss for the Blues to-night here and one at Queen's would tie things up. McGill realize that, and though out of the running themselves, can be counted upon to argue every minute of the play. Faulkner and Gossman on the forward line for the Montrealers are not new to Intercollegiate basketball, being on the McGill team of last season. Young, Maclean and Silverman are new blood, but from reports from the east they do not weaken the regular line-up in any way. Wykes and Blumenstein complete the line-up for McGill.

Trinity 278 Wins Inter-year Basketball Championship

By defeating Divinity by a 19-10 score, 278 won the year '21 cup, emblematic of the inter-year basketball championship of Trinity, Wednesday. Divinity had previously defeated 370 and 279, and 278 had defeated 371. The game was fast and exciting throughout, with a tendency towards rough tactics. An unfortunate accident marred the game when early in the first period "Red" Weir dislocated his knee. The game was played in U.T.S. gym, and the half time score was 11-6. The teams: 278: Forwards, Barrett (8), Evans (5); centre, Ralfe (1); guards, McPherson, Gray (4); subs, Cole (1), Armstrong, Wright. Divinity: Forwards, Weir, Appleby (5); centre, Morris (2); guards, Turnbull, Branion (3); sub, Costigan.

Jimmie McMullen, who is one of the most improved players on the big team. His playing is superb. He works in well with his more experienced mates on the forward line and passes unobtrusively.

There should be plenty of action at the Bloor Street Varsity Arena to-night.

JENNINGS CUP HOCKEY

The draw for the Jennings Cup play-offs has been made and the games will be played in the Varsity Arena on Monday, Wednesday and Friday of next week with the finals on the following Monday.

Game 2—Wednesday, Feb. 29: Dents v. winner Pharmacy-St. Mike's.
Game 3—Friday, March 2: Jr. U.C. v. winner Game 1.

Final—Monday, March 5: Winner Game 2 v. Winner Game 3.

Junior Hockey

There will be a Varsity Junior hockey practice to-day, 3-4.

O.A.C. BASKETEERS PLAY VARSITY

Intercollegiate Championship to be Decided To-night—Varsity Determined

O.A.C. KEYED UP

Varsity's second string basketballers are out to clinch the Intermediate Intercollegiate championship to-night when they stack up against the fast going O.A.C. aggregation. The Intermediates have won their first four starts, including a nice win from the Guelph boys on their home floor. However, Vic. Thomas and his men are taking no chances and are practising hard and faithfully to make sure of the title. Both Burns and Putnam will be in the line-up after having nearly passed to the Intercollegiate squad. These two boys starred in Guelph and are expected to repeat this time. Dunn, of rugby renown, and Stevenson complete the forward line-up. On the defence Wood and Buebe will again team up to form a strong opposition for the Guelphites.

These O.A.C. basketballers are no mean opponents and can be depended upon to put up the strongest possible arguments. Hewer, high scorer for Guelph in the last game, and Currie, who also starred, along with Potter, brother of last year's Varsity star, will form a strong offensive combination. Their defence is one of the best and will be at their best against the Varsity forwards. The team as a whole are keyed up to put over a win Varsity to-night.

Varsity, on the other hand, are just as determined to win. But they are not too over-confident and are practising hard under the direction of Coach McCutcheon.

It should be a wonderful game.

Wycliffe Loses to Union in Final Game of Group

The final game of the group, which was played Wednesday at 4 p.m., resulted in a 6-2 win for Union. The game was hard fought, but clean throughout, the only penalty going to Armstrong in the last stanza. Union had a decided edge in all three periods, at times displaying some smart combination and individual efforts. However, Wycliffe refused to give up and were dangerous at all times. Shields led the Union goalgetters with three tallies to his credit, while Lockhart and Berry also bulged the twine. Withers and Perkins were the shining lights for the Anglicans, while every member of the Union outfit excelled himself both offensively and defensively. The teams:—

Wycliffe: Barlow, Draper, Morris, Perkins, Withers, Sage; sub, Cameron. Union: Cox, Turnbull, Lockhart, Shields, Wood, Berry; subs, Armstrong, Little.

Referee: Bruce MacDonald.

Team in Perfect Condition: Manager and Captain Are Veterans

Another Intercollegiate team goes forth in quest of a championship, when the gymnasts embark for Montreal at noon to-day. Captain Jack Williamson has his men well trained and ready for the contest, and if they don't win they will certainly make the McGill team work for a victory. The men leaving to-day are Jack Williamson (Captain), Don Gunn, Doug Adams, Doug Campbell, Eliot Heslop and Wilf Heslop. They are a clever squad of gymnasts and should retain possession of the Caron Cup which Varsity won last year.

Williamson and Gunn are the veterans of the team, having been on two previous Intercollegiate championship teams. Wilf, Heslop and Campbell were on the team last year. The presence of so many of last year's men has a steadying effect on the newcomers which is very helpful.

The McGill team is very strong this year, according to advance reports. Willie Consiglio, who was an absentee last year, is back with the team. He is considered one of the best gymnasts in the Intercollegiate Union, although Williamson and Gunn of the Varsity team are expected to give him real opposition for the individual honours. Jack Williamson has been showing rare form in practice lately, and the Varsity men are counting on him to win the individual championship for Varsity.

Faculty of Music Is Distinct From Conservatory

The registration has always been small; this year there is a total of 27, as compared with 46 for the preceding session.

The administration of both the Faculty and the Conservatory of Music has always been in capable hands. On the death in 1926 of Dr. A. S. Vogt, the highly esteemed founder and conductor of the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir, Dr. Ernest MacMillan, B.A., Mus.Doc., the eminent composer, conductor and organist, became Principal of the Conservatory and Dean of the Faculty some ten months later, with Dr. Healey Willan, the authority on church music, the Vice-Principal of the former organization, and under their expert guidance the traditional standards of one of the finest musical schools in the British Empire are being consistently maintained. The Faculty of the Conservatory itself is one of strength and distinction, and gives instruction in many departments, including the pianoforte, singing, the violin and other stringed instruments, composition, musical theory, operatic and instrumental ensemble, and many others.

"I should like to see a closer co-operation between the Faculty of Arts and the Faculty of Music," said Dr. MacMillan, in response to a query by "The Varsity." "Music as an optional subject in Arts is the policy of most other universities. Music is not entirely a matter of performance, but is as well a cultural subject."

Trinity Defeats Wycliffe in Interfaculty Baseball

Trinity baseball team beat Wycliffe 15-7 in a fast played game last night. Starting off by batting a round and scoring six runs in the first innings, the Trinity boys were never headed, though Wycliffe scored five runs in the third stanza when Brownlie weakened in the Trinity box. Armstrong, second baseman for the winners, was perhaps the most effective man in the game.

UNDERGRADS ENJOY CAFETERIA MEALS OF CIVIL SERVICE

Some Students Find Meals Cheaper Than Around University

MEDS. AND S.P.S. CHIEFLY

No Attempt Made to Prevent Practice Says Manager

Items in the daily press have brought to light reports concerning the patronizing of the Civil Service cafeteria by undergraduates of the University. At first, it is claimed, Social Service students frequented the place, but later, encouraged chiefly by alleged lower prices, apparently, increasing numbers of other students, chiefly those in first and second year Meds and S.P.S., began to go there also. Consequently the matter was brought to the city council, but evidently any interest or action on the part of that body was without any known provocation. It was learned from Mr. Beardsall, President of the Civil Service Association, that no intimation had been received by him complaining of the attendance at the Civil Service cafeteria of undergraduates of the University, nor has any suggestion been made that they or any other section of the public should be debarred from its privileges. Mr. Beardsall had, therefore, no comment to make on the rumours circulated through the press.

It was also stated in the press that co-eds had been seen smoking in the cafeteria. It was learned by "The Varsity" that women had been seen smoking occasionally in the cafeteria but were allowed to do so unmolested. No restrictions were placed upon smoking on the part of either men or women. The officials, however, cannot easily, and in fact do not try to, distinguish between students and others, "The Varsity" was told.

AT-HOME FOR SCHOOL SUCCESS AS USUAL

Guests From Sister Colleges Have Dinner with Committee

NOVEL NOVELTIES

On Friday evening, February 24th, "School" added another triumph to her long list of successful at-homes. At 7.30 p.m. representatives from sister societies of other colleges and members of the committee, together with their partners, gathered at dinner. The representatives were Mr. Eric Adams, McGill; Mr. J. R. Bain, Queen's; Cadet A. G. Pirie, R.M.C.; Mr. H. F. Partridge, O.A.C.; and Mr. W. McCullough, Western.

At 11 o'clock supper was served in the main dining room. After supper a representative from sunny Italy, with his wife, diminutive menagerie and music box, appeared on the scene. The parrot was pressed into service in the novelty dance. The winners of the lucky number dance were Mr. Gerald Connor and Miss Eleanor Haggart.

The patronesses were: Mrs. C. H. Mitchell, Mrs. C. H. C. Wright, Mrs. H. E. T. Haultain, Mrs. G. A. Guesé, Mrs. H. W. Price, Mrs. T. R. Loudon and Mrs. H. T. Hogg. The committee consisted of Mr. Adamson, chairman, and Messrs. Duncan, Smith, Rochester, Scriven, Davison, McVeigh and Lawson.

SHAKESPEARE IN FRENCH SUBJECT OF DR. FLETCHER

Speaker Has French Degree and Has Written Much on Subject

"Shakespeare on the French Stage" is the subject of a lecture to be given at Trinity College on Tuesday, Feb. 28th, by Professor F. T. H. Fletcher. The lecture is one of a series being given by the Staff of Trinity during the academic year on subjects of general interest. The subject of Dr. Fletcher's lecture is one not often dealt with and promises to be of great interest to the students of Shakespeare, bringing out the differences in the treatment of the great author's works in the French and English presentations of his plays.

Dr. Fletcher is well qualified to deal with the subject, having spent a good deal of time in France and written extensively on medieval French literature.

YOUNG MEN MADE BY LADY FRIENDS WHO MUST BE GOOD

Miss Garret is Horrified by "Charleston"—Dislikes Dancing

CARDS A TIME-WASTER

Declares "Mother India" is Not as Awful as the Reality

"If my presence as a young woman does not call out the best in the young men with whom I come in contact, then I should be deprived of my privileges," is the rule which Miss Garret, lately returned from foreign fields in China, has always given to guide her classes of girls. Miss Garret, on returning home by way of India and Africa, was horrified by the native war dances which she witnessed at Kimberley. "But I could scarcely believe it when I was informed by a hotel keeper there that in America they were doing the same dance in public places, under the name of 'Charleston.'" When asked by "The Varsity" if she objected to the more moderate form of dancing, she replied that she considered it responding to harmony a beautiful thing, as in skating. But in dancing, a young lady must permit her partner to take a liberty of position such as she would never otherwise allow.

Although Miss Garret disapproves strongly of the cumbersome train-skirt, she is not in favour of the present day length, which she considers entirely too short. "Young men are always what young women make them, and I doubt the effect that modern dress will have upon them. But the (Continued on page 3)

BLUE CAGE MEN WIN BADLY PLAYED GAME FROM M'GILL TEAM

In Final Home Game Varsity Wins But Displays Poor Form

GO EAST NEXT WEEK

Hopes for a Clean Sheet and Championship at End of Season

Varsity's final home game of the Senior Intercollegiate basketball schedule in Hart House on Friday evening resulted in the fourth consecutive victory for the Blue and White basketballers, and also in a clean sweep of the home games for this season. McGill's loss of this game on Friday now places Varsity with a stranglehold on first place, as the Blue team has yet to be defeated this season. Next week-end marks the close of the schedule, when Varsity makes their annual tour to Queen's and McGill. A win from either team clinches the championship lost last year to Western. However, the Tricolour have a strong quintet this year and can be counted upon to provide plenty of stiff opposition for McCutcheon's squad, while McGill as yet have been unable to chalk up a win, and therefore are expected to make a last desperate attempt next Saturday against the leaders.

Right at the commencement of the game Varsity assumed a commanding lead, when Mitchell counted two, Newman two fouls, and Capt. Currie made it eight by two beautiful long shots. At this juncture Coach Van Wagner's Redmen began to find their feet and Faulkner opened the scoring with (Continued on page 3)

SOPHS AND SENIORS MEET MID CHINESE ATMOSPHERE

Victoria Sophomores Entertain Seniors to Chinese Dinner at Wymilwood

A Chinese dinner was given Thursday night at Wymilwood by the women of 310 Victoria for the Senior women. The oriental effect was carried out realistically in every detail. All the guests and hostesses wore Chinese costumes, ranging from the humble coolie coat to the heavily embroidered mandarin coat.

The eastern custom of eating seated on the floor was carefully adhered to and chop sticks were used by all. As the seniors filed in, a Chinese march was played, and during dinner the orchestra played and sang a number of oriental pieces. Silent Chinese maids glided in and out bearing plates of rice and other Chinese dishes. The dinner ended with cherry blossom tea which had been brewed by a real Chinese chef.

Representatives should be appointed at an early date and supplied with credentials on the forms provided for the purpose. No substitution or proxies will be allowed.

A student to be elected to the Directorate must at the time of his nomination be in the second or higher year of his course at the University but not in the final year. The nomination must be made in writing on the form provided for the purpose, signed by two male undergraduate members of the Athletic Association in good standing, and filed with the Secretary of the Athletic Association at least five days prior to the election (i.e. not later than Wednesday, 7th March). Premier Ferguson may present to the legislature at this session his proposal to carry on first year university work in high schools. Certain high school centres are also said to have made favourable suggestions in connection with the plan.

LARGE COLLECTION OF EMPIRE STONES PLACED IN MUSEUM

Specimens From Many Parts of Empire Given by Imperial Institute

INDIA AND AUSTRALIA

Supplies of Australian Asbestos Soon to be Developed Commercially

New and valuable specimens of ore and gem stones from various parts of the Empire, presented to the Royal Ontario Museum by the Imperial Institute of London, are in the geological section, in the basement.

Dr. E. S. Moore, director of this section, explained that the Imperial Institute's object is to bring to attention raw materials of economic importance found in the Empire.

The collection recently presented includes specimens from Africa, Australia, India and Newfoundland. From Ceylon come precious stones. Topazes in the form of pebbles, worn smooth by water, if cut and polished, would be handsome yellow gems. Other small stones, of a whitish colour, would show the soft iridescent gleam of the moonstone.

Black corundum is also shown, next to diamonds in hardness. Sapphires are a form of blue corundum, a much rarer form of the mineral. There are pink uncut garnets, pieces of zircon, a brownish red stone, and black tourmaline.

From the Punjab, in India, comes sodium carbonate. Nigeria is represented by tin ore, and the Ashanti country by aluminium ore.

Asbestos from Australia is among the exhibits. This curious, feathery grey substance, found in veins and fissures in the solid rock, was caused by boiling water being forced into the soil in some great convulsion of nature, in a far-off glacial age. At present Quebec Province supplies 80 per cent. of the world's asbestos. The Australian asbestos has not yet been developed commercially.

WARDEN EXPLAINS HOUSE COMMITTEE

To Supervise Whole House—Other Committees Do Special Work

BOARD OF STEWARDS

At this time of the year, when Hart House is in a state of pre-election furor, much discussion is taking place regarding the various activities of the House. One much asked question which has reached "The Varsity" is: "What is the function of the House Committee?"

In an interview with Mr. J. B. Bickersteth, Warden of Hart House, "The Varsity" learned that the "House Committee" is responsible to the Board of Stewards for the following duties:—

(1) To promote the social activities of the House.
(2) To undertake the regular inspection of the House as regards repairs, alterations and equipment.
(3) To formulate and enforce general rules of procedure.

The duties of the committee are of a general nature, while particular sections of the building are looked after by particular committees.

All Hart House committees are responsible to the Board of Stewards, upon which body they are also represented.

WHEN THE STUDENT TOUR TAKES TO THE AIR

Just as the sailing vessel was displaced by the steamboat as a means of ocean travel, the latter, so it would appear, is to-day on the verge of being displaced by more rapid transportation. A recent official despatch from Washington assures us of the fact that a regular transatlantic mail and passenger service by dirigible airships will be instituted before the end of May, and that the service will have the co-operation of the British and United States Governments, although the latter will assume no active responsibility.

"Big business" has cried for more rapid communication between this continent and Europe, and the wireless, radio, cable and telephone have been pressed into service more and more during the last few years. Steamboats have been speeded up and schedules continually revamped and revised with the one objective of faster transportation in view. The dirigible service now in preparation will, it is claimed, possess all the features of comfort of the liner and yet make the journey in one-third to one-quarter the time that it could best previously be made by water.

But one of these liners of the air is now under construction in England. It is designed to carry one hundred passengers and ten tons of mail and is to inaugurate the new air service on a tentative schedule that will consume forty-eight hours on its westward voyages and thirty-eight hours on the eastward run. If the service proves as expected, work will be commenced upon several new craft almost immediately. And while all of this may not appeal to us so very much right now, might it not be wise to prepare for that time when, on behalf of a younger generation, we will be asked to subscribe to student tours that cover not only eastern Europe, as now, but also Asia, Africa, Australia and where not, as the speed of the air makes possible and custom makes desirable.

TRAVEL AND EDUCATION COMBINED

To the average student the idea of studying abroad seems an even too wonderful to be contemplated except in a far-distant future after much money has been amassed with the aid of the awe-inspiring B.A. After college days have gone forever and there is no further loophole of escape from earning one's own living, there will be the bright spot of a post graduate course to which one can look forward. But now, by a new regulation coming into force this year, it would seem that an effort is being made to make possible for the undergraduate the advantages of study abroad.

The student in Modern Languages can obtain his third year standing by agreeing to spend eight months in serious study at universities in those countries whose languages he has been studying. He is granted dispensation from all lectures and examinations here and can enter fourth year on his return. The benefits arising from such a course are obvious. For the student of French or German, a period of time spent actually living in those countries is indispensable if he is to have an adequate understanding of the life and customs of the people. He must live with them and be one of them if he is to appreciate their point of view as expressed in their mode of life and their literature. No one can hope to master a language to the extent of speaking it naturally and fluently if he uses it for a mere few minutes a day in a lecture hour and speaks English the rest of the time.

The idea is as yet so new that few have realized what a magnificent opportunity is offered. Travel is generally conceded to be an education in itself but only as the privilege of the happy possessors of independent fortunes. But by means of this regulation education and travel can be combined. Perhaps never again could the student, and especially the one who comes from outside the city, make the trip so economically, for he is merely putting the money which is necessarily spent on third year in University of Toronto, to obtaining third year abroad with the additional value of study in some of the oldest, most famous universities in the world. These universities are often situated in the smaller towns where one can live much more cheaply than in Canada, so that it is quite possible to save the passage money—about $200—by the difference in living expenses. Once satisfied as to the great advantages for one's work to be obtained from such a step, and with the practical considerations of expense settled satisfactorily, one feels free to enjoy the romance of planning to see and actually live in such places as Heidelberg, Vienna, Paris.

"AE"

On Friday evening at the College of Education, George William Russell, AE, one of the greatest living poets, delivered his lecture upon "Figures in the Irish Literary Movement." It is not too much to say that his audience was more than delighted, but inspired by the wisdom, genius, understanding and effortless eloquence of AE. For over two hours he spoke, and in that all-too-short space of time he brought to his audience the full meaning of the Irish Literary Movement, and of its illustrious members, of whom he himself is second only in importance to W. B. Yeats. One feels, however, that if Mr. Yeats is perhaps the greater poet, AE is the great statesman, and most eminent citizen of the Irish Free State.

In appearance, AE is not unlike one of the prophets of old, a splendid patriarchal figure of heroic proportion, whose voice is sublime in its power of music and whose words are rich in deep wisdom and infinite beauty. After hearing him, it is not difficult to realize why he is trusted implicitly by the most conservative men in Downing Street and the most idealistic extremists of Ireland. His very presence inspires trust and a certainty that in so gentle and noble a heart no elements are so great as his deep understanding and all-embracing love of humanity.

Mr. Russell was introduced by Dean De Lury, and he began his address simply with a description of conditions existent in Ireland during his boyhood, a time when his country seemed to have lost its ancient culture and the memory of its glorious past. For the Irish the spiritual significance of emotion had been destroyed, and there was discontent and nonsense in the novels of the time, when Lover and Lever created the idiotic ancestor of the stage Irishman. "We were bowed down with forgetfulness of glory in ancient deeds, and the Gaelic mentality so rich in fanciful beauty was then at the nadir of its power."

About 1885 the river of nationalism rose from its narrow springs, scholars revived the culture and mythology of our country, and the greatest of these, the genius Standish O'Grady, became the spiritual father of the movement upon publication of his inspiring "Barbaric History of Ireland." In his heroic sagas of the past O'Grady evoked the mythological heroes and Olympians of old time, and awakened the Irish youth to a full realization of the nobility and beauty of the Ireland of the kings. In his glorious voice AE spoke passages of O'Grady's "Barbaric History," whose myths proved in the stirring eighties that they had not yet lost their power to quicken and purify the spirit, for there arose in Ireland an intensity like that of the Romantic Movement; nationalism was preached in the streets by young enthusiasts, youth brooded on ancient heroes, and Standish O'Grady dreamed of an immense army recruited from the youth of a poor, sagacious and warlike people.

"W. B. Yeats, as a youth, was a dark-haired, olive-skinned and romantic seraph, enchanted by legends, who practised magic, a Shelley who endeavoured to raise the gods and not the devil, a gay dreamer of fantasy who tried to light every cigarette with the fire of the stars." AE read one of Yeats' early lyrics, a poem of indescribable loveliness.

He spoke next of Philip Francis Little, an idealist in love with action, (Continued on page 4)

THE CHAMPUS ECLECTIC PRIMER LESSON VI

Is this a night watchman? No, it is not a night watchman; it is a Correspondent. Why is he so pale? He has been sitting up nights to get the goods on the Champus Cat. He looks alarmed. He is alarmed; he has been haunted by a Familiarity. Children, you must never try to get anything on the Champus Cat. A Familiarity might haunt you, and you would get to look like the Correspondent. Would that not be dreadful? Dec.

C-C

Dear Champus: I object to being called an originator of any Canadian movement.

I. Because it is well known that Champus itself holds that title. II. Because Pauline Johnson is a rather famous runner-up for the prize—and who would fight with a lady? I think you have missed an opportunity in neglecting to put as an example to all would-be poets the following lines from "Flint and Feather."

I quote: "The Dutch may have their Holland, the Spaniard have his Spain, The Yankee to the south of us must south of us remain; For not a man dare lift his hand against the men who brag That they were born in Canada beneath the British flag." Doesn't that stir your blood? Has Champus ever printed so rousing, so patriotic an Ode?

ENDORSES THEATRE COMMITTEE BUT AGAINST FRANTIC ELECTIONEERING Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

One of the greatest evils of University elections is the frantic electioneering which in University College at least has made them almost a farce. The condition at Hart House is much better, but could it not be improved at the approaching election, if all distribution of blotters, pencils, and so forth was prohibited within the House on voting day? Posters are almost necessary, but the other things give the whole system a rather cheap appearance.

I would like also heartily to commend your editorial suggestion of some days ago, regarding the extension of the committee system to include the Theatre, which at the present time seems hardly to justify its existence as an integral part of Hart House. The idea merits more notice by the students.

Yours sincerely,

C.R.T.

PRESTON vs VARSITY TO-NIGHT IN LAST OF O.H.A. SCHEDULE

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Neither of the basketball games on Friday was anything to write home about. Both teams have been playing real basketball all season, so an off night was to be expected. Friday was that night. At that the Seniors were lucky to defeat McGill, while the Intermediates deserved to go down before O.A.C.

We thought a win against McGill would give the title to Torontol, but it seems as though at least one more win must be registered in order to come through. Queen's still have an outside chance, but surely "Mac's" squad will at least break even on their trip east this week-end.

A winning team has the w.k. tendency to become too confident, but still all winning teams go into a slump. Here is hoping that the Varsity slump is over. A season without a loss would be something worth working for, and we have a strong suspicion that Captain Currie has some such ambitions.

In the Intermediate series a play-off will be necessary between Varsity and O.A.C. now, and if they show what they really can show, the title will rest in the Queen City this year.

The game against Marlboros was just an exhibition, but it firmly established the Blues in first position, while Preston and Kitchener are still fighting for second place. Coach Pearson says let them fight, but in the meantime the locals are not taking any of the w.k. chances (apologies to C.C.).

To-night they meet the Riversides, and to date they have split even on games and are even on goals scored. That will mean a real battle, and if anybody wants to see a good game they should step over to the Arena to-night.

Varsity has been playing too much individual hockey of late, and from now on their combination work will have to take a more prominent place. And the Pearsonites know how to combine too. Just watch that Harley, McMullen and Richards combination or the Kirkpatrick-Whitehead rushes. They can rush, and HOW.

Rumours have it that the Intermediate and Junior hockey squads have been out to practice again after a lay off, so that means some exhibition games in the offing. The Juniors were eliminated early in the season, while the Intermediates should still be in the race.

To-day marks the semi-finals of the Jennings Cup series. From now on there will be games almost daily, and college spirit will forge to the front. Late as the season is, interest has not lagged in this series, and all group winners will be on their mettle to get the treasured trophy.

We are not so sure about basketball and baseball, but the former should provide excitement toward the end of this week, while the latter series is well advanced.

It won't be long now until the lacrosse boys will start oiling up their sticks and shaking the moth balls out of their pads. Too bad there isn't time for a series in this our national game.

SENIOR SEXTET SET ON WINNING TO-DAY

Last Scheduled Game of Season to be Played with Preston

MAY USE SUBS

To-night in the Bloor Street Arena the Varsity Senior O.H.A. team plays their last scheduled game of the season when they entertain their closest rivals, the Preston Riversides. In the two times these teams have met each has come out with a win, Varsity winning in Preston and the Riversides winning here, each win being a one goal margin.

Therefore to-night's battle is bound to be close. The team has been considerably strengthened since these two last met, for now "Red" Whitehead is on the line-up, and his shot is fully as deadly as any that "Gunner" Arnott has to offer. Besides that the diminutive Legon from Queen's has made wonderful progress in the last few games, and has been doing great relief work. "Bill" Stewart is another sub who is on the ice almost as much as the regulars are, and his presence does not weaken the team one iota.

It may happen that Coach Pearson will take the opportunity that this game offers to play a few subs and thereby qualify them for work later on in the season.

VICTORY BY 16-12 FOR BLUE LADIES

Varsity Women's Basketball Have Good Chance in Coming Meet

UNIFORMITY OF RULES

Varsity women's Intercollegiate basketball team was defeated to the tune of 16-12 in their second game with Margaret Eaton, played on the Central Y.M. floor Saturday. The game was one of the Senior series in the Toronto Women's Basketball Association, in which M.E.S., Varsity Grads and Varsity compete. M.E.S. leads the league with three wins and no losses. Varsity stands second, and the Grads, although without a win, have played very well in their first season.

Last week Margaret Eaton defeated Western 53-22 and previously O.A.C. 39-10. The Varsity score, therefore, augurs well for the coming Intercollegiate meet, especially since the team is improving from day to day. The Toronto Women's Basketball Association includes the high school, the private school and the church leagues, as well as the senior leagues. It has adopted Intercollegiate rules, so that for the last two years inter-play has been possible between the various teams. Previous to that date fans will remember the weird and wonderful variety in women's playing rules which necessitated all sorts of bewildering compromise for any sort of playdown.

Rules are drawn up by the Intercollegiate League, which meets once a year at the time of the Intercollegiate meet. One graduate and two undergrads from each university constitute the representation on the leagues. Miss A. E. M. Parkes, Marion Forward and Betty MacDonald are Toronto's representatives this year.

INTERMEDIATE LOSS CREATES GROUP TIE

Blue and White Team Loses to O.A.C. After Tying Score

CURREY SCORES 21

In the first game of the double-header staged on Friday, Mac McCutcheon's Intermediate team went down to defeat before O.A.C. by the score of 39 to 25. This game resulted in a tie between these two teams for the group leadership, as each team has lost but one game. The schedule is not completed yet, as Varsity has another game with Osgoode, but in all probability there will be a play-off series arranged between Varsity and O.A.C. for the title.

Varsity had a little more of the play on Friday night than the score might indicate, as it was not until the last few minutes that the men from Guelph ran up their long lead. In the first half the score saw-sawed backwards and forwards, being at one time tied at 12 all. The Aggies ran in two baskets before half time to make the score 16 to 12 in their favour as the first game was fired.

To start the second half, Varsity immediately tied the score at 16-16, and then went in the lead, only to have the Guelphites tie it up again a moment later. Once more Varsity assumed the lead, but were unable to hold it, and the visitors counted five baskets in quick succession to win by 39 to 25.

Currey at centre for O.A.C. played a wonderful game, in all accounting for twenty-one of his team's thirty-nine points.

The line-ups:
O.A.C.: Potter (2), Hewer (9), forwards; Currey (21), centre; Eckert (2), G. Hull, defence; H. Hull (5), Griffiths, subs.

Varsity: Burns (4), Stevenson, forwards; Putnam (12), centre; Woods (4), Beule, defence; Dunn, Johnston (5), Shields, subs.

BLUES BEAT MARLBOROS IN EXHIBITION TILT

Marlboros Borrow Varsity Men to Round Out Team

HAVE CINCHED TITLE

The Varsity Seniors copped the first place in their O.H.A. group last Friday night when the scrappy Marlboro team defaulted to the Blue and White hopefuls. The Blues, ready for a stern battle with the Harry Watson squad, were raring to go, and an exhibition game was played in which the Mike Pearson squad won by 8 goals, the score being 11 to 3.

The Blues' speed was too much for the "Marbles," who succumbed to the smart passing game of the winners. The Senior sextet that is leading the group, although they took things easy, were able to run up a healthy lead.

The Marlboros used Mac King of the Varsity outfit to fill in on their attack, and with the addition of Harry Watson were able to round out a team to oppose the Pearsonites.

Varsity will have to play better hockey. It is hardly fair to judge them on their recent showing. Against stronger opposition they will likely show up better. Richards was the scoring ace.

For the Dukes all tried hard. Garvie and Foster played the defence and did their best. Montgomery, a junior, started at centre. McPherson and "Scotty" Bruce were the other forwards. It was a big task, but all stuck to it.

Marlboros: Goal, Cummings; defence, Foster and Garvie; centre, Montgomery; wings, McPherson and Bruce; subs, Watson and King.

Varsity: Goal, Snyder; defence, Kirkpatrick and Whitehead; centre, McMullen; wings, Harley and Richards; subs, Stewart and Legon.

Referee: Herb Mathews.

YOUNG MEN MADE BY LADY COMPANIONS

world is expecting much of the college girl, who cannot help but create a good influence through a saner and more intelligent outlook on life."

Miss Garret does not believe that men really admire smoking, and considers that a girl should not use for an excuse the fact that everybody else is doing so. She has no objection to cards except as a time waster, and believes that when one can watch a sunset or take a brisk walk, one should feel discontented with an afternoon spent over a card table.

"The Varsity" asked Miss Garret her opinion on Kathleen Mayo's much discussed book, "Mother India." She stated that during her first stay in India she had considered Hinduism one of the most beautiful forms of heathen worship she had ever seen. But upon more intimate acquaintance with the country she is convinced that "Mother India" does not paint the country nearly as black as the reality.

BLUE CAGE MEN WIN BADLY PLAYED GAME

a long shot. Weldon and Silverman each counted before Faber put a stop to the McGill rally. Faulkner again scored before half time to make the mid-way count 10 to 7 for Varsity.

To open the second period McGill immediately jumped into a 13 to 10 lead when Blumenstein, Faulkner and Grossman each counted for two points. Varsity, however, came right back strong and took the lead for the rest of the game. McGill, however, held right on and crept up to within one point, but the Varsity defence proved too strong for them, while the forward line accounted for five more points to win the game.

McGill: Faulkner (7), Grossman (3), forwards; Weldon (4), centre; Young, Silverman (1), defence; Blumenstein (2), Wykes, Maclean, subs.

Varsity: Mitchell (7), Faber (6), forwards; Newman (6), centre; Sakler, Currie (4), defence; Hurwitz, Johnston, Burns, Putnam, subs.

Union Winners from Knox in Group C Play-offs

When Knox were disqualified from competing in the play-offs, Union was drawn to play Wycliffe for the championship of Group C. The game was played last Friday in the Varsity Arena. From the initial bell both teams got down to business, and during the next sixty minutes the puck travelled up and down the ice, but failed even once to find a resting place in either net. The failure of either team to score necessitated another game which was played Saturday on the Vic. cushion.

For a while it looked as though the game would be a repetition of Friday's struggle, and the first period ended without either team scoring. However, in the second frame Union finally demonstrated that they were supreme.

Wycliffe: Barlow, Perkins, Withers, Morris, Draper, Sage, Cameron, Harding.

Union: Cox, Lockhart, Armstrong, Wood, Pointon, Shields, Berry, Little, Fennel, Turnbull.

Referee: Bob Crosby.

Dell and Corbett Star When Sr. U.C. Beats O.A.C.

Playing a fast game on Friday afternoon, Sr. U.C. easily defeated O.A.C. by a 36-19 score. Bert Dell with 18 and Bill Corbett with 16 points starred for the winners, while Scholfield and Kopman on the defence played a very fine game. The game puts Sr. U.C. at the head of their group, but O.A.C. still have one game to play, which if they win will tie them for first place.

Sr. U.C.: Dell (18), r.f.; Corbett (16), l.f.; Maconachie, c.; Scholfield, r.g.; Kopman (2), l.g.; Henderson, Wishart, subs.

O.A.C.: McCleod (2), r.f.; Aitkins, l.f.; Secord (7), c.; Slater, r.g.; Finbow, l.g.; Harrison (5), Boyce (4), Chepiwick.

ENTRY NO. 769 FOR THE CHAMPUS CAT MEMORIAL PRIZE

Dick Dare, the man from Timbuctoo,
By the nine Gods he swore,
That when he went to Hart House
Hall
He'd suffer wrong no more.

So in he strode with head held high,
And hands in pockets too,
And with a shout, a monstrous cry,
Demands a plate of stew.

The waitresses, with quaking hearts,
To every corner flew,
And here and there each waiter darts,
To bring a plate of stew.

"Richard," quoth the waiters all,
"As Thou sayest, let it be."
And straight away, on a silver tray,
Is brought a stew for three.

And thus our famous Richard Dare
Comes to his own at last,
And now the days when he ate poor fare
Are gone, forever past.

who suggested that he and Russell live in an overturned railway-car as "The Wonderers." "Little," said AE, "was a man of great genius, a queer, eloquent and imaginative truth-teller, a late Elizabethan whose language had a vague vast element perhaps beyond our modern comprehension."

James Joyce began as a romantic idealist who censured AE and Yeats as fogies, an arrogant handsome youth who spoke with great precision and wrote lyrics that almost equalled Yeats. Now Joyce is famous as the author of "Ulysses," where he turned inward upon the terrible things of the spirit and wrote the volume that is the dreadful boundary of naturalism, "a book that I regard with terror and respect, a Purgatorio from which he may rise some day to his Paradise." Mr. Russell mentioned George

Occupational Therapy Students Entertained

The Ontario Occupational Therapy Society entertained the Occupational Therapy students of the University at a bridge on Friday evening. Preceding the bridge, an interesting meeting was held by the Society. All expressed appreciation of the evening, as enabling the students to come into contact with the members of the Society.

Moore, the great prose stylist and art critic, a kindly, impertinent and debonair figure whose words were meticulously cast into artistic form; he read several poems of Alice Milligan, mentioned Lord Dunsany, a rare and exotic inventor of myths who regarded the universe as a mere exercise of his own imagination. He spoke of Bernard Shaw as a man of deep sympathetic sensitivity, one of the most angelic figures incarnated upon this planet.

AE told with feeling tenderness of the poets of Irish Revolutionary Brotherhood, Thomas McDonagh and Padraic Pearse, who were executed in 1916, and he read a poem which he had written at their passing. He concluded his address with mention of the Abbey Theatre, Dr. Douglas Hyde and the Irish dramatists, Synge O'Casey and Colum.

After the splendid ovation of the audience, Dean De Lury suggested that AE speak some of his own poems, and the poet concluded an evening of memorable beauty with two glorious pieces of imperishable verse, "The Gates of the Mountain," and "The City: a transfiguration of Dublin by night." N.A.B.

HART HOUSE DEPENDS FOR UPKEEP ON FEES AND DEPARTMENTS

Financial Position Explained by Warden in Interesting
Statement

FEES TO BE RAISED

Original Amount Offered by Board of Governors
Still Intact

There seems to be a general lack of knowledge as to the actual financial position of Hart House. It has been much a matter of speculation as to whether or not the House runs into a surplus or deficit each year, and as to whether or not it is the recipient of any endowment from the Massey Foundation.

In view of the fact that Hart House fees are to be raised to $12 next year, "The Varsity" obtained an interview with Mr. J. B. Bickersteth, the Warden, who very kindly gave out the following statement:

"It is well known that Hart House was presented to the University by the Massey Foundation. After having been used for military purposes throughout the war the House, fully equipped and ready for occupation, was opened on 11th November, 1919. But it is not always realized that Hart House has no endowment whatsoever. It is entirely dependent for its upkeep on the fees received from its members, on the revenue accruing from various departments in the House itself and on certain financial assistance from the Board of Governors of the University.

"To take these three sources of revenue in order: During the year ending on 30th June, 1927, the fees from undergraduate, graduate and faculty members amounted to approximately $29,000. The departments in Hart House from which revenue is drawn are the Billiard Room, the Barber Shop, the Guest Rooms and the Tuck Shop combined with the Great Hall.

"SPEED" PRIME REQUISITE ACCORDING TO RUTLEDGE

A Magazine Must Reach Into Lives of Readers to be Popular

"Be interesting, and be interesting damn quick!" was the advice of a one-time editor of the "Police Gazette" to journalists, quoted by Joseph L. Rutledge of the "Canadian Magazine" in his lecture yesterday as part of the fifth annual course in journalism. Mr. Rutledge deprecated the idea that there was any royal road to success in writing for magazines. He claimed that not one of the writers to-day famous learned by any other method than slow experience up through the ranks, hardened by setbacks and rejection slips. A college would have trouble in teaching people to write short stories.

Manuscripts, remarked the speaker, should always be sent in flat; never rolled or folded. No editor is going to fight with a manuscript for the privilege of reading it. Most manuscripts are incredibly dull, continued Mr. Rutledge, and if well plotted, are abominably written—if well written, not plotted.

The purpose of a magazine of a popular type is to reach into the lives of their readers; to deal with things that might happen, in their imagination, to themselves.

The next lecture in this course will be of special interest to those interested in Finance. The speaker on Wednesday will be W. J. Jeffers, Financial Editor of The Globe.

Hart House Debate

"That this House views with apprehensions the growing naval expenditures of the United States" is the motion that will be moved by Mr. W. L. Smith at the Hart House debate to-morrow evening. Mr. H. Hart and Mr. F. R. Hervey from Harvard University will be present as honorary visitors. The former will speak on the "paper" and the latter from the floor.

DEEP MYSTERY SHROUDS INJURY TO ATTENDANT

Alexander Bolan is Still Unconscious and in Critical Condition

FOUL PLAY SUGGESTED

Carried a Large Sum of Money
Which Was Missing When He Was Found

Mystery surrounds the injury last Thursday night or Friday morning of Alexander Bolan, "tote-box" attendant in Hart House locker room.

Mr. Bolan left Hart House about 6.30 Thursday evening, planning to attend a function of the Queen's Own Rifles. He walked down University Avenue with another Hart House employee, and they parted at Queen Street. He did not return home or send any message that night.

Friday noon an unknown person telephoned Mrs. Bolan to tell her to prepare a bed for her husband, who was being brought home ill from hemorrhage.

He was taken home unconscious by a Bathurst Street physician, who had been called to attend him at a house on Clinton Street. Later the family physician was called in, and ordered the patient sent to the Western Hospital on Sunday. Monday afternoon he was still unconscious.

The cause of Mr. Bolan's injury and disappearance is not known. His health was greatly impaired during the war by the hardships of a German prison camp. He was operated on two years ago for ulcer of the stomach, and his present illness may be due to a recurrence of that trouble.

The theory of foul play is encouraged by the report that he was carrying about $75 on his person, which was missing when he was taken home. Contrary to reports in city dailies, the police have not been called to investigate the case.

DILIGENCE REDOUBLED WITH ADVENT OF LENT

Increasing Number of Books Are Borrowed from the Library Each Day

Perhaps the coming of Lent or the announcement that applications for examinations must be made right away has produced a studious turn of mind among the students. Anyway, the number of students using the University Library has increased greatly within the last few days. According to statistics prepared by the officials at the library the number of books issued is about equal to that during the period immediately preceding Christmas.

The various reading rooms are now exceedingly busy, and apparently the annual spring rush is on. This will annual spring rush is on. This will reach its height during the months of March and April. At present it is estimated that well over a thousand books are loaned and returned each day, including week books, night books and "books for reading room only."

FACULTY MOTTOES IMPRESSIVE TEXTS

Sentiment Expressed in Keeping with Tradition of College

TWO WITHOUT MOTTOES

Varying from exhortations to industry to religious texts the mottoes of the faculties of the University express sentiments in keeping with the purpose of the institution they represent.

University College is probably the best known motto except that of the University itself. In Latin it reads: "Parum clare lucem dare," and is translated, "To throw light on dark things."

The motto of Trinity College is really the name of the college translated, "Collegium sacro sanctae Trinitatis apud Torontoniensis"—the college sacred to the most Holy Trinity in Toronto.

St. Michael's College, on the other hand, comprehensively states the objects of education—"Doce me bonitatem et scientiam et disciplinam"—Teach me goodness, learning and discipline.

Following the same line of thought Victoria College has adopted as its motto, "Studea abeunt in mores"—Studies mould character.

Wycliffe and Knox have the same religious thought underlying their respective mottoes. "Verbum domini manet"—the word of God remaineth, is the Anglican motto, and "Verbum lucem dare"—the word giveth light, that of the Presbyterians.

A motto only originated last year is that of the faculty of Dentistry, "Integra sanitas," which is interpreted as meaning Complete or flawless health of the whole body, that is to say, perfection reached and attained by care with respect to all parts of the body.

The faculty of Medicine, despite its size and importance, is found in common with O.C.E. to have no faculty motto, and as far as could be ascertained Forestry is also without a motto.

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Friends or Faculty Slate?

In Hart House elections, do you consider it best to vote a faculty slate or for the men you know best?

F. Mallon, U.C. I: For the individual if he is best. The slate would start "clique" control, which must be avoided.

W. E. Carruthers, S.P.S. II: For a faculty slate, if you knew the men in your faculty were capable and did not know the merits of individuals of other faculties.

F. D. Richardson, U.C. IV: For the men you know best, of course. For in your opinion they are best qualified.

G. C. Clifton, S.P.S. II: For the best men always—regardless of faculty. A. C. Green, B. and M. II: Vote for the men you know best. For you generally know the right kind of men.

F. N. Yeigh, Eng. and Hist. I: For the men you know best, if they are best qualified for membership on committees.

H. D. Gracey, S.P.S. III: I'd vote for the men I knew and thought capable of holding office.

A. Wigmore, U.C. II: For the men you know best. You would know whether or not they are fitted for the position.

E. Stacey, S.P.S. II: For the faculty slate. Students would be qualified better to judge their own faculty.

C. J. A. Halliwell, S.P.S. II: For the men you know best. By your personal knowledge of a man you have a better chance to get the best committees together.

L. B. Leppard, U.C. II: I usually vote for those who put out the best blotters.

COLLEGE EDUCATION IS NOT ESSENTIAL TO HAPPINESS

OUR EMOTIONS DOMINATE

Hereditary Tendencies Are Subordinate to the Home Atmosphere

"Everyone does not have to go through college to be happy," stated Dr. Esther A. Richards, of Johns Hopkins University, speaking yesterday afternoon in Convocation Hall on "Mental Hygiene in the Home." "Some of the most discontented men I have known," she continued, "have carried around two or three degrees, and did not know what to do with them."

Dr. Richards stressed the fact that 25 per cent of school children had not the mental capacity to go beyond the fifth grade; 45 per cent could nicely pass their tests and continue, whereas 30 per cent could go faster than the rest. "Many a happy plodding child has grown up to be a nervous, miserable, discontented man, because his parents sacrificed him on the altar of vanity."

"How far does reasoning determine our grown-up conduct?" Dr. Richards asked. "We believe that we are governed by reason. Really, our emotions hold the balance of power and our reasoning is used to invent excuses for conduct." Some people, however, (Continued on page 4)

of Combat

Dr. Swaine, the Dominion Entomologist, was the speaker at the Forestry Club's open meeting Friday evening. His address dealt with insect enemies of the forest and how they are being combated in different parts of the Dominion. The speaker described in some detail the ravages of the spruce bud worm and the spruce bark worm, two pests which cause the country a great financial loss annually. The film entitled "Pines That Come Back," which was shown for the second time in Canada, proved very interesting, as did the slides with which Dr. Swaine illustrated his address.

PRIMORDIAL MAN EXISTED IN CHINA

Lecture on Prehistoric Man by Professor Barbour Very Instructive

GEOLOGY PROVES MUCH

That primordial man, as far back as the existence of pithecanthropus (the Java man) was also in existence in China, was the theme of Professor Barbour's lecture held yesterday evening in the Mining Building.

The evidences of geological changes extending over the long eras and epochs of time was shown by slides. China, while it underwent the same changes undergone by the other lands, escaped the great ice ages. In Mesozoic times, sands blowing over from Mongolia covered up the surface of the land. This soft layer formed a covering and was placed in such a manner that people living near the Gobi desert can dwell in hollow caves and overhead till their small farms. At present the Chinese are extending their dwellings out into the Gobi desert.

Only in more recent geological eras can we look for the presence of human beings. Remains of creatures bearing resemblance to "homo sapiens" are found in the red clays of the early Pleistocene era. Man had at this time the creature known as the sabre-toothed tiger, as a contemporary living creature.

SELF-GOVERNMENT HAS PROVED SUCCESS

Annesley Hall Was Among the Control

MANY GRADUATES PRESENT

"Annesley Hall was the second women's residence in Canada and one of the first on the continent to adopt student government," said Miss Addison, Dean of the Annesley Women's Residences, in speaking at the dinner given in honour of the 21st anniversary of student government at Annesley Hall last evening.

The methods of student government have been the only successful ones in Canada over this long period of years, and many other residences have consulted Miss Addison with regard to the student administration in effect in Annesley Hall. There are in all fourteen places now experimenting with student government because it has been so successful here. Miss Addison also mentioned the result of a questionnaire brought up at the World Conference of the Y.W.C.A., which was decidedly in favour of student government for the Y.W.C.A. organizations the world over.

The students administer everything except those matters pertaining to household, financial, or property affairs, and they not only regulate their own residence life, but they also stand behind their regulations.

PRESTON MEET KITCHENER

Green Shirts Have Decided Edge on Rivals to Play Off with Varsity

In a Senior O.H.A. fixture last night Varsity defeated Preston by the score of 4-3. Though the game meant little to Varsity's position in the playoffs, the loss of the game by Preston will be a decided handicap to them in their struggle with Kitchener for the right to enter the finals. Varsity seemed to have the edge all through the game except for the dying moments when Preston made a strong effort to tie the score.

In the first period the play was of the end-to-end variety, with many brilliant saves by both goalies. Time after time one team would break through for what looked like sure goals, only to lose the puck at the crucial moment. The only scoring of the period was by Devins of Varsity in a mix-up at the blue line after 15 minutes of play.

Harley opened the second period by scoring right after the face-off on a rebound from Richards' stick, and two minutes later he repeated the performance after robbing a Riverside player at centre ice. Preston tried harder then, and finally Arnott netted a well-earned goal when he broke away with only Legon to beat. Snyder had no chance to save. The Whitehead to Devins combination put Varsity still farther ahead just before the close of the period to give Devins his second goal.

Preston opened up the game as much as possible in the last stanza and succeeded in scoring two goals. Skelly counted one on a rebound from Circiura, and just before the final whistle Arnott slammed in another when Whitehead was serving a penalty.

Arnott and Ashley both starred for Preston, while Harley, Legon and Whitehead all turned in nice games for the Blue and White. The final score was Varsity 4, Preston 3.

Preston: Goal, Schmalz; defence, Skelly, Ashley; centre, Arnott; wings, Clark, Circiura; subs, Julke, Wade.

Varsity: Goal, Snyder; defence, Legon, Whitehead; centre, King; wings, Harley, Richards; subs, McMullen, Devins.

Referee: Easson, Stratford.

Greatly Cultivated Art Is Being Commercialized

Writing home to paw for more money, which has long been a cultivated art among college students, has recently been elevated to the dignity of a profession.

Three young ladies of Northwestern University, near Chicago, have opened a "Letter Shop" and plan to pay their way through college by writing letters for others.

The prices—10% of proceeds for letters which soak the paterfamilias for more cash; love letters, $10 cash in advance; routine letters, $2 a shot.

HOW MANY LABOUR-SAVING DEVICES CAN WE STAND?

When the spinning-jenny, the spinning frame and the power loom came into usage between 1765 and 1785 there arose an industrial upheaval in England because of the fact that many members of the labouring classes were thrown out of work, and it was difficult for these workers to foresee the manner of means that they might employ to obtain a livelihood now that machines had been invented that were able to do so well and so quickly those things which previously had been done by hand. Increased production rapidly absorbed these workers back into the ranks, and, from that time on, it has been accepted that whatever labour-saving devices might be invented would not necessarily displace the worker but would furnish him only with a means toward greater and more extensive accomplishment. As a consequence man has striven to invent those machines that would replace the labours of man, and the world recognizes the success with which he has met toward that end. Fortunately, perhaps, many of the inventions of later date have added to the requirements of labour,—the steamboat, the railroad, the airplane, while not a few such as electric power with its many new usages, have replaced one form of labour with another that produced more efficient benefits. The radio, the phonograph and the moving pictures have been the great inventions of the age so far as the production of amusement is concerned. Television, just around the corner, promises to add another wonder to the realm of science. And all of these have materially aided in increasing employment.

But it is the purely industrial inventions about which we particularly wonder now,—the creation of those machines rated to do the work of five men, or of ten. Can increased production still absorb the worker that is to be displaced? Or are not the markets now virtually flooded with every commodity. We are of the opinion that the actual saturation point is as yet far from reached, but it is not difficult to believe that man is approaching an age of machines that will, in many trades, place labour requirements at a minimum. Whether such would be a subject fit to worry about we cannot say, but we do believe that, if adjustment is normal, and if the situation when and if it does arise applies equally and similarly to all trades, the solution would be a splendid one, that is, shorter working hours for all with more time to devote to the pleasures and enjoyable things of life.

DEFINES POSITION RE CHAMPUS CAT

Trinity House,

Toronto,

Wed., Feb. 22, 1928.

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

In Wednesday's issue Champus Cat, through the medium of N.A.B.'s fluent pen, made certain remarks which deserve comment. I should like to impose upon your good nature to the extent of commenting upon them.

But perhaps first I should expend a few words to make my own position clear, as it seems to have been misunderstood. In my previous letter I merely deprecated the use of material, practically unchanged, without due acknowledgement to its author.

Surely that is not equivalent to shouting "Take him out!" I should, perhaps, have colored my charges by expressing my general appreciation of Champus Cat, but wishing to be economical of your space, I thought that might be taken for granted.

My impulse is to get exercised over the obvious injustice of the expression "one of the Wise Boys from North of Hoskin." But perhaps it's all in fun.

It is difficult to comment further, because it is not apparent whether the following passage is aimed against Trinity men in particular, or generally against all who venture to criticize activities with whose promotion they are not directly concerned. If the former, N.A.B. has allowed prejudice to run away with him. I trust it is the latter. If so I do not agree, but freely admit that an authoritative exposition of the arguments in that connection is beyond my powers.

Now I do not mean to imply that I'm certain I'm right, but merely that N.A.B. has brought forth mainly irrelevant remarks to show that I'm (Continued on page 3)

Art, Music and Drama

Hart House Theatre

This week the Canadian bill of three one-act plays is presented at Hart House Theatre, and if one may judge from the current offering, Canadian drama has made certain noticeable progress in a year's time, for the bill last year consisted of one especially good play and two very mediocre, while the 1928 presentation is graced with two good playlets and one that is quite passable. We were, however, somewhat disappointed in "The Return of the Emigrant," by Mazo de la Roche, for it is really the weakest of the current trio, while "Come True," her play of 1927, redeemed the bill from a very hopeless condition. "The Return of the Emigrant" is not in the truest sense a Canadian play, for the action takes place in a peasant's cabin in the South of Ireland. Maggie, a fine old type of sentimental Irish mother, is preparing a meal with her daughter Kirsteen for their sister and aunt, who is to return that evening after years of toil in America. Maggie, enacted by Beatrice Brook, is a homely, simple, affectionate woman, and when her returned sister tells of the progress and wonder in the new world, Maggie is speechless save for a few ejaculated "Glory-be-to-'s!" Mary is glad to be home on the old soil once more, but her stories of American marvels turn the head of little Kirsteen, who feels the wanderlust compel her to go to America with the boy she loves. There is a good deal of moving pathos in the close where Maggie tries to persuade her daughter not to emigrate, but unfortunately we have always admired Mazo de la Roche for her subtle and splendid sense of comedy, which attains the peak only once in "The Return of the Emigrant" when Maggie grows ribaldly humorous and expresses the opinion that it is indecent for a person to bathe every day, even in a porcelain tub. Miss de la Roche is at her best in comedy, and unfortunately there is little real comedy in this playlet. At first Beatrice Brook seems inclined to play Maggie in a too-deep, perhaps even grand, manner, where her least utterance has a depth of over-stressed sentiment, but as the play progresses she improves with the increase of emotion. Mary, her sister, lacked conviction slightly, but Irene Clarke as little Kirsteen was very attractive. The play has been very capably directed by Mr. Hugh Bayrs, and the setting is good, but we would advise more darkness beyond the window, since that element is frequently mentioned in the dialogue. To sum up, "The Return of the Emigrant" is quite a fair play, but after "Come True" we had come to expect more of Miss de la Roche.

The second play, "The Velvet Muzzle," is that rare avis, a good genuinely Canadian play, impressive in action and carrying conviction at every moment. It opens in June, 1812, in Jonathan Woolverton's tavern, "The Half-way House," at Grimsby. Old Jonathan, finely played by Ivor Lewis, is talking of political events with a vicious agitator, Long Silver, the news post from York, who has been stirring up trouble at political meetings. There enters Richard Hatt, a fine old Tory gentleman of the period, perfectly portrayed by Mr. Monroe Grier, and they discuss the disconcerting journal edited by Joseph Willcocks. Willcocks is a romantic Irish politician, a true historical figure of the period who was a stormy petrel in Upper Canada. By infinite tact and kindness, Mr. Hatt, the honest gentleman of Tory persuasion, wins over Willcocks, buys his paper, and removes its danger with the velvet muzzle of placation. The play ends with them drinking to "a lady of Princess Street" who, one is led to believe, will smooth the path of the political adventurer. As Willcocks, Bertram Brooker was an attractive figure, and Elaine Wodson made a charming little serving-maid, while Philip Bedford as the murderous news-post gave the piece a sinister touch. "The Velvet Muzzle" is by far the best of the plays, and has about it an unmistakable flavour of reality. One feels that he has seen a vivid view of Canadian political history of that stirring period preceding the War of 1812. The author, J. E. Middleton, did a fine piece of directing on his own play.

The third play, "The Prize Winner," by Merrill Denison, is really an excellent bit of fooling, and it reminds one slightly of "The Barker" with the cross element removed. The playlet opens in the dressing tent of Rawlings' Rolling Road Show in a backwoods village of Northern Ontario. Ed Rawlings is running his "medicine-show" and has brought excitement to a fevered pitch in carrying on a beauty and popularity contest whereby voters are obtained with the purchase of soap. The rival belles are the daughters of two hard-boiled old woodsmen, and the loser promises to make it in- (Continued on page 4)

"PAULINE OF THE PRAIRIE"

Chapter Four

UP IN THE AIR

Algernon Asseltwhaite, the hero of our little novel, was standing car-deep in the little pool with Pauline, Aloysius, and the noble husky Flea-Tin. Around them roared a vast whirlwind of flames, and the smoke was, dear readers, as thick as floor speeches at a H.H. debate. Algernon stirred frantically, the water of the pool was boiling merrily, and the little group was already well-done on one side, to say nothing of the other. Suddenly—there was a noise above them like that of a pterodactyl garbling. Out of the smoke appeared a glistening aeroplane, the plane of that dauntless fire-ranger Artie Hollyhock, the intrepid scanner of horizons who sees all and announces it in impeccable prose. Artie bent low over the cockpit of his quadriplane and saw them. "Ah!" he cried, with customary perspicacity and utter perspicuity. He drew a salt-cellar from his pocket and began to sprinkle the flames. Almost immediately the forest fire wagged a few feeble tongues at Artie Hollyhock and went out. "Here," said Artie, "are three people and a dog in a pool in literature. This has been done before—vide Jerome K. Jerome—and possibly Eugene Field. I know my volumes—I will not be bamboozled by Shakespeare or any other copy-cat!"

At the wit of the last, Artie chuckled and landed beside the pool. "I saw you!" he said triumphantly. He helped the survivors into his aeroplane and set off for Winnipeg to report his find to the proper authorities.

The head of the trading company, known as the Highest Common Factor of the Hudson Bay Co., gave Aloysius a post as floorwalker in his Winnipeg store, and Algernon was quietly married to Pauline by the good old curé of the parish.

One night Algernon was walking down Portage Avenue and a ragged vagabond accosted him: "J'let me have a dime, mister; I want a cupacawfee." Algernon looked at him as closely as Artie Hollyhock would have done. "You!" he said, "you are Percival Punt! I have you at last! Confess, did I or did I not throw crumpets at my little sister's governess thirty years ago in Thwaite Towers, Perks, Bunks, Ushire?"

"No," said Percival, "I did it. Here is a signed confession—sell it to 'True Story' or mail to your father—but do give me the dime."

Algernon gave him a quarter, and Percival did that night of indigestion after having eaten too freely of flapjacks—so virtue has its own reward, and verily the boots of the transgressor are usually filled with dried peas.

VARSITY DEFEATS PRESTON 4-3; JUNIOR BASKETEERS WIN ROUND

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity's Intercollegiate basketball entry may thank their stars that they were not beaten by McGill last week. As far as the two teams were concerned, McGill was just about as good as Varsity, and only hard luck kept them from registering their first win of the season. According to the old sport tradition, every team has a couple of bad games to work out of their system. The Blue worked out several "bad ones" Friday and should be all ready for next week-end's strenuous road trip, in which they will meet McGill and Queen's on successive nights. The locals simply must win one of these games to clinch the title.

The water polo team is putting on the finishing touches for next Saturday's tussle with McGill. Several rather obvious weaknesses were detected in the team last week and are being rectified as far as possible. It is just possible that now that swimming is over, Johnny Goss may play against McGill. Goss is a clever poloist and would be a welcome addition to the team. Coach Copeland is well pleased with the progress of the team and is looking forward to another win, or at least to give the Red and White the battle of their lives.

The Intermediate "basketeers" were not as lucky as the Intercollegiates, and were nosed out by the Aggies, tying up the group between these two teams. The Intermediates have a smart team and should beat O.A.C. in the play-offs, providing they watch their checks. Twenty-one points for one player is far too many, and certainly goes to show that someone was not checking very hard. This may have also been the Intermediates' "bad game," and now that they are through with it they may settle down and win the last year's team. The team is handicapped to a certain extent by the graduation of several of its outstanding players to senior ranks. There are plenty of capable players left, however, who should be able to uphold the previous enviable records made by Intermediate teams.

Both hockey and basketball teams are gradually approaching the finals for the Jennings and Sifton Cups. In the hockey series Vic, U.C., St. Mike's and Dents appear as likely semi-finalists, with U.C. and Vic. being slight favourites. The basketball games have been going on now for almost two months, and with no climatic handicaps to overcome are nearing the finals. Of those teams left, Sr. Vic, Jr. Meds, Jr. School, St. Mike's and Jr. U.C. are all still very much in the running, and each quite confident of winning the championship. Followers of Interfaculty sport have a busy week ahead of them, one that will be filled with even, exciting games in both sports.

BASKETBALL MEET WILL DECIDE TITLE

Teams From Four Universities Are Competing in the Event This Year

VARSITY'S STRONG LINE-UP

The women's Intercollegiate basketball meet which is to take place this coming Friday evening and Saturday afternoon at Hart House is the most important sporting attraction of the season. Basketball fans will see some really smart ball when they witness the four universities, Queen's, McGill, Western and Varsity, battling for the Intercollegiate trophy. The fact that this is Western's first year in the league lends more excitement to the coming event. The Tricolour as yet haven't a championship and will be all set this year to chalk up a win to their credit. In last year's tilt the Blue and White came out on top, and with their present strong sextet they can be counted upon to provide stiff opposition for the visiting squads.

Ede Blackwell, last year's freshee player, is as brilliant and quick as ever with more experience to her account.

Ede Buchanan, who starred on last year's team, has been playing Intercollegiate ball for three years and can always be counted on for her steadiness of shot and heady playing.

Dot Ker and Grace Keffer can also be counted on to play their usual splendid game. Dot at centre displays a team work which knits up the floor and also a capability as guard which makes the side centre's shooting nil. Grace Keffer's playing has been of the best caliber, and her ability to shoot makes her additionally useful.

Owing to Marion Forward's illness there is a vacancy at side centre which is yet undecided. Emma Weir, sub on last year's squad, and Betty MacDonald, captain of the Junior U.C. team, are contesting for the position. Emma is more experienced and perhaps a more spectacular shot, but Betty is quicker and more reliable.

Al Muckle and Frank Service show up excellently in their guard positions and are splendid Intercollegiate material.

Connie Smith, a U.C. player, is doing well and is working towards position of sub forward.

The line-up is strong and portends well for the coming meet, although the loss of Marion Forward can hardly be too much regretted.

ATHENIANS AND ENGLISH CONTRASTED IN MERIT

Professor Robertson Explained the Erroneous View Taken of the Athenians

A defence of the character and morals of the somewhat disparaged Athenian was given by Professor J. C. Robertson before the Victoria College Classical Association last night. As Professor Robertson explained, the paper had already been given before the University College Classical Club, and there he had adopted and elaborated exactly the opposite thesis to that made by Principal Hutton in his "Greek Point of View."

The Greeks, according to the conventional idea, were more clever than moral, while the Englishman was stupid, but exceedingly moral. Professor Robertson developed and gave many reasons why this thesis was too sweeping and untrue in many respects.

VICTORIA WIN FIRST GAME OF PLAY-OFF FROM U.C.

Splendid Crowd Turned Out and Were Treated to Thrilling Contest

The first of the two games necessary between Vic. and U.C. girls to decide the interfaculty hockey championship resulted in a 1-0 win for Vic. The second game will be played on Wednesday, the total score deciding the winners. Adele Statton did some excellent work for U.C., while Kay Weston, with a well-raised shot, scored the one goal of the game. Splendid goal work was evident on both sides. Ev. Craw stopping several well-directed shots. Rooters added interest to the game, and a keen contest is expected Wednesday.

Line-up:
Vic.: Goal, Ev. Craw; defence, Molly Jarrett, Helen Richardson; centre, Marnie Reider; wings, Kay West, Jean Bateman; subs, Anne Wingfield, Emma Wright, Eleanor McCubbin, Maude Lindsay.

U.C.: Goal, Wilma Speers; defence, Adele Statton, Dot Starr; wings, Grace Martin, Beatrice Crocker; subs, Fritz Anderson, Kay Bean.

GERMAN CLUB CELEBRATE SCHUBERT ANNIVERSARY

Interesting Paper on Schubert's Life and Work Read by Mr. Weinberg

The regular meeting of the German Study Club took place last evening at Wymilwood. The evening was in the form of a centenary celebration of Franz Schubert, the great German composer.

Mr. Weinberg read a very interesting paper on "Schubert's Life and Work," followed by a piano solo by Miss Elizabeth Loves, "Hark, Hark the Lark!" Professor Holt, accompanied by Mrs. Norton, delighted the group, singing "Litanci" and "Gany-mede." Mr. Paul Hahn, the eminent "cellist, accompanied by Miss Hahn, to the great delight of all, played Schubert's "Wienlied" with an artistry that was superb in its simplicity. He kindly consented to respond to prolonged applause with old German folk-songs.

Mrs. Norton and Professor Holt closed the programme with a duet selection of the "Unfinished Symphony."

A vote of thanks was heartily extended to the artists of the evening on behalf of the club by Miss Mueller.

Presentation to Director Feature of Medettes' Banquet

The Medical women undergraduates held their annual Daffydil banquet on Saturday evening. The first item of the programme was the singing by Miss Muriel Hall of a clever and humorous parody. Miss Rachel Haight, president, called upon Professor O. Klotz to address the gathering. Professor Klotz told in a most interesting and entertaining manner stories of the medical school in his undergraduate days. The opportunities open to medical women are many, Dr. Klotz stated. Dr. Klotz expressed it as his ambition that all the women undergraduates should follow up their chosen profession after graduation.

A farcical sequel to Alcestis was also presented, under the direction of Miss Grace Irwin. Refreshments were donated by Dean and Mrs. DeWitt. The meeting closed with songs in pure Latin.

JENNINGS CUP HOCKEY

Monday, March 5, sees the final episode of the Jennings Cup series when the survivors of the following games meet:

Feb. 27—Vic. vs Union.
Feb. 28—Pharmacy vs St. Mike's.
Feb. 29—Dents vs winners game 2.
Mar. 2—U.C. vs winners game 1.
Jr. U.C. "are expected" to win their fixture with Vic, which would lead one to believe that U.C. will be in the final struggle. The Red and White boys have one sweet little team and would step right up to the front seats in any company. "Bill" Spencer and "Jack" Pugsley assume the stellar roles, while "Gordie" Arnold and "Harry" Drury put in some very acceptable playing, and Hulbig's a treat in goal. One of the talent just brought in the information that U.C. are a sure thing, but we won't say. This classic, however, has some dark horses featured. St. Mike's, the traditional home of good hockey and stellar players, should also be strong contenders. Then Vic, last year's winners, may repeat, so it is practically impossible to call the team who will carry off the blue ribbon. Any of these tussles, however, will be worth watching, for when the Junior order play hockey they give everything they have for sixty minutes.

DR. S. SOSKIN GAVE INFORMAL TALK

Lively Discussion Followed Concerning Cause and Prevalence of Anti-semitism

MISS ELIAS WAS HOSTESS

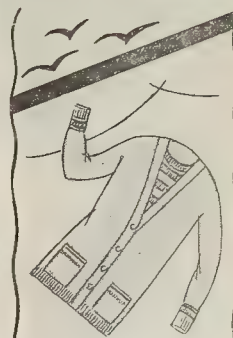

Remarkable as it may seem, the last few Menorah study groups have not deteriorated either in interest or intellectual erudition in spite of the fact that the male members of the organization have been reading the customary papers instead of the female.

The study group held on Saturday at the home of Miss Rose Elias proved once more that the weaker sex, interesting and learned as they have been, have exceeded a great deal the capacities of their gentlemen friends.

The paper read by Dr. S. Soskin on Saturday was one of the finest that the Menorah groups have been privileged to listen to. He did not announce any subject and gave rather a delightfully informal chat on a topic quite vital to the interests of Menorah. Devoid of superfluities and in a clear and lucid manner, Dr. Soskin compared the physical and psychological status of the Jew with that of other nations. He wished primarily to discover if there were any essential differences. He finally concluded, and convinced his hearers that the only real difference between the Jew and his fellow men was that of his environment.

The active discussion which followed concerned the cause and prevalence of anti-semitism—a problem which naturally arose from the conditions described by Dr. Soskin.

Tea was served with the charming hostess presiding at the table.

SUGGESTS DRAMATIC COUNCIL

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Apologies of your editorial last week entitled, "Have We a Theatre?" might I venture the following suggestion: That the existing dramatic clubs of the University form a liaison committee or University Dramatic Council to watch over student dramatic interests in general. An organization of this type if properly supported would be in a better position to bargain with any outside authorities with regard to business matters. Furthermore, it might serve a useful purpose in inviting prominent people to speak on the drama and might be able to sponsor undergraduate productions of a rather more ambitious nature than can usually be attempted by individual clubs.

I am, sir, yours faithfully,
Histrio.

The last Hart House debate of the year will be held to-night in the Hart House Lecture Room at 8 o'clock. The resolution will be "That this House views with apprehension the growing naval expenditures of the U.S.A."

The resolution will be moved by W. Lyndon Smith of Trinity College.

The House is to be honoured with the presence of two visitors from Harvard University, where the union system of debating has already been adopted. The two gentlemen, H. Hart and F. R. Mr. Hart will speak on the paper, and Mr. Heryer will speak from the floor.

The Debates Committee for the session 1928-29 will also be elected. Eight members are to be chosen from an extensive field.

At the debate, members entering the House will be given ballot papers. Members cast their ballots when voting on the motion. Those who leave the House before the division may vote on the resolution, and for the Committee by ballot, but no voting whatever may be done before 9 p.m. Those who stay to the end hand their ballot to the tellers as they pass through the division doors.

Any member of Hart House may vote. In addition to the eight members elected by members of Hart House, the Board of Stewards nominates two faculty, two graduate, and two other members.

The following have been nominated for this committee:

Henry A. Smith, S.P.S. I: Sure, and brunettes too.

E. W. Campbell, S.P.S. II: As a rule when such a question is asked, you naturally think of a certain person, and your answer depends on whether she is blonde or brunette. However, I prefer both.
J. G. Reid, U.C. III: Yes, you can see them better in the dark.
George Lee, N.C. I: I should say so!
D. D. Robertson, Vic. III: If the advertisement for the movie is a fair sample, no.
C. H. Cane, S.P.S. I: Well, where there's light there's—

FRENCH GENIUS HAS OWN INDIVIDUALITY

Different from English Because of Chance Development, Concludes Dr. Fletcher

SHAKESPEARE DISCUSSED

"The French national genius is too strongly tempered to be metamorphosed; go and see Shakespeare played at a French theatre—the public applauds a line, a word, a striking phrase—not the whole work. It is in the presence of a genius too different from its own." From these words of M. Jusserand one would deduce the fact that there is something fundamentally different in French and English genius. However, Dr. Fletcher did much to convince his hearers that this conclusion was chance rather than inevitable, in the course of the Tuesday lecture at Trinity on "Shakespeare on the French Stage." He contended that the barrier of language, which is still considerable, and the whim of fashion, which ordains the prevailing type of literature, have much to do with it. For the first reason he was not known in France till the eighteenth century (and then in a very improper form) and for the second he was regarded largely as barbarous till the nineteenth.

If Shakespeare had been known in France before French literature was inundated by the wave of classicism, it might have developed along lines parallel to English literature. But the hitherto mild and inoffensive Aristotle had by this time been turned into a tyrant because of one or two remarks which he did make and various others which he did not make, but which were attributed to him. So the form of French drama was entirely dominated by the three unities and the style and matter by the still more important unity of tone.

Shakespeare, however, admitted of no such laws. In his work there was (Continued on page 4)

Alexander Bolan, tote-box attendant in the Hart House Locker Room, died yesterday afternoon in the Western Hospital. The deceased was employed in Hart House only last fall. He was 50 years of age, and leaves a widow, who resides at 180 Fairlawn Avenue.

The causes of his illness are somewhat mystifying, and the Chief Coroner, Dr. Crawford, and the police are looking into the matter. An autopsy will be held to enquire into the causes of his death, and if the autopsy warrants suspicions of foul play, an inquest will be held.

The late Mr. Bolan's actions from last Thursday evening at about 7 to Friday noon are a complete mystery. He left Hart House and walked down University Avenue with another Hart (Continued on page 4)

POLYGAMY WINS OVER DIVORCE

Trinity Common Room Scene of Debate When U.C. Lit.
Goes Visiting

"Resolved that polygamy is a sounder system than divorce," was the subject of a spirited debate which took place in the Trinity House Common Room last evening. The occasion was that of a visit of the University College Literary and Athletic Society. For the affirmative of the resolution spoke Messrs. Loosmore of Trinity and MacGregor of U.C., while for the negative Mr. D. Beamish of U.C. and Mr. Murrell-Wright of Trinity.

Mr. Loosmore opened the arguments of the affirmative by affirming that "Polygamy is a sounder and better system than divorce. Divorce is a modern innovation and a bad one," he went on to say. He pictured the state of the children under such a system. He extolled the usefulness of women to the system of polygamy.

Mr. Beamish asserted that "any system of divorce is better than absolute free-love," the latter of which he said (Continued on page 4)

Financial Editor of The Globe Speaks in Journalistic Course

"The Financial Pages," a talk by W. J. Jeffers, Financial Editor of The Globe, will be the fourth lecture in the annual course on journalism put on by Sigma Delta Chi, the Professional Journalistic Fraternity, and the Department of University Extension.

Mr. Jeffers recently assumed the post of Financial Editor of The Globe after a number of years of filling the same post with The Saturday Night, where he characterized his activities by the vigorous exposure of a number of fake business propositions, especially in insurance lines. He has recently returned from a survey of the northern mining field. He will answer at the lecture any questions which his audience may ask regarding financial work on a newspaper.

Rhodes Scholar

W. Lyndon Smith, Trinity College, Rhodes scholar, will deliver in the Hart House debate to-night his last speech before that body before he leaves for Oxford. He will move the resolution "That this House views with apprehension the growing naval expenditures of the U.S.A."

Conservatory Choir Con- cert in Convocation Hall

Of unusual interest to University students who are musically inclined will be the concert this evening in Convocation Hall by the combined forces of the Conservatory Choir, consisting of 100 voices, and the Conservatory Orchestra of 50 instruments. A unique opportunity will be given all those who attend of hearing for the first time the Mozart Requiem.

RESEARCH FIELD FOR DIETICIANS NOW PRACTICAL

Household Science Graduates
Command High Positions
As Dieticians

FOOD CHEMISTRY OFFERED

This is the fourth of a series of articles on the history of various faculties in the University of Toronto.

The School of Household Science was established in the fall of 1902, but not until four years later did it become a faculty of the University of Toronto. Having occupied the Lillian Massey School until 1911, it transferred its quarters in that year to the present commodious and well-equipped building at Avenue Road and Bloor Street, which was donated by Mrs. Treble Massey, and from the unpromising total of two students in 1902, the registration has increased until this year there are 134.

Certain Arts courses are optional, such as Botany, Philosophy, Political Economy and English, and the student that selects these subjects is required to enrol in an Arts College. Work in Household Science is carried on under a faculty of ten members, of whom three form the council.

"The number of graduates has never come up to the demand," said Miss A. L. Laird, M.Sc., Professor of Household Science, when questioned by "The Varsity." "They are in demand largely for teaching and hospital and commercial dietetics, and in laboratory positions such as those of hospitals and doctors. A great many find nutrition and dietetics a popular field for research, and by the new findings the students are kept in touch with the work that is being done. The future of a school whose courses deal in such a practical way with the home life of the country is assured."

The two courses offered in the faculty are Pass and Honour, and lead to the degree of Bachelor of Household Science. Both these cover a comprehensive study of Household Science in all its aspects, including a much wider range of subjects than one might suppose. From the history of Home Life, Art and Design in the (Continued on page 4)

Unparalleled Peace Relations Between Canada and the United States Exemplified

AT BALDWIN HOUSE

"Canada, with her unbroken peaceful relations of over one hundred years, with her neighbour to the south, in spite of 3,000 miles of unguarded boundary line, stands as an example and an inspiration to all the world for the achievement of universal peace." This was the statement of Colonel David Carnegie, C.B.E., in his lecture on "Some Aspects of Armament and Disarmament as Viewed from National and International Angles," before a large and interested audience in the Baldwin House yesterday. Colonel Carnegie is qualified to deal with this subject, as a member of the Canadian Munitions Board during the Great War, as well as a member of the League of Nations Committee on the Reduction of Armaments.

"Some people have the idea that the object of the League of Nations is to abolish completely all instruments of force all over the world," he said. "However, its aim is not to abolish, (Continued on page 3)

UNIVERSITY OF WESTERN ONTARIO PROVES THAT UNIVERSITY MAN SUCCEEDS FASTER

University Graduates Shown to Advance Faster and to Achieve Better Positions

The University of Western Ontario at London is working to get a $2,000,000 endowment fund for research. In connection with their campaign certain information has been obtained regarding the value of a college education.

The university man's average income is $6,000 a year, while an untrained man only gets $1,200.

The total earnings of the man with a degree during life is about $150,000. The analysis, as printed by the Western Gazette, resulting from a careful study, reveals that the average maximum income of the untrained man is $1,200 a year, that of the high school graduate $2,200, and that of the college graduate $6,000. The total earnings of the three types up to the age of sixty are set at $45,000, $78,000 and $150,000, respectively. And it is also estimated that while the untrained man at the age of fifty begins to drop toward the dependence state, the college man reaches his maximum earning capacity at sixty years. SCHOOLMEN PLAY WITH MIDGET CAR

Nearly Ambuscade Small Vehicle Into School with Boxes

There was some excitement yesterday morning around School. After the ten o'clock lecture a few schoolmen, stimulated by some unknown reason, undertook to overhaul one of the smaller types of motor vehicle that are to be seen daily around the campus. They managed to find a suitable place within the exterior walls of School. The car was then placed on two boxes to facilitate its access.

But the next lecture could not be missed, so the overhauling was called off and the little puddle jumper was left to the mercy of passers-by, until some time in the afternoon the owner came with a squad of Arts men to claim his A.C.

WHERE HAS CINDERELLA GONE?

"And so the Fairy Godmother produced a chariot and sent Cinderella out"—and the Fairy Godmother, in the guise of the Twentieth Century, has kept Cinderella "out." The Cinderella of the hearthside, of the cold and lonely evenings—has vanished. She has gone to the ball; she has gone to the University; she has graduated into the realm of files and figures; she has become a factor in the field of politics,—and the economic world. The word "debutante" is becoming an anachronism; the "not-out"—obsolete. Knitting needles have lengthened and strengthened into niblicks; Cinderella's pumpkin on wheels has produced the roadster. Crinolines made speedy transportation impossible, so they, too, have vanished away.

And where is Cinderella? Who misses her? Her position by the hearthside has been permanently usurped by the family cat. She is busy circulating lost slippers in a "mile-a-minute" world. And to-day, the one day in four years devoted to the erstwhile Cinderella, perhaps—who knows—the slipper of romance will find its way home!

THE VALUE OF A LIFE

Conjecture as to what is the best course to be pursued by members of the medical profession in a case such as that recently reported from Chicago, where a baby girl, born without a brain, was quietly allowed to die, will no doubt arise at some no distant date among not a few of the undergraduates of to-day, whether they belong to the lay or professional classes. In the case mentioned the attending physician stated that "The child would never have been able to think, talk or move, and for that reason it was decided to allow nature to correct its own mistakes."

While the thought might neglect that factor known as "mother love" it would seem to be not only in the best interest of the future of the race but also, surely, of the parents and child as well to permit of its removal to another plane. Present day society revolts against the execution of any human being, no matter how well reasoned or how sincerely advised. While the proven murderer may or may not go, indicated sanity usually proves to be grounds for life imprisonment and care. But the question that now confronts us is whether or not the action of the Chicago doctor marks a new plan of action by members of the medical profession. The laws of the land are strict with regard to the saving and prolongation of life. Irrespective of race, colour or physical fortune or misfortune, all must have an equal chance. But deeply tried indeed is the doctor called upon to assist a child doomed to paralysis or imbecility for life to live. Few of us can bear physical infirmities and fewer still would wish to be responsible for raising those possessing them in overpowering abundance.

In times past the savage races, pursuing such a law as that the fit only should survive, have removed all not possessing perfect physical condition,—the infirm and the old. Our own age could harbour no such custom, but it would not be surprising if the time when the attitude toward man's right to live or die, when beset by certain physical conditions, will have to be re-determined.

This is Leap Day. There won't be another such for four years—well, cats?

A large number of men were last night seen sneaking into the lowest bomb-proof depths of the unfathomable Hart House caverns conspicuously wearing bachelors' buttons.

We note that the deadlier sex is still waving their hair. We must step up and confess that this is kind of beyond our powers, although we can twiddle our ears and pick up things with our toes if asked politely.

To-night will be the last big bonspiel in the Lecture Room under the tutelary auspices of the Debates Committee. It will doubtless resemble most of the other esteddfords where the customary corrugated incorrigibles unbosom themselves of a thundering big message for the genus homo sapiens. We would like to plagiarize in a low, sneaking manner a story which we honestly believe to be by Mark Twain.

Suppose, in the midst of the debate, while the air was being paved, a sudden chill blast were to sweep in; so unbelievably cold that all words would be instantly frozen, although the speakers continued on their forensic way. Then let us also suppose that this air were sawed up into bricks, done up like ice-cream and labelled "Not To Be Opened Until July." What a fine time we would have as the sun thawed out the gelatic language.

"Mistaspikka, mistaspikkasir, in arising to debate on this motion I feel a machurl diffidence."

"Mr. Spikker, I am a Scotchman. I am a firm believer in Imperialism."

Then, as the brick became more plastic:
"Hoh, Mistah Speekah, hoh, soh, order order School! School! Oxfode, soh, heah, dirty Meds aw say what the help the cause of liberty order Oxfode no no you don't shut up yourself, order, point of order, hey! throw him out . . . aw . . . time! time!"

Anybody trying to read anything personal into the above will be sentenced to six years' hard labour, ending with sixty smacks with the Trinity Literary Review.

There was a young fellow named Rickett

Who skied to the midst of a thicket;
When he came to his senses
He cried "It offends us!

With the Theatres

Once more the bill at the Hippodrome is excellent and far above the usual run of vaudeville. The bill opens with "Six Crackerjacks," who do acrobatic tumbling that would make Don Barton's squad turn sea green with envy. They are the best tumblers that have appeared on a Toronto stage in recent years.

Goodwin and Mills, soprano and contralto, follow in an act featuring semi-popular songs. They have voices that might well feature a concert stage, and their act is worthy of underlining, especially when one considers the usual vaudeville voices. James Coughlin and Co. follow in an act that is common place and more of the slap-jack variety. It is the weak spot in the bill.

Norwood and Hall are more of the usual vaudeville variety, and their jokes have whiskers, but their presentation was unique and novel.

Possibly the feature is the Bon Jons Band, composed entirely of girls. They are assisted by Florence Myers and Trudy Strawbridge. Their playing was excellent and their costuming and settings superb—an excellent act.

On the screen, "Sailors' Wives" was only ordinary, except that Mary Astor did some beautiful close-ups. The plot was weak, and the promised risqué scenes were either cut or distinctly flat. Still the movie was average provided one didn't search the theme too closely.

The comedy was Big Boy in "Angel's Eye"—it was Big Boy—huff said. The News Review showed Earl Haig's funeral and the recent speed trials in which Campbell smashed the world's record.

In this, one of the last reviews of the season that we shall write, we would like to pay tribute to the orchestra at the Hippodrome. Day in and day out they have aided the vaudeville in a manner that cannot be too highly commended. Their praises are unsung, and yet we believe that much of this season's success is due in no small part to them.

merency, Blyth, Lieberman.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL AT HART HOUSE ON FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Women's basketball is claiming the limelight in sporting circles at present. The annual Intercollegiate tournament is held in Toronto but once in four years, and this is the "fourth" — Kingston, London and Montreal having it the other times. The girls always put on a snappy brand of the game, and when the best of the four universities get together for the championship there is bound to be lots of action. From the announced schedule, two games are to be played on Friday night in Hart House, and the winners meet on Saturday afternoon for the title while the two losers fight for the consolation prize (if any).

This is the one chance in your university career to see Intercollegiate basketball as the so-called weaker sex play it.

The Senior O.H.A. squad can now sit back and watch Preston and Kitchener fight it out for the right to meet them. Right now it looks as though Kitchener will be the team, but no matter who it is, the finals are bound to be good, for the locals got the first position by only hard work and narrow margins. Indications point that the play-offs will be toward the end of this week or the beginning of next; it is getting rather late in the season, and the Allan Cup games will have to be run pretty soon.

The Junior basketball squad, after being idle all season, managed to win the round in the first set-to, but when they get farther in the semi-finals they will realize more fully that a series during the winter would not have hurt their championship hopes.

On Saturday night the water poloists play their return game with McGill, and with a deep tank to play in they should be able to overcome the one goal lead that the Red and White secured in their home tank a couple of weeks ago. In Montreal only a shallow tank was available, and though the home squad was accustomed to that kind of tank, they were only able to secure a one goal lead. Saturday should be a different story, for at no end of the tank in Hart House can a player touch bottom and still keep his head above water. The difference in the play is patent, so a real game is in store.

There is only one Intercollegiate polo game a year for Toronto, and here is the chance to enjoy yourself. We also understand that music will be provided.

On Friday and Saturday the basketball squad finishes the season in Kingston and Montreal, and we hope it will be a finish of the glorious variety. No wins to date and the McCutcheon stalwarts are hopeful. As it is they simply must win at least one game to get the title, because, if otherwise, Queen's will be tied with them and a play-off would result.

Next week will see the beginning of the play-offs for the Sifton Cup. All the groups are pretty well decided now, and competition in the finals will be of the keenest sort.

FORESTRY CREATES WIN OVER UNION THEOLOGISTS

Game Gives Forestry Strong Lead for Group Championship

In the fourth game of their group in basketball Forestry last night defeated Union Theology. The game, though closely contested throughout, was not played as well as was expected. The score at the end of the first half was 7-5 Forestry. The second half brought out rather better playing and a certain amount of rough work, though not many fouls. Forestry played up due to two goals scored by the Theologs in the last minute of the first half. Wiley, the Foresters' captain, scored four goals and two fouls for his team, and Simpson and Grainger scored three and two goals respectively.

This game goes a long way towards clinching the group for the Foresters, as they have already downed Wycliffe once, and their game last night eliminated Theology.

The final score was 21 to 13 in favour of Forestry.

Forestry: Wiley (captain), Simpson, Grainger, MacBean, Gray and Leslie.

Union Theology: Searly, Beacom, Snell, Harris, Taylor and McKay. Referee: MacIntyre.

WOMEN HOLD MEET IN HART HOUSE

Sixth Annual Intercollegiate Meet on Friday Night and Saturday Afternoon

MCGILL STRONG

The sixth Intercollegiate meet in the history of women's basketball is being held at Hart House on Friday night and Saturday afternoon of this week. Held for the first time in 1920-21 at Queen's, the meet has been played at the three universities, Queen's, Varsity and McGill, in turn. McGill was the first to capture the "Bronze Baby" presented by the Men's Athletic Society of that University, and won it again in 1924-25. Queen's has as yet failed to capture it, while Varsity has won the trophy four times. This year Western has been added to the league for the first time.

This year's McGill team seems to have the longest odds. They are the Montreal city champions, having beaten the "Physical Eds" and also the "V" team. The McGill School of Physical Education is somewhat on the basis of the Margaret Eaton School here. Thus their players are really semi-professional. Further, the McGill team has retained five of its old players, although last year's captain graduated. In addition McGill has as its coach Miss Harvey, a grad of Sargeant, who experienced at B.S.S. here, and also under Miss Cartwright of McGill, should lead out a peppy team.

Queen's has had ill luck in the loss of their regular coach, Miss Ray, through illness. They have also lost several of last year's players. But Queen's is the one university whose women have the use of the university gym. The floor is very large and gives them an open style of play. They have been decidedly more at home on the Hart House floor than any other team. In fact, they won their only Intercollegiate game on this floor when the meet was held here last. They then pushed Varsity to the tie score and the overtime thriller which few fans will forget. Varsity won, but only by two baskets. Miss Chown is acting as the Queen's coach in the place of Miss Roy.

Of Western it is difficult to predict much. This is their first introduction to the league. Last year their team won easily from McGill and Queen's in exhibition games, and their play goes tend to the more open and big floor game. They still have with them some real stars, and although they were badly beaten by M.E.S. here may prove dangerous. Varsity plays Western on Friday night after the McGill-Queen's game, and needs the win to make the Saturday finals. Western is coached by Miss Louise Burns.

The referees at the meet are to be Miss Prendergast of London, who has refereed many local games in that district, and Miss Webb of Toronto, who refereed Intercollegiate three years ago.

Besides its importance in basketball and sport circles, the meet is one of the big social events of the year. We shall have with us in Toronto over the week-end between thirty and forty representatives of three universities.

ADDRESS BY COL. CARNEGIE

but to reduce armaments to the extent that they will no longer be dangerous engines of war, but will be strong enough to maintain law and order."

He went on to say that there is prevalent now a false idea that there is security in armament. He explained that at present the fifty-seven members of the League must submit their disputes for arbitration; but as the nations are not bound to abide by the decision of the League, nations are still suspicious and afraid of each other, and consequently there has been as yet no reduction of armaments. As a step in getting rid of this difficulty the Security Committee has advocated the "Optional Clause of the Permanent Court of Justice" by which nations agree to accept the decision of the League, in disputes. Otherwise they will be compelled to do so by force. Twenty-eight nations have already signed this contract, yet no state in the British Empire has done so. The Colonel thought this was due to the fact that Englishmen consider themselves superior to other people in their sense of righteousness. Such a position, he believed, was untenable and unfair. Canada should lead the Empire in signing this contract, he opined.

It is sometimes said in objection to the aims of the League, that if war were abolished, all the fine qualities of courage, sacrifice and endurance would be repressed. To this he answered that these qualities should be applied to the building up of nations, not to butchery and war.

He quoted an instance when he was addressing a meeting, and an elderly woman came up to him after his address and asked him how he could possibly expect that war should cease when Christ Himself predicted there would be many wars to come. However, he soon gave her a satisfactory reply by reminding her that she had not read far enough, and that farther on it was predicted also that there would be plagues, diseases and famines.

"Surely," he said to her, "you would not raise a finger to hinder the work of our disease prevention and hunger relief movements."

"I believe sincerely in Isaiah's great prophecy," he continued, "And they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning-hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation."

At the close of his lecture, Colonel Carnegie invited questions from the audience.

"Is it possible for the League to function without the United States entering?" he was asked.

"Certainly," was the answer. "The United States is now co-operating actively with the League, and is even paying a share in its support."

"The Pan-American Conference is like a League of Nations in America and it has the same object," he replied to a question.

The Colonel is vitally interested in the subject to be debated to-night at the Hart House and will be present. Possibly he will also speak from the floor and delight his listeners with his keen sense of humour as he has done yesterday.

Game to-day—Pharmacy vs. St. Mike's, Varsity Arena, 2.30 p.m. Referee: Jack Sinclair.

UNIVERSITY MAN SUCCEEDS

The untrained man goes to work as a boy of fourteen and reaches his maximum income at the age of thirty. This maximum is, on the average, less than $1,200 a year, and in view of the fact that this income is earned through manual labour dependent on physical strength, it begins to fall off at the age of fifty or even earlier, soon reaching the level below that of self-support. The figures show that more than 60 of every 100 untrained workers are dependent on others for support at the age of sixty. Between fourteen and eighteen, the four years might have been spent in high school, the untrained man usually earns not more than $2,000.

The high school graduate goes to work at eighteen, passes the maximum of the untrained man within seven years, rises steadily to his own maximum of approximately $2,200 at forty and continues at that level for the remainder of his active life.

The college man's earnings begin at 22, though a considerable amount may be earned during the college course. By the time he is 28 his income equals the maximum of the high school graduate at forty, and it continues to steadily rise, practically without a break. Since his income is dependent upon his mental ability and training, constantly improved by practice, it increases instead of diminishes with the years. The average of $6,000 at 60 is often surpassed.

The $72,000 more earned by the college man over that earned by the high school graduate can be said to represent the cash value of the college education.

Of 2,201 alumni graduated from one college on this continent, one of the smaller institutions, prior to 1916, 195 have become corporation presidents, 148 vice-presidents, secretaries or treasurers of corporations, 246 have become corporation managers or superintendents, 111 have become chief engineers in important fields other than business, 110 consulting engineers and 77 are members of engineering firms. About half of the older men who have entered business and allied activities have attained high executive positions in all of which the earning capacities have far exceeded the average $6,000 per annum for the "college man."

It is pointed out that the figures given above were compiled in 1921 and that in even during so short a period as the past three years the demand for college-trained men in industry and science has increased by a phenomenal margin, and the consequent demand for higher education has similarly increased.

It is this increased demand in West-

BASKETBALL JUNIORS WIN SEMI-FINAL

Registered a 50-27 Victory Over Xebecs of Toronto

INTER-CHURCH NEXT

Varsity Junior basketball team again came through with a victory in the second of the semi-final home and home play-offs for the city championship, at Hart House, when they defeated Xebecs, the winners of Toronto Basketball League, by the score 50-27. The locals were carrying a 26 point lead from their first game, thus winning the home and home series from Xebecs by 49 points.

The Blue and White Junior team easily deserved the 50-27 verdict over Xebecs by virtue of their splendid exhibition of team play. The score at half time was 19-11 in Varsity's favour, and from then on the locals began to set their fastest pace, forging ahead of the visiting team with a big lead. Varsity assumed the lead at the commencement of the game and stayed there throughout. They outscored their rivals two to one, as the score indicates, working the ball in with their splendid combination. Pasternak proved to be the high scorer of the Varsity outfit, counting in all 17 points. The whole team worked together exceptionally well with excellent results. Capt. Garbe and Hutcheon formed an outstanding forward line with their combination with the rest of the team. Scott and White on the defence were almost unbeatable, forcing Xebecs to do considerable shooting from well past centre. The substitutes gave a splendid account of themselves by working in well with the rest of the team.

Varsity: Garbe (10), Hutcheon (6), Pasternak (17), Scott (8), White (5), Noyes (3), Ireland, Dawson.

Xebecs: Carruth (8), Wodsworth (4), McHaig (4), Andrews (10), Hobson, Ramer, Tully, Dargavel (1).

FRENCH ADDRESS

no attempt at unity of time: the action of Henry V took place over a period of six years: that of Hamlet covered two or three months. Unity of place was utterly disregarded: in "Othello" the scene shifted from Venice to Cyprus; in Henry VI it wandered all over England. Unity of action was observed but in a different spirit from the French dramatists because it admitted of secondary or even tertiary plots. Because of this utter disregard of the unities, managers had refused to stage Shakespeare until the eighteenth century, and then it was a cut and expurgated Shakespeare which conformed to the unities. But it was against unity of tone that Shakespeare transgressed most—against the untouchable inviolate canon of good taste. He did it when he introduced horrible murders, violent deeds and ribald jests into high tragedy: when he introduced the nurse in Romeo and Juliet: when he allowed Julius Caesar to appear on the stage in a night-cap:
when he centered the whole plot of Othello around a miserable unconventional rag of a handkerchief. Moreover, he made lamentable choice of words: he mentioned a pig as a pig:
he suggested the presence of such a verminous little beast as a mouse: and when neither dogs nor noses were recognized in tragedy he introduced both.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED

House employee to Queen Street, where they parted.

He is not known to have been seen again by any of his friends until Friday at noon when some unknown party phoned Mrs. Bolan that her husband was ill, and was being brought home.
Foul play is strongly suspected by the police.

Mr. Bolan served during the war and suffered severe hardships which seriously impaired his health. He was also interned in a German prison camp. He suffered acutely in recent years from ulcers of the stomach, and it is thought possible that this illness may be a factor in his death.

He had $75 on his person which was missing when he reached home.

The deceased was short and dark, inclined to be stout, and will be remembered by many of those who use Hart House gymnasium facilities as pleasant, obliging and efficient.

Final game to-day for the championship of women's Interfaculty hockey. U.C. ladies and Victoria
Seniors will play from 6 to 7 p.m. on the Varsity cushion.

Mr. MacGregor referred to the fact that "impossible marriage laws make

Mr. Murrell-Wright deprecated the attitude of the affirmative in not giv-

Varsity Swimmers Anxious to Retain Polo Championship

Intercollegiate Meet McGill
Here on Saturday Night for Cup

ARE WORKING NEW PLAYS

Well-known Players on Line-up for Game—Litchford at Centre

The Intercollegiate water polo team certainly are digging in for the coming game on Saturday night. The practices held every night last week and this week between the regulars and a picked team were real battles and provided plenty of excitement for onlookers who happened to drop in. The Intercollegiate team are working on one or two new plays which are very fast, and the passing game which has been developed within the last week is far superior to that shown in the first game at Montreal.

The boys are working with one object in view, and that is to keep the cup at Varsity this year. About six members of the team are graduating; consequently they are trying to make the last year their biggest one.

Most of the men have played before and are well known to followers of the swimming sport. The line-up for Saturday night will be as follows:

CENTRE—Leo Litchford: The best known swimmer at Varsity. He has plenty of speed and gets his shots away fast. His performance at Montreal speaks for itself. He secured the first goal and so really started the game for us.

LEFT WING—Hagar Hethrington, captain of this year's polo team. Hagar is a veteran at the game, having played Intercollegiate water polo for three years. He knows all the tricks and tactics of the game. This is his last year, so he has one game left in which to show us all his stunts.

RIGHT WING—George Baker: This is George's first year on the team. His shooting ability earned him a place on the forward line. Unfortunately this is also George's last year of water polo, so naturally he will do his best in the next game.

LEFT DEFENCE—Eddie Sinclair: Eddie is a second year Dent. He has had one year's experience on the defence line and performs like a veteran. He will be with us for a few years yet.

Varsity Staff Elections

For the first time, perhaps, in the history of "The Varsity" the three elective positions on the staff have been filled by acclamation. Mr. Leonard Ryan, former News Editor, has been elected Editor-in-Chief, Mr. Wilfred Saunders Managing Editor, and Miss Helen Allen Women's Editor for the year 1928-29, pending endorsement.

The announcements were made at a staff meeting, when arrangements were also completed for the annual spring party to be held in Hart House on Monday, March 12.

"DOGGEREL" DEcriED BY WOMEN DEBATERS

Mother Goose Opposed as Crude and Glaring—Imperfect, and Unwise

SUPPORTED FOR BEAUTY

Pros and Cons of Nursery Rhymes Discussed in Inter-faculty Debate

"Sentiment rules the world and Mother Goose Rhymes foster a proper sentiment," said Miss Margaret Spurr of Trinity College in the women's interfaculty debate at McMaster University yesterday afternoon. Miss Spurr supported the motion "Resolved that Mother Goose Rhymes should be taught to children," which was defeated by 65-17.

The speaker stressed the importance of the question to all interested in child education. She pointed out the delightful, fanciful quality of Mother Goose rhymes that did so much to stimulate imagination. The simplicity and strength, the straight-from-the-shoulders of these verses caught the fancy of the child even while the law of moral justice was instilled. Jenny, who could work no faster, got but a penny a day—her just deserts; and Tom, the piper's son, was "beat" for his theft. The beauty and rhythm of the verses was well illustrated by "Mary, Mary, quite contrary," and her garden.

Miss Nora Holden, of Victoria, in opposing the motion, begged that sentimental remembrances might be separated from real benefits. She quoted: "Needles and pins, needles and pins. When a man marries, his troubles begin."

PROFESSOR PARKIN DELIVERS LECTURE ON AIR PROPELLER

Discusses Metal Airscrew Comparing Old and New Construction

MERITS OF TWO BLADES

Refers to Recent Schneider
Trophy Race for Seaplanes
Won by Britisher

"Aeroplane Propellers" was the subject of Professor J. H. Parkin's lecture to the Toronto Flying Club last night.

There are two kinds of propellers, the tractor and the pusher types. The tractor propeller is in front of the engine and the pusher is behind the engine.

"The stresses in the blades of a rotating airscrew are excessive," stated the lecturer, "for there is a high centrifugal force due to the speed, and also a bending stress due to pressure. The centrifugal force is the most serious, and the blades near the nuts must be very thick, regardless of aerodynamic efficiency."

The metal airscrew was then discussed, with special reference to the greater strength of duralumin and steel as compared to wood, of which all the older propellers were made. Thus metal construction makes possible a more efficient propeller of thinner section and of a strength equal to or greater than that of the wooden type. The modern metal propellers of the Fairley-Reed or Curtiss-Reed type are of forged duralumin.

Prof. Parkin cited an interesting illustration of the fallacy of the idea that when a propeller rotates at such a speed that the tip speed equals the velocity of sound, the propeller suddenly cavitates, or makes a hole in the air, delivering no thrust. This phenomena was found to be due to vibration.

POLITICS PLAY PART IN H. H. ELECTIONS

Independent Candidates Run for Committees Without Official Sanction

NOT "REP BY POP"

Politics, machine and otherwise, seem to play a prominent part in Hart House elections. A survey of the candidates now posted reveals facts that point strongly to this theory. It is the habit of most faculties and colleges to nominate two official candidates for a "slate" to each committee, and the members of the faculty are expected to turn out and put their chosen candidate across. However, independent candidates, relying on popularity and friends, often break loose from the machine and run on their own. For example, two Victoria men receive the official sanction, yet three are running for the Hall and House committees.

University College seems to be the wildest politically. Five run for the House and the same for the Hall Committee. This is obviously not "rep by pop" as compared with other faculties, if registration figures are consulted. S.P.S. apparently has the system best in hand, for only the slated number run in almost every case.

Smaller faculties customarily work a reciprocal scheme by tacit agreement by which they combine to elect one another's slate, and put enough men into the voting to balance larger faculties.

Terminus in Sight!

LOVE IS WAY TO LIVE SAYS DR. PILCHER

Parable of Good Samaritan
Used to Illustrate Speaker's Point

SERVICE TO GOD ESSENTIAL

"Love is the true way to live in its fullness and is far more important than orthodoxy," said Rev. Dr. Pilcher, speaking in the Hart House chapel to students yesterday.

Dr. Pilcher went on to point out that in the parables expounded by Jesus Christ the average respectable and orthodox man was the man who was judged as unworthy. Illustrating this point, the speaker quoted from the parable of the Good Samaritan. The priest was in all probability possessed of a good excuse for rushing past the wounded man, but the Samaritan was a foreigner, a heretic, an object of hatred to the Jew, and yet it was the Samaritan who was held up as the example by Jesus Christ, because he was willing to do a kindness requiring self-denial.

"And so it is," said Dr. Pilcher, in closing, "that we must hold ourselves in readiness for service to God through our fellow men by being ready at all times to take up our cross and follow Him."

Errata

The following communication has been received from the Registrar's office:

"Through an oversight there appeared on the examination forms of the Faculty of Arts a statement requesting the applicants to give the address to which copies of timetables should be sent. As all timetables are distributed to registered students at this and the various College Registrar's offices it is essential that this error be brought to the attention to the students concerned. Some students, because of this request, may expect to get a timetable by mail, and if they do not receive it may be in difficulties."

NO FURTHER CLUE FOUND TO DEATH OF A. BOLAN

Autopsy Shows Death Hastened by Alcoholic Poisoning

The mysterious death of Alexander Bolan, the late tote-box attendant of Hart House, has not yet been solved. At the autopsy performed yesterday his death was found to be due to an ulcerated stomach aggravated by alcoholic poisoning. This theory, however, has not been substantiated by any positive proofs, and if the fatal liquor cannot be traced an inquest will be held. Foul play is suspected, as the seventy-five dollars which were on his person are missing. It is probable that the poisoned drink, if it was that, was administered to him and then he was robbed. However, no clue of the guilty party or parties has been discovered, and until this turns up the matter must hang in abeyance.

Diplomatic Relations of Two Countries Discussed— Many Visitors

FACTS ARE PRESENTED

Lyndon Smith Opens Debate—Col.
Carnegie Favours Limitation of Ships

Diplomatic relations between Canada and the United States are not likely to be strained in the near future, if the close verdict of the Hart House Debating Union may be regarded as a criterion. The motion, "That this House views with apprehension the growing naval expenditure of the U.S.A.," was carried by a bare majority of 4 votes, 92-88.

In accordance with the precedent set at previous sessions of the House, undergraduate representatives were present from another university, and distinguished guests were also invited. The House, as usual, was inclined to make the most of any opportunities for mirth, and the tone of levity constantly recurred throughout the evening.

The first speaker, Mr. W. Lyndon Smith, said that disarmament was the aim of the peace treaties of the past, and the belief that war might be avoided by preparedness had long since been disproved. The principal of fixed parity of the naval forces of Great Britain and the United States has degenerated into an effort to maintain a position of parity in increase of armament. A war between the U.S.A. and Great Britain would make of Canada a second Belgium. Our allegiance and love of Great Britain would compel us to take up arms. We would not be in a position to defend ourselves and would be torn between two great powers. The speaker drew the parallel of the friendship between Germany and England which was considered at the end of the last century as permanent, and showed that it did not give evidence of the idea that Germany and England would one day be at one another's throats, but after the embarkation of the German Empire on an extensive naval programme all was changed.

Mr. H. F. L. Hart, of the Harvard Debating Union, who spoke second, presented an imposing array of facts and figures to prove that the United States was not aiming to become the foremost militarist nation in the world. Provision was originally made for 71 new ships at a cost of $740,000,000. As it stood at present, only about half as many vessels were to be built, at a cost of some $350,000,000.

"All we ask is a proportional navy," declared Mr. Hart, after he had presented many figures to show that naval development in the States was not as great as that in Great Britain or other great powers. His remark that the U.S. was pledged to defend most of the western hemisphere under

Vic. Juniors Vote on Senior Sticks

The third year girls of Victoria College held the preliminary vote for the Senior and Athletic sticks yesterday. The Senior stick is given to the best all-round girl in the year, and the Athletic to the best athlete—both being voted for only by the junior year and by a special elimination vote.

The first results are as follows—in alphabetical order—Grace Irwin, Rome McCulloch, Bill Munro, Marne Rieder, and Jean Wheatley for Senior stick. Dot Kerr, Al. Muckle, Marne Rieder, Sheila Sissons, Ann Wingfield for the Athletic stick.

CHRIST MAKES GOD POSSIBLE OBJECT OF OUR WORSHIP

Dr. Scatler Addresses U.C.
Women at Union

ANSWERS MANY QUESTIONS

Jesus Regarded as a Leader and Friend Whom We Can Understand

"Christianity gives us the conception of a God who is subject to His own laws," said Dr. J. M. P. Scatler in speaking on "The Approach to God in Christianity" at the U.C. Women's Union yesterday afternoon.

"How are we to believe in God with the world as it is?" Dr. Scatler asked. "How is there going to be any religious attachment to a God who sits in glory on high and watches the suffering in the world He has made? He is a Spirit, infinite, eternal, unchangeable, perfect—so far beyond as that a direct, comprehensible approach to Him is impossible. Christ alone has made Him a possible object of worship. In Christianity we get a conception of God which satisfies the mind and the heart, because Christ presents God as subject to His own laws, sharing with us the toil and pain and torture, a God of love who enjoys all that love would impose."

"When moral stress is difficult and man feels the need of help, he can find it in Jesus because He is as completely God-filled as a man can be, a leader, a friend, a concrete subject whom we can understand."

Dr. Scatler's words were a challenge to anyone who chose to dispute them, and he spent some time after the lecture answering questions. This was the last of the series of S.C.A. lectures on "The Approach to God" in different religions.

FREE LANCES LAUNCH "HOLEY" CAMPAIGN

Rejuvenation of Red Flannels and Seamless Sewing of Socks Guaranteed

CAST-OFFS RE-CAST

The students and faculty of this University evidently do not realize the opportunity they are missing of having their clothes neatly and cheaply mended. Between 1 and 2 every Tuesday and Thursday a member of the Free Lances rushes down from her lectures and spends her valuable time patiently waiting for people to bring in their "holey" apparel. Unfortunately, not much has been forthcoming.

How about your socks, gents and ladies! No holes are too large for these deft fingers to darn. You have quite likely had to cast off the odd thing because you never had time to mend it. Avoid this by having it done before it is too far gone.

Well, bring in your red flannels and socks to Room 82, in the basement, for rejuvenation.

Tempus Fugit

Students in the Faculty of Arts are reminded that to-day is the last day for filing applications for the annual examinations. Application forms may be obtained from the office of the College Registrar or from the Registrar's Office, Simcoe Hall.

Diogenes' Daily Questionnaire Majority Support Specialization

Do you approve of specialization in university courses?

G. R. Frame, II Vic.: Yes, in anything but Mathematics and physics.
S. C. Legge, II Pol. Sc.: I think it's the main point of our academic courses.

C. Crusoe, IV St. Mike's: While specialization is an essential in modern life, its true value is to be found in post-graduate studies.

Miss C. Smith, IV U.C.: Yes, I approve of specialization if it leads definitely to a vocation after graduation.

J. Brannen, III S.P.S.: No, a general education is preferable.
S. Hermant, II U.C.: Yes, I do. It is impossible to learn all the knowledge of this age. Therefore we should specialize in our favourite subjects.

V. A. Gardi, V Med.: I certainly do.
Miss V. Alexander, II Eng. and H.: Yes, if we do not overlook the other side.

Miss M. A. Milikin, IV U.C.: Specialization tends to turn out "one track" minds.

T. H. H., IV B. and M.: Specialization is not the ideal, but modern life demands it.

A. R. McCullum, II U.C.: A specialist is the kind of animal found decaying under a log in a swamp.

W. P. Taylor, II Pol. Sc.: A wide knowledge is useful, but specialization is essential in our strong subjects.

E. Austin, II St. Mike's: For a course preparatory to teaching, it is, but for me it's all bunk.

K. C. Grogan, III S.P.S.: Absolutely! In the latter few years anyway.

KNOW THE CITY BEFORE YOU GRADUATE

How many of us registered at the university four, or five, or six years ago with the intention of doing some particular thing or of carrying out some certain line of endeavour just as soon as we settled away,—and have not found time to do it yet? How many of us came here with the good intention of improving our minds not only by academic work but also by a pursuit of those wider things a knowledge of which makes life more worth while and more easily to be enjoyed and appreciated? Some visitors from California recently requested of us directions as to the easiest method in which to find the museum, and then the art gallery. Fortunately, for our own peace of mind, we were able to give satisfactory answers; although there are many citizens of Toronto who do not know where the Grange is situated, the museum being more favourably known only because everyone, more or less, passes it on the street car.

With friends from so far so eager to see that which residents of the city neglected it was not difficult to persuade ourselves that the time was ripe for a trip that we had promised ourselves for as long as it was convenient to remember, and, in solitary state, we paid a visit to the museum. We were there three and one half hours and enjoyed every minute of it. And we found that we were able to gather not only something of value in the way of information but that we could thus spend a very entertaining afternoon as well. And so our next step will be toward the art gallery or, perhaps, a return visit to the museum.

We cannot feel that any student has absorbed the educational resources of this city until he has familiarized himself with certain of those things which have been gathered and produced for his instruction. An appreciation of art in future life he will wish to have, for to be able to discourse intelligently and well upon the subject may bring many pleasant moments in years that are not too far distant from graduation. The museum can furnish interesting bits of furniture, and carvings, and dress, and information about people that can never come amiss, especially if, as is most probable, we are to join the ranks of the antique hunters a few years hence. If we are to do that we might just as well—better—do it as educated intelligent men and women rather than as creatures suddenly struck with a craze about that of which we know nothing.

We should most certainly have familiarized ourselves with the Mendelssohn Choir, an organization that has gained fame throughout the continent and one about which, as Torontonians, we are apt to be questioned at any time. We should drop in to the reference library once or twice at least, while walks through the whole of High Park, the Old Fort grounds, the Ward, the Humber, and one or two other places on Sunday afternoons should prove more than interesting. These are only a few suggestions, of course. There are innumerable things that one should do and should see, and as for the expectant graduate the time is short, we would like to see him start getting around a bit, and if the museum, the gallery, or this or that have not been "covered," to make a point of allocating certain days to sight-seeing immediately.

HEALTH AND THE UNDERGRADUATE

It seems nowadays that the only student about the campus who keeps regular hours is the one who is in training for some sport. It seems more important, to the average student, to take better care of his health for the sake of collegiate honours than for the sake of his academic standing. There always remains the "night before" in which to study for the test. Rules of health are violated to cram for the examination upon which may depend a year's standing.

Rigid discipline is always demanded of the one who would make the team. Sacrifices are made in every direction to be physically fit. Not so with the ordinary routine of life where training is not required. The student maintains any hours. Procrastination is the order of the day. The difficult thing is left to the very last minute. After the rush and tear of the day the student attempts

H.C. Players' Guild

At the weekly meeting of the U.C. Players' Guild on Wednesday afternoon Mr. Paul Gardner presented an original one-act tragedy, "Stromboli." It dealt in an extremely interesting manner with a small group of people—a peasant woman, her daughter, and her son-in-law, who had lived at the foot of the volcano Stromboli all their lives and were imbued with a superstitious dread of the great home of the winds, and another woman, Laura, who had left Stromboli to go into the world and after twenty years had returned unsatisfied. An inspiring young poet, all fire and egotism, with his self-effacing devotee Alice, enter the cottage to learn that Stromboli is commencing to erupt, and that no escape is possible. Such is the crisis dealt with. The peasants accept the inevitable at the hand of their guardian deity. The world-weary Laura, disappointed in her love and inspired by a mad vision, rushes out to meet her new lover and her death in a burning embrace of lava. The young poet hysterically struggles and finally succumbs, and the scene closes in a tense atmosphere of waiting for the approaching doom. Howard Lindsay as the young poet showed remarkable ardour and delicacy. Miss Jean Dow and Miss Helen Allen fulfilled difficult roles.

The play itself was interesting in its originality; it suffered from faulty directing in places, and from certain obvious weaknesses in the acting; but there were no hackneyed situations (except perhaps a line of the poet), and there was genuine feeling throughout. Mr. Gardner is to be congratulated on an excellent addition to the three original plays already produced this term by the Guild.

LAST NIGHT

Last night, as I started to study, I resolved I would stick it till twelve; I said, "I'll be moved by nobody. For a change, through my books will I delve." Five minutes I worked on my Latin, Four minutes I dug at my French, Then ten did I curse like a Satan, For neither would budge half an inch. At last in control of my madness, At last having calmed down my wrath, Forgiveness I prayed for my badness, Then settled to work on a math. At this did I toil for an aeon, For three minutes weary and long—Then broke forth in merriest poean—But found in the end I was wrong. So after one minute's debating, To the phone did I nervously go, And said after much hesitating—"Would you like, dear, to go to the show?"

Itto.

EMPIRE—"QUEEN HIGH"

To a regular reviewer of the Empire this week comes as a sort of shock, for it is no slight metamorphosis to have those who were embroiled last week in the Pinneresque tragedy of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" doing a modern American musical comedy with light-hearted gusto and unexpected lyric abandon. However, it was a very pleasant if striking revelation to find that the talents of half a dozen fine actors are even broader than serious drama would lead one to believe. Mind you, we don't approve of this sort of thing at all, and drama will always be drama, and musical comedy its own tuneful frothy self—for just as we had begun to regard the Empire Players as a trusted haven in a sea of theatrical monotony, they turn to musical comedy. It was rather like seeing Eddie Cantor in Macbeth, Robert B. Mantell in "Abie's Irish Rose," Ivor Lewis as Uncle Tom, or H. E. Hitchman as Mephistopheles.

"Queen High" is a good musical comedy, bright, fast-moving, full of catchy songs, and equipped with a well-trained and well-rounded corps de ballet. Edith Taliaferro displayed her winsome personality to perfect advantage, and sang and danced surprisingly well. Robert Leslie was more handsome than ever, and quite delighted especially the feminine element of his audience. Frank Camp was grumpy and irritable to a degree of comic effectiveness. To House Baker to settle down to concentrate upon his work when he is physically not at his best, or too tired to think. He nerves himself to study with the result that he is worn out. His friends advise him he is going to have a nervous breakdown. But he is just being collegiate. He does not want to be laughed at for studying very hard during the day, or too near the beginning of the term.

Every student begins to realize about this time of year that he must work if he is going to make the grade. Just at the time when he most needs his health he finds that irregular habits have made it difficult for him to settle down to real academic study. The ideal thing it seems would be to get into training for study just as we do for sport. If after all the purpose for which we are at college is to acquire an education, the logical thing would be to keep in training all the time, or at least for the greater part of the time. It is too true that we react to physical condition. "Mens sana in corpore sano." The student above all people should lead a disciplined life. He cannot afford long to be separated from an orderly routine of living. He requires the perspective to see that to be master of himself now will bring him the power to be master of whatever lies in the future.

VARSITY WATER POLOISTS MEET MCGILL HERE ON SATURDAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Can Varsity overcome McGill's one goal lead in their water polo game at Hart House next Saturday night? This is the question that is worrying local followers after McGill's 3-2 win a couple of weeks ago. The Red and White would like nothing better than to take the championship and so make up in some measure for their recent swimming loss. Varsity, on the other hand, are keen to emulate last year's team's success when they brought the trophy back to Toronto after an absence of several years. There has been a tremendous interest manifest in this game, and present indications point to the largest crowd that ever attended a local game. It has been rumoured that music of a sort will be heard after the game.

The Varsity Intercollegiate basketball team leave Friday on their annual eastern tour, during which they play Queen's and McGill respectively. They are almost sure of the championship, which was won last year by Western, providing they break even in their next two games, which will close the season as far as Intercollegiate competition is concerned. Several members of the team will play their last games for Varsity and are out to stir up a little dust.

Varsity's Junior entry in the city basketball series advanced another step near the local championship when they defeated the Xebecs by a comfortable margin. The Juniors have had a hard season on account of lack of practice games, but appear to have struck their stride and should provide plenty of opposition for Rotakins, Elizabeth and West End, the other contenders for the title. Elizabeths, last year's juvenile champions, are favoured to win the local series, but then Varsity and West End must also be reckoned with, the former on account of previous performances and the latter on its speed and aggressiveness. Given any kind of an even break, the Blue Juniors should make things extremely lively for the travelling Lizzies and West Enders.

Yesterday afternoon's game between Pharmacy and St. Mike's, which the latter won after several tie games, is just one example of what has been going on all year in the various interfaculty groups. Two more evenly matched teams would have been hard to find; in fact, both are of Jennings Cup calibre and would provide mighty stiff opposition for many local T.H.L. and O.H.A. Junior teams. When two teams such as these battle for a group title, what will the final be like?

BASKETEERS IN LINE TO CREATE RECORD

Big Week-end Program Ahead of Senior Intercollegiate Team

The Blue and White Senior Intercollegiate cage team is in for a nice trip on Friday and Saturday and two smart battles that will mean much in the standing of the loop. The Varsity team must win one game at least to hold the title, and if they lose one and Queen's win it means a real opportunity for the Tricolour five. The Blues play in Kingston on Friday and in Montreal on Saturday, and these two games in a row will take plenty out of the McCutcheon outfit. They are right in form and are out to make a record of no losses this year. If they do create this record, and there is a grand chance of doing it, they will do something that will be hard to equal. They are fielding their strongest team, and with Captain Currie in the lead should win the championship without a loss providing they play their regular basketball.

VIC. GIRLS DECIDE TO HAVE NEW RULING FOR OFFICES

A mass meeting of the Victoria Women's Undergraduate Association was held at Wymilwood on Wednesday at 1.30 p.m. The problem up for discussion was limitation of offices in the different societies of the college. There were four suggestions to be dealt with as to the method by which this limitation should be enforced—first, that the elections for the different societies be held at different times; second, that there be no restriction on the number of offices for which a girl may be nominated, but that she write down, before the elections, her order of preference for the different offices; third, that each girl nominated withdraw from all but one office just before the elections; fourth, based on preference as shown by the voting results.

There was a good deal of discussion with regard to the merits and demerits of these four methods, but finally the motion that the third be adopted, was carried.

COMING MEET WILL BE WELL CONTESTED

Women's Basketball Teams from Four Universities to Compete for Title

TEAMS ARE IN GOOD SHAPE

In the coming Intercollegiate Women's Basketball Meet which takes place in Hart House on Friday and Saturday, the fans are assured some excellent and exciting games. Advance notices would indicate the various university teams are composed of players who have had considerable experience, and the games should be closely contested. McGill have a very smart team, and this year have annexed the Montreal Women's Basketball League championship, losing only one game, their first of the season.

Their captain and manager, Kathleen Runnells, has played for three years on the college team as jumping centre, and is sure to keep her opponents busy. Eleanor Brooks has been four years on the Intercollegiate team as guard. She is one of the mainstays of the McGill sextet. The balance of the team are all seasoned players and will no doubt give a good account of themselves.

The Western team, although it is their first year in the Intercollegiate, have met the Blue and White in an exhibition game last year and are expected to be a big factor in the coming tournament. Marg Turner as jumping centre and Mary Fiescher, forward, are the stars of the team.

The Tricolour team is made up of splendid players. Violet Anglin, captain and brilliant forward, has been well known in Intercollegiate circles for the past three years and is expected to live up to her reputation again this year. If the Varsity and Queen's teams meet there will be an exciting duel between Violet and the Blue and White brilliant guard, Mildred Wilkins.

Queen's diminutive side centre, Ruth Miller, is said to be one of the fastest players in the game. Queen's have not had a great deal of experience with outside teams this year, having played only three teams, defeating Kingston and Gleebe Ottawa Collegiates, but lost to the Montreal Y.W.C.A. in a hard fought game.

The Blue and White had a practice at Hart House yesterday and all are in fine fettle for the event. Emma Weir, snappy side centre, and Edie Blackwell, forward, were at their best, getting in some very pretty combination.

The visiting teams will be taken care of in the various girls' college residences and entertained at luncheon in the Georgian Room on Friday. Saturday evening there will be a banquet, followed by a dance at the Women's Union.

A big turn-out is expected for the meet, and it is advisable that tickets be secured early.

Seniors Contemplate Insurance Scheme

The seniors of Victoria College have launched a campaign for a permanent year memorial, to be achieved by means of life insurance. Each member of the year, or as many members as so desired, would, by annual subscriptions, keep up a number of policies for a period of twenty years, at the end of which the principle and interest accumulated would be enough to make a worth-while contribution to the College. The question is to be thoroughly discussed and decided at a class meeting this afternoon.

Debates Committee Appointed Last Night

The following undergraduates were elected to the Hart House Debates Committee for 1928-9 at the debate last night: G. I. Dumi, III Vic.; R. W. Finlayson, II U.C.; L. M. Gelber, II U.C.; J. H. Gringorten, II U.C.; D. D. Gunn, III Trinity; T. V. Kennedy, II St. Michael's; W. M. Martin, II U.C.; G. O. Murrell-Wright, II Trinity.

"A fundamental error," was the description applied by Mr. L. T. Grimm, President of the Harvard Debatists' Union, to the remark of a speaker on the affirmative, indicating that Canadian influence had secured the amendments to the bill formerly before Congress. He claimed that the reduction in the naval programme of the Statute was brought about by the people of that nation. Tumultuous acclaim greeted Mr. Grimm's comparison of the Speaker of the House to a battleship.

The following also spoke in favor of the motion: Messrs. L. S. Ramsey, G. M. Willon and H. S. Dodgson. Others opposing it were Messrs. G. O. Murrell-Wright, B. Thompson, D. D. Gunn and L. H. Clayton. A witty rebuttal by Mr. Lyndon Smith concluded the debate. Prof. V. W. Bladen acted as Speaker of the House.

S.A.C. EMBARKS ON DRASTIC ACTION AT OPEN MEETING

Hardmen of St. Microbe's
Address Meeting Speaks
for Motion

The decision that one pint of Herveine was to be put in the punch at the masquerade was the humane ukase issued by the S.A.C. at a meeting held yesterday evening in the basement of Bowles Lunch, Queen and Bay Streets.

Mr. Donahue was as usual in the chair, with Mr. Wiggins waiting. The meeting began with the representative from Union Theological Cemetery got his bottle opened. Discussion of business on the agenda began immediately that it was found that Mr. Wiggins had lost the minute book.

Mr. Fairy dropped a bomb-shell when he demanded to know who that lady was with whom the representative from Wycliffe was out last night. When it was found that it was neither the usual calm was restored.

Not until some hours later when it had been announced by radio that a picture of the council was to be taken were enough mustered to make a quorum and a meeting legal enough to pass one of the most pungent resolutions of the day, namely, the listerine-punch motion which was made by Mr. Hardmen of St. Microbe's. In his speech on behalf of the motion the speaker electrified his hearers with the remark that four out of five had it, and for some reason they all dug out life savers.

Mr. Arnold in attacking the motion remarked that Hart House punch was weak enough as it is. He quoted facts and figures to prove that he had his permit cancelled after purchasing sufficient ingredients, and even at that it took three heavy charges to get the orchestra to extemporise brilliantly enough.

Another near riot occurred when Mr. Arnold in an effort to prove his point handed a milk bottle full of the wild moose juice which had served as fuel at the Arts ball to Mr. Donahue.

Mr. Wiggins with great presence of mind disposed of the evidence in his usual efficient manner. Almost immediately the meeting broke up as Mr. Wiggins claimed that the lights had gone out.

Warden Answers Charges Over Purity of Local Soup

"Absolutely untrue," was the answer given by Mr. Bickersteth when asked if there was any truth in the rumour that preferential treatment was being accorded those members of Hart House who eat their meals at the high table. "There is only one kind of soup served in the Great Hall, and it is served to the high table. As it is absolutely impossible to make any worse soup, the other members of the House are served the same brand."

Further questions by the reporter failed to draw any more information from Mr. Bickersteth, and he suggested that if the matter was thought of sufficient importance it could be made the subject of a debate at the Women's Union.

Scoops The World

Owing to the prompt action of James Hryus Smilegortien, Star Varsity reporter, "The Varsity" was able to print full and detailed account of Mrs. Churchwood's last tea. Investigation has revealed the fact that no other paper in the world, including the "Shanghai Gesture," reported the tea before it appeared on these pages. Mr. Smilegortien, who happened to be on the spot at the time the disaster occurred, telephoned all particulars to this office. Laugh that off, Star!

The Great Hall, Hart House, was the scene last night of one of the most brilliant functions in the history of this University when the Free Lances held their centenary celebration in commemoration of Beethoven's inventions of the darned needle. A demonstration of the latest in laundry tactics was artistically rendered in the tank room by the U.C. branch of the Student Volunteers, while the gymnasium provided a harmonious background for the setting up exercises of the Annesley Hall Music Club. "Resolved that we are not" was the subject of an epoch-making debate held last night at the Literary Institute of Ginity College. The meeting opened with the singing of the college song "You take the low Rhode and I'll take the high Rhode and I'll be in Oxford before you."

An amendment to the song was offered by Hugh Manion, who suggested the verse, "You play rugby and I'll play tiddewinks and I'll be in Oxford before you." Mr. Manion was taken out and tapped by his admirers and presented with a free copy of Torontoensis.

The debate waxed fast and furious. Mr. Gindon Psmith, leader of the government, proposed in witty terms the motion, "Resolved that we are not." "I may be mistaken," said Mr. Psmith, "but from my observations I can honestly say that we are not. No one can accuse me of being optimistic, but allowing for all the faults that flesh is heir to, I sincerely believe that we in Ginity are not." (Prolonged cheering.) Mr. G. W. Milton, leader of the opposition, made a speech of great power in which he crysicated that we were. (Cries of "Shame!")

William Tell, speaking for the government, launched a slashing attack on Mr. Milton's speech. Rising to the support of the fair sex, he heatedly denied that the women of Ginity were. (Shouts of "The Saints Be Praised.") Mr. Looseman said that, admitting that we were not, nevertheless "for the sake of our posterity" we certainly must be.

Strong support was forthcoming for the government from the Murrell and (Continued on page 4)

THOMPSON IGNORES DEBATES COMMITTEE

Refuses to Hand Over Ballots, Coercion
Meditated

FERGUSON TO INTERVENE

At the third sitting of the special committee investigating the recent ballot scandal at the Hart House elections last year, Mr. B. J. Thompson, Liberal leader, again refused to produce the missing ballots which are in his possession. His refusal brought severe censure from the committee, and particularly from Mr. Wm. Aitken ("Max"), who is conducting the investigation.

The matter arose over Mr. Thompson's statement in a recent Hart House debate that he had in his possession eleven thousand ballots from the last Hart House elections. Mr. Thompson's veiled accusations against the government brought ready response from the ministers, and a special committee headed by Mr. Aitken was appointed. When the committee was called together Mr. Thompson refused to produce the ballots and a deadlock ensued.

It was rumoured that the Boss of the University would intervene and (Continued on page 4)

Aspirants

Members are informed that they will be required to show their Hart House membership cards at the door of the room in Hart House allotted to their college or faculty for voting purposes next Wednesday.

Membership stamps for those who have not already obtained them may be had on application at the Hall Porter's desk not later than 2 p.m. on Tuesday, 6th March. No stamps will be issued after that hour until the elections are over.

Those members who have already had their registration cards stamped with the Hart House stamp but have lost them may procure at the Warden's office a special voting permit enabling them to vote.

The polling hours are from 11.45 a.m. to 2.15 p.m. and from 4.30 to 6 p.m.

The rooms in Hart House will be allotted as voting stations as follows: University College—Reading Room. S.P.S. and Forestry—Lecture Room. Victoria College, Trinity College and St. Michael's College—Music Room. Faculty of Medicine—Boxing Room. Faculty of Dentistry—Room A. O.C.E. and Wycliffe College—Room C.

The voter having presented his Hart House membership card at the door of the polling station and having it stamped will proceed to the table allotted to his year and will give his name. Having had his name checked on the voters' list the voter will be given six ballot papers, one for each committee. After he has marked the ballots in pencil he will place these in the ballot boxes and leave the room. Members are reminded that no electioneering is permitted in the polling room.

GRADUATING CLASS HOLDS PRELIMINARY WORK-OUT

2T8 of University College Assemble at Local Beaenry

The graduating year of University College held an informal prep tea at the Pickadillie Tea Rooms. This is the first of a series of work-outs to culminate in a grand bun-fight at the King Eddie to be held sometime this month. The work-out proved most successful, and several of the members of the executive excelled themselves considering how long they've been out of training. President D. Mitchell out-did previous records in cookie punching and hoisted five cups of tea to the astonishment of assembled yokelry. The only casualty was Mr. Soward, who sprained his wrist from lifting six seidels of tea with one hand. Mr. Christie also received slight internal injuries caused by inadvertently drinking a class of water. After the refreshments were served Mr. Plumprent sang "Why do they all call me Freshie?" After that had been explained to him the meeting broke up in disorder.

PROFESSOR BLADEN CHOSEN AS LEADER IN HART HOUSE TANK

Debates Committee Takes Up
Music as New Division

SOON TO HOLD CONCERT

The most startling decision of the year was reached at the first meeting of the newly-elected Debates Committee yesterday when a Brass Band was formed. After much heated discussion, Professor V. W. Bladen was appointed leader.

Mr. John Gringorten was appointed chief trombone artist. He also was instrumental in having a band instead of an orchestra; it is rumoured that he hated to see people fiddling around. D. D. Gunn was also a strong candidate for the trombone, but he was finally relegated to the flutes. The leader-elect complimented him on his pucker-lip, which is essential to flute-playing.

G. O. Murrell-Wright was elected drummer. He is well known at Trinity for his agitations and spends most of his time beating the drum.

G. I. Dunn, from across the park, paddles around extensively on the Old Ontario Strand. He is a popular bridge player, so naturally he was elected to trumpet.

The first concert will be held under the baton of the popular leader in the Hart House Swimming Pool. Informal dress will be the order of the day.

As an opening number the cleansing aria "Lysol" by Lehn and Fink will be given, followed by the "Hart House Rhapsodie" in six raps by Larry Gains.

Disappears Under Jam Tins
But is Later Apprehended

BUT IT GOT AWAY

University of Toronto and vicinity were alarmed to hear early this morning of the finding of Amoebae in Hart House Swimming Tank. An attempt was made by the authorities to keep the matter from the press, but due to the ingenuity of a "Varsity" reporter, full details were obtained.

It seems that an attendant of Hart House, on entering the Swimming Room early this morning to eat his breakfast, saw what he took to be a Phagocyte disappearing under a pile of jam tins in the corner of the tank.

THE GRAND OLD FLAG

"My first impulse," stated the attendant to "The Varsity," "was to call it a day, but on second thoughts I decided that the situation must be faced. Stripping to the waist I prepared to rush the Progothalus Animabule 'Dam' thing' was the expression used). However, it eluded me and made for the running tracks. Remembering Mr. Martin's injunctions, I changed into my gym suit as quickly as possible, but by the time I reached the track the Amoeba had already gained six laps. However, I soon made this up, and was just ready to pounce on the new infuriated beastie when, WHO GETS ALL THE MARGINS? STEPPING ASIDE

After having had the rather strenuous honour of being permitted to attempt to express undergraduate opinion through the medium of this column for the past term, we are now about to vacate the chair and office in favour of a fresher, and still optimistic, hand. That our successor has our sincere sympathies we would like to assure our readers because, however sincere he may be, however earnestly he might wish to spread his message, and however tenaciously he might strive to mould a student opinion, he is bound to find himself disappointed in proportion to the amount that he hoped for or expected success. As a matter of fact, after several years on The Varsity staff it is not likely that he will have too great faith in the weight of his opinion upon the student body. He will know better than to suppose that his effusions are generally read. And after a time he will be inclined to desist from advising any of his fellows to do this or that.

Naturally we would wish to find the undergraduates reading the editorial column more. But actually we cannot blame them if they do not do so. The editor does not profess to believe all that he writes, and, often as not, he cannot write all that he believes. And then there are times when he has absolutely nothing to say but a column to fill. So then he sits at one, or two, or three o'clock in the morning and invents something that looks like business,—and then, possibly, a first class argument is started because it appears to be business.

We have found some severe criticisms of The Varsity amusing. Editors and reporters make mistakes, and in view of their many hardships, would be most foolish if they didn't. You see, particularly if they happen to be freshmen or sophomores, they are not on a tremendously greater plane than the ordinary university student. As a matter of fact the ordinary student is either prepared to "live and let live" or else is entirely ignorant of any error which is, unfortunately, not always the case with certain of our professors who subject us to a mighty close scrutiny.

While no newspaper man would attempt to speak about his journal as literature never-the-less The Varsity does feel that she is fulfilling a place in university life by educating certain undergraduates to the point where they might attempt to write it. Certainly there is an appreciable difference in the quality of the write-up of a probationer and that of a senior member of the staff, or between that of a staff man and one who does not belong. And so, evidently, The Varsity does give something which our Professors of English fail to give.

And our critics—students or professors—might remember that while they might write brilliantly and faultlessly after weeks or months it is an entirely different talent that writes semi-faultlessly in minutes, day in and day out, with countless revisions being entirely out of the question. Experience gradually decreases mistakes, and even Scott and Shakespeare, who most certainly wrote faster than any of our critics, had to acquire experience. Which is to say that, while there may be many that write better than the members of this staff, there are few that write faster.

Correspondence

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

May I offend the Cat again? It seems that not only professors, but undergraduates also, stand in need of imagination. Yet I suppose a goodly number of both sects heard "AE" speak on Friday evening, and left delighted to have discovered what a new meaning the Irish movement gives to English literature; and how national consciousness (the antithesis of Jingoism) is not expressed in terms of flag, scenery, or catalogues of names; and that language is a means of expression, a tool, a vessel for whatever new beauty may be found.—Canada cannot be a nation until her poets, her writers, grow up to this realization. And if instead of mockery the universities gave comprehension would not Canadians (through a glass, darkly) see the way of growing up? My further apologies to that mouthpiece of Public Opinion, The Cat. D.K.L.

Hawt, Music and Drama

The Preservatory Lyre last night presented in the East Cushion of Warty Chesterfield a sumptuous repast of coral and other rocks, mainly bones and strings. Under the superb conduction of Dr. Furnace Might-fill-in, the Lyre rendered "A Bowl of Wassail" in a manner which could not be equalled even by Swift and Co., or Jonny Walker. A pleasing number (not many) was the time-worn but ever popular "Juanita." Other songs were sung and on the bones and strings showed their enraptured congregation that Dr. One Coot Fits knows his bat an' how to use it. A feature of the evening was a solo by Misses Silly and Darling (one of the strings).

The concert closed with a short entrance by the Lyre entitled "Moats' Arts Heckle 'em (Best in Pieces)".

"Ferrara-Boom-Dee-Ay!" an original playlet in three scenes, was presented (free of charge) at the U.C. (peek-a-boo) yesterday by Miss Della Beamish. The theme was based on Bobbie Burns' "A man's a man for a' that—whether he's thin or whether he's fat—whether he's sober or whether he's tight—he's never a lady unless he's bright!"

The leading role (and bun) was played by Miss Natalie Anne Benson with her usual polish and nesse. In every scene Miss Benson showed herself an actress with a deep sense of the spirituelle. She took the part of the Duchess of Oshawa, a fuzz-faced lady of the Aristocracy.

Mr. Isadore Godfrey gave a polished interpretation of the character of General Chevrolet Motors, an old retainer of the Oshawa family.

Miss Della Beamish played with the part of Lady Popover Lightly with a strong feeling of Imperialism. She was an old nurse. The general opinion was that she was all wet.

The play opened with a spirited scene between Miss Beamish and Miss Benson. It was subsequently discovered that Natalie Benson refused to go on as she had a bad case of par-lour-maid's knee, and that the curtain had been parted by mistake. The audience appreciated the tour de force none the less.

Miss Benson in her acting showed a feeling of patriotism and a desire for a greater Empire. (Theatre.) A very charming solo, "Ferrara Songs of Yester-year!" was given as an interlude by Miss Pauline Gardner.

The mystic role of St. Louis the Golden was given by Izzie Brown with great pathos. He was in the end canonized by a few hot shots from Mlle. Benson.

In the discussion following, Miss Stephanie Dale asked the puzzling question "What is Art?" Miss Rayonore Card opined that it was a soul struggle; that every artist must pass through a creative crisis before he produced a play. The author of "Ferrara-Boom-Dee-Ay!" here interjected that this was true; that she had a thumping soul struggle before writing the playlet; that every summer she went up to Northern Ontario and peered at the natural resources, and had some good struggles.

Miss Benson here broke in and said that nobody had complimented her. At this point the "Varsity" laughed loudly and subsequently left the Guild six jumps ahead of Miss Benson.

HANS KINDLER

On March the sixth, Hans Kindler will give a recital in Hart House Theatre. Hans Kindler is one of the most outstanding violoncelloists of today, whose work is perhaps well known to many undergraduates through the records which have been made of his playing. A limited number of seats have been reserved for undergraduates of this University, the price of which has been remarkably reduced, and it is hoped that the approaching examinations will not persuade anyone to deny himself the pleasure of hearing Hans Kindler. The tickets for students will be on sale at the Hall Porter's desk in Hart House a few days before the recital.

The first present of the year arrived yesterday, and we found it pinned to the bulletin board. Gratefully and carefully we opened it and found a pair of male garters that had lost their wonted elasticity. As we happen to be self-supporting at present, we simply re-addressed the little gift to another editor. He didn't appreciate it at all. If any more similar tributes arrive, there will be a Rummage Sale in the basement of the Church Parlors next Tuesday.

VARACITY DEFEATS I.C.S 19-18 FOR THE PING-PONG TITLE

PEAKING OF SORTS

The Alma Mater is indeed delighted to note the success of its proteges in the World Parches iseries. Good luck Grads.

While the Frauds were winning a world title, the under-frauds were heaping more laurels on the old "secondary" by winning the ping-pong title and the much coveted Smackem Trophy.

Intrafacility sports are nearing completion, for Vic. won the Lotto title, while School romped home an easy winner in blind-man's-buff. Dents noted out Meds for the Nuts-in-May competition, while Trinity on a rebate got the Chesterfield Rugby Cup from St. Mike's.

Judging by the form shown in their recent practices Varsity's chances in the Intercollegiate snooker league this year would seem to be if possible poorer than last year. For fifteen years Varsity has been a poor third to McGill and Queen's in this sport, and since the inclusion of Shields' College it would seem that the Blue and White was doomed to be relegated at fourth place. The game to-morrow night in the Hart House Tuck Shop does not warrant the attendance of a single University student. Any who do attend will be certain to see a Blue and White team go down to defeat. There is no reason at all why anyone should attend, as the boys are simple terrible and don't know the first thing about the game.

The undergraduate support at the recent athletic contest has been discouraging in the extreme. Just why students should waste their time supporting Varsity teams is hard to see, particularly as there are so many counter attractions in the form of ten cent movies, etc. It is not within reason that students, pressed for money as they are, should spend two dollars for a season ticket admitting them to twelve senior hockey games when they can get an orchestra seat at a burlesque show for a dollar and a half. When will the student body come to its senses and realize that teams of all kinds can play better when they are not disturbed by the vociferous shouting of their enthusiastic admirers.

Though at present ahead in the senior O.H.A. series Varsity has not given up hope. They still have a series to play with Kitchener for the right to enter the Allan Cup playoffs. A defeat by the Green Shirts will mean that the boys will not have to play any more this season and can hang up their togs and get to work. Even if Varsity is unfortunate enough to beat Kitchener they will still have several teams to play, so there is little danger of the Allan Cup coming to Hart House. This will be appreciated by those students who would otherwise be forced to stand in line for tickets for the finals and then have to take a half day off to welcome the team on its return.

The following is the schedule for all postponed games.

March 2—St. Mike's vs Trinity
March 3—Victoria vs Trinity
March 5—Wycliffe vs St. Mike's
March 6—Sr. U.C. vs Sr. S.P.S.

BLUE AND WHITE GAIN NEW LAURELS

Grads Distinguish Themselves at Olympic Games

SWISS TEAM SORE

Olympic Games, Tokio, Japan, 1928 Varsity Grads, champions of Canada and holders for the Guinea Gold Trophy, to-day won the premier parches honours of the world when they defeated their closest rivals, the Hong Kong Mah Jongs, in the final round of the Olympic competition.

It was expected that the United Snakes of America would be keen competitors, but they were unable to raise a team to make the trip, and as a result Uncle Damn was unrepresented in the competition.

The game itself was clean throughout, very few penalties being handed out. Hong Kong scored their lone point early in the second period when Red Porter was in the penalty box for body checking, but the elongated defence man soon returned and made his presence felt by nothing two tallies in quick succession for the Blue and White. Trying game the Mah Jongs fought back strongly, and like several Varsity rugby teams, showed little or nothing.

It is possible that a protest may be lodged by the Swiss team on the ground that their special supply of cheese was stolen earlier in the week, with the result that they suffered elimination in the first round. This was due to the fact that the Swiss attack was built around a cracker and cheese play, and due to the loss of their cheese the Watchmakers were unable to get their plays started.

One of the features of the game was the presentation of a sacred white elephant to the Varsity players before the play started, by the well-known parches enthusiast Owatana King of Siam. This wonderful creature will be kept as a trophy and presented to the U. of T. Athletic Association as a perpetual mascot. It will be kept in the Hart House tank and will be under the particular care of Mr. Will Wintergreen.

INTERFACULTY SPORTS

VIC.-FORESTRY LOTTO

In a loosely played Lotto game, Wicktoria easily defeated the tree dwellers by displaying remarkable pre-season form. The winners stepped into the lead at the very outset, and their opponents never had a chance. There are rumours of a protest being entered because the Wick team often "Lottoed" before the caller-off had even flipped his discs.

S.P.S.—U.C. BLIND MAN'S BUFF

School again came into their own when in three ten-minute sessions they came out ultimately triumphant. S.P.S. deserved to win, for they have been developing their team continually, and only by the utmost persistence were they able to achieve this pinnacle of success. University Cowlich put up a stubborn resistance, but their signals did not work, and many times sure success was missed by a hair.

MEDETTES GAIN OVER AURA LEE STALWARTS

Aura Lee Team Had Little Chance After Third Round

ONE MEDETTE CASUALTY

In an overtime and overheated game in the Mutual Street Arena last night the Medettes overwhelmingly defeated the Aura Lee team by 54-1. The game was thrilling from the first tee-off. In the first minute of play, Emma Goldman, first base for Medicine, scored a basket on an offside rush. The action speeded up as three of the Aura Lee ladies were completely laid out and forced to retire. The ball rushed backward and forward in quick succession, scattering the audience, and so exhausting the players that by the second sitting only two players remained on the floor, the Aura Lee goalie and the Medette guard, and white-robed attendants rushed higher and anon with resuscitation appliances.

With two minutes to go, the A. L. goalie skated slowly up the ice, eluding the Medette guard by a nicely faked pass, and, while the referees stood on tip toe, scored the winning basket, giving the victory to the hard-earned Medette five.

French Tea Held

A very large crowd of students enjoyed the tea at which Mrs. Jeanneret and Mrs. McAndrew received. Both the faculty and students seemed to have a very lively conversation over their tea-cups, some of it being in French. Quite a number of the male students even ventured to enter the sanctuary.

dying moments of play. St. Mike's strutted some nice strachedy and several new legitimate holds were sprung for the approval of the sport world.

DENTS—MEDS NUTS-IN-MAY

The real thrill in Interfaculty sports was the battle between two ancient rivals for the Nuts-in-May challenge trophy. The Jaw Hunters showed a remarkable facility in this year's contest and the Saw Bones had to bow their heads in defeat. When it came to the final "yank" the extractors were there with the goods, and while the Osteopaths were good in the crushes, they were not able to pull their patients through.

U. OF T. VS I.C.S. U. OF T. 19, VS. 18

Ping-Pong Championship Now Back With Alma Mater

CREDIT DUE PROF. BLATANT

Playing a superbly defensive game, with rare exhibitions of thrilling attacks, the Veracity ping-pong squad came through in the dying minutes of play to dispose of their old rivals I.C.S. by a small margin and recover the treasured Smackem Trophy. The final score in points was 19-18. The "Postage-Stamp" started out with a rush which for a time put the locals off their game, but able coaching on the part of Professor Blatant steadied the team, and when the fans rushed for a drink of stone ginger at half time, the Blews were trailing only 12-2 in sets.

In the second session the Hart House Library resounded with polite gasps as the Blatanites gradually forged ahead. Boland Marrick, the star plunger for the home team, thrilled the audience with his nonchalant playing. On two occasions, though, he was a bit nonplussed when the celluloid spheroid took unexpected turns and touching his cigarette, immediately disappeared in obnoxious fumes. When the referee awarded the points to Correspondents there were a few deep sighs of reproach.

Mr. Dunlop, the retiring captain of the "Stamper", had an uncanny backhand shot which had the happy faculty of just catching the end of the referee's nose, much to the delight of the Blew team and supporters. This little trait on set points did much to revive the courage of the home team, and if a vulgarism may be permitted, "It brought home the bacon."

Veracity was weak around the nets, while several racquets were broken in the melee.

RELIGIOUS ASPECT OF GREEK TRAGEDY MAKES STUDY HARD

Appreciation of Hellenic Dramas a Real Tribute

PROF. S. M. ADAMS SPEAKS

Cultivated Greeks Held Belief in Monism Despite Pantheon

"The fact that Greek dramas satisfy us to-day when presented upon the stage is both a tribute and a misfortune," declared Professor S. M. Adams of Trinity College in his lecture on "The Religious Aspect of Greek Tragedy." "It is a tribute to the literary art of the dramatists, but a misfortune in that it prevents the study of the dramas from what may be called their contemporary point of view." He held that every art should be judged from the viewpoint of the time of its production.

Tracing the history of the development of Greek tragedy from the chorus and narrator of the festivals of Dionysius through the works of Aeschylus, Sophocles and Euripides, he found the tragedies to be essentially religious works "aimed at setting in order the house of Greek religion."

"The Greeks conceived of one supreme god," he declared. "Neither to Homer nor to any cultivated Greek did Zeus, Apollo or the other members of the pantheon of Olympus figure as gods. They were rather as a superior race of men and women of supernatural power, living in a far land and able to influence the lives of men for good or for evil. The task of the writers of the Greek tragedies was to induce men to look beyond this pantheon."

CANADIAN WATERWAY SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE

General Mitchell Advises
Co-operation with States

WATER POWER DEVELOPED

An all-Canadian waterway to the sea is impracticable, according to the opinion of Brigadier General Mitchell, Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, who addressed a meeting of the Engineering Society.

"Impartial engineers have surveyed the surrounding territories and have arrived at a conclusive decision that the best route would lie partly through Canadian territory and partly through American," he said. "The water would be too shallow and too many rocks would have to be contended with to make the scheme solely a Canadian project. As Canada could not change her levels, co-operation with the United States would be essential if the scheme is to be carried through."

The speaker also mentioned that, were the canal built according to plan, that is with a 27-foot depth, 70 per cent. of the world's shipping could be handled along the route of the canal. "Last year," continued Dean Mitchell, "the Hydro Power Commission reached the maximum in its possible output of power. It has made a contract that supplied the additional power certainly needed, but that is only to last for four or five years. The St. Lawrence River development would provide a greater bulk of water to supply all the power necessary."

CHINESE EMPEROR WAS INTERMEDIARY FOR WHOLE NATION

Head of Manchu Dynasty Had Personal Interviews with God

RELIGION WAS UPSET

International Trade Originated in Consumption of Luxuries

"In the Chinese religion the worship of heaven is foremost," said Sir Berran Windle in his last lecture. "The sole intermediary between heaven and the people is the emperor. He was supposed to be granted personal interviews with the Almighty, but the people were not allowed this privilege, they being confined to ancestor worship. The altar of heaven, where the emperor sacrificed to the Almighty, is the largest in the world. This system broke down with the coming of the republic, for the Chinese people being logical could hardly believe the president they themselves had elected could be the son of heaven. When China was bereft of the Manchu dynasty, the people had no intermediary between them and heaven. And since no nation can get along without religion, it has led to much confusion and unrest."

Jade was the royal stone in China with symbolic meaning, continued the speaker, and to it was due the first trading of the country. It was collected, he said, for the purpose of satisfying people's vanity and from this point of view he thought it could be argued that vanity was the beginning of trade. He remarked it was a curious thing that jade in China and amber in Europe, both of which were luxuries, were the first articles of commerce along established trade routes. Though called China jade, it was found only in Burma and Turkey.

UNION THEOLOGICAL HAS PASSED AWAY

New Unit in Victoria College Will Be Known As Emanuel College

MEANS "GOD IS WITH US"

"Emmanuel College" will now take a place on the campus as a theological unit in Victoria University. This name was chosen last week to be inserted in the charter now before the private bills committee of the legislature as the official title of the institution which will take over the work of Union Theological College and the Theological Faculty of Victoria College.

The name was chosen late in the afternoon after much debating on the part of the committee which met in the chapel of Victoria College. "Emmanuel," it is understood, means "God is with us."

Pick Candidates for Office

MRS. BRETT HON. PRES.

The W.U.A. of University College held a mass meeting at the Women's Union on Wednesday. The treasurer announced that over a thousand dollars had been raised through the bridge and the Queen's Hall subscription dance towards the Women's Building Fund. A presentation was made by Miss Brown to Mrs. Cochran, the honorary president, for her assistance during the year, especially in connection with the bridge.

The meeting was then thrown open for nominations for the executive for the W.U.A. Mrs. G. S. Brett was voted honorary president by acclamation. The remaining nominations were:

Pres. Edith MacCallum, Eleanor Ross, Eleanor Barton, Beryl Goettler.
Vice-Pres.: Phyllis Howard, Betty Rous, Wilma Speers.

Secretary: Anne Harris.
Treas.: Dorothy Millicamp, Agatha Chapman, Helen Reid, Jean Mooney.

Nominations for the various year executives followed, and these lists will be posted in University College.

The elections will be held on Wednesday, March 14th, in the Women's Common Room.

PROVINCIAL HOUSE PASSES FULL GRANT

Growth of University Shown by Increase of Amount

SIR R. FALCONER PLEADED

Satisfaction was expressed in University circles recently over the sum granted by the provincial legislature. The amount, $1,188,151, was requested. No cuts of any kind being made in the estimates.

Sir Robert Falconer, when interviewed by the press, was pleased but not at all surprised. "We only get what we require," he said. "So much is needed and it would be rather difficult to carry on with less."

The Bursar, Dr. F. A. Moore, Mrs. Doe, gave certain figures that show in a startling manner the phenomenal growth of the University.

In 1927 the amount asked for and granted was $1,059,026, or $129,125 less than this year. In 1926 the grant was $987,945, while ten years ago, in the closing year of the war, $200,000 was the total, which is $988,151 less than this year.

"This shows the growth of the University even more forcibly than the registration papers," Dr. Moore pointed out.

Heavy Balloting Characterizes
Elections at Hart House
Wednesday

ALL FACULTIES REPRESENTED

Little Difference Between Candidates For Some Committees

Intense enthusiasm marked the Hart House elections which were held Wednesday to decide who are to be entrusted with the management of Hart House, under the direction of the Board of Stewards, for the season 1928-29. Immediately as the polling started Wednesday at 11.45, aspiring candidates circulated about the halls distributing blotters, gum, chocolate bars and other impedimenta.

One candidate for the Billiard Committee went to the extent of handing out cigarettes of an imported brand to each and all who seemed likely to exercise their franchise in his behalf. In the afternoon the candidates got the idea of hanging their cards around their necks, and soon resembled a collection of sandwich men.

A colourful gallery of enticing advertisements and posters was a feature of the campaigning, and a number of the posters were chosen for a permanent collection of the Sketch Club.

The returning officers worked long into the night counting and revising the results; the Library Committee, in which some candidates came with in 3, 5 and 16 votes of each other, offered special difficulty.

The results of the elections are as follows, in order of votes received:

For the House Committee: W. A. Gilbert, U.C.; W. R. McIntosh, S.P.S.; J. R. Johnstone, Vic.; G. M. Wilson, Trinity; J. B. Matthews, Forestry; P. D. Scollard, St. Michael's; A. J. Stringer, U.C.; and J. F. McCullough, Meds.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS AS AN INTERNATIONAL HYGIENE EXPERIMENT

Dr. C. E. A. Winslow of Yale Gives Last Lecture of Series

SANITY A CURE FOR WAR

Visitor Stresses Importance of Environment for Children

"The League of Nations is a vast mental hygiene experiment," said Dr. C. E. A. Winslow of Yale University in the last Mental Hygiene lecture.

"The reason that many nations have failed to join the League of Nations may be one involving problems of mental hygiene," he said. "It may be that certain men of those nations are mentally deficient. If all men were absolutely sane, there would be no industrial disputes and no wars; as it may be concluded that the League of Nations is a vast mental hygiene experiment."

Dr. Winslow explained that there is no definite dividing line between sanity and insanity. "It is hard to eradicate the feeling of blame against those who fail to measure up to the perfection of sanity," continued Dr. Winslow, "whereas a person with a cold in the head or a limping leg may be far more to blame for his defects than is one who is mentally deficient. Mental disease and mental defect are separate, although interrelated; 60 per cent. of mental defect is hereditary, and mental disease results largely from environment."

Dr. Winslow stressed the importance of focusing the machinery of hygienic care, not only upon children of school age, but also upon children in the tender years prior to attending school. "The child who suffers from an atmosphere of repression in the home, and submits to it," he stated, "becomes anybody's yes-man, and a child who reacts in the precisely opposite manner is in an equal amount of danger. The third type, who escape both submission and rebellion, builds up an unreal world of his own, through the habit of evasion, and continues to live in a world of make-believe agreement and opposition, which unites the child for effective combat in later years."

FRIDAY, MARCH 9, 1928

WE SHOULD GUIDE OUR EXPRESSIONS

Just how careful we should be, because of the fact that seeming insignificant acts often produce and leave impressions most detrimental to ourselves, may be seen from the following extract from the undergraduate monthly of a sister Canadian university: "WARNING—Since this is the last issue of the Magazine before the Con. we might take occasion to remark that although Love is Blind, unfortunately, chaperones are not. Also. No matter what you may think, this College is NOT A SNUGGERY." Frankly, from afar, we are not inclined to believe that our fellow editor means just what he appears to say. But the point is that, while hundreds of his own readers may realize fully just what meaning should be conveyed, hundreds of others, unfamiliar with the editor's local conditions, could not help but take a meaning that would be anything but complimentary to the students of a favourably known institution of learning.

Those things about which we comment, and the manner in which we make those comments, are subjects upon which we, in our hurry, devote by far too little thought. Generally speaking we realize the truth of the statement that "A man is known by the friends he keeps," and many of us make a conscientious effort to advance our reputations in this respect. But to say that we bridle or guide our tongues would most certainly be making a statement that is not always true. The fact is that many a university student has a more than passing fair opinion of himself and his own viewpoint, and all too often is he inclined to endeavour to force that viewpoint in all of its unpalatableness upon some wiser and yet less forceful person. And that his ideas may be a degradation to himself, at times, he has not had the good fortune to recognize.

CHAMPUS CAT

Well, the sands of time are sinking and there will be but one more issue of this column. That issue we reserve for a real old-time farewell, when we make our quietus like Chief Dickson after many years at a tough and thankless job. Like the chief, we'll watch our successor with much interest and more gusto. In fact, it will be a real treat.

In the true spirit of semi-leave-taking, one feels that he should leave something behind in the way of a message, a large glob of wisdom, humour, wit or what-have-you, so, little nephews and nieces, gather round closely, and old Aunt Boadicea will tell you what she learned in her many many years at college:

A FLIGHT FROM PENTAMETER
And that—my friends—is all—the way
—I've come!

But in my ponderings
And cogitations after loud Carlyle, —(Boy, tell that band-master to seek elsewhere
A penny's praise for all his noise!)—
I've realized one desperate truth,
So far so good:

That I am all the very obvious things
I swore that I was not . . .
Did I stop ever formulate
A fable of an antelope who fled
In very earnest fashion at top-speed
From an oncoming herd of tortoises?
This lusty fugitive girdled the earth
And then appeared
Behind his own pursuers, who, knowing sagely

That half his time would be pursuit
Of them,
Made him Doctor
("Honoris Causa," of course)

Student Verse

EVEN SO

Seek me not among the masses
Where the singers come and go,
Where the banners all are floating,
Swaying bravely to and fro.

Seek me not within the street-ways
Where the bands go swinging by
And the laughter of the care-free
Rings aloud unto the sky.

Seek me in the call of wind-flowers
Blown across the bitter years,
Seek me in the fall of rain-drops,
Falling softly down the years.

Seek me in the halls of silence
Filled with pain, and darkness too,
Seek me in the gloom and suffering—
Even so come I to you.

H. C. Players' Guild

Last night the Players' Guild of University College presented as their second evening production for this year "The Lucky One" by A. A. Milne. The play was directed by Mr. Raymond Card, director of the Guild. The cast, which was made up largely of new members, included: Paul Gardiner, John Cowan, Hamilton Miller, Geneva Campbell, Mary Satterly, Frances Dale, Clarence Tracy, Howard Lindsay, Frances King and Constance Shiell.

Sketch Room

In connection with the four hundredth anniversary of the death of Albrecht Dürer, an exhibition of his works is now on view in the Sketch Room. This will be followed by an exhibition of coloured wood-blocks by Mr. Phillips, the well known Winnipeg artist. During April there will be an exhibition of posters specially procured from England. There will also be an exhibition of reproductions of the Flemish, Dutch, Italian and French Schools. These have recently been purchased for Hart House from a special fund and constitute a valuable addition to the art treasures of the Sketch Room.

Shakespearean Comedy Revived

Next week at the Princess there will be presented one of Shakespeare's first comedies, "The Merry Wives of Windsor" with two internationally-famous stars in the major roles. Otis Skinner, last seen in Toronto in "The Honour of the Family," will undertake the role of that immortal reveler, Sir John Falstaff, the greatest comic figure in English drama. Mrs. Fiske, who has here several months ago in Ibsen's "Ghosts," will play Anne Page, one of the ladies who so delightfully hoodwink the rascally old knight. "The Merry Wives of Windsor" is a play seldom given professionally at present, and all students of Shakespearean drama are advised not to miss a production that will be memorable in the offerings of the present dramatic season.

Score 31—31 When Blue Team Surprises Critics and Gets Draw

Varsity tied Elizabeth Playgrounds in the city junior final last night 31-31. The second game will be played at Central Y on Saturday night at 8.00. Elizabeth led at half time 19—13, but Varsity tied it up in the second half. Pasternak scoring a foul shot with 45 secs. to go. The stars for Varsity were Capt. Garbe, Pasternak and Scott, while for Elizabeth Starr and Eisen were good. Starr was unfortunate in spraining his ankle with only 1 sec. left to play. The return game should be a real thriller, as the total points count on the round.

Line-up:
Varsity: Hutcheon (4), Garbe (9), Pasternak (9), Scott (6), White (1), Traynor (2), Sullivan, Carr, Brown, Fowell, Ireland.

BILL STEWART HURT

Varsity Unable to Overcome
Lead in Spite of Open Play

On Tuesday evening at the Arena Gardens the curtain was rung down on the senior hockey season for this year, when Mike Pearson's Varsity O.H.A. entry was eliminated in the senior Ontario finals by the Kitchener Green Shirts. The K's have been staging an uphill fight all season, and it was not until the final game of the schedule with Preston that they earned the right to meet Varsity in the finals, and therefore are regarded as logical representatives of the O.H.A. in the Allan Cup play-offs.

Before a poor crowd of about 3,000 people, the final game was played on Tuesday at Andy Taylor's down town ice palace. Varsity faced the tremendous task of overcoming the visiting sextet's two goal lead, and in the face of Kitchener's close defensive game could hardly be expected to rise to such an occasion.

With everything to win and nothing to lose, Varsity threw caution to the winds in the last session and staged relentless four man attacks. Their tactics here probably cost them Kitchener's only goal, but it also counted for them their final tally. The Blue clad stick-handlers swarmed about Berner like bees, but the latter rose to the occasion and kept them all out. Richards went around the net again and shoved the disc across through a maze of legs, but once again Smith called it offside. Varsity fought harder than ever now. Whitehead went down on a rush and counted to put the students within a goal of tying.

Varsity: Goal, Snyder; defence, Whitehead, Kirkpatrick; centre, McMullen; wings, Harley, Richards; subs, Legon, Stewart.

Kitchener: Goal, Berner; defence, Karges, Schneider; centre, Seagram; wings, Mobson, Roth; subs, Heller, Farrell.

No Score Game Between Vic.
and U.C. in Hockey Semi-final

The second and last game for the women's interfaculty hockey championship was played last Saturday, March 3rd, between U.C. and the first Vic. team. In the two championship games, goals count and not games, and in this contest the Vic. First team had a one goal lead from the game on Monday. They retained this margin and the Saturday game resulted in a no score exhibition. The Interfaculty championship thus goes to the Vic. First team.

CLOSE GAME WITH QUEEN'S

The Women's Intercollegiate Basketball Meet staged last Friday and Saturday at Hart House resulted in a championship for the Western sextet.

In the preliminaries played Friday night the McGill and Western co-eds were victorious. The Red and White basketballers defeated Queen's 34—33, and the London sextet defeated the Varsity girls 28—17. Queen's were prominent for their long and accurate shots, while McGill were outstanding for close combination. The Varsity-Western game was a disappointment to local fans. The Varsity co-eds were not up to form and did not play their usual game.

Spectators were treated to a splendid exhibition of basketball when the Tricolour met Varsity co-eds in an exhibition tilt Saturday afternoon, defeating them to the tune of 36—35 after playing six minutes overtime. Violet Anglin, Queen's forward, was a stellar player. Individually the Varsity girls were in good form. The captain, Ede Buchanan, in her forward position excelled, while her partner, Ede Blackwell, was outstanding for her steady playing and long shots. Emma Weir outshone her usual fine form.

After the exhibition game McGill and Western played off for the title. The Londoners came forth with the laurels by a 39—16 score. Both teams appeared tired, and no particularly brilliant shooting was displayed. M. Turner, the captain and jumping centre of the winners, played an all-round game and was largely responsible for the outcome.

Varsity: E. Blackwell, E. Buchanan, E. Weir, D. Kerr, M. Wilkins, F. Service, B. McDonald, G. Keffer, A. Muckle.

Jennings Cup to Victoria for Third Successive Time

For the third successive season Victoria College won the Jennings Cup, emblematic of the Interfaculty hockey championship, and in all their games they demonstrated their superiority. In the semi-finals against Junior U.C. on Monday afternoon they took a 3—0 decision in a fast game, and on Wednesday they disposed of Dents by a like score.

The whole Vic. team turned in a good game, with "Red" Allen standing out, while for the losers Hazelton and Bishop were best.

Line-up:
Victoria: Goal, Wallace; defence, McDonald, McMillan; centre, Allen; forwards, Pleyman, Stanley; subs, Lindsay, Hager, Walls.

Dental College: Goal, Hewitt; defence, Whittaker, Hazelton; centre, Bishop; forwards, Conn, Sheridan; subs, Harron, Mahaffey, Waldon.
Referee: Sinclair.

McGILL BEATS VARSITY IN WATER POLO FINAL

Good Combination of Varsity Men of No Avail Against Red Team

Before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a water polo game in Toronto, Varsity went down to defeat before McGill, in Hart House tank, by the score of four to one. As the Red and White had previously captured the first game by 3 to 2 the previous week in Montreal, the visiting poloists thereby earned the round by 7 to 3 and the Intercollegiate title.

With a one goal lead, the red-capped visitors displayed a close checking game, featured with snappy ball-handling and accurate shooting, with which the Blue defence could not successfully cope. Bowine, for McGill, showed plenty of speed, and Capt. Gibbons at centre played a fast, heady game, and were the pick of the visiting team. Varsity showed plenty of smart combination plays, but these good tactics were nullified by poor shooting in the vicinity of the nets. It was left for Jim Walker, the sturdy Blue defence player, to move up and score the locals' only tally of the evening on a pretty solo effort. Wansbrough, in goal, stopped a flock of fast accurate shots all evening, and three of the four that did beat him were of the impossible variety.

McGill: Goal, Buchanan; defence, Matthews, Naidley; centre, Gibbons (capt.); forwards, Quinn, Goddard; subs, Bowine, Gillman.

to-morrow and Tuesday evenings, and all who intend to turn out must be at the Hall Porter's desk at 7 p.m. sharp. The preliminaries of the ornamental and style swimming events will be run of Tuesday, and all those who intend to enter must attend this practice.

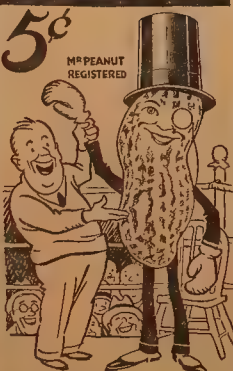

The programme is as follows:—1, Plunge; 2, Free Style (50 yards); 3, Novelty (O.C.E. and U.C.); 4, Diving; 5, Novelty; 6, Side Stroke (50 yards); 7, Ornamental; 8, Monte Cristo Sack Feet; 9, Back Stroke (25 yards); 10, Style Swimming; 11, Mary Casson; 12, Breast Stroke (25 yards); 13, Novelty (Vic.); 14, Relay Race.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Last week was not so good from a sporting standpoint because there was only one bright spot in all of Varsity's activities.

A casual resume of the sporting accomplishments of the University indicate the following championships: Junior Rugby, Tennis, Golf, Hockey, B. W. & F., Basketball, Track, Harrier, Swimming, and that's about enough for one season. We might add, though, that Intermediate hockey and basketball are not yet over.

The women started it off with losing out in their Intercollegiate competition.

Except for Intermediate hockey and basketball, the Varsity Intercollegiate sports are at an end, and the only activities on the cards from now to the end of the term consist of junior basketball, exhibition lacrosse tour, Canadian fencing championships. Interfaculty baseball and basketball are in their last stages, and then come the oblivion of EXAMS.

Street at 0945 hours on Wednesday, 14th March, for the Third Paper.

Candidates for Certificate "B" are allowed the use of the Field Service Pocket Book; no other book is allowed by any candidate.

(Signed)

TEACHERS TRAINED FOR HIGH SCHOOLS BY BEST METHODS

Three courses offered by O.C.E. open to advanced students

(COLLEGE FOUNDED IN 1892)

This is the last of a series of articles on the history of smaller faculties in the University.

Special training of high school teachers in Ontario began about 1885, but organized work was started seven years later when the School of Pedagogy was established in the old Normal School building. Although in 1896 the school was shifted to Hamilton and re-styled the Ontario Normal College, it was, in December 1906, at the request of the Minister of Education, created a faculty of the University of Toronto by the Board of Governors and once again removed from the Ambitious City to what is now University College. Here it remained for three years, until in 1910 the University of Toronto Schools were built, to provide facilities for teaching and demonstration, to give practice under expert guidance, and to experiment in modern educational methods. A school was also established at Queen's. In 1921 the faculty assumed the name of the Ontario College of Education, as the provincial Department of Education desired a reorganization of the faculty at Toronto, but it still retained its connection with the University. At the same time its standards of entrance were raised; instead of allowing admission to all, it was open from that date to college graduates only. This means that the Ontario College of Education is virtually a post-graduate school.

Three courses are offered in the School: those for the B.Paed degree, those under the School of Graduate Studies, for the degrees of D.Paed.

MEN DRINK FOR WAGER DOCTORS ARE NEEDED

Competition Not Public But Run Off According to Proper Rules

FIVE JUDGES THERE

A drinking match to settle ability to hold their like a man was staged, according to reports, not very long ago at Queen's, between two undergraduates. After the haze of battle cleared, medical attention was required.

The competition, though not public, was run strictly according to Hoyle. Five judges were provided, together with a representative of the "Queen's Journal."

Each contestant was provided with a bottle of whisky. Each was dosed at regular intervals with measured drinks. In an hour the bottles were empty and the contestants otherwise.

Where Does It Hurt Parent More Than Child?

Corporal punishment is a heritage from the middle ages, and will be wiped out with the advance of civilization, according to Professor W. E. Blatz, of the Department of Psychology, who spoke recently before the Victoria College Alumnae Association. "Nobody wants to punish children," the speaker added. "But if we want peace of mind, we won't get it by punishment. It is inconvenient, and it hurts the parent more than the child, though not in the same place."

Dalcroze Eurythmics

An abstract method of expression of emotions evoked by rhythm will be demonstrated in Convocation Hall next week under the auspices of the Dalcroze Eurythmics Association and the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

The system was evolved by M. Jaques-Dalcroze, a Swiss composer, who felt that his pupils lacked appreciation of rhythm.

In the demonstration, the master, M. Paul Boepple, will play the piano by improvising, and the three lady pupils will express their sense of the rhythm by bodily movements and expressions.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY EMPLOYS A HUNDRED

Many Students Help With Work of Mapping and Exploring

PAY DEPENDS ON ABILITY

Each summer the Geological Survey of Canada sends out about 50 field parties employing nearly 100 students as assistants. These parties carry on mapping operations in every province and territory of Canada. They work in all types of country, in areas of geological and mining importance, and provide training for students in geology and surveying. The staff of the Geological Survey is recruited from students who have worked on its parties. While the principal function of the Geological Survey is to map Canada geologically, in doing this it is necessary to produce high grade topographical maps. Topographical mapping is a distinct part of the activities of the Survey and is essentially a field for the training of mining and civil engineering students. Knowledge of geology is not necessary for employment on a topographical party, but a knowledge of topographical mapping is a valuable asset to a geological student. The experience to be gained in topographical mapping with the Geological Survey covers the whole range of detailed and exploratory mapping methods. Photo-topography, planetable operations, transit traverse, triangulation and levelling are some of the more important methods used.

General information and application forms may be obtained from the professors in the departments of geology, civil engineering and mining engineering, by those students who have passed their second year examinations in one of these departments. Rates of pay depend upon the experience of the applicant. An inexperienced student receives $2.50 per day, together with travelling expenses and subsistence in the field. Applications should be addressed to the Director of the Geological Survey, Ottawa, Ontario, before the end of March.

Students Are All Too Wealthy In States Are Like Bootlegger

Students are provided with too much money, is the opinion of J. A. Giffen of Detroit, a U.C. grad. of '88, writing in the U.C. Monthly.

"Statistics will show that the greater number of undesirable students are provided with too much money. Their idea is to have a good time. They do not know the value of money—something that can be gained only through experience—and they are not to be found among those who pay their way through college. The ability to provide money for an education is

ANGEL IN THE HOUSE EXISTS FOR JAPANESE IF FOR NO OTHERS

Sir Bertram Windle Declares Japanese Women Much Respected

JAPANESE ARE ARTISTIC

Curious Customs of Koreans Are Also Described at Lecture

Japan and Korea were the themes of Sir Bertram Windle in last Friday's lecture on the "Ethnological Background of Asiatic History." He told of the remarkable changes that have occurred in Japan since 1868. The Mikado—literally Great Gate—is the hereditary ruler in Japan, and, as in China, is descended from the gods and acts as an intermediary with them for his subjects. Save for his wives—chosen from among 155 of the oldest and most aristocratic families—and the great ministers of state, headed by the Sho-Gun, or war general, the Mikado held no intercourse with the outside world.

The Japanese are an intensely artistic people, and in their decorations the snow-capped peak of the famous Fuji Yami Mountain is a favorite motif. Metal work, carvings in ivory, and lacquer work especially are all executed with an almost incredible skill, and they also make a fine art of tattooing elaborate pictures and designs on the human body.

"If the 'angel in the house' exists anywhere she is probably in Japan," said Sir Bertram, "for the Japanese women bear a high reputation for modesty, intelligence and patience. As a race the Japanese are small in stature, the average height for recruits being five feet two and a half to four and a half inches. The Ainu of Japan, an aboriginal white race, are a puzzle to ethnologists, and may have come originally from Russia. They are a hairy race, and so admire hirsute ornaments that their young women, when they become of marriageable age, paint a mustache on their lips as an

Centenary Celebration, Bolshevik Activities and Epidemics Stand out

MEDICAL BUILDING FIRE

The academic year now drawing to a close began actively with the great Centenary Celebrations, which claimed the interest of graduate and undergraduate alike. The course of events as mirrored by "The Varsity" has been exciting and varied.

The Centenary Celebrations were featured by the students' parade; the dedication of the Carillon; the two Centenary balls; the special functions and convocation; all these added to the University of Toronto's 100th birthday.

In the fall, too, the appearance of an outbreak of smallpox startled the University. It began with five cases in a residence of Victoria College, and by prompt health measures was confined to this number. Hundreds were vaccinated, and by ruling of the Board of Governors, vaccination for all students entering the University in the future will be compulsory.

WORLD ON DOWNWARD ROAD

Graduating Class of U.C. Hold Their Final Banquet

The yellow press and the new "foot-and-mouth disease"—"dancing and talking"—were berated by Principal Maurice Hutton at the banquet for the graduating class of University College, which took place last Friday night at the King Edward Hotel.

A gloomy picture of life was painted for the young men about to be launched out into the world. The eminent classical scholar considered that the world was in a bad state of affairs, and getting steadily worse. He urged the students to seek happiness through the medium of Greek precepts.

The American yellow press and sensational writing control the world today, according to the speaker. "These are the days of newspaper government, but since people have not time to read them, the newspapers are far less influential than they were eighty years ago."

Women's new status was deprecated by Professor Hutton. He regretted the loss of home influence and the prominent part played by the fair sex in activities that were once exclusively masculine. All the artificiality and shallowness of modern civilization were uppermost to-day, he declared, referring to Bertrand Russell as the apostle of the new age.

The toasts were proposed and responded to as follows: "The University," by C. M. King and Professor G. M. Smith; "University College," by A. T. Christie and Dean A. T. DeLury; "The Faculty," by D. J. Walker and Professor Charles Cochran; "The Year," by Professor F. C. A. Jeanneret and J. A. McGillivray.

WELCOME FOR GRADS HOME FROM OLYMPICS

Parade and Dinner Chief Items in Reception Planned

COMMITTEE IN CHARGE

Plans to welcome home the Varsity Grads from their successful invasion of the land of Olympics, were considered at a meeting of sportsmen and civic officials at the City Hall this week. It was decided to arrange a fitting reception to the players, that carried the name of Toronto on a triumphant tour of Europe, and not only earned the highest amateur hockey honours in the world, but also great credit for conduct and sportsmanship.

A monster parade will be organized to escort the players from the train at noon-hour on the day of their arrival home, which will be either March the 21st or 22nd. The march will be started from the Union Station, and after a civic reception and presentation at the City Hall will continue to the University, where the Grads will be again honored.

Many suggestions were made at the meeting, including elaborate dances and public demonstrations, but it was agreed to have the welcome party short and snappy, and to allow the players to get to their homes as quickly as possible.

The University has completed plans for a banquet and presentation a week after the arrival home. It was proposed that the City of Toronto give all the players a suitable souvenir.

Most of the arrangements were left in the hands of a sub-committee which was selected as follows: Chairman, J. L. Gibbons; C. Soady, E. Y. Hutchison, L. Scholes, J. Murphy, F. Hamilton, Dr. Wright, E. S. Jackson, Joe Wright, Sr., John DeGruchy, Joe Wright, Jr., and Fred Lyonde.

Massey Fellowship To J. C. Lazier of S.P.S.

M. J. C. Lazier, it was announced recently, has been awarded the Massey Fellowship, which will enable him to spend two years at Cambridge University, with a possible third, for graduate work leading to a Ph.D.

Mr. Lazier is a fourth year student in Engineering, and well known among the undergraduate body. He won last year the Boiler Inspection Scholarship. He also spent last summer with the Duesenberg and Chrysler motor companies. He is a former member of "The Varsity" staff, having conducted the "Champus Cat" and having been an associate editor.

Principal Hutton Fears To See Co-eds At Athletic Banquet

CHIVALRY PERPETUATED

Romance and Glamour of War Displaced by Science and Wealth

The development of athletics was described as the one redeeming feature of modern civilization by Principal Maurice Hutton, who delivered on Tuesday his valedictory address as Principal of University College, at the U.C. Athletic Dinner. Various notables were present, among them the Rt. Honourable Arthur Meighen, in the capacity of a listener rather than a speaker; Sir Robert Falconer, H. J. McLaughlin, Honorary President of the Lit. this year, and W. M. MacKinnon, who replied to the toast to Athletics.

Picturing himself as "a Victorian, a die-hard, and a last-ditcher," and as "a voice in the wilderness," Professor Hutton, replying to the toast to University College, deprecated the trend of affairs to-day. He viewed with alarm the increasingly prominent part women were playing in athletics. The Principal took issue with the optimistic sentiments voiced by the President regarding the future. "All the world is in the melting pot," he asserted. The time was not far distant when women would be running the U.C. athletic dinners.

All the romance, the chivalry and the glamour has disappeared with war, (Continued on page 7)

ALUMNI ANNOUNCES MANY SCHOLARSHIPS

Alumni Federation is Granting Fifteen More Scholarships to University

TWO GONE TO O.C.E.

The Alumni Federation are again offering to undergraduates the War Memorial Scholarships. There are in all seventeen scholarships, two of which were awarded to the College of Education this last month. Applications for the remaining fifteen will be received until April 15th at the office of the Alumni Federation. These scholarships are divided as follows:

In the Faculty of Arts, two of $200 each.

In the Faculty of Medicine, four of $250 each.

In the Faculty of Applied Science, four of $250 each.

In the Faculty of Dentistry, two of $250 each.

In University College only, three Gordon Southam scholarships of $200 each.

The number of applications has not this year been as great as in previous years, and may be due to the fact that undergraduates are unaware that the regulations for the scholarships have been changed and are now as follows:

(a) Standing in course of studies.

(b) Merit as shown in extra academic activities such as executive, literary, dramatic, etc.

(c) Such other general qualifications of merit as may commend themselves to the committee, including relationship, if any, to war services.

The awards for these scholarships will be made immediately following the publication of the results in the final examinations in Arts this year. Prospective candidates are urged to complete their applications as early as possible.

FRIDAY, MARCH 16, 1928

30

To those students who regulate their academic endeavours by the paucity of extra-curricular activities the fact that the time for hard, earnest effort is now ripe is readily apparent. The final bow for the year of the student's servant, The Varsity, is generally indicative of approaching examinations and tribulations, a promise further accentuated by the close of the hockey season for University of Toronto teams. After one of the most successful years in the history of sport at this university the lid has been closed on Varsity athletics with a resonant thud that reverberates with Inter-collegiate titles. And the last athlete, as the last should-be student, may now repair to secluded smoke-filled nooks or the studies of the industrious and learned.

For the expectant graduate and for the freshman the time remaining may perhaps be taken as presenting the most difficult months of university life. The former, with a degree within his grasp, with his life's opportunities and endeavours but a pace away, with four, or five, or six years' work, and, mayhap, opportunities sacrificed behind him, frantically fears lest there be for him no realization of studious endeavours and that future plans, of which he dreamed more or less for years and which have now become more clearly defined, remain never to become actualities or else are harrowingly delayed. For the freshman, newly come from the hands of somewhat friendly teachers, fearful of the severity of new-found professors, realizing the heavy toll yearly suffered by his class, wondering at his own abilities in his new endeavours, comes the painful thought of neglected opportunities and abused resolutions. The pains of the freshman and the senior are exclusively their own, and while they may exist largely in the mind, will yield to no cure of the medical doctor or Christian Scientist, to no advice of the preacher or of the sophomore. We leave them with the suggestion that the professors do wish them well.

The graduate may leave with many pleasant memories, among which the knowledge that he was permitted to participate in the centenary celebrations of his university should always be treasured. He regrets that he must leave an educational centre that has been replete with every form of youthful pleasure, work and recreation, and his senses will often tingle at a suggested "Toronto" with its accompanying recollections of a battered pigskin, a massed arena or a triumphant victory. He may remember the Grads, Fort William, the Allan Cup and the Olympics. He will recall Harry Batstone, Queen's, and the championship Varsity football team of 1926. Hart House, the Masquerade, class banquets and smokers,—pleasant memories all. And Professor "So add So" has touched a sympathetic chord,—the Grad would certainly be glad to "run across the dear old fellow."

Unhappy to pull out, sorrowful to leave, pity the graduate.

FULL SPEED AHEAD!

Graduation dinners, farewell receptions, last lectures bring shades of the ominous. One is advised to carry "le grand mouchoir" to each event lest the speaker, dwelling on the joys of the present, reverts suddenly to the subject of their cessation. The "dear departing ones" struggle with conflicting emotions,—not wishing to leave, but hoping most strenuously for the chance. Elections have already deposed the senior "master minds"; the death warrants have been signed and sealed—a black indefiniteness looms on the horizon which makes O.C.E. seem a haven of shelter,—there is nothing left for the Seniors—but to "finish," and we have seen thousands die with greater courage and less emotion.

The end is in sight,—but, fortunately, the end is but a beginning. The Seniors have been the leaders of University life for the past year—they are now facing the great adventure in preparation for leadership on a far grander scale. The four years of academic

On Monday, March 26, Mr. Carroll Aikins, the director of Hart House Theatre, will give his last and most important presentation of the season, Shakespeare's tragedy of "Romeo and Juliet." In the forthcoming production Mr. Aikins has arranged a unique setting for the tragedy, one that will be in absolute harmony with the spirit of the play. It is his intention to subordinate all other aspects and qualities of the play to the youthful lyricism of the imperishable lines.

John Beausire, who will be remembered for his fine work as Orsino, the Duke, in last year's presentation of "Twelfth Night," will appear as Romeo, and Margaret Wilson will play opposite him as Juliet. In the cast are such well known and capable actors as A. T. Rostance, Edgar Stone, Dixon Wagner and W. Lyndon Smith; Mrs. Frances Rostance will have the role of Juliet's nurse. The presentation will be one of colorful originality wherein a serious effort will be made to interpret the play with a simplicity that will reveal the sheer beauty of the poetry in the greatest of romantic tragedies.

So will you—just graduate and see how depressing it is. And instead of being funny, we began to pursue things, things very numerous hereabouts like the Misguided Zealot or Fearless Fanatic. As we always found it easier to think clearly in verse, we, just before passing out finally, take up the old Parker (adv.) for one ultimate poem:

Good friends, and friendly enemies, Harken a moment, if you please, While we set down with much elation Our final, feline, last oration. We doff the Cat's disguise forever: The whiskers, claws and tail will never Again be ours, but this same yoke Will pass to one who knows a joke, And perhaps better will amuse Than did our recent honest Muse. life are without equal or substitute, but even the most prolonged course, to be justified, must give way to practice,—to the application of theory to fact. University graduation is a gateway of chance. For you who pass through—the world is open. And if that fearsome ogre, the General Public, at first neglects to recognize your superior ability—cheer up—the day is young. You leave us with the spring of life in your favour—a weight of knowledge on your minds, and the buoyancy of hope in your hearts.

Our blessings go with you—2T8.

ATHLETIC DIRECTORATE

The elections to the athletic directorate of the University of Toronto, held during the past week, provided an unusually close contest. The five students representing the student body on that organization are: W. A. Bean, III Yr. U.C.; John R. McGillivray, V Yr. Medicine; E. Campbell Mabec, IV Yr. U.C.; Murray Snyder, IV Yr. U.C.; Al. Young, VI Yr. Medicine.

The above give a good representation to the various athletic activities about the university. Bean and Snyder play both rugby and hockey, McGillivray participates in basketball and rowing. Maybe is a track star, while Young is a member of the senior rugby club.

The electoral college is composed of representatives from the various faculties and sports, and has a total vote of about 75. The election is made by elimination, and after the ninth ballot there were three tied for last place.

Courting Danger on the Wings of Love,

Flying by night.....flying by day.....always flying.....always fighting..... When they were not flying and fighting they congregated at the Lane Rabbit where they taunted each other.....drank to an early end..... whose war was this anyhow.....it was the Legion's..... started only because they had to find a way out.....society demanded it.....but for every Legionnaire who folded his wings
..... for every man's name erased from the list of personnel the enemy paid, and paid dearly

and FAY WRAY

THIS picture has been heralded as the companion to "Wings."
Emotionally it is above "Wings." The leading roles are played by Fay Wray and Gary Cooper, and the combination is one that the public will love.
"The Legion of the Condemned" is a French flying Escadrille during the world war. Like the Foreign Legion, composed of men who wanted to die for their past. Francis McDonald, E. H.
Calvert, Lane Chandler, Charlotte Bird and others do excellent work. Barry Norton does a bit that will touch the heart of every woman. There are some tremendous aerial combat scenes and, when the heroine stands before a firing squad of Germans, the suspense is terrific.

WHEN STUDENTS FIGHT POLICE ARE CALLED IN

Warsaw University Scene of Recent Armed Conflict Due to Politics

According to press despatches, Warsaw University has recently been witnessing rebellious scenes, when students of the Academy of War, who support Marshal Pilsudski, attempted to force their way into the university where students of opposite political views were holding a meeting.

Students, including Conservative, Nationalist and Socialist supporters, opposed vigorously the armed cadets. The fighting ended when the police interfered and closed the university. Students in all the Warsaw colleges, and also some provincial universities, immediately declared a one-day protest strike.

Warsaw University was later opened under police protection, but the Technical College will remain closed for an indefinite period.

Scholarships to be Founded Named After Dr. Hastings

Within the near future it is expected a fund of approximately $11,000 will have been raised to honor Dr. C. J. O. Hastings, Toronto's Medical Officer of Health, whose work on behalf of the city has been the subject of considerable favorable comment internationally.

The money will be used to establish two scholarships at the University of Toronto and to provide a painting of Dr. Hastings. Dr. Gordon Bates, of the Toronto Social Hygiene Council, is in charge of the fund, which is being raised quietly by a group of public-spirited citizens.

Architects Present Prizes to Men in Architecture Course

The firms of Darling and Pearson and Mathers and Haldenby have presented two prizes of books, to be awarded to students at the University of Toronto taking the course in Architecture. The prizes have been established for five years, and will go annually to a third and fourth year student, respectively.

You would be in a small conference group, working in a business environment, under the personal direction of business executives.

You may enter at the beginning of any quarter term and complete the work in nine consecutive months.

Send for Booklet!

Every College man who is ambitious to succeed in business should read our booklet "Training for Business Leadership." CINCH LEAD AT QUEEN'S Varsity made no mistakes in capturing the Intercollegiate basketball title on their annual road trip. McGill and Queen's were again the victims of a relentless attack which no team in the league has been able to stop. With all due credit to the Kingstonians and McGill the games were not much more than workouts for Varsity. The locals set out on this trip needing one game to absolutely cinch the championship. After making sure of this they decided to make a clean sheet of it by winning from McGill. Varsity have had some wonderful teams in the past, but it is doubtful if this year's team has ever been surpassed or equalled. Only one or two of the games this year were even close, the rest being top heavy for Varsity. When the season started many grave doubts were expressed regarding the chances of this year's team. Most of the old colours had graduated, and the new material seemed very mediocre. Some of this so-called mediocre material, however, produced several new stars who have left no doubt as to their ability. The pleasing part of this year's team at least at this season, when next year's prospects are already being discussed, is that nearly all the men will be back for another championship next year.

Last Friday night the locals met Queen's, and almost doubled the score on the Tricolour, 43-22. Queen's never had a chance, and with the exception of Ike Sutton, were totally outclassed by Varsity. The Blue regulars played nearly all the game and divided the points very evenly amongst themselves, Mitchell and Captain Currie being high scorers with 12 and 10. Newman, the freshman centre, did his share of scoring and also was the pivot in most of the attacks on the Queen's basket. Varsity entered the game realizing that a win was absolutely necessary. The result shows they more than carried out their determination.

Stiff University Problem is to Decide Whom to Pluck

There are too many students at universities who lack the necessary mental equipment, Prof. D. McArthur of Queen's University told the urban trustees' convention.

"There are too many students at our universities," declared Prof. McArthur. "There are more of them than the professions in Canada can absorb. There are too many who have not the necessary mental equipment. Many of them would be getting a better training for national service if they were directed toward technical training. One of the largest problems before the university staff to-day is that of deciding who shall be allowed to finish."

Should Medical Students All Get an M.D. Degree?

That the degree of M.D. should be granted to medical students at graduation, is the opinion of a number of doctors. Dr. H. A. Bruce, writing in the University Monthly, says:

"The degree of M.D. should be made retroactive and available to all medical graduates of the University of Toronto on application. There should then be a post-graduate degree given by the University to replace the M.D., which should be made a degree of great value for special attainment in some branch of medical science after a three-year course and a stiff examination. This would be something worth while and a goal of ambition. It is suggested that it might be D.Sc. (Med.)."

Course in Architecture Extended to Five Years

The extension of the University of Toronto course in architecture from four to five years has been recently approved by the Board of Governors and the Senate. The new course will be inaugurated next autumn. Ample provision has been made for new phases of the science and aesthetics of building, which have developed in the last few years.

The growing importance of large structural steel buildings is demanding more and more instruction in this subject, and in the new course particular attention will be paid to their architectural treatment. Among other subjects to which special attention will be directed in this new course are those of acoustics and illumination, under Professor G. R. Anderson.

This new five-year course, which

U. OF T. ARE CHAMPS DEFEAT LOYOLA 4-1

University of Toronto added the intermediate intercollegiate hockey championship of Eastern Canada to their senior laurels gained earlier this year, when they defeated Loyola College in the sudden-death final 4 to 1 on Wednesday. Loyola went to the attack from the initial face-off, but their efforts were met by a solid defence that they could not penetrate. U. of T. were content to let their opponents carry the play, with their defensive tactics having the desired effect and breaking intermittently to test H. McCarrey, the Loyola net custodian. McCarrey let in the first two goals. The pair came in fairly quick succession, but only one of the two was allowed. The first puck to cross the line was the result of a poor clearance by McCarrey after he had blocked a shot. The U. of T. attacker rushing in to shove both puck and goalkeeper into the net.

This attempt was disallowed, but U. of T. were not to be denied, and six minutes from the start they secured their first tally, Crosby beating McCarrey with a scorching shot from the blue line. Then Loyola equalized in the last minute of the period. Paul Haynes beat Little with a bullet drive from close range. Right after the face-off U. of T. again took the lead when Crosby took a perfect pass from Park to beat H. McCarrey.

The second period went goalless and the brand of hockey displayed was only mediocre. Loyola did not stop trying, and toward the end threw every man up the ice, but to no avail. U. of T.'s finishing touch came when McKnight and Park broke away in the last three minutes to permit the latter to score the Blue and White's fourth goal. Park had netted a pretty goal earlier in the period, the result of a combination effort with Graham, but it was called back for offside.

Varsity will be the first team to win the cup newly donated to the league by Western University.

Line-up: Goal, Little; centre, McKnight; wings, Park, Sinclair; defence, Graham, Crosby; subs, Smith, Evans, Moran, Irwin.

follows the precedent of McGill and universities in the States, has been inaugurated and planned by Professor C. H. C. Wright, the head of the Department of Architecture.

The future teachers learn school management and administration, the types of schools, including schools for subnormal children, defectives and delinquents, which unfortunately are only too necessary, and, besides the school itself with a study of its construction and sanitation, the relations between pupil and teacher. Stress is also laid on method, especially in topics difficult of presentation, as, for instance, in physiology, chemistry and biology. Other interesting subjects are those which are outside the range of ordinary high school work, such as Vocal Music, Household Science, and the theory and practice of Art. now that science is the chief weapon, and wealth the deciding factor, according to Professor Hutton. He commended favourably the development of athletics as an equivalent to war, in which the finer qualities of that pursuit would be perpetuated through the years to come.

B. J. Thomson proposed the toast to the University, to which Sir Robert Falconer responded. He viewed with approval the expansion in education, and pointed to the growth of University College as the main factor in the rapid rise to world-wide prominence of the University of Toronto.

Short speeches were made by A. F. W. Plumtree, who proposed the toast to U.C.; W. A. Gilbert, who proposed, and William Addison, of Victoria, who replied to the toast to the Sister Faculties; D. Carrick, who proposed, and W. M. MacKinnon, who responded to the toast to Athletics.

ued until the debate, which proved to be harmless.

On January 30 fire broke out in the Medical Building. Damage amounting to approximately $50,000 was done. Classes, however, were not seriously interrupted. "The Varsity" was the first paper to publish the news of this fire and also that of the Metropolitan Church, which burned down earlier in the morning.

Literary circles in the past year have been favoured with the presence of Alfred Noyes, a distinguished modern English poet, and George William Russell, "AE," the great Irish poet and mystic.

On February 15 the University was saddened by the sudden death of Professor John Squair, Emeritus in French. Professor Squair was highly esteemed for his work as a grammarian, and cherished by his colleagues and students.

The attendance of Premier G. H. Ferguson at the Hart House debate on November 30, as a guest speaker, was in furtherance of the committee's policy of inviting public men to these debates.

CHAMPUS CAT

Of academic hopes and fears
We find that, judged by every test,
Toronto is the very best
Of universities on earth
In learning, fellowship and mirth.
And on our hearth there glow the embers
Of joyous days that one remembers
When the Cat's whiskers are effaced
And by the patriarch's replaced.
And someday, nodding by the fire,
A pensive understanding sire,
We shall be glad, nor cry that youth
Has lost the ancient way of truth,
And then, despite each troubled rumour,
Our little former sense of humour
Will say: "Youth strays? Well, what is that?
For once did we, as Champus Cat."

We'll feel our whiskers in old ways
Quiver to touch those bygone days;
And far beyond these mortal seas
We'll twitch a tail of memories.

In Korea a bride has her face painted white and daubed with red, her eyes closed up so that she cannot see, and her hands wrapped in a shawl so that she cannot handle anything. A curious Korean funeral custom is their use of wooden models of animals which are pulled along in the procession of mourners.
